CHEQUE WAS WORTHLESS

Commercial Traveller Got One Cashed at a Local Hotel—Another Guest Did it as a Matter of Courtesy.

IS NOW OUT $35

A traveller by the name of Chadwick who stopped at the Hotel National, who claimed to be the representative of a Corset Company, passed a worthless cheque in the city on Thursday last, getting away with thirty-five dollars belonging to another guest at the same house. The young man, who had been stopping there for several days, asked another man to cash a cheque for him, for the above amount, on the Bank of Kingston. It was properly signed by Chadwick and he was given the cash for it. However, when it reached the bank it was found that Chadwick had no account there. By that time he had left the city, and has not been heard from since. The case has been reported to the police.

TEN YEAR TERM

Heavy Sentence for Macedonians Who Fired at Grand Trunk Crew.

Special to The Examiner.

Hamilton, March 29.—Tony Heelo and Mike Philip, two Macedonians, who drew revolvers and fired at a Grand Trunk train crew, near Lynden, about two weeks ago, after being put off a freight train on which they were stealing a ride, were each sentenced to ten years in Kingston penitentiary by Judge Monck this morning. They pleaded guilty to a charge of attempted murder.

Beans Instead of Meat

J. J. Hill says: "The high cost of living is largely due to the cost of high living." It is due largely to the ignorance of food values. If all knew that beans have greater food value than meat there would be a still greater demand for CLARK'S PORK AND BEANS as "they are the best beans grown, cooked in the best way known."

LEAVING THE BAND

Mr. Fred Miles Honoured by the Buglers of the 57th Regiment.

Mr. Fred Miles, leader of the 57th Bugle Band, was honoured by that corps last night at the Armouries, when he severed his connection with his fellow buglers. The presentation was made by Mr. Walter Fitzgerald, and Mr. Amos McWilliams read the following address:

Mr. Fred Miles, Peterborough.

Dear Friend,—It was with the deepest feelings of regret that we, your fellow buglers, learned of your decision to retire from command of our Bugle Band. Your untiring efforts as leader have always been highly appreciated, and the results of your good work will long be remembered. We cannot let the opportunity pass without letting you know, in some tangible manner, the high esteem in which we hold you, and ask you to accept this token, which we hope will always serve as a remembrance of the pleasant and profitable times we have spent together. Wishing you continued success; signed on behalf of the 57th Bugle Band.

Mr. Miles made a suitable reply and assured his fellow buglers that they would always be bright in his memory.

NECESSARY FOR THE FAMILY

If health is to be maintained there must be at hand in every household a medicine which can be positively relied upon to regulate the liver, kidneys and bowels. Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills have proven their right to first place in this regard, and already hold a secure position in the great majority of homes.

Prof. E. Frank Vernon and his wife are the attraction at the Brock Street Roller Rink on Thursday, Friday and Saturday evenings of this week, with a matinee on Saturday, and no doubt their performance will be witnessed by large crowds, as they come here with a wide reputation as clever roller skaters. Prof Vernon performs wonderful and fascinating feats on the rollers and with seemingly hardly an effort glides through the most astounding movements imaginable. One of his most effective acts is on stilts with skates fastened on the bottom. Assisted by his wife he shows many new and graceful ways of waltzing and two-stepping. The act, however, that probably makes the greatest hit is his auto novelty, in which he skates on a pair of miniature automobiles, having head lights and rear lights, and in appearance the duplicate of the real thing. The lights in the rink are turned off and in the darkness, being decorated all over with small electric lamps, Mr. Vernon presents a very novel appearance. The performance by the Vernons has to be seen to be appreciated, and the people of Peterborough are advised not to miss the entertainment.

Murder Charge Against Young Henderson Before Grand Jury

Spring Assizes Opened Before Mr. Justice Riddell—Only One Criminal and One Civil Case—Others Either Dropped or Adjourned.

HIS LORDSHIP'S ADDRESS

The Spring Assizes of the High Court opened before Mr. Justice Riddell at one o'clock this afternoon. There is but one criminal and one civil case before the court, the others having either been dropped or adjourned until another sitting. The members of the bar present to-day are Messrs. E. A. DuVernet, K.C., Toronto, the Crown prosecutor; A. B. Colville, and G. A. Payne, of Campbellford, D. O'Connell, F. D. Kerr and S. T. Medd.

The Grand Jury.

The following Grand Jurors were chosen: Messrs. H. Phelan, (foreman), W. H. Bradburn, C. A. Alexander, Wm. T. Buck, F. Brownscombe, John Butcher, Gerald Fitzgerald, Robt. Garbutt, John McIntosh, Thos. R. Mann, Z. M. Tucker, Thos. Grove, and J. M. Collins.

His Lordship, in addressing the Grand Jury, said he was glad to be again in the City of Peterborough, and he congratulated the citizens on the splendid progress of Canada, in which this place had participated to no small degree. Providence had blessed Canada with great opportunities, and Canadians had themselves to blame if they did not take advantage of them. There would be no use living in such a country if protection was not provided for the people, and it was for that purpose that courts existed. As long as justice was administered without fear or prejudice they assisted the people to become wealthy and remain happy. Speaking of the Grand Jury, his Lordship remarked that the origin of it was unknown, but it had existed for four or five hundred years. Some thought it should be abolished, but he had yet to find a better substitute for it. He continued to explain to the jurors their duties. It was their duty to pass on bills of indictment, to find if there was a case to be tried out in the open court. He reviewed the circumstances in connection with the case of Robt. Henderson, who was charged with the murder of Margaret McPherson, near Norwood, in February last. If they found that the woman died as a result of a blow of an axe administered by Henderson, then a true bill of murder should be returned. He also referred to the other duties of the Grand Jurors, that is, the inspection of public institutions, receiving Government grants.

First Civil Case.

The Court then proceeded with the case of Fred Cook, versus David and Bert Davidson.

Fred Cook, of Trent Bridge, is the plaintiff and David and Bert Davidson, of Seymour township, are the defendants. The plaintiff claims $2,000 for the loss of his left hand. He states that while engaged in working at the mill owned and operated by the defendants near Oak Lake, his hand was drawn into a saw by reason of the action of Bert Davidson, who, without warning, reversed the carriage. The hand was injured so severely that he will be unable to use it again.

The defendants claim that the accident was due to the plaintiff's negligence, and that he was working at the time not as an employee, but as a volunteer.

The jury hearing this case is composed of J. Hunter, H. Allin, Jos. Ball, I. Church, R. J. Cameron, S. Holthouse, D. Baptie, Thos. Blois, H. Balfour, A. Campbell, Thos. Donaldson and Wm. J. Clarke.

Special to The Examiner.

Kingston, March 29.—Ald. W. C. INTEREST GROWING IN EARL GREY COMPETITION

Toronto, March 29.—One week more will bring about the most novel event in the season's musical and dramatic experiences, namely, the Earl Grey Trophy competition, which will attract to Toronto choral and dramatic societies from all parts of Ontario, and Quebec, and individual soloists from many towns and cities between Quebec and Vancouver. The musical judges started on their tour this week, selecting the companies, which will be allowed to take part in the public demonstrations. The process of elimination, which extends to the seventy-five individual competitors for the medals is in the hands of Dr. A. S. Vogt, and Dr. Albert Ham for the vocal part, and Mr. Frank Welsman and Mr. W. O. Forsyth, all of Toronto, for the instrumentalists.

Already a big attendance during the week of the contests is assured. The competitions this year will far surpass in their points of general interest the programmes of the last two years, which gave dramatic art a considerable impetus over the whole Dominion. His Excellency will actively participate in the work of the week, and the event will not only possess social importance, but will mean much toward the development of amateur music and drama in every village.

THE TARIFF SETTLEMENT.

The negotiations between representatives of Canada and the United States at Washington, aiming to effect a settlement of the tariff friction created by the Payne-Aldrich tariff law of the United States, have been concluded, and a settlement reached. Naturally, no details of the terms of settlement are available before the official statement, which in the case of Canada, will be made at Ottawa on Wednesday. In advance of this statement it is impossible as it would be injudicious and futile to forecast in what the arrangement consists. But it is safe to say that Canadian interests have been adequately protected and even, if minor concessions are the price of trade peace, a little pro forma yielding is better than the tremendous unsettlement of trade and injury to important Canadian interests that would have resulted from tariff war. It is to be assumed that the settlement in no way impairs Canada's fiscal independence. That tariff peace is welcomed is evidenced by the tone of the press. Both Liberal and Conservative journals take a patriotic tone in speaking of the matter, as will be seen by the subjoined extracts from leading Canadian newspapers:

NO TARIFF WAR.

(London Advertiser.)

All Americans and Canadians who value good neighbourhood will rejoice that a tariff war, which would have been morally and materially injurious to both countries, has been avoided. The terms of the settlement have not been published, but the Canadian negotiations were in good hands, and it may safely be assumed that there has been no sacrifice of Canadian interests.

A TRIUMPH OF GOOD SENSE.

(Montreal Herald (Liberal)

From the conefrence at Washington a friendly outcome could have been calculated in the easiest mathematical terms. There were four people concerned, President Taft and Mr. Knox for the States, Mr. Fielding and Mr. Graham for Canada. Mr. Knox and Mr. Fielding could be figured as standing out for what their respective countries would do and wouldn't do. With both of them, not so much from choice as from necessity, the "thus far and no further" attitude had to be adopted. So that, mathematically, they cancelled each other. The other two factors, Mr. Taft and Mr. Graham, being of the same sort, the same disposition and animated by the same aversion to bickering, whatever the technical rights or wrongs, could be safely counted as together on the main issue. The score for peace, therefore, stood at plus two when the conference opened, and anybody who figured it that way could safely lay a heavy wager on the chance of a friendly agreement. And, as it turns out, he would have won.

Canada was pretty well represented at that conference, taking all things into consideration, quite as well as the other side. Mr. Fielding's whole record as a minister is one of efficiency. It is his business to know all about the most intricate details of other people's affairs, and those who are best able to judge admit that he has always been well up in his part. As for George Graham, he is the latest political incarnation of the proverb that a soft answer turneth away wrath. For keeping Canada out of trouble they had to be rated as a very strong team.

THE TARIFF SETTLEMENT.

(Ottawa Citizen (Conservative)

The reports from Washington indicate that Hon. Mr. Fielding has been successful in his mission, and that a settlement has been arrived at with the United States authorities which will ensure fiscal peace between the countries. The terms of the settlement will be made known simultaneously in Ottawa and Washington, on Wednesday next. It will be a matter of general satisfaction that a tariff war has been averted, especially if this result has been achieved without the sacrifice of any material interest on the part of Canada. This country was in no way responsible for the trend of events which brought the two countries to the verge of a serious rupture of their commercial relations, and the opinion is steadfastly held by Canadians of all shades of politics, that this country is consequently not called upon to impair in any degree its fiscal independence to help the chief executive of the United States out of the awkward position in which he has been deliberately placed by his own congress. At the same time if Mr. Fielding has accomplished his mission while safeguarding this point, his capability as a diplomat will be warmly conceded by the people of this country. On the contrary, it will be most unfortunate if this should prove not to be the case, as the temper of the people is distinctly opposed to the idea that Canada should be made a catspaw to pull American chestnuts out of the fire.

OTTAWA AND WASHINGTON.

Toronto News, (Conservative.)

It is only fair to withold judgment on the negotiations at Washington until the actual terms of the agreement are disclosed. If duties are lowered on only a few articles, the Government can be commended for avoiding all the evils and losses which necessarily result from commercial warfare. If, however, the concessions are such as seriously to disturb trade in Canada or seriously to affect the British preference, the country will have an account to settle with the Ottawa Government.

It must be remembered that on a considerable list of articles the rates under the treaty with France are lower than those established under the British preference. We should hesitate before we give better terms to the United States than we give to the Mother Country. If, as a result of the agreement now entered into at Washington, there should be discrimination against Great Britain in favour both of France and the United States, the Government is certain to come under criticism and attack.

Fortunately, if what is foreshadowed turns out to be correct, each country will continue to retain full control of its tariff rates. Thus we can readjust at a later day any inequalities which now be created, while nothing will be done to prevent the free action of Canada when Great Britain is ready to give us a preference in British markets. If British statesmen are wise, this preference will be extended to the oversea dominions before Canada and the United States meet to negotiate a wider reciprocity treaty.

CATARRH MUST GO

And Hawking, Spitting, Snuffles Must Go Too.

Hyomei (pronounced High-o-me) will give the sufferer from catarrh joyful relief in five minutes.

It is such a remarkable cure, and so positive in its action, that Wm. Madill goes so far as to guarantee it to cure catarrh or money back.

A complete outfit, which consists of a hard rubber pocket inhaler, a bottle of Hyomei, and a unique dropper for filling the inhaler, only costs one dollar, and if an extra bottle is afterwards needed the price is only 50 cents.

Hyomei is a healing, antiseptic balsam, taken from the mighty eucalyptus trees in the health-giving forests of Australia, where diseases of the respiratory tract are unknown.

All the sufferer has to do is to inhale the antiseptic air of Hyomei over the inflamed parts where the germs are entrenched, three or four times a day.

MI-O-NA Cures Dyspepsia.

GRAND NEWS FOR OLD FOLKS

East Mapleton, Cumberland Co., N. S., March 28.—(Special)—Though well past the allotted span of life Mr. Hiram Brown of this place is still one of the grandest sights in life, a hale and hearty old gentleman. And like many another Canadian veteran he gives Dodd's Kidney Pills the credit for his abundant health.

"I am seventy-two years of age," Mr. Brown said in an interview, "and I want to say that Dodd's Kidney Pills cured me of Gravel and Kidney Trouble. I was troubled with Backache, Headache, and Dizziness. Cramps in the Muscles and Stiffness of the Joints. My sleep was broken and at times my limbs would swell.

"But since taking Dodd's Kidney Pills, all those troubles have gone. I consider Dodd's Kidney Pills a wonderful medicine."

The aged man or woman who has healthy Kidneys can afford to laugh at the ills of life. For healthy Kidneys keep the blood pure and ensure good restful sleep. Dodd's Kidney Pills always make healthy Kidneys. That is why they are known as the Old Folks' Best Friend.

AFTER DOCTORS FAILED

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Cured Her.

Toronto, Canada.—"I shall endeavor to describe to you how I felt before I began taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I scarcely knew what it was to be well. I had awful bearing-down pains and usually before my monthly periods I suffered terribly and had to go to bed. I was not able to walk across the floor the pain was so bad. I doctored for a long time, but the doctor's treatment did not do me any good. I gave up all hopes of ever being well again until one day my husband saw the Compound advertised in the paper. He decided to get me a bottle, and I am thankful he did. I had not taken one bottle before I began to feel better, and I kept on taking it until now I am a different woman. It also helped me during maternity and childbirth. I can thoroughly recommend your Vegetable Compound to any woman who is afflicted with female troubles."—Mrs. J. M. TWEEDALE, 138 Nassau St., Toronto, Canada.

The success of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, is unparalleled. It may be used with perfect confidence by women who suffer from displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion, dizziness, or nervous prostration.

THE PORT OF MISSING MEN

By MEREDITH NICHOLSON.

COPYRIGHT, 1907, BY THE BOBBS-MERRILL COMPANY

"He said, 'Thank you, waiter,' and put the cigarette case back into his pocket."

They all laughed. Then Captain Claiborne's eyes fell upon the table and rested idly on John Armitage's cigarette case lying on the edge of the table, on the smoothly worn gold of the surface, on the snowy falcon and the silver helmet on which the bird poised. He started slightly, then tossed his napkin carelessly on the table so that it covered the gold trinket completely.

"Gentlemen," I said, "if we are going to show ourselves at the Darlington ball we'll have to run along."

Below in the coat room Claiborne was fastening the frogs of his military overcoat when Armitage, who had waited for the opportunity, spoke to him.

"That story is a lie, Claiborne. That man never saw me or my cigarette case in Berlin, and moreover, I was never at Bar Harbor in my life. I gave you some account of myself on the King Edward. Every word of it is true."

"You should face him—you must have it out with him!" exclaimed Claiborne. And Armitage saw the conflict and uncertainty in the officer's eyes.

"But the time hasn't come for that"—

"Then if there is something between you"— began Claiborne, the doubt now clearly dominant.

"There is undoubtedly a great deal between us, and there will be more before we reach the end."

Dick Claiborne was a perfectly frank, outspoken fellow, and this hint of mystery by a man whose character had just been boldly assailed angered him.

"Good God, man! I know as much about Chauvenet as I do about you. This thing is ugly, as you must see. I don't like it, I tell you! You've got to do more than deny a circumstantial story like that by a fellow whose standing here is as good as yours. If you don't offer some better explanation of this by tomorrow night I shall have to ask you to cut my acquaintance—and the acquaintance of my family!"

Armitage's face was grave, but he smiled as he took his hat and stick.

"I shall not be able to satisfy you of my respectability by tomorrow night, Captain Claiborne. My own affairs must wait on larger matters."

He sent a message to Oscar Breunig.

"Then you need never take the trouble!"

"In my own time you shall be quite fully satisfied," said Armitage quietly and turned away

He was not among the others of the Claiborne party when they got into their carriage to go to the ball. He went, in fact, to the telegraph office and sent a message to Oscar Breunig.

Mason Had Salt Rheum

ON HANDS FOR YEARS — COMPLETELY CURED FIVE YEARS AGO BY

DR. CHASE'S OINTMENT

There is nothing worse for eczema and salt rheum than cold water. For this reason many people are afflicted in cold weather only.

No class of men suffer more from such ailments than bricklayers and stone masons and this fact makes the accompanying letter particularly interesting.

Mr. John W. Naas, stone mason, of Lunenburg, N.S., writes: "I was a great sufferer from eczema and salt rheum for years and could get nothing which seemed to be of any real benefit. Five years ago I got a box of Dr. Chase's Ointment and three boxes of Dr. Chase's Kidney and Liver Pills and this treatment cured me so that the old trouble never returned. My skin became as soft and smooth as a child's after using Dr. Chase's Ointment and I shall always say a good word for it."

Very many people suffer from skin affections in the cold weather and try one thing after another without obtaining the marked and lasting benefit which comes with the use of Dr. Chase's Ointment.

Chilblains and frost bites are quickly relieved and cured by the wonderfully soothing, healing influence of this Ointment. Chapped hands and irritated skin become soft and smooth. Each and every form of itching skin disease is thoroughly cured.

A CAMP IN THE MOUNTAINS.

THE study of maps and time tables is a far more profitable business than appears. John Armitage possessed a great store of geographical knowledge as interpreted in such literature. He could tell you without leaving his room and probably without opening his trunk the quickest way out of Tokyo or St. Petersburg or Calcutta or Cinch Tight, Mont., if you suddenly received a cablegram calling you to Vienna or Paris or Washington from one of those places.

Such being the case, it was remarkable that he should have started for a point in the Virginia hills by way of Boston, thence to Norfolk by coastwise steamer and on to Lamar by lines of railroad whose schedules would have been the despair of unhardened travelers. He had expressed his trunks direct and traveled with two suit cases and an umbrella. His journey since his boat swung out into Massachusetts bay had been spent in gloomy speculations, and two young women booked for Baltimore wrongly attributed his reticence and aloofness to a grievous disappointment in love.

He had wanted time to think—to ponder his affairs—to devise some way out of his difficulties and to contrive the defeat of Chauvenet. Moreover, his relations to the Claibornes were in an ugly tangle. Chauvenet had dealt him a telling blow in a quarter where he particularly wished to appear to advantage.

He jumped out of the day coach in which he had accomplished the last stage of his journey to Lamar just at dawn and found Oscar, with two horses, waiting.

"Good morning," said Oscar, saluting.

"You are prompt, sergeant." And Armitage shook hands with him.

As the train roared on through the valley Armitage opened one of the suit cases and took out a pair of leather leggings, which he strapped on. Then Oscar tied the cases together with a rope and hung them across his saddle bow.

"The place—what of it?" asked Armitage.

"There may be worse. I have not decided."

"Is it as bad as that?"

The man was busy tightening the saddle girths, and he answered Armitage's further questions with soldierlike brevity.

"You have been here"—

"Two weeks, sir."

"And nothing has happened? It is a good report."

"It is good for the soul to stand on mountains and look at the world. You will like that animal—yes? He is lighter than a cavalry horse. Mine, you will notice, is a trifle heavier. I bought them at a stock farm in another valley and rode them up to the place."

The train sent back loud echoes. A girl in a pink sunbonnet rode up on a mule and carried off the mail pouch. The station agent was busy inside at his telegraph instruments and paid no heed to the horsemen. Save for a few huts clustered on the hillside there were no signs of human habitation in sight. The lights in a switch target showed yellow against the growing dawn.

"I am quite ready, sir," reported Oscar, touching his hat. "There is nothing here but the station. The settlement is farther on our way."

"Then let us be off," said Armitage, swinging into the saddle.

Oscar led the way in silence along a narrow road that clung close to the base of a great pine covered hill. The morning was sharp and the horses stepped smartly, the breath of their nostrils showing white on the air. The far roar and whistle of the train came back more and more faintly, and when it had quite ceased Armitage sighed, pushed his soft felt hat from his face and settled himself more firmly in his saddle. The keen air was stimulating as wine, and he put his horse to the gallop and rode ahead to shake up his blood.

Children Who Grow Very Fast Need Careful Watching.

Next to infancy, the years between ten or twelve and eighteen are the most critical in life, especially for the boys and girls who grow too fast. Rapid growth and the physical changes that are taking place render them particularly liable to weakness and disorders of the digestive system, kidneys or lungs that very frequently, when allowed to run on, condemn them to a lifetime of suffering.

Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills would make her healthy and happy.

It is most important that at this period of life those organs which carry off the body's waste and impurities—the bowels, the kidneys and the skin—should be kept active and vigorous.

Nothing will do this more effectively than that good old-fashioned remedy, Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills. It acts directly on each of these organs, enabling them to do their work properly, and thus keeps the whole system pure and healthy.

Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills are still made from precisely the same formula as when our grandparents used them, for nothing better has ever been devised.

Mr. Halpenny addressed the meeting, giving an outline of the Sunday school situation in the province, pointing out the relationship of the country organization to that of the province on the one hand and the township on the other.

The Secretary reported that since the county convention, district conventions had been held in Harvey and North Smith, Belmont, Otonabee and Smith. No conventions have been held in the other districts since the fall of 1908.

The President and Secretary were appointed delegates to the Provincial convention, which meets at Oshawa during the last week of October.

SPREES ARE COSTLY

Two Overloaded Individuals Were Assessed at the Police Court This Morning.

Henry Rogue, a man from Tweed, pleaded guilty this morning at Police Court, to being drunk and disorderly in a public place, and was fined five dollars and seventy-five cents.

Henry was having a glorious time on the corner of Park and Gilmour streets yesterday, when P. C. Newhall interrupted the fun and took him into custody.

A man whose "black list" term had just expired ,pleaded not guilty to being drunk, this morning, on Hunter street. P. C. Meharry arrested the man on Hunter street this morning and the effects of the "drunk" still remained with him. The Magistrate imposed a fine of $2.00, to be paid forthwith. The man hadn't the requisite amount of money, and he went to jail for a term of ten days.

DAILY SERVICE

Residents of Byersville Will Get Their Mail Every Day Now.

Hon. Mr. Stratton this morning received a letter from the Deputy Postmaster-General, Dr. Coulter, stating that the Department has authorized an increase in the frequency of the mail service between Peterborough and Byersville, from three times a week to a daily mail service. This is a convenience which both places will heartily appreciate.

MUSIC AND DRAMA.

Mr. Edward Barton's chorus of 40 voices, together with a bright array of special talent, will be heard on Wednesday evening next in Association Hall. The Toronto Male Chorus, which is also under Mr. Barton's direction, will take an important part, also the Canada Male Sextette, Ladies' Vocal Sextette, and these soloists, Miss Ivy Curry, Mrs. H. S. Young and Miss L. Ellis and Mrs. W. A. Greenslade (Peterborough), sopranos; Miss E C. Atkinson, contralto; Messrs. R. D. Norris and G. W. Collins, tenors; Mr. F. E Waldee, baritone; with Mr William McKendry, entertainer.—Toronto News.

HANDSHAKING AN ART

Here's to the man whose hand
Is firm when it grasps your own;
Like a grip of steel
It makes you feel
You are not in the world alone.

Many well know that 'grip of steel." The possessor, generally a calf-like fellow, who is excessively proud of his natural strength, shakes hands with an affected vigorousness that is painful to the victim, both physically and mentally. The hearty grasp is long and unpleasantly remembered. Perhaps the originator of the verse, however, had in mind a different species, since he refers to that "which makes you feel you are not in the world alone." Probably few also have escaped this affectionate clasp. That warm, kind, friendly, next-best friend, fraternal-brother grip, how deceptive it is! How often it precedes the circumlocution which finally carves itself into a gentle request for a loan! Yet it is rather fascinating, if well done, and its art and artfulness continue to please in contrast with the vice-like grip. Generalizations regarding handshakes are dangerous. Not every weakly given grasp denotes a feeble will and a debilitated intellect; not every strong one a masterful and overwhelming personality. The hand clasp which attracts no attention either by its flabbiness or muscularity is generally the most pleasing.—Springfield Republican."

Mr. Chipman, C.E., Reports Upon Sewage System

Goes Into the Matter at Length in Report to the Board of Works and Tells What is Required---A Letter That Will be Read With Interest.

Following is a copy of the report of Mr. Willis Chipman, C.E., upon the sewerage system of Peterborough, asked for by the Board of Works:

Gentlemen,—I beg to submit for your consideration the follow report upon the sewage and drainage of the southwestern section of the City of Peterborough now partially drained and with sewer convenience.

Topography.

The greater part of the area lying south from block occupied by the Canadian General Electric Co's. works, has a continuous slope towards the Otonabee river, and practically a uniform one, although to the eye it is apparently level ground. There is not one well-defined natural watercourse in the entire area, the surface water flowing southerly down Park street side ditches, and Easterly along the ditches or gutters on the streets at right angles to Park and Lock streets. At the C.G.E. works the surface water flows easterly to the river through a timber drain built for the purpose several years ago.

The northeasterly part of the area under construction is well built upon, and building operations are being extended southerly and westerly year by year. The main sewer of the city on Lock street, constructed in 1891, was designed to convey the entire domestic sewage of the city to the river by gravity. Examinations were made by this sewer and levels taken under my direction in the spring of 1909, and I am pleased to be able to state that this sewer is in excellent condition, and it is evident that it was built carefully to the grade intended, notwithstanding reports to the contrary.

This sewer is of ample capacity for the domestic sewerage from a city much larger than Peterborough, if the surface water be excluded. During high water in the river, however, the southerly part of this sewer would be flooded for many blocks, if nothing were flowing down the sewer, but the flow further gorges it, and I am inclined to believe that at times it may run full from Townsend street to its outlet.

An overflow was constructed near Townsend street, but this, also, serves as an inlet in high water. Proper valves and chambers should be provided at this point to control the flow.

From Percy street to the outlet of the main service tributary sewers are also subject to flooding during freshets in the river.

Romaine Street Sewer.

In 1907 a sanitary sewer was built on Romaine street from Lock street sewer, westerly to Aylmer, with a branch on the latter street, southerly to the new King Edward school. This sewer was properly designed to drain the basement of the school and the premises along the two streets mentioned assuming that the main on Lock street were not gorged. If the main sewer were running full, however, the ground water in the Romaine street district would stand at such a high elevation that low basements would be flooded. The sewer, as designed, if properly constructed, would have proven satisfactory for ten or eleven months of the year, but would have required close attention during high water in the river, and in extreme high water flooding of the school basement would have occurred in all probability. I am informed that the pipelaying was not properly executed, that the sewer was not laid to correct line, or grade by the contractor, also that a portion of the sewer was relaid at a higher elevation in 1908.

As Romaine street and the first parallel street to the north are now closely built upon they should be provided with proper sanitary sewers. I am certain, however, that the existing Romaine street sewer will never prove satisfactory.

Pumping Station.

After a careful study of the problem, I have reluctantly arrived at the conclusion that the domestic sewerage from that part of the city lying west of the river and south of Rink street, cannot be conveyed by gravity to the river, unless cellars and basements be prohibited throughout the greater part of the area.

I am of the opinion that the problem can best be solved by the construction of a sewage pumping station, as near as possible to the lowest point in the area under consideration. The exact location is not important, but I have selected Romaine street, at its intersection with the G. T. R. line to Belleville. It should be possible for the city to acquire a triangular piece of land at this point at a reasonable price.

The Romaine street sewer west of the pumping station, should be relaid at such lower depth as will permit all streets within the low area being sewered by gravity to the proposed pumping station. Between the railway and Lock street main sewer, the Romaine street sewer as laid, may be used as an outlet for some years. When the flow of sewage increases sufficiently a larger discharge may be provided at a higher elevation.

Pumping Machinery.

The pumping machinery should be in duplicate, one pump being operated by an electric motor that will stop automatically with the fall and rise of the sewage, the other pump to be operated by a gasoline or oil engine, the latter to be held in reserve for an emergency.

The motor power required will not exceed 10 h.p. for the immediate service, but I would advise 15 h.p.

The building for housing the machinery should be about 16 feet wide, by 24 feet long, the basement to be the full size of building to serve as pump wells. It is quite possible that you may intend to erect in this district a hose station or other municipal building, if so, it might be combined with the pump station, and the basement enlarged for tanks, or storage for sewage. The supervision of the plant would then be constantly under a city employee.

Pumping sewage is no novelty in this Province. Within the last year I have designed two sewage pumping stations, one at Brantford, the other at Orillia.

By laying the Romaine street sewer at a sufficient depth it will serve as an outlet for all sanitary services to be constructed west of Lock street, between the C. G. E. works in the north and the city limits in the south.

When the area now lying south of the city limits becomes part of the city, another sewage pumping station will be required.

Storm Water.

The timber drain on Rink street from the C. G. E. works, to the river, should, in my opinion, be replaced by a proper concrete drain, from which all domestic sewage should be rigidly excluded. At the time of my visit, in June, 1909, it was in a foul, unsanitary condition.

If the surface drains on Park street, Lock street and Monaghan road be cleaned out and brought to uniform grades, it will not be necessary to construct underground drains or storm sewers for the removal of the surface water until these streets are well built upon.

Eventually it may be necessary to construct another main sewer on Park street, but in my opinion it is not now required. If built it would not drain basements and cellars in the low areas without pumping.

If a large main sewer were laid on Park street at a sufficient depth to serve as an outlet for all tributary sewers, it would be necessary to pump the entire flow in this sewer at the outlet. This scheme may be adopted at some future date.

Rink Street Drain.

The timber drain on Park street, north of Rink, should also be replaced by a concrete or tile drain, and if there be not a proper sanitary tile sewer on this street, one should be laid at the same time as the storm drain.

The outlet of this storm sewer may be carried directly down Rink street to the lake, instead of following the course of the present open ditch that runs northerly from Rink street to Townsend, thence easterly towards George street.

Cost.

I estimate that the proposed sewage pumping station at Romaine street with machinery installed will cost between $10,000 and $12,000 and that the expenses for power and attendance will not exceed $350 per annum for some years.

From the pumping station to the King Edward school a new sewer at a proper grade will probably cost from $3 to $4 per lineal foot.

On streets in other portions of the quicksand section the sanitary sewers will cost from $2 to $3 per lineal foot, and on streets where the excavating will lie in dry materials the average cost will not exceed $1.50 per lineal foot.

The proposed new storm drains will cost approximately as follows:

Park street—Concrete or brick, $3 per lineal foot.

Romaine street—Concrete and brick, $3 to $3.50 per lineal foot.

Lake street—Tile pipe, $2 per lineal foot.

The foregoing prices include cost of manholes, catchbasins, engineering and superintendence of construction:

As the storm sewers may be laid at a less depth than the sanitary sewers, the prices are materially lower for the same sizes.

About $500 should also be expended upon a proper flushing chamber and overflow on the old George street main sewer at Townsend street. I would suggest that a door be constructed in the masonry manhole at the outlet to permit ready inspection.

I would further recommend that all existing catchbasins be disconnected from the sanitary sewers.

Where the street water and surface water cannot be diverted directly to natural water courses by the street gutters and ditches, storm sewers will eventually be required, particularly in the rectangular area enclosed by Reid street, Wolf street, Aylmer street and Hunter street. The elevations would indicate that storm sewers should first be constructed on King street and on Dalhousie street in this area, but there may be valid reasons for adopting some of the parallel streets. The average cost of these sewers would be about $2.50 per lineal foot.

I trust that the foregoing report, and the accompanying plan, may contain the information desired by the Council.

Respectfully submitted,
WILLIS CHIPMAN,
Civil and Sanitary Engineer.

ANNUAL VESTRY MEETINGS IN THE ANGLICAN CHURCHES

ST. LUKE'S CHURCH.

The annual vestry meeting was held last night, the pastor being in the chair.

After devotional exercises the minutes of previous meetings were read and confirmed. Mr. E. A. Peck, people's warden, presented the annual financial report up to date of meeting with a balance on the credit account.

Mr. G. G. Pratley and Mr. A. Kingston were appointed auditors.

The installation of a toilet room and sewer connection in the church was referred to a committee consisting of Mr. A. Fitzgerald and Mr. T. H. Adams.

Complimentary words were said regarding the organist, Miss English, and the satisfaction she gave in rendering the musical part of the services, particularly at Easter, and an increase in her salary was recommended to the wardens.

Dr. Langfeldt reappointed Mr. G. L. Hay his warden.

The advisory board was re-elected. The rector, the wardens, Messrs. H. Nesbitt, A. Kingston, E. A. Peck, F. J. Jamieson, Frank Adams, Wm. Gibbs, G. G. Pratley and David Spence.

The meeting then adjourned till April 11.

At a subsequent congregational meeting Messrs. Wm. Maniece, J. J. Turner, Jr., G. F. Wards were elected lay delegates to the synod.

ALL SAINTS' CHURCH.

The annual Easter vestry meeting of All Saints' Church was held last evening and was one of the most satisfactory in the history of the church. The rector presided and conducted the opening devotional exercises.

Reports were read from the Women's Guild, Women's Auxiliary, Men's Association, Young Men's Club, Boys' Brigade, Brotherhood of St. Andrew, Rector's Bible Class, Chancel Guild Choir, Girls' Guild, Poor Fund and the Parochial Missionary Collectors. None were received from the Junior Girls' Auxiliary or the Young People's Society. Among the interesting features of these reports was the fact that the Women's Guild paid over $1,000 towards the Building Fund this year. The P. M. C. Collectors reported $115 receipts, an increase of over $30 over two years ago. The M. S. C. C. apportionment was met in January in full in response to the rector's appeal, by over $120 on the plate. Two years ago the congregation gave $9.10 at this collection. The W. A. also showed substantial increase, and most of the societies were reported in excellent condition. The choir master has resigned.

The warden's current account, presented by Mr. James Edgar, people's warden, showed a large increase. From this account the rectory debt had been reduced and there was still a surplus of $107. The rector's stipend was increased.

The Building Fund was surprisingly encouraging, but being incomplete, no further details can as yet be given. A fraction of the congregation has subscribed over $10,000.

The rector reported 59 baptisms, 28 burials, 35 confirmations since Easter last year. The next confirmation class starts Thursday evening at 7:46.

The total contributions designated missionary were $375.

The Easter communicants passed the 290 mark. The innovation of having a communion service on Easter evening met a decided need. The Easter Day offerings from church and Sunday school amounted to $850.

With the number of Easter envelopes to come in, it is expected the Easter collection from the church alone will far pass the $1,000 mark.

The Sunday school under the superintendents, Mr. John Edgar and Mr. Frank Dawson, can easily claim the premier place in the diocese outside the city of Toronto. Its receipts were $380. The discipline and attendance have very greatly improved in the last two years. Without any room for adult Bible classes the average attendance, summer months included, was considerably over 200. The Lenten offerings so far returned are $53.

A generous contributor having put at the disposal of the rector and congregation two building lots in the south end, it is the rector's hope soon to establish a Church of England Sunday school in the extreme south end of the city. This step has been necessitated to save the boys and girls of that part of the city to the church.

The Boys' Brigade will hold a camp down the river for two weeks this summer under the control of Mr. Harvey Staunton.

Election of Officers.

Lay delegates—Mr. W. G Howden, Mr E. L. Davis and Mr John Edgar.

Charity Board—Mr. Buller.

Missionary Committee—The Presidents of the W. A., Women's and Girls' Guild, Mrs. Buller, Messrs. Jno. Edgar, W. H. Wilson.

The usual votes of thanks were heartily passed.

The meeting closed with the Doxology and Benediction.

ST. JOHNS.

The vestry meeting in St. John's church last night was merely an informal gathering of seven members to keep within church law. The adjourned meeting will be held two weeks hence, when wardens will be appointed, the financial statement presented, lay delegates, sidesmen, and ushers appointed, and reports of several church societies received and acted upon.

A COMMISSION TO LOOK AFTER THE GAME LAWS

INTERESTING DISCUSSION

Toronto, March 28.—A blow against private fish and game preserves was registered at the annual convention of the Ontario Forest, Fish and Game Protective Association held at Toronto University this morning. Mr. Kelly Evans moved a resolution against acquisition of land for the purpose of using it as a preserve, and Judge Fraelick of Belleville seconded it.

"All wild lands unsuited for agriculture, and all inland waters suitable to game fish should be kept the property of the public," the resolution reads, "and that this association must endeavour to prevent individuals acquiring large tracts of territory for private purposes."

A resolution appreciating the pioneer work Sir Glenholme Falconbridge has been responsible for in the protection of fish and game was passed.

Just as long as the game overseers and fish wardens are appointed by members of Parliament so long will our fish and game be slaughtered," said Judge Fraelick, speaking to a resolution favouring the appointing of a commission to administer the fish and game laws. Mr. Ritchie of Belleville moved the resolution and Mr. A. C. Shaw of Perth seconded it.

Wants a Commission.

"Every warden and overseer report the fish and game to be well protected year after year," Judge Fraelick said, "and they draw upon their imagination. They know better, but want to hold their jobs." A commission, he thought, would not be affected by party politics in employing men.

Mr. A. C. Shaw said he believed Sir James Whitney was a strong enough man and sufficiently interested to make a definite move to take the administration of game laws out of party politics. He said no reflection could be made against the Provincial Government of late in the administration of these laws, but better results could be obtained by the appointing of the Commission.

Mr. Kelly Evans made the announcement that the interim report of the Fish and Game Commission would be printed in a short time and copies distributed. His authority for this statement was Sir James Whitney. This report caused considerable discussion in the Legislature a week or so ago, the Opposition demanding that it be read.

Mr. William Smith, London, lamented the lack of attendance. About 20 delegates were present.

"You should see our local meetings," he said. "We never let up day and night and keep the stone rolling."

He commended the work being accomplished by Mr. Kelly Evans.

Would Change the Season.

Mr. J. R. Ritchie, Belleville, said the close season for salmon trout should be November instead of October. It was finally decided to recommend the Dominion Government to have the close season for salmon trout from October 1st to May 1st.

"These fish can spawn in October when hundreds can be slaughtered in shoal water," he said.

Mr. A. C. Shaw stood up on behalf of protection for frogs.

"The County of Lanark is the county par excellence for frogs," he said, "and they want the frogs protected."

A resolution was passed requesting legislation to establish a close season for frogs from April 1 to July 1.

Some radical changes were suggested regarding the constitution of the convention.

That the convention be held biennially, in various parts of the province, and before or during the session of the Legislature, were suggestions.

"We don't insist on the convention being held in Toronto. We are not "hogtown," Mr. Kelly Evans said.

"Hold the convention during the session of the Legislature," said A. C. Shaw, "so that our resolutions won't be dead, buried and embalmed before they come up before the House."

It was thought the holding of conventions in various cities would increase interest in the entire province.

A good, strong branch of the Fish and Game Association will soon be exercising usefulness in Toronto, Mr. Kelly Evans promised.

300 PEOPLE WERE KILLED

Villagers of Oskoerite, Hungary, Make Merry at Ball In the Coach House of a Hotel Where a Pine Branch Catches Fire and Single Door Will Not Allow Dancers to Get Out—Roof Falls on Crowd.

Mate-Szalka, Hungary, March 29.—More than three hundred persons were burned or trampled to death and one hundred others were seriously injured in a disaster in the village of Ockoerite Sunday night.

A public ball was announced to be held at the hotel of the village where the coach house had been fitted up as a ball room.

It was a great, barn-like structure, decorated with tinder-dry June branches left from a previous entertainment, to which were added for the occasion other decorations and Chinese lanterns.

The festivity attracted pleasure-seekers from the whole surrounding country and the building was so packed just before the ball began that the single door which afforded entrance and exit was nailed up to keep out scores who clamored outside.

While the dancing was in full swing, a pine branch caught fire and fell to the floor. It blazed furiously, and almost instantly the dresses of several of the women burst into flames, which spread with astonishing rapidity.

A dreadful panic ensued, the revellers losing their heads completely. Many of them, their garments ablaze, rushed towards the barred exit, where a surging mass was jammed together.

Women and men fell and were trampled under foot. Those in front vainly endeavored to tear open the door, but were crushed into helplessness by the pressure of the crowd behind, the roaring crackling flames mingling with the shrieks of the throng.

Soon the roof crashed in, the blazing wreckage falling upon the helpless victims, so that many of those who had hitherto escaped the flames were struck down by beams or buried under the debris.

When the door finally was broken open some few escaped, but most of these collapsed before they got far.

Inside the building were heaps of charred corpses, and screams and groans still were audible from the smoking ruins.

A detachment of troops was immediately ordered to the scene to clear the wreckage and help bury the dead.

The official estimate, as given last night, states that 1200 persons perished, but it is believed that the total death roll will prove much larger than this, as many persons have not been accounted for.

Wounded by Careless Shooter.

Galt, March 29.—Bryant Fryer, the only son of J. H. Fryer, manager of the Malleable Iron Works, was seriously wounded yesterday afternoon up the river, near the Galt golf links. A man, unknown as yet, was rifle shooting on the west side of the river, and Fryer in company with other boys, was enjoying an outing on the opposite bank.

Several of the bullets whistled around them and the boys proceeded to run, when Fryer was hit. A 32-calibre bullet passed through the thigh, inflicting an ugly wound. He was carried to the club house and Dr. MacKendrick attended him.

A Working Girl's Goodness.

Chicago, March 29.—Julia Gleeson, a shop girl earning $12 a week, served an Easter dinner to sixty prisoners at the Harrison street police station, paying for the food out of her savings. Miss Gleeson regularly sets aside 50 cents a week for such work.

Prominent Judge's Death.

Washington, D.C., March 29.—David J. Brewer, associate justice of the Supreme Court of the United States, died last night, aged 73 year[illegible] He was stricken with apoplexy at 11.30 o'clock and die before physicians could be summoned.

A Swedish Princess.

Stockholm, Sweden, March 29.—Crown Princess Gustave Adolph of Sweden, formerly Princess Margaret of Connaught, gave birth to a daughter yesterday.

Could Not Sleep.

DOCTOR SAID HEART AND NERVES WERE RESPONSIBLE.

There is many a man and woman tossing night after night upon a sleepless bed.

Their eyes do not close in the sweet and refreshing repose that comes to those whose heart and nerves are right. Some constitutional disturbance, worry or disease has so debilitated and irritated the nervous system, that it cannot be quieted and causes nightmare, bad dreams, starting in the sleep, twitching of the muscles, restlessness, etc.

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are a specific for all people troubled in this way. They have a soothing and calming effect on the nervous system.

Mrs. Calvin Stark, Rosemore, Ont., writes:—"About two years ago I began to be troubled with a smothering sensation at night when I would lie down. I got so bad I could not sleep in the dark, and would have to sit up and rub my limbs, they would become so numb. My doctor said my heart and nerves were responsible. I saw Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills advertised and got a box to try them. I took three boxes and can now lie down and sleep without the light burning and can rest well. I can recommend them highly to all nervous and run down women."

Price, 50 cents per box or 3 boxes for $1.25, at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

SOME DARING BURGLARS

Clever Gang of Safe-Crackers Get Into Cashier's Office Only a Short Distance From a Busy Thoroughfare and Drill Hole In Safe, Pry Off Mechanism and Carry of Immense Quantity of Stamps.

Richmond, Va., March 29.—Combining the skill of experts with the simplest of methods, thieves Sunday night or early yesterday morning robbed the vault in the office of the cashier at the Richmond postoffice of stamps estimated to be worth about $85,000, and incidentally carried off $160 in cash belonging to the payroll fund.

The robbers could hardly have chosen a more public place in which to operate. They were within less than fifteen feet of one of the main thoroughfares of the city, which is brightly lighted at all hours of the night, while the room in which the robbery was accomplished presumably was lighted. Large windows open on the street referred to.

To conceal their operations in part, the robbers shifted one of the two bookcases obliquely across the front of the safe. In this way the man operating the drill worked without being seen. The drill appears to have been of screw pattern and about a third of an inch in diameter. It was first applied to the outer door of the vault, which apparently was pierced with ease, and the interior mechanism of the barrier was pried away.

The same operation was then performed upon the inner door and the swag was within the grasp of the looters. No dynamite was used.

Box after box of stamps was removed from the vault. One man could not possibly have carried all away, nor could have a dozen men.

NO KIDNEY TROUBLE OR BLADDER MISERY

Just a Few Doses Will Overcome Any Kidney Disorder and End Backache.

The most effective and harmless way to cure backache and regulate out-of-order kidneys, or end bladder trouble, is to take several doses of Pape's Diuretic.

You will distinctly feel that your kidneys and urinary organs are being cleaned, healed and vitalized, and all the miserable symptoms, such as backache, headache, nervousness, rheumatism and darting pains, inflamed or swollen eyelids, irritability, sleeplessness, or suppressed, painful or frequent urination (especially at night) and other distress, leaving after taking the first few doses.

The moment you suspect any kidney or urinary disorder, or rheumatism, begin taking this harmless preparation as directed, with the knowledge that there is no other medicine, at any price, made anywhere else in the world, which will effect so thorough and prompt a cure as a fifty-cent treatment of Pape's Diuretic, which any druggist can supply.

Your physician, pharmacist, banker, or any mercantile agency will tell you that Pape, Thompson & Pape, of Cincinnati, is a large and responsible medicine concern, thoroughly worthy of your confidence.

Don't be miserable or worried another moment with a lame back or clogged inactive kidneys or bladder misery. All this goes after you start taking Pape's Diuretic, and in a few days you feel and know that your kidneys, liver and urinary system are healthy, clean and normal, and all danger passed.

A Promoter Convicted.

Parry Sound, March 29.—A. J. Belfry of Toronto, promoter and president of the Toronto Box Barrel Co., was convicted by Judge McCurry of receiving money under false pretences. Sentence was suspended for thirty days, and it is understood will try to make restitution.

According to evidence, it appeared that Belfry had represented that the company had purchased the Nubergall factory here, and would start operations Nov. 1, 1909, with forty hands, but it hadn't come to pass.

Belfry declared he had been negotiating for the factory, that he had collected about $5,000 from the public for stock, that he had not paid much attention to keeping books and could not tell how many subscriptions had been received and that the company was being reorganized.

Sounded Fire Alarm.

Belleville, March 29.—At one o'clock Sunday morning, fire broke out in the residence of ex-Chief of Police Snider of Trenton, and before extinguished, the building and all the contents were completely destroyed. Mrs. Snider, who was alone in the house, discovered the fire. By firing several shots from a revolver, she alarmed the neighbors, who arrived just in time to rescue the woman from the roof of the verandah. Two children were spending the night at a neighbor's house. Snider was the man sentenced by Judge Fralick on Saturday to two months in jail here for obtaining money under false pretences.

Train Missed Landslide.

Montreal, March 29.—The Ste. Agathe train had a narrow escape from a landslide in the Laurentians. The train was on the way up Sunday night when she ran into a slide of rock, but was stopped in time to prevent any great damage. One of the boulders was so large that it had to be dynamited.

CATTLE MARKETS.

Cables Steady—Hogs Have Further Advance at Chicago and Buffalo.

LONDON, Mar. 28.—Liverpool and London cables quote live cattle (American) higher, at 13½c to 14½c, dressed weight; refrigerator beef firm, at 11c-4o 11½c per pound.

Union Stock Yards.

TORONTO, March 28.—Receipts of live stock at the Union Stock Yards were 78 carloads, consisting of 1639 cattle, 67 hogs, 106 sheep and 59 calves.

Exporters.

Geo. Campbell bought 20 cattle, 1160 lbs. each, at $5.90 to $6.05 per cwt., for export. There were two choice loads, the best on the market, sold at higher prices. Maybee & Wilson reported selling a load brought in by D. Murphy of Mount Forest, at $7.00 per cwt., and Coughlin & Co. reported having sold the highest-priced load of cattle on the market, 19 choice cattle, at more than $100 per head.

Butchers.

Prices for butchers' cattle, or, at least, cattle bought by local butchers, are keeping close up to the export line. One load of 1200-lb. cattle was sold by Rice & Whaley at $7.25 to a local firm, and the same firm sold a picked lot at $7 per cwt. We would quote choice picked lots at $6.75 to $7; loads of good, $6 to $6.50; medium, $5.75 to $6; common, $5 to $5.50; cows, $4.50 to $5.25.

Milkers.

Not many on sale, but prices were firm at unchanged quotations. Prices ranged from $40 to $65, and Dunn & Levack sold the best cow on the market at $65.

Veal Calves.

There was a light run of veal calves, which sold at $3 to $8 per cwt.

Sheep and Lambs.

Wesley Dunn, the heaviest buyer and dealer in sheep at all times and seasons, reports yearling lambs at $8 to $8.40 per cwt.; sheep, ewes, at $5 to $6 per cwt., and rams at $4.50 to $5.25 per cwt.; spring lambs at $4 to $10 each. Those selling at $4 should not have been taken from their mothers, which was a sin to do so, and wasteful also.

Hogs.

H. P. Kennedy reports that he was paying 10c lower for hogs at country points, which is $7.65. The hogs on the market sold at the old price of $10 per cwt.

Montreal Live Stock.

MONTREAL, March 28.—(Special)—At the Montreal Stock Yards (West End Market), receipts last week were 2500 cattle, 150 sheep and lambs, 1600 hogs and 250 calves. Offerings to-day were 125 cattle, 25 sheep and lambs, 800 hogs and 200 calves. The supply of cattle was comparatively small, but was ample to fill all requirements. Prices were fully ½c per pound lower than this day week. Choice steers sold at 6¼c to 6¾c; good at 6c to 6¼c; fairly good at 5½c to 5¾c; fair at 5c to 5¼c; medium at 4½c to 4¾c, and common at 3½c to 4½c per pound.

Hog supplies were light and demand small, and prices ruled steady, sales of selected lots being made at $10.75 per cwt. Cable advices from London and Bristol last week on Canadian bacon noted a decline of 1s to 2s per cwt.

Offerings of small stock were light and trade quiet. A few lots of sheep were sold at 4½c to 5c per pound. Spring lambs brought from $5 to $8 each, and calves sold at 4½c to 6½c per pound.

THE GIRL WAS BURNED ALIVE

Katie Miller, Who Lived With Wolter, Says That He Had Been Associated With Many Girls—Heard a Row In His Room—Doctor O'Hanlon Reports Finding Soot In Victim's Nostrils and Lungs.

New York, March 29.—Coroner's Physician O'Hanlon is authority for the statement that Ruth Wheeler was burned alive. After the autopsy on the body he declared that the discovery of a remnant of a square of linen over the right nostril of the girl and traces of soot in the nostril and lungs convinced him that she was still living when, after being strangled by the cord about her neck, her body was set on fire by the murderer.

Hours of questioning of the closest sort have failed to shake young Wolter in his declaration that he had never seen the Wheeler girl and knew nothing of the way in which she met her fate.

A fresh trail, however, was struck by the authorities in a story told them by a young woman who confessed to having known Wolter well. Her tale of the many young girls who, she said, had been associated with the prisoner, set the authorities to looking up the numerous girls whose names and addresses were found in Wolter's memorandum book to see if any of them are missing. The investigation is expected to reveal whether or not Wolter had any active connection with "white slave" operations.

Since the latter part of January over fifty girls between the ages of 15 and 17 years have been reported missing to the police. All but 15 have been accounted for.

Under a merciless grilling yesterday Katie Miller, Wolter's companion, broke down and gave the police some startling additions to her testimony.

"About midnight," the report of her testimony continued, "I was awakened by a crash in the front room. I called out 'Who's there?' and Albert answered from the front room, saying, 'Part of the fireplace has fallen down and I'm fixing it. You stay in bed.'

"I went right back to sleep, but was awakened again about 2 o'clock by another sound as of something falling. Albert was down on his knees before the fireplace shoveling something with his hands back into the grate. He said the fireplace had broken down again. I said, 'Can't I help you,' and started toward him. He said roughly, 'Go back to bed and stay there or I'll choke you to death.' I went back."

Gives Rabbi $15,000.

Pittsburg, Pa., March 29.—Rabbi J. Leonard Levy of Pittsburg was honored by his congregation yesterday as rabbi was perhaps never honored before. Hearing that Mr. Levy had been called to take charge of the Reformed Jewish Church in London, his church here voted him a salary of $15,000 a year. His former salary was $12,000.

On reaching the age of 70 years Rabbi Levy may retire on a yearly salary of $5,000. He is 44 now. Should the rabbi die before reaching 70 years and his widow survive, she will draw $3,000 a year for life.

THE HAVELOCK INTERMEDIATES ARE CHAMPIONS

Toronto, March 28.—The Ontario Football Association opened its annual meeting at the Walker House this morning. The following officers and delegates were present: President H. W. Brown, Hon. Vice-President T. Brownlee, Hon. Secretary D. Forsyth; Vice-Presidents F. R. Brigden, Dr. J. C. Demitt, G. B. Little and Secretary-Treasurer J. A. Woodward; Delegates Western Football Association, P. J. Easson, J. M. McCutcheon, R. S. Hamilton, L. Doering, T. J. Weaver, F. Sills; Toronto & District League, W. D. Hannah, Tom Robertson, M. B. Morgan, C. G. Elliott. According to President Brown, this is the only association in which there is perfect harmony

The question of the intermediate spring championship is still unsettled. Brussels was to go to Havelock on Friday, Nov. 19 last, to play the final, and Havelock sent a telegram the evening before the game guaranteeing Brussels' expenses, and saying that a regular guarantee would arrive next morning by registered mail. The letter did not come until the last train had gone, and the Brussels team refused to leave home until it had arrived. Havelock maintained that the telegram was sufficient guarantee, and asked to be awarded the championship. After some heated discussion Havelock was given the championship by a vote of 16 to 7.

Brussels was also ordered to pay Havelock $14. They are suspended until they do so.

Baird, Hall and Bell of the Malvern Club played a junior championship game with Markham High School against Little York, for which they were suspended last fall. They were reinstated this morning.

The secretary's report was received and accepted.

Had a Bad Cough For a Number of Years.

Was Afraid of Consumption.

Mrs. A. E. Brown, Ottawa, Ont., writes "I have had a very bad cough every winter for a number of years which I was afraid would turn into consumption. I tried a great many remedies but only received temporary relief until I got a bottle of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, and after taking two bottles my cough was cured. I am never without a bottle of Norway Pine Syrup."

Too much stress cannot be laid on the fact that when a person catches cold it must be attended to immediately or serious results may follow.

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup is the medicine you need. It strikes at the foundation of all throat and lung complaints, relieving or curing all Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis, Croup, Asthma, Sore Throat, etc., and preventing Pneumonia and Consumption.

So great has been the success of this wonderful remedy it is only natural that numerous persons have tried to imitate it.

Regarding Stock Investments

In Choosing

a financial house with which to transact your investment undertakings which must always be of a confidential nature there are three points which you must consider.

They are these--- Reliability, Integrity and Honesty.

We are asking the public to participate in our Investment Syndicates, and recognize that the public should know everything possible about our firm and our proposition. In no uncertain terms we will lay our cards on the table and show our entire hands.

About Ourselves.

As to Reliability We are one of the very few brokerage houses in Toronto owning our own business premises. Our purchase of the building at the corner of Scott and Wellington streets is at once a guarantee of square dealing to our clients and an evidence of our solidity.

As to Integrity Our large business interests in both Toronto and Buffalo and a list of some thousands of satisfied clients, who have traded with us for years, is a telling argument as to our integrity.

As to Honesty Our clients stay with us, which they would not do if they were not receiving a "square deal." Furthermore we know of none who have a grievance, and, right here, we state if there be any such, that if they will let us know the details, we will employ every endeavour to rectify anything occasioned by any fault of ours.

About Our Syndicates.

As to Confidence Now, as to our Investment Syndicates, which have been classed as "discretionary pools." All business dealings in the world are based on confidence. Results beget more confidence, and if we can make you money, which we know we can, we will get yours.

In every transaction on the stock market, whether made with us or some other house, you must have faith in the house you are dealing with. And, surely every investor, whether small or large, has a better opportunity of success in pooling his issues with others, where there is ample financial backing to his transactions, than by investing single handed and risking his entire unprotected capital on one turn of the market.

Our Plan Our syndicate plan is plain—read it again—and ask any broker if in his opinion, a 25-point margin is not sufficient protection. Ask him about every other point in the plan, and if there is any point not mentioned, ask us about it.

The only objection he can make is that the operations are entirely in our hands, which is true. But ask him if there is really any difference in advising clients singly about market operations—which he will always do and advising them wholesale, which we really do, except in the magnitude of operation.

Your Success Then ask yourself if your chances are not best with the house that calls a spade a spade, and puts its proposition plainly before the entire public, without reservation?

Your success is our success. Unless we can make money for you, we cannot make any for ourselves. We are not philanthropists, and our syndicate plan is a pure business proposition to secure a large clientage and make money for them that we ourselves may earn our regular brokers' commissions on amounts large enough to make the business profitable.

We Know large sums can be made by careful operation on the New York Stock Market---We know we can make money for you.

We Want Your Business

Watch the Market

for yourself, and then figure out where you will stand with $100 or more invested in one of our syndicates. In figuring remember that one point only means profits of $100 on a $2,500 syndicate with the transaction protected by a 25 point margin.

Our dealings are all with the most reliable and conservative houses who are members of the New York Stock Exchange, who have never failed in business and are of the highest integrity.

The Syndicate System

These Investment Syndicates are for $2500 each, and each known by a separate number.

Each syndicate will trade in only 100 shares at a time, thus having on each transaction a protection of 25 points, which based on the trend of the market for many years, is considered ample.

Syndicate members will receive each week statements of the transactions of the syndicate they are interested in.

Syndicate members have the privilege of investigating the books of their syndicate and checking up the records to verify our accounts.

Syndicate members may withdraw all or any part of their credit balances at any time by giving three days' notice.

Profits will be paid at the end of each month and 6 per cent. interest will be paid if money is lying dormant.

Charges for operating the syndicates are a regular commission of ⅛ each way, or $12.50 for each 100 shares handled.

Specialist guidance and ample financial protection to market operations are the two essential points to guarantee success. We are market specialists and the syndicate system guarantees protection.

Send us your New York business even if you don't want to join a syndicate.

BOWLING

Some enthusiasts held a game today on the Bowling Green, thus establishing a record for early bowling. The green is in good condition and there are every prospects of a good year.

The committee wishes to remind the members that the annual meeting of the Lawn Bowling and Tennis Club will be held in the Dominion Bank chambers on Friday.

BASKET BALL.

The Toronto Central Intermediate basket ball team sailed down here yesterday and gave the local Y. M. C. A. Intermediate an awful trimming, playing rings around them. The visitors shot baskets from all angles of the floor, and played some pretty team work. Their passing was excellent, as the score, 78-24 in their favour, indicates.

The game started with a dash, and Peterboro, by excellent team work, scored the first goal, but Toronto didn't seem to mind it at all. Toronto then started, and they didn't stop for some time.

Every man on the team played an excellent game.

Chubb scored fifteen baskets, and would have done even better if they had given him a chance.

Simpson played a dandy game, as well as Dunn.

The local team were defeated, but lost nothing, as they learned how to play and how to shoot, and in the future they will turn out for practice more often.

Toronto outweighed our boys ten pounds to the man, and they were defeated to a standstill.

Line-up as follows:
G. Chubb, R. F.....Nicholls, R. F.
Cairick, L. F.....Hanwell, L. F.
Dunn, C.....Wallis, C.
Comery, R. G.....Mathews, R. G.
Simpson, L. G..Laing and Lees, L. G.
Referee, H. C. McLaughlin; timer, Langford; scorer, Bartlett.

Monday—9 to 9.30.
Tuesday—5 to 5.30 and 9 to 9.30.
Wednesday—5 to 5.30
Thursday—9 to 9.30.
Friday—7 to 8 and 8 to 9.
Saturday—11.30 to 12.

NEW EASTER HATS AS SEEN BY A MERE MAN

Masculine Views on the Headgear That Peterboro's Women Kind are Wearing Just Now.

SOME OTHER CREATIONS

"Done," said I, and off we hiked along George street.

"Exhibit T," said he, as we drew up alongside a big departmental store window. We elbowed our way through a jostling crowd of femininity, and feasted our eyes upon the beauteous scene.

"Sh! Don't disturb the hen—she's busy," said I as we fastened our gaze on a fine specimen of the barnyard cult in headgear.

"What's she busy at?" he demanded.

"Hatching," I replied.

"Hatching what?" he insisted.

"Trouble for somebody's husband," said I: 'Look at the price, $74.95."

"Say, Bill," he resumed; "don't you think it's a darn shame to set hens at work trimming hats when the price of eggs is what it is?"

"Not so much of a shame after all," I answered; "no worse than putting them in cold storage to waste their sweetness in the frozen air."

Very Queer Bird.

Our gaze wandered around a bit.

"What kind of a bird's that?" he asked, pointing at a hat trimmed with a rooster's head, a gull's body, pheasant's wings and a peacock's tail.

"That," I said with dogmatic decision, "is a Bundelafeatherus."

"Wrong," save he, 'it's a Pheasapeagulildoodle."

"That's not in any Natural History I ever read," I objected.

"Well, who said it was?" he came back. "The bird in Nellie's hat always belongs to some species found only in Unnatural History."

Airy Creations.

"Pipe the aeroplane," was my next remark, called forth by a weird concoction at the left side of the stage. It was made of fine laminated straw, and was shaped in two huge, almost flat wings, swept upward and outward from each side, a la Bleriot. A huge flat bow of ribbon stuck on at the rear gave the effect of a propellor, and the illusion was complete.

"Anybody ever wear a thing like that?" I queried.

George hemmed and hawed a little. "Oh, I guess so," he finally vouchsafed." These are for the high-flyers. You see, aeroplaning has become so fashionable now. Last year we had the Merry Widow. That acted very well as a parachute for people who wanted to get to the ground level in a hurry from the top of some sky-scraper, but parachuting is not so graceful as gliding, and the modern hats are thus all built on the aeroplane principle, even the Chanticleers, which they call Chanteclaeros. Observe the Casey Baldwin curve all the lids have got. That's part of the aeroplane idea. There was some talk of there being some built with the plane-warping effect for balancing, but the Wright Brothers got out an injunction and prevented it. . . . . ." Just then he sneezed, and we blew along to the next corner.

An Evening Landscape.

We came to earth in front of another millinery display. "What's the time?" asked George; "my watch is at my uncle's."

Three o'clock," I informed him. "Why do you ask?"

"Sunset's coming awful early," he replied, pointing at a hat in the window.

The skypiece he indicated was a big yellow affair, banked up with clouds of tulle, with a golden-red daub of silk on the side of the crown, and streamers of variegated feathers and osprey shoots spreading upwards like the rays of Old Sol when he takes his plunge into Stony Lake of a summer evening.

"Is that a hat" I asked.

"No," said George: "It's a landscape. Why don't they frame it?"

But the sun was doomed to eclipse. The window artist came along and deposited a huge contraption in front of it that shut its light off completely. The latter was a big structure of straw, shaped originally something like a Sitz bath, upside down, but the edges had been pushed up at the front and the rear till they were higher than the crown, and a nice garland of rhubarb, and asparagus was plastered over the whole affair.

"Some hat, eh?" I remarked.

"Yep," said George; "but if I met a friend of mine in a thing turned up at both ends like that I'd never know whether she was going or coming. There ought to be a law compelling milliners to place signposts on the hats to tell a fellow which is the front. You couldn't tell if some of these ones were wrong side up."

Elizabeth's Garden.

We strayed along a little further, bringing up at another opening exhibition.

"Elizabeth in her German Garden" I ventured as we looked at the figure in the centre of the layout. It represented a charming young lady with a wire figure, blonde, hempen hair, and feet small beyond the widest contortions of Nature, balancing on her waxen head what looked exactly like a large flowerpot, filled with American Beauties, hyacinths, sunflowers, nasturtiums, dahlias, parsley, and other choice flowers we read about in the seed catalogues.

"Well, now, is THAT a hat?" asked George.

"No, I answered, "it is a lesson in botany and an experiment in equilibrium rolled into one."

The next window we looked at showed a marked prevalence of the Chanticleer effect. Roosters, henpheasants and combination fowls of all kinds, known and unknown, strutted, straddled and sat upon foundations that looked like nests, eggs, trees and garbage heaps. One fine large pheasant was perched coquettishly on a branch among a lot of waxed cloth shrubbery. George looked at it sadly. "Say," he asked: "don't you think that would look a whole lot better if it was stuffed, trussed, roasted and served up with water cress and green peas?"

"Yes," George," I answered. "And they could use the game-carvers for hatpins."

Thistledown—Pff Pff

"Further along we found a roof-piece which was comparatively plain. It was a wide-brimmed, low-crowned affair, covered over with closely-set little white flowers, while right in front of the crown was a big fluffy whitish ball of maline. "Thistledown in a field of daisies," I remarked facetiously. "Useful kind of a hat that," added George. "When a girl goes home after a walk with her best

CHURCH ANNIVERSARY

St. James' Church held the first anniversary of the church opening last Sunday. Rev. H. M. Manning of Whitby, who founded this church a little more than a year ago, was the preacher for the occasion. His discourses were eloquent and thoughtful, and both services were occasions of great spiritual blessing. Special Easter music was rendered by the choir. In the Sunday school Mr. Manning recalled its beginning on July 12, 1908, in a tent pitched on the grounds, with an attendance of 39, and commented on the rapid growth of church and school since that time.

On Monday evening the congregational social was well attended. Reports of the work were given by the officers of the church and its societies. Rev. G. W. Henderson, chairman of the Peterborough district, and Rev. H. M. Manning made addresses. Duets rendered by Miss Callender and Mr. Thornton, also by Miss Chasty and Mr. Huycke, were much appreciated, and little Miss Christie delighted everyone with her recitations. The Sunday thank offerings amounted to $250.

THE NEW EASTER HATS

young man, in that hat, of course, she can amuse herself with it by playing 'He loves muh; he loves muh not.'"

As we proceeded on our way we noticed one window in which the styles did not seem to be so striking or outlandish as those we had been viewing. George paused. "Here's something more sensible," he said as his fine artistic eye roamed rapidly over the contents of the window. "The colours in these hats match better than those we've seen. The designs are more artistic. There are no travesties on the science of ornithology. The ....."

The majority of the remaining hats we saw were along the lines of those we had already seen. But there were a few that struck new notes. There was an automobile hat looked like a glorified baby's bonnet, with big streamers tacked on behind. There were also a number of hats modelled, as regards both texture and design, closely after the familiar fish basket. There were hats that resembled drums, tea-cosies, porridge pots, Dreadnoughts, Catherine wheels, apartment houses and political platforms.

A Heavenly Hat.

But the greatest of all was one that we saw in the very last place we looked at. It was a low-lying, rakish looking craft, with a huge ball of some glowing fluffy stuff at the forward end, and long streamers of osprey appearance flying aft for yards. It was simple in design, but Titanic in effect. Its appearance was gorgeous in the extreme. Its general build seemed to lift it out of the realm of the inanimate and make it a living entity. I gasped. So did George, though he says he didn't. "Am I sober?" he asked in a trembling voice. "To the best of my knowledge, yes," I answered. "Do you see it, too?" he continued, slightly reassured, but still shaky. "Yes," I replied again. "What do you think it is?" "The Comet!" he screamed, and we fled.

DR. VOGT AND PETERBORO'S EARL GREY CONTESTANTS

Eminent Musician Who is Acting as "Elimination" Judge Was Present at Rehearsal of the "Geisha" and Madrigal Club.

MADE A FINE IMPRESSION

"I shall certainly be pleased to recommend this company to go to Toronto," remarked Dr. Vogt of Toronto to the members of the Peterborough Amateur Operatic Company at the Grand Opera House last night after he had witnessed the rehearsal of the first act of "The Geisha," and the applause from the stage which greeted this remark of the "elimination" judge of the Earl Grey Competition left no doubt of the desire of the members of the cast to take part in next week's contest.

Dr. Vogt has been selected to judge the vocal ability of the contestants and started on his work yesterday. There are so many contestants that a process of elimination has been decided upon, and only the most worthy of the competitors will be given a hearing in Toronto. Under such circumstances it is very gratifying that Dr. Vogt was so impressed with the work of the Amateur Operatic Company that he has decided to recommend them.

Last night's rehearsal went with a snap and vim. The principals proved clever in their acting and splendidly effective in their vocal numbers, while the work of the chorus was refreshing. "The best singing chorus that has ever appeared in the house," remarked a musical authority who has seen all the musical comedies that have been seen here, to the Examiner last night.

At the conclusion of the first act Mr. R. J. Devey, the leader of the company, in a neat speech welcomed Dr. Vogt to Peterborough and paid a tribute to the distinguished visitor for the work he has done on behalf of music in Canada.

Dr. Vogt addressed the members of the company in reply, complimenting them upon the splendid showing they had made. "The Geisha is a work that makes exacting demands upon the musical ability of those taking part," he remarked, "and I am indeed surprised and pleased that in Peterborough you can successfully meet the requirements of the production. I trust to have an opportunity of hearing you in Toronto and shall certainly be pleased to recommend that this company go to take part in the contest."

Dr. Vogt then referred to the growth in Canada of a strong musical spirit that was making itself felt in many ways. He had been, he said, judge of the Earl Grey contest in Montreal last year and had recommended that if the place for holding the competition was established further west there would be a larger and more representative entry. This year the event was to take place in Toronto and the entries were more numerous than ever before, so numerous, in fact, that it had been found necessary to adopt a system of elimination, and with this end in view he had been selected as one of the judges of the vocalist candidates.

"The Geisha" will be produced at the Grand Opera House on Thursday andFriday evenings of this week and should be greeted with crowded houses not only because of the fact that the enterprise of the company in going to Toronto should be encouraged but also because the production is well worth seeing on its own account.

The Madrigal Club.

From the Opera House Dr. Vogt went to the Peterborough Conservatory of Music to hear the chorus sing the designated competition and other numbers. These were Dudley Buck's "Hymn of Praise," the sprightly madrigal, "Who Stole My Love?" and "By Babylon's Wave"—Gounod. In the presentation of these numbers the chorus did excellent work, all the elements that enter into the performance of good concerted musical execution being satisfactorily in evidence—balance of parts, tone quality, attack, shading, etc. The "Hymn to Music," by Dudley Buck, is the composition selected to be sung by all the competing choruses, the other numbers being chosen by Mr. Gliddon. "The madrigal, Who Stole My Love?" is one of the characteristic old English compositions, dating back to the 16th century—1553. Its rollicking lilt and sprightly spirit were admirably interpreted. "By Babylon's Wave' is one of Gounod's finest works. It is a favourite of Dr. Vogt, who is willing to stake the reputation of the Mendelssohn Choir on their singing of this composition. It is very difficult, especially the second movement, with its changing keys, and being sung unaccompanied, the slightest variation from excellence, unassisted by orchestral accompaniment, is apparent. In this number the chorus did excellent work.

Dr. Vogt at the conclusion of the rehearsal made a happy little speech. He congratulated both the singers and the director upon the excellent work of the chorus, which was especially creditable in view of the fact that they have been organized less than three months. He stated that there were six choral societies entered for the competition, and by the process of elimination these must be reduced to two. The Conservatory Madrigal Club was the first he had heard, and he was greatly pleased with their work. He would hear three Toronto societies to-morrow night, and after hearing all he would be able to make a decision. Of course, he was at present unable to say which two of the six choruses entered would be selected, but he hoped that the Madrigal Club would be one of the two.

The local club was much encouraged by Dr. Vogt's appreciation of their work, and will doubtless put the remaining eight or ten days of practice to good use.

Mr. Gliddon and the chorus are deserving of great credit for their energy and ambition. They give a really excellent performance, and whether selected or not, have done much to give a greatly needed impulse to choral music in Peterborough. It is to be hoped that their preliminary concert in the Conservatory Hall on April 4th, to provide funds to meet the expenses of their visit in Toronto, will be most liberally patronized.

SPECIALISTS DECLARE HENDERSON TO BE WHAT THEY TERM A MORAL IMBECILE, WITH ALERT INTELLECTUAL FACULTIES

Drs. Clarke and Bruce Smith Made Examination---Is Not Insane---The Trial of Robert Henderson, Charged With the Murder of Margaret McPherson, Commenced This Morning---Miss Susan McPherson Tells Story of the Brutal Attack---Much Insanity in Prisoner's Family.

The trial of Robert Henderson, the young Englishman, charged with the murder of Margaret McPherson, at her home near Norwood, on January 28, commenced this morning before Mr. Justice Riddell at the Spring Assizes. Mr. E. A. Du Vernet, K.C., is the Crown prosecutor, and Mr. F. D. Kerr is defending the prisoner. Henderson was brought into court wearing the same indifferent expression that has characterized him throughout the proceedings. His counsel, on his behalf, pleaded not guilty. Several witnesses were called, both for the Crown and defence. Miss Susan McPherson told her story of the affair. In defence Dr. Clark of the Toronto Asylum, and Dr. Bruce Smith testified as to their examination of the alleged murder. They termed him a high-grade imbecile, but not what they called insane. To his Lordship, Dr. Clarke said that he had no disease of the mind. His mind was capable of appreciating the law against such a crime.

The jury hearing the case is composed as follows: Thos. Blois, Jos. Ball, H. Allin, Harry Balfour, H. J. Crowe, Robert Collins, C. E. Coleman, Robert Patterson, Ormy Calendar Robt. Cottrill, Archie Campbell, Bert Sanderson.

Mr. Du Vernet in his opening remarks to the jury, reviewed the facts of the case. The prisoner, he said, is alleged to have gone to a house near Norwood, where resided two maiden ladies. One was Margaret McPherson, the murdered woman. Henderson went there and made some enquiries. He was also given something to eat, for which he offered to split wood. But there was no wood to cut and he paid ten cents. He then went away but returned in a few minutes. He came in at the door, it is alleged, carrying an axe. Margaret McPherson was sitting with her back to him. He lifted the axe, it is said, and struck her. Her sister screamed and she too was struck. He hurriedly left, but the alarm was soon given. Several persons followed him to Havelock, where he was arrested. The young man was brought back to the house, where he was identified by the deceased woman. If the evidence showed that Henderson was the murderer, the jury must scan very closely to find whether it was the action of a lunatic or responsible man. The prosecutor pointed out the fact that when Susan McPherson screamed, it was an alarm for the prisoner to run. There was also the idea of defence in the revolver, he carried, which does not look like the action of an insane man. The Crown remarked that evidence would be given as to the sanity of the prisoner and as to his antecedents to bear out the plea of insanity.

Miss Susan McPherson was the first witness. She said she lived near Norwood. On the 28th of January a young man called and asked for a man by the name of John Thompson. He went out but soon returned and asked for his dinner. Her sister was there. She told him she wasn't in the habit of giving meals, but she consented to give him something to eat. He gave her ten cents for it. He then asked the road to Havelock. The conversation was very friendly. The two women then sat down to dinner, the deceased with her back to the door and the witness looking out the window. She saw him come back up the road to the house. The axe was outside the door and she saw him pick it up. He entered and lifting the axe struck her on the head. She never spoke. He then struck witness, but she raised her arm and warded off the blow. He then dropped the axe and ran out towards Norwood. She ran screaming to her sister's home nearby and the alarm was given. Witness then came back to the house to her sister. Two doctors were called. Miss McPherson identified the prisoner today as the murderer of her sister, as she also did on the night of the affair when he was brought by the constables of Havelock for identification.

To the prisoner's counsel, witness said that neither she nor her sister showed any money to him on that day. The prisoner, she said, told her that he came from Glasgow, but he did not talk like a Scotchman. She remarked that she could think of no reason why her sister and herself were so brutally attacked.

Mrs. N. Graham, sister of the last witness, said she lived on the same farm as her sister, about a quarter of a mile away. On the day of the assault, she heard her sister screaming and saw her running towards witness' place. Her daughter, Mrs. Haig, was with her. The two of them went to the house. Mrs. Graham saw her sister, Margaret, sitting unconscious. Her head was bleeding.

Mrs. Haig, a daughter of Mrs. Graham, said, on this day, she heard her aunt screaming and went out to see what was the matter. On learning what had happened she gave the alarm, going to a neighbour's place. She told Mr. Rorebeck and her father. The latter summoned a doctor.

John W. Rorebeck resides in Ashphodel Township, about two hundred rods from the McPhersons. He was told certain things by Mrs. Haig. He sent one hired man to Norwood to inform the authorities and another one to a neighbour. The witness followed the tracks of a man through the fields to the railway track. He was joined there by two other farmers. They joined forces with some sectionmen about half way to Havelock. They got on a hand car and rode about a mile and a half. They saw a man a good distance ahead, but he left the track and went into a swamp. They kept up the pursuit. He was running and tripped and fell several times. The man was the prisoner. He held up his revolver twice, pointing it at Thomas Stark. Witness and Stark heard the revolver click twice. They followed him into Havelock, where he gave himself up, promising to make no further trouble.

Rich. Leeper, who lived near Norwood, said Roebuck called for him and he went with him down the track. He repeated what the previous witness said, regarding taking the handcar to follow the prisoner. The latter was going as hard as he could, but the snow was pretty deep. Leeper sent a boy into Havelock for the constable. When arrested, the young man asked witness for a match to light a cigarette. He gave up the revolver, and was not in the least excited. He seemed quite indifferent to everything that was taking place.

Thos. Stark lives a quarter of a mile from the McPhersons. About one o'clock that day he was called out by Mr. Roebuck. He joined in the chase with some other men, following up the track until they could see their man. There were about eleven on the hand car. The prisoner turned on them two or three times, saying: "Stay back or I will shoot." Witness told of pursuing the alleged murderer through the swamps until he returned to the track where he was met by Constable Bennett, of Havelock.

Fred Bennett, constable of Havelock, said he was summoned by a boy on January 28th. He went out to the west end of the village and found several men. They told him what was wrong. He went into the property just beyond the track and the prisoner gave himself up. He was brought back to the village hall at 11 o'clock, and from there to the McPherson home, where he was identified by Miss Susan McPherson. He was brought back to the gaol. He warned him about saying anything. Witness heard him, afterwards, say to Provincial Detective Reaborn, "I went to the McPherson home, got something to eat and then went away, but returned. I hit two women with an axe. I wanted to get some money."

Inspector Reburn, of the Criminal Investigation department, said he received word to come to Havelock. He got there next morning about two o'clock. He saw the prisoner at the village hall, who told witness what he had done, how he attacked them with an axe. His motive, he said, was robbery.

Dr. Sutton, of Norwood, called, said he attended the deceased Miss McPherson about one o'clock on January 28th. Dr. Pettigrew was with him. There was a cut on the head of Margaret McPherson, about two and one-half inches deep, penetrating the outer table of the skull. Her death of February 20th, he believed, was the result of this wound. To the counsel for the defence, witness said that he had hoped for her recovery until February 14th.

Dr. Pettigrew, of Norwood, corroborated Dr. Sutton. The shock from the blow was the cause of death.

Dr. Crawford of Havelock, called, said he made a post mortem examination of the late Margaret McPherson. The blow was the cause of death. Both bones of the skull were injured. There was no doubt as to the cause of death. In cross-examination, witness said that an abscess on the lung was found which might have produced death by the transfer of poison through the vascular system to the brain. He believed the blow was the cause of the infection of the brain.

Dr. McClelland, of this city, stated that he assisted in the examination with the last witness. His evidence was in corroboration of Dr. Crawford. The depression of the skull was not sufficient to cause death, but the poisonous condition of the brain, resulting from the depression caused death.

H. Nesbitt, gaoler of the county gaol, was the first witness called for the defence. He spoke of the condition of Henderson during his incarceration. The prisoner seemed very indifferent and always ate and slept well. He displayed no anxiety, whatever, regarding his future. He has been very quiet. As a rule, prisoners charged with crime, showed uneasiness, but this one was an exception.

Rev. Dr. Langfeldt said that he visited the gaol occasionally. He had conversation with the prisoner. The charge against him seemed to affect him in no way. The witness impressed upon him the seriousness of the crime, but he only laughed. He remarked "she was old enough to die." He had no regret whatever. He said that if he was convicted he would prefer the gallows to the penitentiary. Dr. Langfeldt believed that the prisoner knew he committed the crime, but his moral condition was so depraved that he was utterly indifferent to its seriousness.

Mr. Kerr, on the instructions of the Attorney General, put forward the birth certificate of the prisoner, and the sworn statement of his mother, who is in England. She said in part that there four children. The prisoner was the second one.

At the prisoner's birth his mother was very ill. For eight weeks after birth he was blind. At the age of five he met with an accident by running against a brick wall. He was seriously injured in the forehead. The prisoner was of a passionate disposition, weak willed, but tender hearted. His mother further said there had been a great deal of insanity in her family. Her two uncles committed suicide, and her brother was subject to fits. Her husband's only brother was very peculiar.

Dr. Clark, superintendent of the hospital for the insane, at Toronto, said that with Dr. Bruce Smith, he had examined the prisoner. He was, in their mind, a high-grade imbecile. He was void of all moral sense. He had a high-arched palate, which is common among imbeciles. Intellectually, he had a remarkable memory for dates. His whole story showed that he was ambitious for money, and apparently thought the house he entered was a place where misers lived. He learned that his environment was very good. The young man told him he had been sent to church regularly. His weakness for money was shown in that he had several times collected for clubs and charities. Dr. Clarke said in regard to the history, given by the prisoner's mother, it was not sufficient to come to a conclusion. However, a great deal of importance was placed on hereditary in determining insanity.

Dr. Bruce Smith, called, stated that he agreed with Dr. Clark, as to the young man being a moral imbecile. There was a want of moral sense, without any deficiency intellectually. This young man would not consider himself bound by any moral precepts. He was incapable of apprehending anything morally. It was an original defect, for which he was not responsible. He will always be a menace to society. His environment should always be of a custodian nature. From May until January he gathered $372, a very small amount of which was honestly earned. He had collected it under the pretence that it was for charities. He had no remorse whatever for his actions. A hereditary tendency could be in the system and might show itself at any time. Moral imbeciles have great mental capacity. The prisoner was exceedingly quick at figures.

The court then adjourned until two o'clock.

CANADIANS WANT FAIR CONCESSIONS

Impossible Contingency.

It would appear an impossible conjecture that two great countries such as Canada and the United States, could not agree upon matters affecting the interests of both, without engaging in a tariff war which would injure both, and one much more than the other.

Individuals can agree upon a settlement of differences existing between parties, by mutual concessions. Nations can do the same thing, but it should always be remembered that before proceeding to any compromise, both sides should stand upon an equal footing.

No Common Starting Point.

Between Canada and the United States there is not at the starting point a ground upon which both stand.

The average duties of the United States against entry of Canadian goods, average 50 per cent. higher than the duties imposed by Canada against the entry of United States products.

We Might Increase Tariff.

In the ordinary course of revising the tariff, Canada, by act of parliament, might increase the tariff against the United States so that it would be equal to the tariff of the United States against Canada, upon similar articles. To such an action the United States could make no protest based upon any ground of undue discrimination.

Canada has not thought fit to take such a course at present. The result is that the tariff wall erected by Canada is so low that $200,000,000 of United States products find a way into Canada every year, and on the other hand the tariff wall erected by the United States against Canada is so high, that only $90,000,000 of Canadian goods can find a way into the United States every year.

This is the position to-day.

Exercised Her Rights.

However, in her undoubted right, Canada has entered into reciprocal arrangements with other countries, the result of which is to stimulate trade both ways. The practical effect is to give to other countries, in exchange for certain advantages, which the United States enjoys to-day without giving Canada anything in return.

What United States Says.

The United States now says: If you don't give us the same advantages all are enjoyed by France and other countries, which come under the favoured nation clause, we will raise you still higher.

This is the blunt proposition which Canada has to face, and it is not an alluring one.

Suppose Canada Replies Thus?

Suppose that Canada says: "Very well, go right ahead, we cannot control the fiscal policy of the United States." What is the result?

The Result to Canada.

The result is that Canadian products will be debarred from the markets of the United States, because 25 per cent. ad valorem, added to the existing duties, makes the tariff prohibitive. This is the tariff under the Payne-Aldrich bill which will be imposed against Canada unless Canada is especially exempted from its operation by proclamation of the President of the United States, before 31st March, 1910.

This is the Position.

What is the position to consider? Canada purchases from the United States $200,000,000 of goods a year. The United States purchases from Canada $90,000,000 of goods a year, under present arrangements.

The effect of the imposition of the 25 per cent. ad valorem by the United States would mean that the Canadian people, instead of selling to their southern neighbours $90,000,000 a year, they would sell nothing, or practically nothing. But if the Canadian tariff remained as at present the United tSates would enjoy a business with Canada of $200,000,000 a year because of the very low Canadian duties now in force.

Menace to Canada.

This is the position to-day—Canada is menaced with an extra duty of 25 per cent. ad valorem ,and the question is, what should Canada do in case the extra duty is levied, which would be the case if the President failed to include Canada in the proclamation which must be issued by 31st March, 1910.

Justified in "Standing Pat."

No reasonable man would dispute that Canada would be justified in "standing pat." The position is not created by Canada. Canada has available markets for every dollar of goods that would be diverted from the American market, in consequence of the high tariff. But there is another and a far more serious question.

Not Consistent with Dignity.

Would it be consistent with Canadian self respect to submit to the loss of a market of $90,000,000 a year, and at the same time preserve a market of $200,000,000 a year to the country which works the discrimination?

This is the problem faced by President Taft and the Canadian minister of Finance. The problem has its difficulties.

In the first place the President, not being a member of Congress cannot bind that body to anything, while the Canadian finance minister, it must be assumed, will make no promise that he cannot keep. In other words, being a member of the Canadian government, he can carry out any promise he makes.

Can Canada Give Concessions?

How far should Canada make concessions? This is a question causing the greatest anxiety in this country at the present time. The consensus of opinion is that the imposition of the maximum tariff against Canada by the United States will hurt the United States and scarcely affect Canada at all. On the other hand, should Canada retaliate by raising her tariff against the United States, the $200,000,000 of business a year now enjoyed by the United States would either fade away or the revenues of Canada would be considerably augmented.

What Canadians Think.

It is understood in Canada that the United States would place Canada upon the minimum list if Canada granted certain tariff concessions. The consensus of opinion in Canada is that we should be placed upon the minimum list in any event; but if we are not, and there are any concessions to be made, they must be reciprocal.

What Might Happen.

With an appreciation of the disability of the President and the free hand of the Dominion Finance Minister, there appears to be room to entertain an idea of compromise consistent with the dignity of both nations.

As an example: The President might include Canada in his proclamation of March 31—placing us on the minimum list, and the Canadian Finance minister might indicate certain mutual concessions based upon reciprocal advantages to be determined at a future date.

Such a course would be dignified and legitimate for both countries. It would avert a tariff war, prevent breach of the friendly relations which now exist and satisfy both parties to the controversy.

Canada Cannot Submit.

Canada cannot submit to the imposition of 25 per cent. ad valorem added to the present duties and not make some practical protest by way of tariff revision.

Canada cannot acquiesce in the doctrine that her relations with other countries must be made subject to the consent of the United tSates, or any other power.

Canada cannot agree with the dictum, that the fact of entering into tariff arrangements with one foreign power, involving reciprocal advantages, is in any manner subject to criticism by another foreign power, however friendly.

Canada cannot approve of the suggestion that because tariff concessions are exchanged with one power, they must necessarily be given to another without a quid pro quo.

Competent Canadian Diplomats.

At the same time Canada is a great country and quite competent to conduct diplomatic arrangements with any power upon earth. Her statesmen are able men, just men, not influenced by private interests, or public clamour, and if there is a way out of the difficulty, consistent with national honour such a way will be found.

Concessions Must be Mutual.

Notwithstanding the difference in the existing tariff between the two countries being so much in favour of the United States, Canada might well afford to entertain a proposition involving certain mutual concessions in the future. The main point now is to surmount the present difficulty, and see to it that the President includes Canada in the proclamation to be issued 31 March, 1910.

The Canadian Government will be besieged by those who are willing for selfish purposes, to suggest any kind of concession, to avert the imposition of the United States maximum tariff.

Will Suffer Consequences.

The average business man in Canada, who is really a fair sample of public opinion, is willing, if the worst comes to the worst, to suffer some temporary loss, rather than the Government should be placed in a humiliating position. The views of such men are worthy of the most earnest consideration.

Canadian Public Opinion.

The negotiations between the two countries being secret, one is placed somewhat at a disadvantage in dealing with the problem. However, Canadian public opinion, is well known and must have some effect upon the action of the Minister of Finance.

The prevailing sentiment is that Canada has done nothing to merit the imposition of the maximum tariff.

The Canadian view is, that as a condition precedent to any agreement as to tariff changes upon our part, Canada must be placed within the proclamation of March 31.

The Canadian people would not feel they had suffered any loss of national prestige, if after being included in the proclamation, they became parties to certain reciprocal concessions, but the concessions or benefits must be reciprocal, not one sided.

Canada cannot, and will not admit the right of any country to dictate its tariff policy, and while desiring the friendship and good will of its nearest neighbour, will resent any attempt at dictation in this regard.

What Canada Desires.

Every one hopes that the present strained condition of affairs between the two countries will speedily change, but Canadians are firm in their view that the menaced imposition of a maximum tariff must not be averted by concessions which would be humiliating to us as a nation within the Empire, and disastrous to us as a business community.

Will Suffer if Necessary.

Canadians as a whole entertain the opinion, that rather than suffer loss of national dignity at this crisis, they are prepared to make some sacrifices. They would rather sacrifice something and maintain their self-respect, than suffer loss of both business and dignity.

It forms no part of our duty to point to the weakness of the United States case, but one cannot fail but observe that the great interests which are menaced in that country are finding expression in a stream of protests to the President and members of Congress.

However, one finds solace in the thought that between two great nations, each represented by an able and honourable man, some solution of the problem compatible with the dignity of both countries, may be found.

Narrow Minded Conservative.

To illustrate the narrow minded policy of the Conservatives, Mr. Lennox read in the House an extract from a newspaper in which it appeared that President Taft and Mr. Fielding had a conference on Sunday. Mr. Lennox founded upon this report a question, whether it was true that the Government had accepted an invitation to a Conference on Sunday?

A Patriotic Answer.

Mr. Fielding covered the gentleman with confusion, and was cheered by the Conservative as well as the Liberal side when he replied as follows:

"At the invitation of the President of the United States, I visited Albany and had the honour and the pleasure of meeting that gentleman on both Saturday and Sunday. We discussed matters which I trust will work for the peace, order and good government of these two nations; there could be no better Sunday work."

In the face of the delicate negotiations now pending this question of Mr. Lennox was inappropriate and senseless. Its object was to embarrass the Government, but its effect was to make the man who asked it look particularly foolish.

Conservatives Have No Leader.

Mr. Borden has been away from the House for several days, and while the leadership of the Opposition devolves upon Hon. John Haggart and Mr. Sproule, Mr. Lennox appears to have constituted himself a third leader, but he is not recognized according to Mr. Lewis, Conservative, who on Wednesday asked a question of the Government, "independently, he said, of the two leaders, Messrs. Haggart and Sproule. He did not recognize Mr. Lennox.

Such men should not be regarded seriously; their views are personal, contracted and selfish, they are not national nor generally entertained.

Bancroft Man Thinks This Fruit Medicine Will Work Miracles.

It is the old chronic case, the stubborn case, the case that will not yield to the ordinary remedies of the physician, that "Fruit-a-tives" never fail to cure. Many of the cures made by "Fruit-a-tives" are the wonder and admiration of the doctors who cannot understand how "Fruit-a-tives" can do what they cannot.

Bancroft, Ont., October 17th.

"I have been troubled for years with Indigestion—have tried every kind of medicine, and found only temporary relief. Then I used "Fruit-a-tives" and now I am no longer troubled with Indigestion. I think it is a splendid remedy."

THE PORT OF MISSING MEN

By MEREDITH NICHOLSON,

COPYRIGHT, 1907, BY THE BOBBS-MERRILL COMPANY

"It is good," said the stolid cavalryman as Armitage wheeled again into line with him.

"Yes, it is good," repeated Armitage.

A peace descended upon him that he had not known in many days. The light grew as the sun rose higher, blazing upon them like a brazen target through deep clefts in the mountains. The morning mists retreated before them to farther ridges and peaks, and the beautiful gray-blue of the Virginia hills delighted Armitage's eyes. The region was very wild. Here and there from some mountaineer's cabin a light pencilling of smoke stole upward.

They once passed a boy driving a yoke of steers. After several miles the road, that had hung midway of the rough hill, dipped down sharply, and they came out into another and broader valley, where there were tilled farms and a little settlement with a blacksmith shop and a country store, postoffice and inn combined. The storekeeper stood in the door smoking a cob pipe. Seeing Oscar, he went inside and brought out some letters and newspapers, which he delivered to him in silence.

A country store, postoffice and inn combined.

"This is Lamar postoffice," announced Oscar.

"There must be some mail here for me," said Armitage.

Oscar handed him several long envelopes—they bore the name of the Bronx Loan and Trust company, whose office in New York was his permanent address, and he opened and read a number of letters and cablegrams that had been forwarded. Their contents evidently gave him satisfaction, for he whistled cheerfully as he thrust them into his pocket.

"I take a Washington paper. It relieves the monotony, and I can see where the regiments are moving and whether my old captain is yet out of the hospital and what happened to my lieutenant in his court martial about the pay accounts. One must observe the world—yes. At the postoffice back there"—he jerked his head to indicate—"it is against the law to sell whisky in a postoffice, so that storekeeper with the red nose and small yellow eyes keeps it in a brown jug in the back room."

"To be sure," laughed Armitage. "I hope it is a good article."

"It is vile," replied Oscar. "His brother makes it up in the hills, and it is as strong as wood lye."

"Moonshine! I have heard of it. We must have some for rainy days."

It was a new world to John Armitage, and his heart was as light as the morning air as he followed Oscar along the ruddy mountain road. He was in Virginia, and somewhere on this soil, perhaps in some valley like the one through which he rode, Shirley Claiborne had gazed upon blue distances, with ridge rising against ridge, and dark pine covered slopes like these he saw for the first time. He had left his affairs in Washington in a sorry muddle, but he faced the new day with a buoyant spirit and did not trouble himself to look very far ahead. He had a definite business before him. His cablegrams were reassuring on that point. The fact that he was in a sense a fugitive did not trouble him in the least. He had no intention of allowing Jules Chauvenet's assassins to kill him or of being locked up in a Washington jail as the false Baron von Kissel. If he admitted that he was not John Armitage it would be difficult to prove that he was anybody else—a fact touching human testimony which Jules Chauvenet probably knew perfectly well.

Colds Affect The Kidneys

MOST PAINFUL AILMENTS FOLLOW — THEIR HEALTH AND ACTIVITY RESTORED BY

DR. CHASE'S KIDNEY-LIVER PILLS

Colds often settle on the kidneys and are followed by the most painful and fatal results. By quickening the action of the kidneys at this time you enable them to carry off the lurking poisons and prevent serious disease.

Keep the back warm, avoid sitting with the back in a draft and regulate the kidneys by the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney and Liver Pills. These rules are worth following, particularly at this season of the year.

Mr. W. Ferguson, blacksmith, Trenton, Ont., states: "In my work I am bending over a great deal, and this, together with the constant strain on all parts of the body, and the sudden change of temperature when going and from the forge, brought on kidney disease and backache. At times I would suffer so that I would have to quit work to ease my back, and felt so miserable most of the time I did not enjoy life very much.

"At last I decided that I would have to get relief in some way, and having heard of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills as a successful cure for backache and kidney disease, I began using them. To my surprise and pleasure they helped me at once, and a few boxes entirely removed my troubles."

Dr. Chase's Kidney and Liver Pills one pill a dose, 25c. a box, all dealers; or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

BIG METEORITE

Thousand Dollar Specimen From the Victoria Museum Arrives.

The Victoria meteorite, the exhibition of which will be a feature of the next meeting of the Peterborough centre of the Royal Astronomical Society, which will be held next Tuesday night, arrived from Toronto last night. The famous meteorite, the largest in Canada, is valued at $5,000, and it was necessary for the local association to take out a special insurance policy to protect it while in the city. The pebble from the skies is ninety per cent iron.

Mr. H. B. Collier, president of the Society, who lectures on the subject of meteorites next week, has just come into possession of a small stone which fell near Port Hope eighteen years ago and which will also be on exhibition.

MUSIC AND DRAMA.

MADRIGAL CLUB.

There will be an important rehearsal of the Madrigal Club at the Conservatory of Music hall to-night at eight o'clock. Every member of the Club is expected to be on hand.

FLUFFY RUFFLES.

"Fluffy Ruffles," with Miss Florence Gear in the title role, was the attraction at the Grand Opera House last night, and pleased an audience that while far from large in numbers, was generous in applause. It was the first appearance in Peterborough of the vehicle in which Miss Hattie Williams made such a spontaneous hit and was very favourably received, its bright comedy, unusually brilliant lines and tuneful music making an agreeable programme. There is little hackneyed in the action, the characters are original and on the whole "Fluffy Ruffles" is a bright, enjoyable entertainment.

Miss Gear appears in the title role as a reporter on the New York Herald and makes the part a delightful one by her clever acting. She threw life and vim into the portrayal and made a good impression although her singing was, perhaps not as effective as the advance notices had promised. John J. McGowan, as Noggie Noggles, a sporting editor, with a vocabulary like Chimmie McFadden, supplied the greater part of the comedy, and made a big hit. Charlie Grapewin unloaded a choice line of talk when he was seen here in "Above the Limit," but McCowan came along last night with something even a little more distorted in the way of twisted English, "Shovel off your walk, you're snowed in"; "You're up against a rubber fence. Bounce back" were a couple of new things he handed out. The musical numbers, while perhaps a little reminiscent, were tuneful, and, on the whole, were well sung, the chorus doing good work in the ensemble numbers. The musical gem was, perhaps, "Love's Bouquet," sung by Victor Le Roy, with the assistance of a number of the chorus in the third act. Several encores were demanded of Mr. Le Roy, who displayed a splendid voice. "Old Man Noah," "The Barn Dance," and "You've Got to Fool the Public if you want to get the Dough," were the best received of the others.

The production is well mounted and costumed, and, on the whole, well worth seeing.

NO FOUNDATION

Commissioner Has Been Investigating the Charges Made by Mr. Lennox, M.P.

A short time ago letters were read in the House at Ottawa, practically charging collusion between Mr. Dickson, the Commissioner appointed by the Government, to award damages in connection with the claims for drowned lands, and Mr. L. F. Clarry, of Hastings. Hon. Mr. Graham and Hon. Mr. Aylesworth promised an investigation. A Commissioner appointed by the Government has, during the past three or four days, been taking evidence of those alleged to have been implicated in the matter. The Commissioner took evidence at Peterborough and Hastings.

The Examiner has learned that the evidence has all gone to show that the allegations made by Mr. Lennox in the House of Commons were absolutely unwarranted, and not in accordance with the facts. Evidence was given by between sixteen and twenty persons and all without exception refute the charges. It seems that Mr. Lennox, M.P., visited the locality prior to his statement in the House, and how he obtained any information that justified his statements is the wonder of Liberals and Conservatives alike, who know all the circumstances and who live in the territory affected.

None of the witnesses know of any collusion or improper payments having been made, and no evidence has been brought forward to justify Mr. Lennox's statements.

As soon as the matter has been presented to the House the Examiner will publish the evidence taken therewith, and the public will be able to judge how easy it is for a Conservative member of the House to make statements and alleged improper doings when there are none.

The Commissioner left for Ottawa to-day.

John Cassidy, an umbrella mender from Millbrook, pleaded guilty to a charge of being drunk and disorderly and was given one hour to leave the city.

George Garrett, a pal of William White, pleaded guilty to the same charge as his friend and was given one hour to make himself scarce.

POST CARD COLUMN

ONLY A CHINAMAN.

The fact that the victim was a Chinaman does not render any less unsatisfactory the breakdown of the medical machinery in connection with the Toronto prison system. Mah Yung came to Toronto to earn a living as a merchant. He drank city water, and contracted typhoid fever. Becoming delirious, he was arrested on a charge of insanity. Neither before nor at the time of his apprehension was any effort made to ascertain his physical condition, or to find the real cause of his mental derangement. The jail physicians admit that they declared him to be of unsound mind without inquiring into his physical state. As a result of this surprising miscarriage the poor fellow was confined in the jail for five days without it being discovered that he was in the last stages of the disease which our wretched sanitary arrangements have rendered so prevalent. After his removal to the General Hospital the presence of typhoid was discovered, and a post mortem examination showed that the fever was in its third or fourth week. It may sometimes be difficult to distinguish between typhoid delirium and insanity, but certainly more care should be taken to protect the liberty and the lives of citizens than was shown in the case of this unfortunate Oriental. The common prison is no place for the insane, and it is nothing short of shocking that the large population of Toronto jail is so lacking in hospital accommodation and medical supervision as this case shows it to be.—Toronto News, March 28, 1910.

Peterborough, March 29, 1910.

Sir:

This treatment of a sick man would go to prove the roguery of "the insane business." Like Dr. Cook's discovery of the Pole, it is all an imposture. Of course, the public like being fooled, but this is a serious matter.

I have offered the News $100 for a Toronto hospital for reasonable proof of there being such a thing as insanity.

See that Your Flour is Sound and Dry

Then, Madam, the cookbook says:
"Sift Your Flour".

Do YOU know the story the Sifter tells?

To beware of flour that's soft and sticky, coming out of the sack with difficulty; flour that's lumpy, musty, woolly, soft; flour that sifts quite sluggishly.

To guard against the stuff you can press into a ball near solid, falling into several pieces when broken, not into that fine granular dust which FIVE ROSES is.

Very nasty thing is excess moisture, Madam.

Expensive too, you know. Since the bread-yielding and water-absorbing properties decline, and YOU are robbed of many loaves per barrel, many rolls, and pies and goodies.

And you pay for water instead of good flour.

Since Strength and Thirstiness go together, don't you see?

• • • •

But when your flour is driest—and FIVE ROSES is driest of all—just see what happens.

Bright, particularly glistening in appearance.

FIVE ROSES being lively, even, and free, each particle absorbs a maximum amount of water, etc.

Safer, easier to work, you see; fermenting uniformly, working soundly in the dough.

And when the dough is done, it's wonderfully light and silky.

• • • •

But there's Minimum and Maximum, you know.

And when the moisture danger mark is crossed, say 13%, then look out for molds and bacteria, for bad odors, musty, unwholesome, unsound flour that wont keep, flour that makes "runny" dough and bad tempers.

Yet FIVE ROSES, Madam, has a clean bill of health.

And it's guaranteed Unbleached.

FIVE ROSES is such a nice flour to use, Madam.

Why don't YOU use FIVE ROSES?

Y. M. C. A. NOTES

On Monday evening last the banquet closing a membership campaign in the Boys' Department of the Y.M.C.A. was held. Nearly 75 boys were present, representing the new members and those who introduced them.

A short programme was opened by the toast to "The King," which, after an attempt on the part of one boy to sing "He's a Jolly Good Fellow," was honoured in the usual way. Mr. C. E. Sisson, representing the Membership committee, followed with a speech, in which he complimented the boys on their excellent work and expressed the appreciation of the Board of Directors for the work done.

Mr. Sisson then presented pins, in suitable Y.M.C.A. designs, to the boys who had secured the greatest number of members. These pins were donated by Mr. S. R. Hall, and won by W. J. Hastie, first, T. Cuffe, second, in the Employed Boys' Division; and Harold Lees, first, R. Howden, second, in the School Boys' Division.

Dr. J. E. Middleton, chairman of the Boys' committee, spoke briefly, outlining a progressive policy in the Boys' Department and particularly with reference to religious work.

At this juncture the chairman announced that a new Boys' Secretary, in the person of Mr. Bert Sharp, of Hamilton, had been engaged and would arrive on Friday, April 1st, to take charge of the work.

The toast to the ladies was proposed by Mr. Ray Scott, in a capable manner, and ably responded to on behalf of the ladies by Mr. H. Lees.

The banquet closed by singing the Association hymn: "Blest be the Tie that Binds."

WEDDING BELLS

FOTHERINGHAM—SWEATMAN.

(Toronto Star.)

The marriage of Miss Gladys Sweatman, daughter of the late Archbishop of Toronto, and Mrs. Sweatman, to Rev. J. B. Fotheringham, M.A., of Trinity College, took place very quietly at 3 o'clock this afternoon at the Church of the Messiah. The ceremony was performed by the Lord Bishop of Niagara, assisted by Canon McNab and Rev. Mr. Cosgrave.

The bride who was given away by her brother, Mr. Stanley Sweatman, was wearing a simple gown of white silk and lace, with tulle veil and orange blossoms. She carried a shower of lilies and roses and wore the groom's gift, a pearl ring. Mrs. Walton of Peterborough, attended her sister as bridesmaid, wearing white silk with overdress of lace, and carrying pink roses. Prof. Griffiths was best man.

MADE GREAT TIME

Fire Brigade Reached Box 35 Three and Half Minutes After Alarm Sounded.

The members of the Board of Works committee and the Fire, Water and Light committee of the City Council, gave the fire department a test yesterday afternoon and were more than delighted at the result. The committees were on their usual spring inspection trip and on reaching Box 35, at the corner of Park and Hunter Sts. sent in an alarm with the intention of surprising Chief Howard and his men. The surprise was on the city fathers, however, as the brigade reached the corner three and one half minutes after the lower lever had been pulled. When it is considered that one of the teams was two blocks away from the hall exercising when the alarm was sounded, the time made by the brigade was remarkable. A long hill and several turns in the road did not help matters any, and to be on the scene in well under four minutes ready for service is a feat that the brigade should be congratulated upon. The aldermen were delighted with the result. The test decided a wager of a silk hat between Chief Howard and Ald. Metheral as to the brigade's ability to get outside of the hall within forty seconds of the sounding of the alarm.

OBITUARY.

MRS. JOHN KENNEDY.

There passed to her eternal reward on Thursday last, Mrs. John Kennedy, one of Douro's most highly esteemed residents. The deceased lady was ailing for about a year, but it was not until about five months ago she contracted general debility, and although she spent seven weeks in St. Joseph's Hospital, she obtained no relife and in spite of what the best medical treatment could do she gradually failed till the end came peacefully on Thursday evening at 7.30. Her maiden name was Margaret Crough and she was born in County Tipperary, Ireland, in 1845. She came to Canada in 1866 and in 1871 was married to her now sorrowing husband. By this union they were blessed with seven children, four sons and three daughters, two of the daughters, Maggie and Mary died seventeen years ago. The remaining children are Michael, of Douro; Timothy and Wm., John on the homestead and Dan, of Peterborough, and Mrs. John H. Leahy, of Douro. The funeral was held on Saturday afternoon to St. Joseph's church and was one of the largest ever seen in the township. Interment took place in St. Joseph's cemetery. The pall-bearers were the four sons, her son-in-law, John H. Leahy, and her nephew, Timothy Crough, of Ennismore. The sympathy of the entire community will be extended to the bereaved family.

MRS. ROBERT WRIGHT.

The death occurred yesterday evening at 8 o'clock of the late Mrs. Robert Wright. The deceased was 96 years of age. The late Mrs. Wright was born in Ireland and came to this country in 1857, where she lived the rest of her life. Strange to say the deceased had a marvellous memory and retained her natural faculties until her death.

The funeral service will take place at 2 o'clock and funeral from Mrs. D. Ritchie's home, 600 Stewart St., at 2.30, to the Little Lake cemetery for interment.

Miser Hid His Wealth In Peculiar Places

Special to The Examiner.

Kansas City, March 26.—A story, which smacks of the days of Captain Kidd and his hidden pirate hoards of fiction has come to light in Kansas, following the discovery of $21,000 in currency, by the heirs of Terry Rice, one of the old-time residents of Glen Elder, who died recently. The heirs are continuing the search in the belief that only a portion of the old man's wealth has been uncovered, and before it ends the home place will be turned upside down.

Some of the money already uncovered was in the yard, more of it in the cellar, and a roll containing $5,000 was found in an old mattress just before it was consigned to the flames. Mrs. Ross, one of his daughters, was searching for hidden treasures in the cellar and found a buried can which contained $15,000. This money was all in gold, and the search was taken up with renewed vigour, and in an old can, which was buried in the yard $5,000 more was found.

Mr. Rice was known for his eccentricities, and for years past had no confidants, living the life of a hermit in the hovel which answered the purpose of a home to him. He owned much city property, including several business buildings and three good farms, from which he derived a considerable revenue, which he refused to deposit in banks.

There was much speculation before his death as to where he kept his wealth, and it was common talk that it was buried about the place. This led to the search which has so handsomely rewarded his heirs. Not a great while ago a force of workmen were excavating for a cement walk and their labours were watched closely by the old man until one of them unearthed a can filled with glittering gold coins, which he carried away with him to a more secure hiding place.

Stories are in general circulation of mysterious happenings which the neighbours have witnessed about the place for years past, and indicate that all of the old miser's hoard of wealth has not yet been located. Often late at night he has been seen busily digging about in his yard, and it is believed that he was during these periods secreting his wealth.

Before the search for his wealth is discontinued his farm as well as city property will be thoroughly searched. He left no will, though it is thought that his property is worth at least $50,000, besides the currency which so far has been unearthed.

BIG CONGESTION IS PREDICTED

Railways Will be Unable to Prevent It—Tonnage on Increase.

Chicago, March 29.—James J. Hill believes the railroads will experience next fall and winter the greatest traffic congestion in history, and he sees no way of preventing it. He passed through Chicago yesterday on his way from St. Paul to New York.

"The tonnage which is being offered the railroads for transportataion is constantly on the increase," he said, "and there is little doubt that the railroads will be called upon this year to furnish more transportation units than they have ever been asked to furnish. From all indications it seems certain that by next fall or early winter the railroads will be totally unable to furnish anything like the amount of transportation facilities which will be demanded by the country.

"I do not think that the railroads are to be blamed for this situation, for it is next to impossible for them to raise the money needed to provide the additional facilities. The railroads of the country really ought to have about $1,800,000,000 annually to spend for the next few years in order to catch up with the growing demands upon them, but it is a well known fact that they cannot get this money under present conditions. Until railroad credit shall have been restored and until the American public shall have gained confidence in railroad securities, the public will have to continue to suffer for the lack of railroad facilities."

MEN WHO USE ZAM-BUK

HOW IT SAVES THEM MONEY.

Look at the financial side of Zam-Buk's use. A cut sustained in the workshop, a sore which is unattended, results say in festering or blood-poisoning. You have to lay off for a day or two. What does that mean when pay day comes round? Zam-Buk insures you against that loss! A little Zam-Buk applied to such an injury at the time, or as soon afterwards as possible, prevents all danger of blood-poisoning, takes out the smarting and starts up healing.

Heads of Families know how costly doctoring is. Be wise and act on the preventive line. A box of Zam-Buk in the home is so all-round useful. The baby's rashes, the older children's cuts and bruises, the inevitable burn, cut, or scald—for all these, as well as for more serious ailments, such as piles, ulcers, eczema, ringworm, etc., Zam-Buk is without a rival.

Dangers of Shaving.—You get a cut at the barber's shop. A little Zam-Buk smeared on the wound prevents all danger. If any ailment has been contracted, Zam-Buk cures. Mr. Geo. Hobden, 108 Manitoba street, St. Thomas, Ontario, says: "I contracted barber's rash, and the whole of my left cheek broke out in one mass of red, watery pimples and sores. These spread to the other parts of my face, until face and neck were covered with running sores. How far the disease would have spread had it not been for Zam-Buk, I don't know. I applied this balm, and in a short time Zam-Buk effected a complete cure."

The Sportsman knows that Zam-Buk is used by all the "cracks," because it is the best liniment and embrocation. Men like Longboat, Sherring, of Hamilton, Kelley, of the Toronto Ball team, all the famous lacrosse teams and ball teams use Zam-Buk in this connection.

All druggists and stores sell at 50c box, or post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price. You are warned against harmful imitations.

BOMBARDED THE POLICE

Belleville Alderman Failing to Secure the Release of a Prisoner Comes Back and Fires Shots At Station.

CAUSES A SENSATION

Special to The Examiner.

Belleville, March 29.—One of the most sensational episodes that has ever taken place in this city occurred last night. Alderman H. McGinnis of Bleeker ward shot up the city police station because Sergeant Naplin refused to liberate a prisoner who had been arrested for taking Dr. Dolan's horse and driving furiously through the main streets while the doctor was attending to a sick patient. The alderman, who is about 30 years of age and a prominent merchant, was arrested at 5 o'clock today on a warrant charging him with shooting with intent to kill and also carrying concealed weapons. He was released on $1,000 bail to appear a week from Wednesday.

Alderman McGinnis went to the police station demanding the release of the young man, insisting that his position as Alderman entitled him to that authority. His abusive language caused Sergeant Naplin to put him out. McGinnis appeared shortly after with a revolver, again demanding the prisoner's release. Getting no satisfaction he stood in front of the police station and fired three shots, one going through the police station window, the other two piercing the door. Naturally, the officer in charge took no chances and locked the door. McGinnis then started for home, up Main street, and on the way shot at a dog which annoyed him. When the officers arrived at the house he would not allow them in.

A GREAT PUBLIC BENEFIT

However prejudiced some people are against advertised medicines the general public is greatly benefitted by some. For instance such standard remedies as the Cod Liver and Iron preparation called VINOL. Its ingredients are printed on every bottle, and its worth has been proven so often in cases of severe coughs and colds and to create health and strength for the weak and run-down that its sale will continue to increase in the future as it has in the past.—McDermid & Jury, druggists, Peterborough, Ont.

BANKERS "AT HOME"

Enjoyable Social Function at Conservatory Music Hall.

One of the most enjoyable Easter week social events was the delightful "At Home" given in the Conservatory Music hall last evening by the bankers of the city. About one hundred and seventy-five persons were present, and everyone thoroughly enjoyed themselves. Excellent music was provided by Bodley's orchestra of Toronto. At midnight a buffet luncheon was served by Hooper's.

Grand Jury Made Presentment To Mr. Justice Riddell This Afternoon

The Grand Jury of the High Court made their presentment to His Lordship, Mr. Justice Riddell, this afternoon. The foreman, Ald. H. Phelland read it as follows:

To His Lordship, Mr. Justice Riddell.

May it Please Your Lordship,—The Grand Jury for the County of Peterborough at this sittings of the High Court beg to present as follows:

We are pleased that we can join with you in congratulating this country on its prosperous condition. This county has undoubtedly shared in the general prosperity, and the conditions of business and manufacturing in the city show that it is participating in the progress and advancement of the Dominion. Canada is to be congratulated as well on the character of its people and institutions, and the high standing, impartiality and integrity of its Courts of Justice are among the most potent influences that it possesses for building up a country on a sure foundation. The people can rely upon our judges, and we are pleased to say that Your Lordship having frequently attended this court iff Peterborough and being known to us, we know that you occupy a conspicuous place among our learned and able Justices.

As directed by you, we visited a number of the public institutions. At the gaol we found fifteen prisoners in confinement, among them five who seemed to have been committed there on account of poverty. We understand that the City of Peterborough is taking steps to provide more accommodation for its poor and we would recommend that such provision be made as soon as possible. We are pleased to say that the gaol and everything about it was in good condition and the prisoners well cared for. During our inspection we noticed that the railings on the verandahs at the entrance to the County Judge's Chambers and to the gaoler's residence were out of repair and we recommend that the attention of the proper authorities be called to this. We would compliment the County on the manner in which the Judge's Chambers have been decorated and fitted up, and also on the fact that preparations are being made for heating the Court House building with steam.

At St. Joseph's Hospital there were thirty patients at the time of our visit. This hospital is well equipped and gave evidence of being carefully managed and looked after, as did also the adjacent House of Providence, in which fifty-one persons found a comfortable home.

The Protestant Home had thirteen inmates, and here again we found everything well kept. We have been informed that the Government Inspector is not satisfied with the building used for this Home and has notified the management that the Government grant will be withdrawn in consequence, but the old people there are very comfortable and well cared for and we would respectfully suggest that this decision be reconsidered.

The St. Vincent's Orphange is a new home established by the Roman Catholic church for children. It is a handsome building with spacious grounds, has separate apartments for the boys and girls, and is admirably adapted for its purpose. There were in it fifteen boys and fourteen girls at the time of our inspection.

The Children's Shelter, given to the Children's Aid Society by the city, contained twelve children. It is a comfortable home and was clean and everything about it in good order.

The Nicholls Hospital also showed evidence of careful management and close supervision, and in this spacious and well-equipped institution forty-eight patients were being treated.

Lack of time prevented us from visiting the County House of Refuge, which we regret, but it is not long since a Grand Jury made a very favourable report upon this benevolent institution.

Respectfully submitted.

HARRY PHELAN, Foreman.

LIVERYMAN STRUCK DOWN AND KILLED

Refused to Give Intoxicated Man a Horse and Buggy—Murderer Arrested

Windsor, Ont., March 30.—Chester Perkins, a windsor liveryman, was struck down in front of his barn last night by a man known as "Scotty" and died at his home where he was at once removed about midnight. "Scotty" has disappeared and it is supposed he crossed over to Detroit. The trouble which led to the fatal assault is said to have arisen over Perkins' refusal to rent a rig to "Scotty" on account of the latter being intoxicated. Little is known of "Scotty's" antecedents, the man having made his debut in the city only last summer. Perkins leaves a widow but no children. He was about forty years of age.

Windsor, March 30.—After an all-night hunt by the Windsor police Joseph Thompson, of Pontiac, Mich., was arrested about 9 o'clock this morning, charged with the murder of Chester Perkins. Thompson wos found near the Michigan Central tunnel. He was formerly of Stratford, Ont.

MI-O-NA

RELIEVES STOMACH MISERY ALMOST IMMEDIATELY.

If the food you ate at your last meal did not digest, but laid for a long time like lead on your stomach, then you have indigestion and quick action should be taken.

Of course there are many other symptoms of indigestion, such as belching up of sour food, heartburn, dizziness, shortness of breath and foul breath, and if you have any of them, your stomach is out of order and should be corrected.

Mi-o-na tablets have cured thousands of cases of indigestion and stomach trouble. If you have any stomach distress, Mi-o-na will relieve instantly.

But Mi-o-na unlike most so-called dyspepsia remedies, does more than relieve; it permanently cures dyspepsia or any stomach trouble by putting energy and strength into the walls of the stomach, where the gastric juices are produced.

A large box of Mi-o-na tablets costs but 50 cents at Wm. Madill's and are guaranteed to cure or money back. When others fail, Mi-o-na cures. It is a producer of flesh when the body is thin; it cleanses the stomach and bowels; purifies the blood and makes rich red blood.

Representatives Who Met to Discuss Powers of Provinces In the Matter of the Incorporation of Companies Present Resolutions, But the Premier Would Like to Hear From the Privy Council.

Ottawa, March 30.—A conference between representatives of the Federal and various Provincial Governments on the question of the respective jurisdiction of the Governments in the matter of the incorporation of companies came to a close yesterday afternoon without any definite agreement.

The following resolutions, which had been proposed by representatives of the Provincial Governments, but which had not been agreed to by Sir Wilfrid Laurier and his colleagues—who made counter proposals that the whole question should be referred to the Supreme Court of Canada and to the Privy Council at London—were given out.

"The delegates of the provinces, assembled at Ottawa, have adopted unanimously the following resolutions:

"Whereas it has been proposed by the Government of Canada to submit to the Supreme Court of Canada the question of the jurisdiction of the provinces and the Federal Parliament respectively in reference to the incorporation of companies, and of rights of companies so incorporated;

"And, whereas the Supreme Court of Canada, in the case of the C.P.R. v. Ottawa Fire Insurance Co., has already upheld the contention of the provinces in this behalf;

"It is, therefore, resolved: That the provinces, in view of this judgment, do not think it expedient or advisable to consent to another, or further submission, involving substantially the same issues;

"That they are of opinion that it is not in the public interest that the powers exercised by the provinces for over forty years should again be brought in question;

"That they believe that foreign corporations should not be accorded or enjoy, within any province, greater powers than companies incorporated by sister provinces;

"That they express their willingness to join in a conference to draft an amendment to B.N.A. Act, to more clearly define and set at rest the respective rights of the Dominion and the provinces in this respect.

"(Signed) L. A. Taschereau,
"Chairman."

A Fireman's Heroism.

New York, March 30.—Roughly jerked out of the seat to which he had been lashed by a stout strap that snapped under the strain of it, Joseph N. White, driving Engine No. 16 in a street turned into the roughest of roads by the removal from it of its asphalt surfacing, struck the ground between his galloping horses and was trampled to death.

Worried by the loosening of the reins controlling them, the animals increased their already mad pace. The engine reeled and careered and swayed. Women and men who had seen White killed yelled and screamed hysterically. Lieut. Joseph Slowey, clinging to the rear of the lurching engine, knew other lives would be in danger unless the frenzied horses were halted.

Unhesitatingly he seized hold of a boiler that instantly blistered his hands in a terrible manner and made way over the top of the engine to the driver's seat. Several times he almost slipped, but he managed to hold on, although the harder he held the greater was the pain inflicted by the heated metal he was forced to grip.

It was at 23rd street that White was killed. At 20th street the tender overhauled the engine, just as Slowey, with his legs and hands burned, picked up the leathern death belt taken out of his comrade's grasp and pulled up the panting and foaming steeds. The lieutenant was then rushed to Bellevue Hospital.

May Render Poison Harmless.

New York, March 30.—That the effects on the human system of the most virulent poisons may be rendered relatively harmless by a simple surgical expedient is the announcement it is expected will soon be made by the Rockefeller Institute of Medical Research. So long as there is the faintest heart beat it will be possible to save any one who has taken what is now regarded as a fatal dose of strychnine, morphine, carbon monoxide, illuminating gas or kindred poisons. It is hoped that soon a method will be found by which all classes of poisons may be included.

The operation by which this wonderful saving of life may be accomplished is technically known as intra-tracheal insufflation. This means that through the trachea, or wind pipe, a steady supply of air is forced into the lungs. It differs from all other forms of artificial respiration in that the lungs themselves are not called upon to give any aid. As a matter of fact, a slender hollow tube forced through the wind pipe to the opening of the lungs forces the air through, while the foul air returns by pressure through the wind pipe outside the tube. The tube is either inserted through the mouth or through an aperture cut in the wind pipe.

COAL FINDS ARE MADE

Reported Wealth on Banks of Northern Ontario River Is Drawing a Large Number of Explorers, and the Country Is Being Rapidly Staked — Deposits Are of a Good Commercial Quality.

North Bay, Ont., March 30.—Coal is now the magic word which is stirring northern Ontario into activity, and temporarily, at least, obscuring the alluring gleams of gold and silver.

Claims have been staked and recorded for twenty square miles of territory, where an immense body of coal has been found. Tests were made at four different places within an area of three miles along the Metagama River, and coal was found each time.

Assays of samples so far have been very favorable, and interested parties are thoroughly satisfied that good commercial coal has at last been discovered in northern Ontario.

The coal fields are located about sixty miles north of the Grand Trunk Pacific and west of Cochrane, and from the formation the Metagama River seems to have cut through an immense bed of coal, as it is found on both banks.

The banks and high bluffs are seamed with the precious commodity.

Should a thorough assay of samples brought out, and careful inspection of deposits bear out the reports already given by engineers and prospectors, a continuation of the T. & N. O. Ry. to the new coal fields will be a matter of but a short time only.

Syndicates are being hastily organized to get in on the latest turn of fortune's wheel, and to be ready for a dash when the streams open, while a number of parties have taken advantage of the snow to get in before the breakup.

Already twenty square miles of territory have been staked, representing twenty claims, each coal claim comprising a mile.

This staking was one along the Metagama River.

The personnel of the parties who are in on the ground floor of the coal position is a guarantee that there is something tangible and genuine about the finds, and the mining recorder's office at Haileybury contains some interesting information which the general public is not familiar with.

Martin Shannon, of North Bay, formerly employed on the G.T.P. survey, has just returned from Metagama River, north of the Transcontinental Railway, and a syndicate is being formed in town to send him back at the head of a party to locate coal lands.

Parties coming out from the Metagama River country this week met four different parties going in, all looking for coal.

Is Coal Oil Quality a Menace?

Ottawa, March 30.—Deaths in Western Ontario points, due to lamp explosions, and the one of Miss Hartnett here, due to being burned to death after a lamp had upset or exploded, is causing Coroner Baptie to conduct an inquest to establish what quality of coal oil was used.

LITTLE DIGESTERS

positively CURE Indigestion. Stomach Troubles and distress of all sorts disappear like magic. Depression and brain fag, lassitude and that tired feeling all come from the stomach. LITTLE DIGESTERS make every day your good day. Read what others say:

EVERY MEAL BROUGHT AGONY

But Since Taking "Little Digesters" He Can Eat Heartily

From Osgoode Station, Ont., comes a story of five years of suffering from Indigestion and Dyspepsia—five years of doctoring in vain—then "Little Digesters" and a complete cure. Mr. R. H. Ralph tells the story—his own story—thus:

"I have been a sufferer from Indigestion and Stomach Trouble for five years. I had treatment from several doctors. I did not find a cure until I began using "Little Digesters."

"I can hardly describe how much I suffered at times. Every meal brought with it more or less agony and I seemed to have a complete distaste for food. I had almost begun to think my case incurable when I came across an advertisement in the papers about "Little Digesters." I decided to give them a trial. I am very thankful that I did so for I had not been taking them long when I found them helping me. I can now eat heartily and no longer feel pain and discomfort after eating."

"I Was in Bad Shape"

But Little Digesters "Have Done Wonders for Me"

Here is an experience with the first part of which you may be all too familiar. Mr. Josh Smith, of North Seneca, Ont., writes about "Little Digesters."

"Having been troubled with Indigestion for a number of years, I have tried nearly all kinds of pills and tablets for Indigestion only to be disappointed.

"Seeing your tablets advertised I thought I would give them a trial, and must say I am glad I did. Before taking them I was in bad shape. Bad taste in my mouth mornings and so dizzy that I hardly knew how I would put in the day. Everything I would eat would seem to sour and ferment, but after taking "Digesters" I can say they have done wonders for me."

If you know what the first part of this story means why not learn the relief and delight which comes from the use of "Little Digesters?"

HE FEARED TO EAT

Till "Little Digesters" Cured His Indigestion

Like many another sufferer from Indigestion, Mr. E. Thody looked forward to mealtime with dread instead of pleasure. Writing from his home at 161 Yorkville Ave., Toronto, on June 12th last, he says:

"For two years I suffered with Indigestion and obtained no relief from anything I took, including several prescriptions from prominent physicians. Every meal was followed with acute pain until I feared to eat, consequently became run down for lack of nourishment.

"'Little Digesters" were recommended to me by a friend and I tried them with remarkable results, two boxes completely curing me. It is three months since I took any and have not suffered a pain no matter how heartily I eat. I would certainly recommend them to anyone suffering with Indigestion."

King, Ont., Nov. 12, 1909.
THE COLEMAN MEDICINE CO.
Gentlemen,—

Having suffered for three years with Indigestion, nothing could relieve me, having seen your advertisements in the paper for "Little Digesters," took three, was entirely cured. I feel convinced that anyone suffering with same will not fail to try "Little Digesters." PHILIP PAYN, Junior.

"Find Them Marvellous"

Here is a short but very convincing letter which we received recently:

THE COLEMAN MEDICINE CO.,
I have been using "Little Digesters" for some time. I still use them and find them marvellous. I recommend them sincerely.
MRS. CHAS. BROOKS.
Low, Wright Co., Que.

Here is another letter, dated Nov. 9th, 1909, almost equally brief and to the point:
COLEMAN MEDICINE CO.,
Would say that the box of "Little Digesters" has done me a lot of good. I think they are all right for any Stomach Trouble.

Send Me Another Box of "Little Digesters"

That's what Mr. E. S. Glassco, of Toronto, wrote us last May, after he had tried and proved "Little Digesters" for Indigestion. He said:

"I wish you would send me another box of your "Little Digesters." All the members of my family have been using them and have obtained the most satisfactory results.

"I congratulate you on your success in putting up a tablet for the cure of Indigestion. I suffered for years and tried everything that was recommended to me. Nothing gave me relief until I was persuaded to try "Little Digesters." Now I never suffer from Indigestion. I enjoy my meals and am not afraid to eat, because I know a "Little Digester" after each meal will digest my food.

"I recommend them to all my friends who suffer from Indigestion and would further say that you may publish the above if you wish. I know there are thousands of people suffering from Indigestion who will be glad to know there is a safe and sure cure for them."

Cured at Seventy-four

Little Digesters are a Great Help to Mr. John F. Becker

The weight of years very often brings with it a still heavier burden, that of Indigestion or some form of Stomach Trouble.

Then "Little Digesters" come to the rescue—if you give them a chance, as did Mr. Becker. Here is his letter telling what they did for him:

New Dundee, Nov. 10, 1909.
TO THE COLEMAN MEDICINE CO.
Dear Sirs,—

I was for a long time troubled with bloating after meals, and my tongue was always coated. Seeing the "Little Digesters" advertised I bought a box, and they took all that trouble away, but I thought one box would not be enough, so I sent to you for more. They are a great help to my body. Yours truly,
JOHN F. BECKER.

Excuse my writing with pencil, being an old man of 74.

Letters like these are the best possible proof that "Little Digesters" do exactly what we claim—relieve and cure Indigestion, Dyspepsia and all forms of Stomach Troubles and distress. They aid the feeble stomach to digest food perfectly so that you can enjoy your meals and get the strength out of what you eat.

"LITTLE DIGESTERS" CURE OR YOUR MONEY BACK

Weak back is simply a warning from the kidneys and should be attended to immediately so as to avoid years of terrible suffering from kidney troubles.

Doan's Kidney Pills will cure you in the same way as they have cured thousands of others.

Miss Alberta B. Clarke, Stoney Creek, Ont., writes:—"I was troubled with kidney trouble for several years; my back was weak, I had such terrible headaches, and was so restless I could not sleep at night and tried everything without any benefit. Meantime a friend advised me to try Doan's Kidney Pills, so I got four boxes and they completely cured me. I now feel as well as I ever did and would advise everyone suffering from Kidney Disease to try them."

The Y. M. C. A. Ball Tossers Hold an Enthusiastic Meeting.

Last night the Y. M. C. A. Baseball Club held a largely attended meeting in the Association rooms.

Arrangements were made for financing the club by selling tickets for the closing of the three game basket ball series between the school boys and employed boys at an early date. It was decided for the present to charge no membership fee.

An Executive committee, composed of Mr. S. R. Hall, H. Mulhern, H. Lees, and M. Pearson was appointed with instructions to endeavour to reorganize a City Intermediate and Junior League and also form an Inter-Y. M. C. A. League, which would cover as many Y boys as possible.

The name of the club which it is proposed to enter in the Midland League will be decided at this meeting. Boils and Pimples.

Whenever your complexion is unnatural, your skin in an unhealthy condition, your face covered with blotches and pimples, when boils and festering sores abound then your blood is bad. You can best cleanse it with that purely vegetable compound, Burdock Blood Bitters, which safely and promptly renovates the blood and invigorates the entire system.

Boils Cured.

Mr. C. A. Mussen, Bawlf, Alta. writes: "I recommend Burdock Blood Bitters as being the best blood purifier there is. About three years ago I was greatly troubled with boils and our druggist advised me to try Burdock Blood Bitters and after taking two bottles I have not had a boil or even a pimple."

Pimples Cured.

Mr. J. Morehouse, Zealand Station, N.B., writes: "My face and neck were covered with pimples, and I tried all kinds of remedies, but they did me no good. I went to many doctors, but they could not cure me. I then tried Burdock Blood Bitters and I must say it is a wonderful remedy for the cure of pimples."

ASSOCIATION FOOTBALL IS TO COME INTO ITS OWN

Is association football to come into its own? It begins to look this way at last, now that the soccer leaders have finally possessed themselves of the idea that a great deal of the confusion and disorder of the past few years can be obliterated by the formation of one central organization for the control and re-organization of a game that has made giant strides towards popularity with the influx of so many old country people into this country. Soccer, as it is generally termed in Canada, is a game that ranks with the best of sports, and while it will never prove popular with the vast majority of the Canadian public, still there is a following in the country which could be easily augmented into proportions that would force the game to its proper level, and amply reward those who have been working so hard and long in the interests of the sport.

The trouble in recent years has been the lack of concentrated effort to boom the sport, while a series of petty quarrels and disorders in the Toronto and Hamilton districts have done a great deal to retard the progress of not only the game, but also of the association in charge. This disorder has been the direct result of the incapable officers who have been placed upon the various committees, and who have found time to not only make themselves obnoxious to the capable section of officials, but have also retarded the good work of the latter. The respectable and well-meaning element is gradually gaining control; and the action of certain disgruntled parties in forming the joke association, known now as the Canadian Football Association, with the intention of running an opposition body to not only the Ontario Football Association, but also to W.F.A., the T. & D., and all of the old organizations, has brought the matter to a head and forced such as F. H. Brigden, of Toronto, and his friends in charge of the T. & D. L., to see that the only manner in which these disturbers can be obliterated is by the formation of one strong governing football body for Canada, formed with the support of such organizations as the O.F.A., the W.F.A., the T. & D. L., the Hamilton and District League, the Midland M. League, the Montreal Associations, the Manitoba League, etc., which would have direct control of football in the Dominion. It has ever been true that in "unity there is strength," and the organization of a Canadian association would be but another proof of this old axiom. Competition is the life of all sports, and the only manner in which football can be raised to its proper level is by organized competition between the various associations, this competition to be governed by a strong central body.

There is plenty of room for football and it will prove popular with a fairly representative section of the public but before any move is done, the various associations would do well to rid the game of certain disgruntled parties who have been creating disorder for some time past. With such men as F. H. Brigden, Louis Blake Duff and others, this can be done, and the future of the game assured.

THE MARATHON DERBY

Name and country	Betting,
Johnny Hayes, America	8, 3 and 8-5
Jim Crowley, Ireland-America	5, 2 and even
Johansen, Sweden	6-5, 1-3 and out
Ljungstrom, Sweden,	6-5, 1-3 and out
Umberto, Italy	7, 2½ and 6-5
Hans Holmer, West Farms, New York	10, 4 and 2
Fred Meadows, Rockwood, Ont.	2½, 1 and out
Paul Acoose, Grenfell, Sask	5, 2 and even
Percy Sellen, Toronto	12, 5 and 2½

New York, March 29.—Here are the odds for the second annual $10,000 Marathon Derby, that is to be run at the Polo Grounds, New York, on Saturday afternoon, as written by a prominent member of the Bookmakers' Club, who follows the two-footed human thoroughbreds just as closely as he follows the four-footed kings of the turf. The Hertberg stable — Thure Johansen, the holder of the world's accepted Marathon record of 2.36.55 1-5, and Gustav Ljungstrom, who ran twenty miles in the phenomenal time of 1.50.58 3-5, and finished so fresh that experts said he probably could have kept right on at the same gait for another six miles—are coupled in the betting and made favourite at 6 to 5, 1 to 3 and out. Fred Meadows is second choice at 2½ to 1, even and out. Jim Crowley and Paul Acoose are priced at 5, 2 and even.

The above prices are made with the understanding that Meadows will start. Fred has not yet entered the contest, and there is a possibility of the Rockwood flyer not breaking from the barrier. If the speedy Canadian does not start the odds will tighten some, the Hertberg stable changing to even money to win, out for place and out for show, with the other competitors shortening in proportion. Meadows, however, probably will be a starter.

While to many the prices laid on the Hertberg stable look to be almost prohibitive, it is the only logical booking that can be made, considering past performances. On the records of the men the odds appear to be eminently fair. While some might say that on account of Johansen not finishing in the money in the recent twenty mile race he should command greater odds, the fact remains that he ran the fastest authentic Marathon on record, and that in the recent twenty mile race he looked far from all in when Hertberg pulled him out of the event. The Hertberg duo will be heavily backed at the quoted odds.

BASEBALL

Outfielder Engle of the Highlanders, is playing in hunting boots to reduce his weight, and Jack Warhop, of the same team, prances around in his stocking feet on account of a foot trouble.

Capt. Chance, of the Cubs, is waxing enthusiastic over a Chicago semi-professional pitcher, whose name is Smokestack.

Manager Stallings says the Highlanders will have the fastest outfield in the American League, no matter what trio he selects from Engle, Walters, Hemphill, Madden and Daniels.

Manager Donovan, of the Red Sox, is of opinion that "a man cannot play basketball in winter and do himself justice at baseball. It is too much of a strain on any human being."

Manager Hughy Duffey is reported as having trouble getting his veteran pitchers into condition. Walsh, Scott and Smith are unable to get working right against the Coast Leaguers, their arms not being in condition as yet.

Manager Fred Clarke of the Pirates, does not believe in receptions to himself and players until after the season. He received an offer last week from the Hot Springs Lodge of Elks, proposing to dine the world's champions upon their arrival at the health resort, but Fred said "No!"

Kit Carson, of the Cubs, does not smoke, chew, drink or cuss. He is a model young man in every respect, and looks like a good twirler. He owns his home in San Diego, Cal., and says he cannot afford to indulge in any luxuries until he has protected his family against the proverbial rainy day.

The Chicago White Sox, in California, apparently have the same old hoodoo with them. President Comiskey and Catcher Billy Sullivan have been desperately ill, while the injuries to players have made Manager Hugh Duffey weep in despair. Comiskey vows he will never take the Sox to the coast again.

Sinking Spells Every Few Days

"At the time I began taking Dr. Miles' Heart Remedy I was having sinking spells every few days. My hands and feet would get cold; I could scarcely breathe, and could feel myself gradually sinking away until I would be unconscious. Those about me could not tell there was life in me. After these spells I would be very weak and nervous, sleepless and without appetite; had neuralgia in my head and heart. After taking the remedy a short time all this disappeared and in a few weeks all the heart trouble was gone."

Fraser Bros. Experience Heavy Loss—Other News From Hastings.

Examiner Special.

Hastings, March 26.—The workers of the W. M. S. and Mission Band of the Methodist Church held a bazaar and sample sale on the afternoon of Good Friday, which proved to be quite a success. From 6 p.m. a New England supper was served in the basement of the church, for which the small fee of fifteen cents was charged, after which the people were entertained for a short time by selections from the graphophone. The proceeds amounted to about $30.00.

At a special meeting of the Council, Messrs. J. Buchanan and J. O'Reilly were appointed auditors and Mr. S. Parks collector of taxes.

The many friends of Fraser Bros., hardware merchants of Outlook, Sask., formerly of Hastings, will be sorry to learn of the misfortune which has befallen them in the loss of their hardware store, by fire.

Mr. W. J. Warner has purchased the residence of Mr. J. H. McClelland on Bridge street.

We regret to chronicle the demise of a former resident of this vicinity in the person of Mr. John Shearer, of Portage la Prairie, who passed away at his home there at the age of 47 years. Mr. Shearer had been engaged in bridge construction on the C. P. R., and in November last sustained a fall which inflicted serious injuries from which he never recovered. Mrs. J. Fleming, of this place, is a sister of deceased.

The new tug was launched last week and is getting ready for work again, operations being begun at the cut below the lock.

Mrs. S. Sharpe and child have returned from the hospital in Peterborough, having recovered from the fever. The two older children, however, are remaining there for a short time yet.

Mr. J. McCarthy of the Normal School, Peterborough, is home for the Easter holidays.

On the occasion of Mr. Thos. Stevenson's removal to the West, the members of L. O. L. No. 558, presented him with an address and a Past Master's emblem. Mr. Stevenson was taken by surprise, but replied in a few well-chosen words, thanking the brethren for their expressions of good will and esteem.

A MOST REMARKABLE CASE

My face was paralyzed, I could not speak; five doctors failed to help me and I was in despair when hearing of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food I used this wonderful restorative treatment and became well and strong in every way. I would not go back to my former condition for all the gold in the country," writes Mr. Wm. J. Brennan, Western Hill, St. Catharines, Ont. Ointment would be cheap at fifty dollars a box in view of what it did for me."

Henderson Sentenced To Hang Jury Pronounces Him Guilty

Young Englishman Convicted of Murder of Margaret McPherson on January 28 Ordered by Mr. Justice Riddell to Pay the Death Penalty for His Crime on June 23rd---Prisoner Heard the Dread Sentence Without Evincing the Slightest Sign of Emotion---Jury Adds a Recommendation to Mercy, Which Will be Forwarded to the Authorities.

"The sentence of the court upon you, Robert Henderson, is that you shall be taken to the place from which you came and there be kept in close confinement until Thursday, the twenty-third day of June in the year of our Lord, 1910, and that upon that Thursday you shall be taken thence to the place of execution and there be hanged by the neck until you are dead. And may the Lord have mercy upon your soul."

Seventeen year old Robert Henderson stood in the prisoners' dock in court house yesterday, having been declared guilty by a jury of twelve of his fellow beings of the heinous crime of murder and heard that dreaded sentence from Mr. Justice Riddell without the slightest sign of emotion. Of the one hundred and fifty people in the court room the young prisoner was apparently the least affected by the verdict or by the sentence of death. Every eye was turned upon the boyish figure in the dock and watched for the effect upon the prisoner but failed to detect the slightest indication of fear or emotion. At the conclusion of the judge's remarks Henderson walked steadily from the dock behind Turnkey Ray and down the corridor towards his cell, turning as he reached the door to take a last look around the court room before disappearing behind the iron door.

The attitude of the prisoner was the outstanding feature of the case, considering the fact that the man was on trial for the murder of a fellow being the trial was remarkably devoid of sensations. The evidence was strong and clear against the prisoner and the defence had little in the way of testimony to combat the evidence of the Crown. The chief interest lay in the astounding indifference of Henderson to the drama in which he was playing such a prominent part. Neatly dressed, with his wavy hair brushed back from his forehead, the youngster for that is all he is, sat in the box throughout the day with no signs of care or worry. True, he followed the evidence, but not with any more attention or indication of emotion than the average spectator. His eyes kept roaming around the court room and he smiled or laughed frequently, while he chatted freely with his custodians at intervals during the trial. The hearing of the case was completed in one day, the session opening at 8.30 o'clock in the morning. All the evidence was practically in when the court adjourned for luncheon at 1.15 o'clock, the only evidence in the afternoon being from Dr. Sutton, who was recalled by Mr. Kerr, counsel for the defence, that he might be asked a question. Mr. Kerr addressed the jury for over an hour, making an eloquent plea for acquittal on the ground of insanity.

Mr. Justice Riddell charged the jury at some length, reviewing the evidence carefully and fully and his remarks were against the prisoner.

The jury filed out of the court room at 4.55 and were brought back at 6 o'clock to be asked by Mr. Justice Riddell if they had met with any difficulty as to the law in the case. Foreman Robert Cottrell replied that they had practically settled upon their verdict and they were sent back to the jury room. While they were out Henderson appeared indifferent as to what would be the probable outcome. He continued to chat with Turnkey Ray and to gaze around the room. His eyes wandered once or twice to the door behind which the twelve good men and true were deciding his fate but not more often or apparently with any more interest than anyone else in the room.

When at 6.15 the jury knocked on the door as an intimation that they wished to return, the prisoner turned in his seat and gazed in that direction as the jury came back into their box and he kept his eyes upon them while they gave their verdict.

"Gentlemen of the jury, have you reached a verdict?" asked Court Clerk Sherry.

"We have," replied Foreman Cottrell.

"Do oyu find the prisoner guilty or not guilty?"

"We find him guilty and would add a very strong recommendation for mercy," was the reply, and all eyes were on Henderson, who, although he watched the jury, failed to show that he was affected by the finding.

"Gentlemen of the jury," remarked Mr. Justice Riddell, "I think you have done your duty as honest men and as honest citizens of this county and of this country. Painful as it may be the verdict you have found is the only righteous verdict you could reach and the rider you have added of a recommendation to mercy is one that is a credit to your sense of humanity. There is no pleasure in the death of the wicked or in chastisement of any kind. It is a bitter necessity of nature, as well as of law, and if we can by any means within the limits of the law temper the blow it is well that we should. Your recommendation will receive my most careful consideration and will be transmitted to the proper authorities with a recommendation of my own. Now that you have fixed your verdict I may tell you what I should have not told you before, unless the counsel for the defence had asked me to do, what I propose to do. I shall ask the authorities to investigate again, by means of other experts of the highest rank they can get as to this man's mental condition. I know the authorities in whose hands is vested the control and power of the law and I know that every case receives the most careful and anxious investigation. You may be quite certain that no man may be put to death by law unless not only does the letter of the law say that he should be, but also that it is a case in which the authorities are satisfied that it is a right and proper thing for the law to take its course. I cannot promise anything, but you in any event have done your duty. I thank you in the name of His Majesty and your country, for the manner in which you have watched and weighed the evidence and am confident that you have viewed the evidence from every point of view."

Robert Henderson, stand up," commanded Mr. Justice Riddell.

The prisoner complied.

"Have you anything to say before the sentence of the court is passed upon you?" asked His Lordship.

"No, my Lord," The reply from the prisoner was given promptly and clearly and there was no tremor in Henderson's voice.

"You, Robert Henderson," continued His Lordship, "have been convicted by a jury of your fellow countrymen of the heinous crime of murder. The case was a perfectly plain one; your defence was exceedingly able. Everything was done for you that could be done, but from the beginning it appeared hopeless, unless, indeed, the medical evidence was such as to satisfy the jury of your mental incapacity under the law. You are it is said, an imbecile, morally, a degenerate, morally.

You have intellect sufficiently bright to appreciate the position in which you stand. You have not governed yourself by the law of men or by the law of God. You have preyed upon the charitable instincts and good hearts of your fellow men.

You received punishement for that in England, apparently without any result in making you a better man. It may be that it was impossible for you to become a better man. If so far be it from me to cast a stone upon you. Then you made up your mind to seek this newer country, whose arms are always wide open for those who desire an honest living by honest labour. But during the time you have been here you have been living as a bird of prey upon the generosity of your fellow men, a curse to the community, because one rascal living on others, on being discovered, will naturally check the generous impulses of his fellow men. Then on this unhappy 28th day of January, led by what motive we cannot tell, you went to the only house in the neighbourhood where unprotected women were and, apparently believing that they

ICE DELIVERY STARTS EARLY

Ice Waggons Now Making Their Rounds —A Month and a Half Earlier Than Previous Years.

The ice companies of the city have commenced the delivery of ice to their various customers. This year they are starting just a month and a half earlier than in previous springs. On this account there is a possibility of there being a scarcity of the cooling commodity before the end of the season. The harvest during the past winter, however, was a good one, and the supply might be sufficient for the demand. The unusually warm weather of the past week has necessitated the early deliver.

VICTIM OF SHOOTING ACCIDENT SUCCUMBS TO HIS INJURIES

Ernest Gilbert Passed Away in the Nicholls Hospital This Morning —Was Fatally Injured in Right Side—Only 21 Years of Age.

INQUEST TO BE HELD

As a result of the injuries he received on Sunday afternoon while out shooting, Ernest Gilbert passed away in Nicholls Hospital this morning about nine o'clock. Although everything that medical aid could do was done, the injuries were of too serious a character to hope for recovery. The bullet entered his right side. The kidney was badly injured, and the bullet was never located. He gradually grew worse until the end came this morning. The particulars of the sad affair were given in Monday's issue. It appears that the deceased young man, in company with several others went out to the woods, taking with them a 22 calibre rifle. One of the young men tripped and fell. He was carrying the rifle and in falling it accidentally exploded, the full charge entering young Gilbert's side. He was hurriedly brought to the city and taken to Nicholls Hospital. Dr. Young was called and was constantly in attendance on him, until his death.

Coroner Dr. Gray, when communicated with by The Examiner, stated that an inquest would be held and a jury would be empanelled at five o'clock.

The late Ernest Gilbert was 21 years of age, and was born in the Isle of Wight. His parents are both dead, and he is survived by one brother, Charles, who resides at 29 Lafayette Ave. He had been a resident of Peterborough for the past four years, having come here from Lindsay.

The funeral will take place from the residence of his brother, Mr. Charles Gilbert, 29 Lafayette Ave., on Saturday at 1.30, to the Little Lake cemetery.

TEACHERS CRITICIZE THE CHANGES IN THE PRIMER

Toronto, March 29.—Considerable time of to-day's session of the Ontario Educational association was devoted to the criticism of the new Ontario text books, and many and varied were the opinions expressed. The radical changes made in the primer, discarding the phonic system of teaching for the older method of alphabet teaching came in for the strongest criticism.

Principal C. G. Fraser, of Toronto, referred to the book as being faulty in punctuation, in English, and in its literary make up. "A combination of fogey spelling printed in fogey letters," he called some parts of it. He read one or two sample letters addressed to his committee, the first of which said in part: "The primer is of no use to pupils taught by the phonic method until they have command of all the sounds, and it is of little use to pupils taught by any other method, as the book is arranged entirely without system. There is no sequence in the arrangements of the book, many of the early lessons being more difficult than those near the end."

Principal Suddaby, of Berlin, offered a resolution to the effect that "as the new Ontario primer is avowedly of no assistance in the teaching of reading, and as the Morang primer has been used with success for the past eight years, be it resolved that the government of Ontario be asked to reauthorize the Morang primer."

THE MINES OF CANADA.

A preliminary report of the minerals of Canada for the year ending January 1st, 1910, recently issued by the Dominion Department of Mines, shows that the total Canadian mineral output during 1909 was three and a half millions greater than during any preceding year in the history of Canada. This, despite the falling off in the coal output, due to severe labour troubles in Eastern Canada, is an especially fine showing, and indicates an advance considerably greater than actually shown by the figures.

These preliminary statistics indicate that the mineral output will be well over $90,000,000 in value, a sum five per cent. in advance of 1908. But, again, the actual increase is greater than this figure indicates, as the report explains that a new and severer system of compilation has been adopted for the past year.

The total estimated for the year is $90,415,763, of which 49.9 per cent. is credited to minerals and 49.7 per cent. to non-metallic products, a small percentage being allowed for mineral products not reported. Coal still holds its position as the most valuable product of the mines of Canada, its value being $24,431,351 or 27 per cent. of the total. Next in order comes silver with a total value of $14,368,310, or 15.9 per cent., with gold and nickel next, and of about equal values. The metals nearly all show an increase for the year as compared with 1908, and their values have held comparatively steady for the ear.

The following comparative table shows the values of the different metallic products for the years 1908 and 1909:

Copper	$ 8,413,876	7,018,213
Gold	9,842,105	9,790,000
Pig iron	1,664,302	2,284,180
Lead	1,814,221	1,959,488
Nickel	8,231,538	9,461,877
Cobalt	113,423	66,319
Silver	11,686,230	14,368,310
Zinc	3,215	250,000
	$41,774,362	$45,188,387

The total ore charged to the furnaces in 1909 was 2,377,780 tons, of which slightly over 40,000 tons were imported. It is to be noted that a large amount of smelter products were shipped out of Canada for refining, and for the year they show an increase over 1908. These products were base bullion 2,010 tons; copper matte, 11,567 tons, blister copper, 14,-230 tons; Bessemer nickel copper matte, 25,845 tons; and silver-Cobalt-nickel speiss, 2,660 tons.

Considered generally, the mining industry is reported to be in a very strong position. There have been no sensational mineral discoveries during the year, but the demand has been active and prices well up, so that labour has been well employed, and it has been possible to keep plants busy.

WHY CANADA IS APPRECIATED.

(Ottawa Free Press.)

It has often been said that the best sort of advertisement for any country is the contented and prosperous settler; but mere prosperity does not always spell contentment, and it is quite possible to be prosperous when one's surroundings are uncongenial. When, however, prosperity and contentment go hand in hand then, indeed, the country must be a good one.

No class of people appreciate congenial surroundings better than do the American farmers, who, flocking into the Canadian west, find a country where the law is enforced and where it is no respecter of persons. This is proven by a letter received by a Chicago newspaper from a former Minnesotan, who has bought a farm in Saskatchewan, and, after telling of the crops, the railways, elevators, and the influx of settlers, concluded:

"I'll tell you what it boils down to. Ever since the settlement of this country began it has been understood and recognized that the man who breaks the law is going to be jailed. It doesn't matter if he is as spry as a gopher or as husky as a buffalo. It don't make any odds if he can crawl into a prairie dog's hole. If he breaks the law he is going to be jailed, good and sure! He can have fifty guns and $50,-000, he can have any sort of blame pull you like—but he is just going to be jailed. It may take a day, a week, or a year; but he'll be jailed sure. May be he'll kill a Northwest policeman—may be he will. Well, then he'll hang for a dead sure thing! He'll never buy a Northwest policeman, nor he'll never escape jail if he breaks the law. All Canada knows it, and we Americans know it, and that's why this country is a good country to live in."

This is the sort of advertisement which, coupled with free homesteads, and rich crops, is causing the "American invasion" of Canada.

HENDERSON SENTENCED TO HANG JUNE 23

must have money made up your mind to get that money even at the expense of two lives. You tried to kill one woman and succeeded, you tried to kill another and failed but no credit to you; you did the best you could. You, apparently, tried to kill one of your pursuers. Thank God that attempt was also a failure. Having been found guilty of murder, rightfully and properly, the law allows me to impose but one penalty upon you—death. I intend to set that period at which you must meet punishment unless something intervenes, at a much later date than is usually done, in order to see if you cannot be brought to a sense of your responsibility, and a sense of your spiritual danger. The recommendation of mercy which the jury coupled with their verdict will be sent to the proper authorities with a statement from myself, but I warn you not to expect that in the case of a horrible deed like this the executive is certain to interfere. It is my duty to warn you to prepare for death and that within a very short period. How far you are responsible morally for your acts is known only to the Judge before whom you are shortly to appear. That Judge makes no mistakes. I adjure you to come to a sense of the terrible crime of which you have been found guilty, and make peace at that throne where the humble and heart-felt prayer is never rejected."

Then, adjusting the black cap upon his head, Mr. Justice Riddell passed the formal sentence of death upon the prisoner.

Afternoon Session

When court resumed after luncheon Mr. Kerr, counsel for the defence, asked permission to recall Dr. Sutton in order to ask him a question and the permission was granted by Mr. Justice Riddell. Mr. Kerr examined the witness as to pus found in the brain of the deceased, but nothing new was evolved.

Argument then commenced, Mr. Kerr addressing the jury on behalf of the prisoner made an eloquent plea for acquittal on the ground of insanity, holding that the boys' condition was such as to make him not responsible for what had occurred. He held that Henderson had no moral sense of right and wrong and argued that the evidence given had shown that Henderson's actions were far from being those of a sane man. He pointed to the record that had been laid before them as to Henderson's antecedents "What came before this boy?" asked counsel for the defence. "Insanity, suicide, fits."

There was nothing around the McPherson home to suggest wealth or affluence. On the contrary there would seem to have been nothing but poverty. There was nothing that would lead a sane man to such a crime in the hope of robbery.

An acquittal by the jury would not mean that the prisoner would be set free to be a menace to the public. He would not be free, but would be confined to await the pleasure of the Lieutenant-Governor. The jury, therefore, need not worry that if they brought in a verdict of not guilty on the ground of insanity the prisoner would not be kept where he could do no harm to the public.

Mr. Kerr pointed out to the jury that he was there without fee and without favour to defend the prisoner. The prisoner had no money to employ a counsel nor had he any friends who would do so. The Crown did not provide for the payment of counsel for him, and therefore he was present just because of the law that the merest criminal should receive protection.

Mr. Du Vernet did not address the jury.

Mr. Justice Riddell in charging the jury, emphasized the fact that they should cast out of their minds any prejudice either for or against him. They should cast aside all they might have read or heard of the case before they came into the court, and remember only what they had heard in the witness box. They and they alone were the judges of fate—as to the law they were to take that from him. They were to throw away all sympathetic feeling and regard for the prisoner, and not allow their emotions to guide them in weighing the evidence or coming to a verdict.

"We must take the prisoner as we find him," remarked His Lordship. "Where he received that heritage God only knows. He has lived practically a life of crime."

Mr. Justice Riddell then called the attention of the jury to what he considered the three salient points of the case. In the first place they had to answer the question, "Is that the man who struck the blow?" His Lordship reviewed the evidence on this point and asked if there was a shadow of a doubt as to the prisoner being the man in question. The next point was as to whether the blow had caused death. A mass of medical and hypothetical evidence had been heard in this regard but His Lordship pointed out that the four doctors called had given it as their opinion that death was due to the blow inflicted. Two of these doctors had attended the woman before her death and the other two had performed the post mortem examination and therefore were in the best position to be able to say as to the cause of death. As to the third point there was no necessity of the Crown proving a motive but if it was necessary to go further in this case was anything more needed than Henderson's own story. "Is not the desire to get money without working for it the cause of the greater part of our crimes?" asked His Lordship.

His Lordship complimented Mr. Kerr upon his skilful defence, and upon his coming forward to the assistance of the prisoner, without any hope of reward for his services. He always had felt proud of the bar of Ontario that such men were always ready to give their services for the protection of penniless men, and he was daily becoming more proud as the instances of such cases multiplied. Mr. Justice Riddell informed the jury that they were not trying the question as to whether or not the prisoner was insane or epileptic. All that might be of importance, but the law was not so absurd as to permit men to run around hitting people on the head with no other punishment than to be shut up in a house for the insane. Dozens of insane men had been hanged and rightly hanged, in the past. A man might be insane, and yet be responsible, unless he laboured under mental imbecility to such an extent as to render him incapable of realizing the nature and quality of his act. It did not matter if all the prisoner's ancestors from Noah down had been insane; that did not necessarily render him so. The doctors, who examined him, had pronounced that there was no disease of the mind but that the prisoner was a moral imbecile. They said, however, that he was capable of understanding the nature of his act and the jury could not bring in a verdict of not guilty on the ground of insanity unless they chose to disbelieve the doctors. They were not bound to believe anyone, but jurymen, as a rule, were very slow in disbelieving evidence given in the witness box.

"You know your duty as Canadian citizens!" he remarked in conclusion. "Go and do it!"

The jury then retired at 4.55 o'clock.

CURED WHEN DOCTORS FAILED

Mr. Feliz Villeneuve, Clarence Creek, Ont., writes: "I was a great sufferer from kidney disease, inflammation of the bowels and liver troubles, and doctors could not help me much. Could not sleep, water contained sediment, had frequent desire to urinate, and often passed blood. Had dreadful headaches, one side almost paralyzed and was deaf in one year for eight years. Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills cured me, and I am very grateful. I want to thank you.

THE PORT OF MISSING MEN

By MEREDITH NICHOLSON,

COPYRIGHT, 1907, BY THE BOBBS-MERRILL COMPANY

On the whole, he was satisfied that he had followed the wisest course thus far. The broad panorama of the morning hills communicated to his spirit a growing elation. He began singing in German a ballad that recited the sorrows of a pale maiden prisoner in a dark tower on the Rhine, whence her true knight rescued her after many and fearsome adventures. On the last stave he ceased abruptly, and an exclamation of wonder broke from him.

They had been riding along a narrow trail that afforded, as Oscar said, a short cut across a long timbered ridge that lay between them and Armitage's property. The path was rough and steep, and the low hanging pine boughs and heavy underbrush increased the difficulties of ascent. Straining to the top, a new valley, hidden until now, was disclosed in long and beautiful vistas.

"It is a fine valley—yes?" asked Oscar.

"It is a possession worthy of the noblest gods!" replied Armitage. "There is a white building with colonnades away over there. Is it the house of the reigning deity?"

"It is not, sir," answered Oscar, who spoke English with a kind of dogged precision, giving equal value to all words. "It is a vast hotel where the rich spend much money. That place at the foot of the hills—do you see?—it is there they play a foolish game with sticks and little balls"—

"Golf? Is it possible!"

"There is no doubt of it, sir. I have seen the fools myself—men and women. The place is called Storm valley."

Armitage slapped his thigh sharply, so that his horse started.

"Yes; you are probably right, Oscar. I have heard of the place. And those houses that lie beyond there in the valley belong to gentlemen of taste and leisure who drink the waters and ride horses and play the foolish game you describe with little white balls."

"I could not tell it better," responded Oscar, who had dismounted, like a good trooper, to rest his horse.

"And our place—is it below there?" demanded Armitage.

"It is not, sir. It lies to the west. But a man may come here when he is lonesome and look at the people and the gentlemen's houses. At night it is a pleasure to see the lights, and sometimes, when the wind is right, there is music of bands."

"Poor Oscar!" laughed Armitage.

His mood had not often in his life been so high.

On his flight northward from Washington and southward down the Atlantic capes, the thought that Shirley Claiborne and her family must now believe him an ignoble scoundrel had wrought misgivings and pain in his heart, but at least he would soon be near her—even now she might be somewhere below in the lovely valley, and he drew off his hat and stared down upon what was glorified and enchanted ground.

"Let us go," he said presently.

Oscar saluted, standing bridle in hand.

"You will find it easier to walk," he said, and, leading their horses, they retraced their steps for several hundred yards along the ridge, then mounted and proceeded slowly down again until they came to a mountain road. Presently a high wire fence followed at their right, where the descent was sharply arrested, and they came to a barred wooden gate, and beside it a small cabin, evidently designed for a lodge.

The road within followed the rough contour of the hillside that still turned downward until it broadened into a wooded plateau. The flutter of wings in the underbrush, the scamper of squirrels, the mad lope of a fox, kept the eye busy. A deer broke out of a hazel thicket, stared at the horsemen in wide eyed amazement, then plunged into the wood and disappeared.

"There are deer and of foxes a great plenty," remarked Oscar.

He turned toward Armitage and added with lowered voice:

"It is different from our old hills and forests—yes? but sometimes I have been homesick."

"But this is not so bad, Oscar, and some day you shall go back!"

"Here," said the soldier, as they swung out of the wood and into the open, "is what they call the Port of Missing Men."

There was a broad park-like area that tended downward almost imperceptibly to a deep defile. They dismounted and walked to the edge and looked down the steep sides. A little creek flowed out of the wood and emptied itself with a silvery rush into the vale, caught its breath below and became a creek again. A slight suspension bridge flung across the defile had once afforded a short cut to Storm Springs, but it was now in disrepair, and at either end was nosted "No Thoroughfare." Armitage stepped upon the loose planking and felt the frail thing vibrate under his weight.

"It is a bad place," remarked Oscar, as the bridge creaked and swung, and Armitage laughed and jumped back to solid ground.

The surface of this harbor of the hills was rough with outcropping rock. In some great stress of nature the trees had been destroyed utterly, and only a scant growth of weeds and wild flowers remained. The place suggested a battleground for the winds, where they might meet and struggle in wild combat, or, more practically, it was large enough for the evolutions of a squadron of cavalry.

"Why the name?" asked Armitage.

"There were gray soldiers of many battles—yes—who fought the long fight against the blue soldiers in the valley of Virginia, and after the war was over some of them would not surrender—no; but they marched here and stayed a long time and kept their last flag, and so the place was called the Port of Missing Men. They built that stone wall over there beyond the patch of cedars and camped. And a few died, and their graves are there by the cedars. Yes; they had brave hearts," and Oscar lifted his hat as though he were saluting the lost legion.

They came upon a red roofed bungalow.

They turned again to the road and went forward at a gallop, until, half a mile from the gate, they came upon a clearing and a low, red roofed bungalow.

"Your house, sir," and Oscar swung himself down at the steps of a broad veranda. He led the horses away to a barn beyond the house, while Armitage surveyed the landscape. The bungalow stood on a rough knoll and was so placed as to afford a splendid view of a wide region. Armitage traversed the long veranda, studying the landscape and delighting in the far stretching pine covered barricade of hills. He was accosted by Oscar, who appeared carrying the suit cases.

"There shall be breakfast," said the man.

He threw open the doors, and they entered a wide, bare hall, with a fireplace, into which Oscar dropped a match.

"All one floor—plenty of sleeping rooms, sir—a place to eat here—a kitchen beyond—a fair barracks for a common soldier; that is all."

"It is enough. Throw these bags into the nearest bedroom if there is no choice, and camp will be established."

SLEEP WAS IMPOSSIBLE

ALMOST DRIVEN TO DESPAIR UNTIL CURED WITH USE OF

DR. CHASE'S NERVE FOOD

No symptom of nervous prostration is more to be dreaded than the inability to sleep. Man can exist for considerable time without food, but without sleep, and the restoration which it brings, he soon becomes a mental and physical wreck.

When you cannot sleep and rest look to the nervous system and remember that lasting cure can only be obtained from such treatment as Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, which naturally and gradually restores the exhausted nerves to health and vigour.

Mr. Wm. Graham, Atwood, Ont., writes: "My wife had been ill for some time with nervous prostration and we had two of the best doctors we could get, but neither of them did her any good. She gradually became worse and worse, could not sleep and lost energy and interest in life. She was almost giving up in despair when a friend advised the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

"From the first box my wife used we noticed an improvement and after using six boxes she is completely cured and as well as she ever was, eats well, sleeps well and feels fully restored. I cannot say too much in praise of this valuable medicine for I believe my wife owes her life to its use."

Every dose of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food goes to the formation of so much rich, red blood and is therefore certain to do you good.

Dentist Forsakes His Practice to Work Among Poor of Central America.

Tacoma, Wash., March 26.—Believing that it is his duty to carry the Gospel to the people of Central America, Dr. George T. Lord, a prominent dentist, is closing up a practice netting him $10,000 a year and will shortly leave, with his family for Gautemala City.

Both Dr. and Mrs. Lord are of intensely religious turns, and they feel fully persuaded of the wisdom of the move. Dr. Lord does not intend to give up dentistry, but will give his skill and time gratis to the poor of Guatemala, believing that by such sacrifice and open-handed charity he can reach the hearts of the people and find willing ears for the story of the Cross.

In other words preaching and free dentistry will go hand in hand in his office. He also expects to establish missions. For years past he has been an active evangelical force in mission and slum work here, Mrs. Lord being his constant companion and enthusiastic helper.

The two belong to the First Congregational church and move in the best society.

Edward Kennedy, elder son, also went to Coeur d'Alene a year ago and was married. He kept his wedding secret for several weeks.

MAN TO SHOW YOUTH ON HER 70TH BIRTHDAY

Peculiar Conditions Follow as a Result—Sleeps When Prone—Awakens Sitting Up.

Bedford, Ind., March 26.—Dr. R. H. Short of this city, who was called in consultation with Dr. Matlock of Tunnelton, in the case of Mrs. John Jackson, who cannot be aroused from a sleep of many hours, says the case is remarkable. Mrs. Jackson had just celebrated her seventieth birthday anniversary, and remarking to her friends that she was still young, despite her years, she ran a short distance to prove it. She went to bed at night in her usual good health but later became ill with a severe attack of vomiting, followed by sleep.

Going to her room the following morning, her son Frank aroused her only after hard efforts, when she opened her eyes, called his name and again sank into a deep sleep, in which she still remains. When raised to a sitting position she awakens, but is unable to talk. There are no signs of paralysis, but the moment she lies down she falls into a deep slumber. In this condition her pulse and temperature are normal. Her case is puzzling to her attendants and physicians.

UMBRELLA IDENTIFIED

As That Belonging to the Dead Girl—Found in Wolter's Room.

New York, March 30.—As the first step in the process of hurrying Wolter to trial, a formal inquest into Ruth Wheeler's death was held to-day. The coroner's jury, after hearing the evidence, held Wolter for the grand jury.

Wolter, who made his first public appearance since his arraignment, showed many signs of the ordeal he had been undergoing since the murder charge was laid against him. Katie Miller, his young woman companion, who is being detained in the case, came into court shortly after Wolter. She glanced at the prisoner, but he took no perceptible notice of her.

Both Pearl and Adelaide Wheeler, sisters of the dead girl, testified at the inquest to the facts concerning the search for their sister, which have already been brought out. The Miller woman, who has also sworn, testified to Wolter's mysterious movements about the fireplace on the night after the murder. She identified an umbrella produced in court as the one she had seen for the first time last Friday night at the Seventy-Fifth St. house, where Ruth Wheeler's body was discovered. Pearl Wheeler, recalled, identified the umbrella as the one her sister took with her when she left home on the fatal morning of last Thursday.

Wolter was not represented by counsel, nor was he asked to testify.

BOTH LOCAL COMPANIES SURVIVE THE TEST

"The Geisha" and the Madrigal Club Will Both be Heard in Toronto Next Week---A Triumph for the Local Amateurs Who are Thus Declared Worthy by Dr. Vogt to Take Part in Earl Grey Competition.

Mr. R. J. Devey has received a special long-distance telephone message from Col. Denison, the Secretary of the Earl Grey Trophy competition, to say that "The Geisha" musical play will appear at the Royal Alexandra Theatre, Toronto, at 8 p.m., on Thursday next.

This is a special distinction to the City of Peterborough, and we extend hearty congratulations to Mr. R. J. Devey and Mr. R. Gliddon and their splendid combinations, who have succeeded in entering this competition in the face of cities of many times their population. This means an additional expense of nearly $200. It is now up to the citizens of this city to see that these two companies are financially equipped to face this outlay.

"The Geisha" is given to-night and to-morrow night in the Grand Opera House and the Madrigal Club in the Conservatory Hall on Monday next.

Have you taken your tickets? This means you!

SHREDDED WHEAT BANQUET WAS A GREAT SUCCESS

Enjoyable Affair Held in the Salvation Army Barracks Last Evening—Good Programme.

MANY PRESENT

The Shredded Wheat banquet given under the auspices of the Salvation Army last night was a very enjoyable event. The attendance was by no means as large as the occasion demanded, as both menu and programme were of an exceedingly acceptable nature, and should have been patronized largely by the general public. The several delicious cereal courses were admirably served by Salvation Army lassies, whose work in this respect left nothing to be desired.

The banquet was followed by a splendid vocal and instrumental programme in the big Temple and the numbers given fully exemplified the fact that this organization is replete with musical talent of considerable merit. The Temple, in its renovated condition, presents a bright and cheerful aspect, being pleasingly decorated in a bright blue above, a dark wainscoting and is large and spacious, and is a credit to Peterborough in every way.

The Programme.

Opening Hymn—
Prayer by Sergt.-Major Braund.
March—Chalk Farm, by the band.
Address—The Vital Question, by Mr. J. Hewitt.
Vocal Solo—There is a Better World. They Say, by Bandsman Gandy.
Selection—The Maine, by the band.
Song—Forth to the Rescue, by the Songster Brigade.
Trombone Solo, by Bandsman Moyes.
Selection, by the band.
Song—Tenderly Lead Me, by the Songster Brigade.
Cornet solo, by the bandmaster.
Selection—Bible pictures depicting Christ stilling the storm on the Sea of Galilee, by the band.
March, by the band.
God Save the King.

Mr. Hewitt's address on "The Vital Question, was very entertaining, and in support of the contention that, apart from salvation, diet should be the main question with man in order to engender the highest perfection of health and to prolong life.

The main trouble with the present generation is that they eat too much meat and not sufficient cereals and vegetables, which are, he claimed, nature's food. The future of Canada rests, he said, not upon its mineral and lumber resources, but in the development and higher ideal of physical, moral and religious characteristics in Canada's young men and young women. Mr. Hewitt is the capable representative of the Canadian Shredded Wheat Company, who provided last night's banquet.

The band showed marked talent and good training. Their numbers were excellently rendered and of a very acceptable nature. The cornet and trombone solos were specially creditable to both the performers and the Army. The Songster Brigade is a well trained choir of male and female voices that blend in very pleasing harmony.

Bandsman Gandy possesses a fine tenor voice which was heard to good advantage in "There is a better world they say."

To say the least, the Salvation Army banquet and programme last night was of a very entertaining nature, and should have had a crowded house. Staff-Captain Walton officiated as chairman of the proceedings in his customary happy manner.

STRANGE ACTIONS OF 13 YEAR OLD BOY

Imagines He is a Dog—Crouches and Growls on Hearing Footsteps.

San Francisco, March 26.—Ralpha Madison, the thirteen-year-old son of a wealthy rancher living near Palo Alto, thinks he is a dog, and when he hears footsteps he crouches and barks.

Physicians call this kind of hallucination chorea. Hypnotism is believed to be a cure for the strange malady, and an uncle of young Madison has brought him to San Francisco to be treated. While walking along the street on the way to a doctor's office the boy startled pedestrians by his savage growls. He was still growling when the physician's quarters were reached, but by gazing fixedly into the boy's eyes and hypnotically combating the sufferer's delusions the doctor managed to quiet his patient.

Medical students of Stanford University have had the boy under observation for some time, and the case has attracted much attention from the medical fraternity.

TOOTHPICK IN THROAT

Suffered For Months With Sore Throat Before He Knew What Was The Matter.

Oconto, Wis., March 26.—Aaron Sharpley, a resident of this city, has been bothered for three months with a sore throat, which he thought came from a cold. His throat was irritated and his sleep disturbed.

Instead of his cold getting better it seemed to get worse, and he finally decided to go to a hospital at Green Bay for treatment. The attending physician examined his throat and found a lump inside of it as big as a marble. He performed an operation and discovered that the abnormal growth was caused by a short piece of wooden toothpick which had lodged in his throat.

NOW SOLD IN CANADA

In Less Than Three Years Parisian Sage, the Splendid Hair Tonic, is Sold All Over Canada.

There is a reason for the phenomenal sale of Parisian Sage in Canada during the past three years.

And the reason is plain to all. Parisian Sage does just what it is advertised to do.

Ask Wm. Madill about it, he will tell you that they rigidly guarantee it to cure dandruff, stop falling hair or itching scalp in two weeks or money back.

There is no reason whatever why any man or woman should fail to take advantage of the above generous offer.

But one thing that has made Parisian Sage so famous is its peculiar power to turn the harsh, unattractive hair that many women possess into luxuriant and radiant hair in a short time. Women of refinement the country over are using it and it never disappoints.

Sold everywhere, and in Peterborough by Wm. Madill, for 50 cents a large bottle.

The Charlotte Street Mission Band intend holding an afternoon Tea & Sale of Homemade Cakes and Candy on Friday afternoon (April 1st) from 4 to 7 o'clock. 1D

SUING FOR $94,000 FOR LEGAL SERVICES

Harry K. Thaw Temporarily Relieved From Matteawan—Lawyer Wants His Fees.

New York, March 29. — Harry K. Thaw, who has been temporarily released from Matteawan to attend the trial of the suit against Mrs. Mary C. Thaw, his mother, brought by Clifford W. Hartridge, to recover a balance of $94,000 for legal services, passed the second night of his visit in Manhattan in the Tombs.

Mr. Hartridge was the witness. He told of the several apartments Thaw kept under various names in this city, and of the letters from women and girls that Thaw received there.

The lawyer also told the court much about the defence that he had prepared for Harry Thaw. He said he told Mrs. Thaw that her son's only defence to the charge of murdering Stanford White was that there was some temporary mental derangement, caused by what Thaw had been told of Evelyn Nesbitt Thaw's wrongs at the hands of White.

Mr. Hartridge was asked by his counsel to explain the expenditures made by him to prevent too much publicity injurious to the Thaw interests and name. "I saw representatives of every newspaper in New York," said Mr. Hartridge, "and some in other cities. I endeavoured to influence the papers not to use stories injurious to the Thaw name."

HEARD APPEALS

Court of Revision Met Yesterday Afternoon—Eighteen Appeals.

The Court of Revision met yesterday afternoon and heard a number of applications against the assessment. There were present Mr. Wm. Langford, chairman, and Mr. W. F. Johnston. Eighteen applications were heard and considered.

The appeal of R. J. Kidd, regarding the special assessment for the construction of a sidewalk on the east side of Benson Ave. was laid over until the next sitting of the court.

From O'Connell and Gordon for remission of part of taxes on business assessment of John Taylor on Simcoe street, as he was over-assessed, and premises were burned in July, 1909.

COUGHED ALL NIGHT

Till This Recipe Was Tried. Cure Followed in 5 Hours.

A prominent medical man, who suffered with a severe cough and cold on the lungs, often being kept awake all night, and weakened by loss of sleep, finally discovered a simple formula which will cure any cough in five hours by the clock. It is a laxative tonic cough syrup which can be made at home by anyone and the formula is here given for the benefit of those who pass sleepless nights in painful paroxysms. Those who have tried it say it is magical, and beats any high-priced, slow-acting cough medicine ever sold.

Mix in a bottle one-half ounce fluid wild cherry bark, one ounce compound essence cardiol and three ounces syrup white pine compound. Take twenty drops every half hour for four hours. Then take one-half to one teaspoonful three or four times a day. Give children less according to age. This will tone up and rid the system of deep-seated coughs every time.

COMPLIMENTED THE LAWYERS

His Lordship Mr. Justice Riddell Makes Flattering Remarks Regarding the Skilful Handling of Civil Case Before Him.

THE DEFENDANTS WON

His Lordship Mr. Justice Riddell, in summing up the evidence in the case of Fred Cook, of Trent Bridge, versus Robert and Bert Davidson to recover $2,000 for the loss of an arm, took occasion to compliment the lawyers on both sides, on the very skilful manner in which they had conducted the case. He hoped he would often have the pleasure of seeing them before him on future occasions. Judgment was given in favour of the defendants. Mr. F. D. Kerr of the firm of Dennistoun, Peck and Kerr, was counsel for the defendants and Mr. A. B. Colville, of Campbellford, had charge of the case for the plaintiff, although Mr. Cavanagh, of Toronto, conducted the examination.

WOMEN'S WOES

Peterborough Women are Finding Relief at Last.

It does seem that women have more than a fair share of the aches and pains that afflict humanity; they must "keep up," must attend to duties in spite of constantly aching backs, or headaches, dizzy spells, bearing-down pains; they must stoop over when to stoop means torture. They must walk and bend and work with racking pains and many aches from kidney ills. Kidneys cause more suffering than any other organ of the body. Keep the kidneys well and health is easily maintained. Read of a remedy for kidneys only that helps and cures the kidneys and is endorsed by people you know.

Mrs. John Wallace, of 323 Water St., Peterborough, Ont., says: "I have suffered with many painful and annoying symptoms of kidney trouble for over two years and could find nothing that would benefit my condition. My back was weak and a dull, heavy pain settled across the small of it, extending into my sides and shoulders. I could not sleep at night as the kidney secretions were so frequent and irregular that I would have to leave my bed a number of times. I was dizzy and would usually awake with a dull headache. Booth's Kidney Pills procured at Wm. Madill's Drug Store, cured me when all else failed. I am stronger and feel better generally. I can conscientiously recommend Booth's Kidney Pills and I would not be without a box in the house."

MATRIMONIAL TANGLE

Man Wanted to Marry His Deceased Wife's Sister's Daughter.

Manchester, Eng., March 30. — A curious sidelight has been thrown upon the deceased wife's sister act by an incident which occurred in Altrincham A wedding was arranged to take place in a nonconformist chapel in the presence of the civil regitrar. When the bridegroom, who was a widower, arrived with the bride-elect a question was put to him by the officiating minister, the answer to which revealed the fact that the bride-elect was the daughter of his deceased wife's sister.

He explained that in view of the alteration in the law he had assumed that if marriage with his wife's sister was legal, marriage with his wife's sister's daughter would be equally valid.

Though he had logic on his side, the wedding had to be abandoned, as it was pointed out that it was now legal to marry one's deceased wife's sister, the table of affinity still remains unaltered in other respects, and a marriage with a wife's niece is illegal.

MUCH CONGESTION

James J. Hill Prophesies Great Increase in Railway Traffic.

Chicago, March 29.—James J. Hill believes the railroads will experience next fall and winter the greatest traffic congestion in their history and he sees no way of preventing it. He passed through Chicago to-day on his way from St. Paul to New York.

"The tonnage which is being offered the railroads for transportation is constantly on the increase," he said, "and there is little doubt that the railroads will be called upon to furnish more transportation than they have ever been asked to furnish. From all indications it seems certain that by next fall or early winter, the railroads will be totally unable to furnish anything like the amount of transportation facilities which will be demanded by the country.

I do not think that the railroads are to be blamed for this situation for it is next to impossible for them to raise the money needed to provide the additional facilities. The railroads of the country really ought to have about $1,800,000,000 annuall to spend for the next few years in order to catch up with the growing demands made under present conditions. Until railroad credit shall have been restored and until American public shall have gained confidence in railroad securities the public will have to continue to suffer for the lack of railroad facilities."

KLING SATISFIED

Will Abide by the Decision of the National Commissioner.

Kansas City, March 30.—"Although the terms imposed by the National Commission are pretty severe, I shall abide by them, and it will afford me the greatest delight to play with Chicago again," said John Kling to-day when apprised of the decision of the National Commission in his case.

Kling refused to discuss the details of the commission's decision or the facts upon which it was based.

In an interview yesterday, before the details of the decision were known, Kling said: "I don't know what the amount of my fine will be, and I don't care. Mr. Murphy gave me a leave of absence last year, and I don't purpose to pay tribute to the National Commission for the privilege of playing in the major leagues again. If Mr. Murphy sees fit to pay the fine and pay me the salary I want I will join the Cubs next week. However, I must be satisfied. I am not going to say for anything impossible, but it is a certainty that I will draw more money than I did in 1908 or I will be with the town boys again this season. I am in good shape to play, and am willing to make another fight with the Cubs."

COAL FIELDS HAVE BEEN DISCOVERED IN TH NORTH

North Bay, Ont., March 29.—Coal is now the magic worm which is stirring northern Ontario into activity and temporarily at least obscuring the alluring gleams of the gold and silver spotlight which has held the centre of the stage so long. Several parties have been prospecting for black diamonds far into Northland and have returned with reports highly satisfactory to syndicates, although little is being said at present—a good sign in itself.

Martin Shannon of North Bay, formerly employed on the G.T.P., survey, has just returned from Metagama River, north of the Transcontinental railway and a syndicate is being formed in the town to send him back at the head of a party to locate coal lands. Parties coming out from Metagama River country this week met four different parties going in, all looking for coal. Claims have been staked and recorded for twenty square miles of territory, where an immense body of coal, it is said, has been found. Tests were made at four different places within an area of three miles along Metagama and coal was found each time. Assays of samples so far have been very favourable and interested parties are thoroughly satisfied that good commercial coal has at last been discovered in Northern Ontario.

The coal fields located about sixty miles north on Grand Trunk Pacific, west of Cochrane and from the formation of Metagama river seems to have through an immense bed of as it is found on both banks and bluffs are seamed with the ious commodity. Should thorough ys of the samples brought out a reful inspection of deposits bear the reports already given by engi s and prospecors a continuation of and N. O. railway to the new co lds will be a matter of short time.

Syndicates being hastily organized to get in latest turn of fortune's wheel be ready for a dash when stream pen, while a number of parties to advantage of snow to get in before breakup. Already twenty squ miles of territory have been staked representing twenty claims, each al claim comprising a mile. The aking was done along the Metagama river, a stream beyond the height and flowing northward toward Hudson Bay. The personnel of the pa s who are in on the ground floor the coal proposition is a guarantee that there is something tangible and genuine about the finds and mining recorder's office at Haileybury confirms some interesting information, with the general public is not familiar with.

HAVE RE-UNITED

Buffalo Bill and His Wife Have Settled Their Differences.

North Platte, Neb., March 30.—Col. William F. Cody (Buffalo Bill) is here visiting his old home, the first time in nearly ten years. As a result of the visit, he and Mrs. Cody have adjusted their domestic difficulties. The reconciliation was brought about by Cody Boals, their grandson.

Nearly ten years ago Cody, while living at Cody, Wyo., brought a suit for divorce, alleging incompatibility and cruelty. Mrs. Cody filed an answer, charging cruelty, failure to provide and numerous other offences. Friends interceded, but without avail. The case got into court and was partly tried when a continuance was asked and granted and since that time it has hung on the docket.

Cody Boals, who attends the Military Academy, at Kearney, came here to spend Easter with his grandmother at the old Cody home, now known as Scout's Rest. Unknown to any person young Boals telegraphed to his grandfather, then in the East, urging him to come here and spend the vacation with him. The invitation was accepted and last night Col. Cody arrived, was met by his grandson and taken to the very house where he spent his early married life when he was just a scout, but which is now in charge of W. F. Garlow, who married Miss Irma Cody.

The meeting between the old scout and his wife was most affecting, and as soon as they shook hands they were left to themselves. Shortly afterward they came into the family apartments their faces wreathed in smiles and told their daughter and grandson the past had been forgotten and that hereafter they proposed to enjoy life together.

IN THE [illegible] ELECTED

Delegates at Ontario Educational Association Are Hard on the Existing Ideals of Training — Dr. Balliet Gives Interesting Talk on the Function of Play in Scholar's Life—Dean Again Secretary.

Toronto, March 31.—With still increasing enthusiasm the delegates to the Ontario Educational Association went through the various meetings of their different sections yesterday. Revolutionary statements were uttered regarding the line, underscoring different points of the educational methods at present adopted by the schools throughout Ontario. A breaking away from the hard and fast routine methods and forms was protested against by many able speakers.

At last evening's session of the O. E. A. Convention the new officers of the association for the ensuing year were elected as follows: President, Inspector F. W. Merchant; general secretary, R. W. Doan; treasurer, W. J. Hendry. All the new officers are Toronto men.

The new president, Inspector Merchant, has been a teacher in the high schools at Ingersoll, Owen Sound and Barrie. On leaving Barrie he was appointed principal of the Normal School at London, where he remained till about one year ago, when he was made inspector of normal schools.

Dr. Balliet lectured once more last evening to the delegates on "The Problem of Moral Education."

Another interesting address was given to a joint meeting of the association in Convocation Hall yesterday afternoon by Dr. Balliet of New York University, on the "Function of Play in the Life of the Scholar."

The speaker referred to fighting, fishing and hunting as inherited instincts handed down through generations to children from their remote ancestors. The lad of seven who runs away from home is merely following the roaming disposition of some of his predecessors. Dr. Balliet stated that the biological theory of play was that it was a rehearsal of ancestral customs. The kitten seizes a ball in its four paws, and the puppy with its teeth. In both cases they are adopting the methods used by their ancestors.

When boys fight and play roughly they are merely finding an outlet for their inherited instinct. Playing football is merely following a strong racial instinct, but sawing wood is a modern convention, and as yet has not registered itself on the nerve centres. Boys' marble-playing in April and kitestlying in September are as certain as the migration of the birds, and are from practically the same cause.

Physical training in a gymnasium, are called work because they are based on physiology and anatomy. Wild animals exercise at play when they are young and at work when as they grow older. If the state were so organized that every child had ample opportunity to play and every adult had to do work enough to earn his meals, it would do much toward keeping the race in a healthy condition. He argued that the best forms of play were those in which the child was allowed to follow his or her own racial instincts.

Assault Was Fatal.

Windsor, March 31.—Chester Perkins, liveryman, is dead, and Joseph Thompson, a plasterer, is under arrest. Perkins died two hours after he was assaulted by Thompson, who, while drunk, had been refused the rental of a rig.

Thompson is a Scotchman, who came here recently from London and Strathroy. He was arrested yesterday before he knew of the seriousness of the assault, which took place on Tuesday night.

Had Heart Trouble.

Nerves Were All Unstrung.

Wherever there is any weakness of the heart or nerves, flagging energy or physical breakdown, the use of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills will soon produce a healthy, strong system.

Can Do Her Own Work Now.

Mrs. M. McGann, Debec Junction, N.B., writes:—"I wish to tell you what Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills have done for me. Three years ago I was so run down I could not do my own work. I went to a doctor, and he told me I had heart trouble and that my nerves were all unstrung. I took his medicine, as he ordered me to do, but it did me no good. I then started to take Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, and had only taken one box before I started to feel better, so I continued their use until I had taken several boxes, and I am now strong and well, and able to do my own work. When I commenced taking your pills I weighed 125 pounds, and now weigh 155 and have given birth to a lovely young daughter, which was a happy thing in the family. When I commenced taking Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, I could not go upstairs without resting before I got to the top. I can now go up without any trouble."

THE TARIFF AGREEMENT

Secretary Knox Suggests Better Relations Between Canada and the United States—Thirteen Classes of Imports Valued at $500,000 a Year Are Affected by the New Schedule — Peace With Honor.

Ottawa, March 31.—The achievement of commercial peace with honor between the two English-speaking nations of North America, with the prospect of an early extension of the hopes long entertained of reciprocal trade relations between the United States and Canada, was proclaimed in the House of Commons yesterday, when Hon. Mr. Fielding made his anxiously awaited statement as to the result of the negotiations with Washington. The fact that copies of the evening papers containing a synopsis of the terms of the agreement were in the hands of many of the members when Mr. Fielding rose to make the pronouncement did not lessen the interest with which the speech of the Minister of Finance was anticipated.

According to the Minister of Finance, the arrangement will hurt no industry in Canada; does not give the United States any particular preference—because the concessions are granted in the general tariff and will apply to the whole world; will have no convenient effect on the revenue, and, as a matter of fact, serves a very useful purpose indeed.

"No doubt," said Mr. Fielding, "extremists on both sides will have the extreme view as to this arrangement. I have no doubt that some will say the United States have the best of the bargain. In both cases I believe they will be wrong.

"In so far as the best kind of bargain is one where both sides met each other in good spirit and are satisfied that the spirit of compromise has prevailed, I believe it is a good thing for Canada, and that it is a good thing for the United States."

Mr. Fielding said he had every reason to believe that President Taft, although sincere in his kindly references to Canada, had not been bluffing, but that, had Canada declined to do something, he would have had to impose the maximum duty.

And while this might have been avoided, and Canada emerged with a diplomatic triumph, such a course would only have created an ill-feeling that would have reacted unfavorably in some future negotiations.

Mr. Fielding emphasized the fact that the United States, although desirous of getting concessions concerning the exportation of wood pulp, had not insisted on these when it was explained that it was a matter for the provinces to decide.

Reductions are made in thirteen classes, containing about forty items in all. The average reduction is about 2 1-2 per cent., that is, the average difference between the general tariff under which American goods have entered Canada hitherto and the intermediate tariff under which they now enter.

The concerted items constitute about $5,000,000 of Canada's American importations. These goods are, many of them, goods that are not extensively or at all produced in Canada, and the reduction will go to reduce the prices on dates, figs, and nuts, toilet articles, perfumery, tableware china, window glass, watch actions, sheet feathers and milliners' supplies.

The concessions provided by the agreement cover less than three per cent. of all the import business from the United States into Canada in a year.

They will cover business amounting to about $6,000,000 against imports into Canada from the United States, amounting to more than $180,000,000 in the Canadian fiscal year of 1909. They include about forty staple commodities.

One of the most important concessions made by Canada is that of the so-called omnibus clause in the tariff. Heretofore all articles under that clause imported from the United States have been subject to the general tariff of 20 per cent. ad valorem. Hereafter those articles will pay 17-1-2 per cent. ad valorem.

Mr. Fielding concluded by praising Ambassador Bryce for the assistance he had rendered, and by reading the correspondence between himself and Mr. Knox.

Mr. Sproule, acting leader of the Opposition, expressed surprise that the Government had not demanded concessions of some kind for what had been given.

W. F. Maclean congratulated the Government upon the settlement of the waterways treaty which he hoped would be beneficial to both countries, and that Canada would get her fair share in the division. He also congratulated the Government on the settlement of the tariff difficulty and the avoidance of a tariff war. He pointed out, however, that this settlement could only be temporary, and that Canada must prepare to face a similar situation in the near future.

Want Closer Trade Relations.

Washington, D.C., March 31.—Following the proclamation of a complete tariff agreement with Canada yesterday, it was announced that President Taft has invited Dominion Government officials to a conference looking to closer trade relations between the two countries and to a general readjustment of duties.

Writing Hon. Mr. Fielding, United States Secretary Knox says:

"I am gratified that the recent tendencies toward a more perfect understanding between our respective countries, manifested so conspicuously in the maturing adjustments of boundary waters, fisheries, and other long-standing differences, will not be affected by the irritations which would have resulted from our failure to agree upon the tariff question.

"The President is confident that the policy of broader and closer commercial relations with Canada will receive the hearty support of the large majority of the people of the United States, and he has learned with much satisfaction of the existence of a similar sentiment in the Dominion. It may be added that the conditions of the present day, as contrasted with the traditions of the past, are bringing into clearer light the truth that not only mutual trade in this, but ethical and social conditions of the highest moment reinforce this common sentiment.

"Let me then take this opportunity to express, by his direction, the desire of the President, that your Government, at such times and in such manner as may be mutually satisfactory, the consideration of a readjustment of our trade relations upon the broader and more liberal lines which should obtain between countries so closely related geographically and racially as indicated by the President in his recent public utterances."

UNIFORMITY

WHAT do we mean by uniformity in flour? We mean stability and dependability, every barrel like every other barrel, every baking like every other.

Now, uniformity in flour comes only from eternal vigilance. It is the result of everlasting care and watchfulness at the mill. It can only be produced by the most advanced methods of milling and the most expensive up-to-date equipment.

One of the many great virtues of ROYAL HOUSEHOLD FLOUR is its absolute uniformity. It never varies. It is the same yesterday, today, to-morrow. Week in and week out, year in and year out it is always uniform, always the best, always invariable in results whether for bread or pastry.

Royal Household Flour has to be uniform. It cannot be anything else. There is no happen-chance connected with it. It is surrounded at every stage of production with the utmost care and watchfulness. The Ogilvie Mills are models of up-to-date equipment. The machinery is the most advanced and most expensive. The inspection laboratory and test baking departments are the most complete and scientific in the world.

It has taken enormous Capital and the experience of a life time to achieve the absolute uniformity of Royal Household Flour. And it is this achievement which is your protection against risk of any kind in buying it. The watch, watch, watch and test, test, test which have made ROYAL HOUSEHOLD FLOUR the world's finest flour are your permanent safeguard as to quality.

MONTREAL, March 30.—(Special.)—At the Canadian Pacific market offerings were 209 cattle, 50 sheep and lambs, 350 hogs and 1500 calves. Cattle prices were firmly maintained on account of limited supply and general good quality. Demand was good for small lots, and a fairly active trade was done. Choice Ontario stall-fed steers sold at 6½c to 6¾c; good at 6¼c to 6c; fairly good, 5½c to 5¾c; fair at 4¾c to 5c; common at 4c to 4½c; cows at 3½c to 5c, and bulls at 4c to 5½c per lb.

Altho the supply of hogs was small, prices ruled lower, attributed chiefly to limited demand from packers, as they are fairly well supplied for the present. Sales of selected lots were made at $6.25 to $6.50, weighed off cars. Calves are coming forward freely and prices are tending lower. A brisk trade was done at from $2 to $6 each. A small lot of old sheep sold at 6c per lb., and spring lambs brought from $4 to $7 each.

IN THE WORLD OF SPORT

A Monster Arena Will Be Built For Fourth Of July Bout

San Francisco, March 30.—The arena at Emeryville, where the Jeffries-Johnson battle will be fought on July 4th, will be the greatest and largest that the modern or ancient prize-fighting game has ever known. According to the plans just completed it will seat 35,000 persons, and it will be so constructed that in case of an eleventh hour rush it can be quickly extended so that 15,000 more may be jammed in.

The plans of this wonderful structoure have already been completed and are in the hands of Tex. Rickard, who is an authority on arenas, having bossed the one in which Gans and Nelson fought 42 rounds in Goldfield nearly four years ago. The Emeryville ampitheatre is modelled after this famous Goldfield structure, though it will be fully three times as large.

Rickard and his partner, Jack Gleason, are already beginning to talk like a couple of frenzied financiers According to their figuring, the gros fight will draw no less than $700,00 if they play to capacity. Of cours this is not taken seriously by the who know the ins and the outs of the fighting game, but conservative persons are willing to admit that the battle certainly will pull between $250,000 and $300,000. This is marvellous when one stops to consider that the largest house up to date was drawn by Jeffries and Sharkey at Coney Island, New York, away back in 1899. This house netted $6,000. and was closely followed by the Jeffries-Corbett affair in San Francsco, four years later. This one trailed up $64,000, a record-breaker for the Pacific coast.

The Emeryville arena will be 240 feet square, and the bleachers at the highest point will be 40 feet. It will be constructed on the sloping plan, so that the fans in every part of it can have a perfect view of the ring in the centre. There will be no chance to beat the gate, for all persons will first have to pass through the regular turnstiles before reaching the arena entrances.

According to the figures of the architects, 1,000,000 feet of lumber will be used in the construction of the arena. It will cost the promoters in the neighbourhood of $20,000, for, according to the terms of their agreement with the racing magnate, Tom Williams, they must tear down the structure and leave the centre of the track as they got it. This work must be completed within 30 days after the battle.

The track is an ideal location for the championship battle It is situated in a little township known as Emeryville, a few miles outside of Oakland and just thirty minutes ride by ferryboat and steam or electric train from San Francisco. It is accessible by two lines, the boat of which run on a fifteen-minute schedule every day and, of course, the railroad companies will have to adopt special schedules on this day of days.

If his present plans are carried out Jeffries will do the last few days of training at the track Like most great fighters, he is an ardent handball enthusiast and in one of the old stalls on the racecourse is a handball court second to none in the world. It was built by Starter Dick Dwer and Jim Nelson several years ago, and has always been kept in repair.

Jeff wants to get used to the climate for one thing, and he likes the idea of the handball court for another. He will bring his full retinue of sparring partners and trainers to the track with him, though it is not likely that he will do any heavy boxing then. He will have completed all his strenuous work at least two weeks before the battle and the balance of the time will be spent in keeping limbered up and testing his wind.

The big fellow will report at his training camp at Rowardennan, in the heart of the Santa Cruz Mountains, some day next week. A mammoth gymnasium, handball court, cozy cottage and houses for his trainers have been erected at a cost of several thousand dollars. In fact, nothing has been overlooked to make the former champion's quarters the neat and most up-to-date that money can buy. There's not a thing lacking in the take-up.

Rowardennan is considered one of the ideal spots in the California mountains. It is about 90 miles from San Francisco and about ten miles from Santa Cruz, the world-renowned beach resort. Here the big fellow may wander over the wild mountains to his heart's content and he can have plenty of the finest hunting and fishing supplied by Nature. Jeff is a great fellow for the outdoor life and he will do most of his work in the open air, just as he used to do when he was the champion.

Johnson will train at a San Francisco beach resort known as the Seal Rock House. It is only half an hour's ride from the centre of the city, and is known as a landmark. Such famous ones as John L. Sullivan, Peter Jackson, Jack Dempsey, Jack McAuliffe, George Dixon, Peter Maher and a host of others used to do their work there in the good old days. Johnson revived the place by training there for his fight with Ketchel last October.

KING MENELIK DEAD.

After Many False Alarms Abyssinian Ruler Dies.

Adis Abbeba, Abyssinia, March 31.—Menelik II., King of Abyssinia, is dead, at the age of 66 years, and in the 21st year of his reign. The king was stricken with apoplexy last fall and never recovered his health.

Prince Lidj Jeasu was proclaimed heir to the throne on May 18 last. He is fourteen years old and little less than a year ago was married to the granddaughter, aged seven years, of the late Emperor John and niece of Empress Taitou.

The ancient Empire of Abyssinia or Ethiopia, includes the Kingdoms of Tigre, Amhara, Shoa, with other territories and dependencies. Its area is over 200,000 square miles and the population is estimated at between 9,000,000 and 11,000,000.

Menelik claimed to be a direct descendant of Solomon by the Queen of KING MENELIK.

Sheba, and styled himself "Conquering Lion of the Tribe of Judah, Elect of the Saviour, King of Kings of Ethiopia."

He was the son of the King of Shoa, but was captured in his youth by the governor of Kondar, who had usurped the throne, under the title of Theodore III.

Menelik made war on Theodore and his successor, the Emperor Johannes. He finally married his daughter to the Ras Area, the emperor's son, and was tacitly acknowledged heir to the throne. Ras Area died, Johannes was killed in battle and Menelik became Negus of Abyssinia.

He refused to acknowledge the domination of Italy over his country and compelled the Italian army to capitulate at Adowa in 1866, when a treaty was signed recognizing the absolute independence of Abyssinia Since then peace has crowned Menelik's policy towards foreign powers and the country has prospered with the introduction of improved methods of government and commerce.

Banks Held Bill by Failure.

Montreal, March 31.—It is estimated that the failure of D. Rattray and Sons, Limited, involves liabilities of between $300,000 and $400,000. A large amount of this is in the form of accommodation paper held by banks. The Sovereign Bank is interested to the extent of about $80,000. A warrant has been issued against D. John Rattray and W. J. Lefeave, who was the chief clerk in the Montreal office.

Took Poison In Error.

Smith's Falls, March 31.—The death of Miss Jennie McDonald, a former Smith's Falls young woman, occurred in Montreal Tuesday, under distressing circumstances. She had been slightly indisposed, and took a dose of what she supposed was epsom salts. Instead it was oxalic acid. She was hurriced to a hospital, but too late.

As good healthy food is to the strong stomach, and as bracing air is to the strong lungs, so is bright sunlight to normal strong eyes. If good food hurts the stomach, there is something wrong with the digestion. If the bright sunshine of spring is painful to the eyes, it is nature warning that the eyes are under strain. We are daily supplying glasses to relieve this strain and restore normal conditions of comfort. Sunlight then helps instead of hurts the eyes.

STOP THE NOISE

Grand Jury Recommends That Changes be Made.

In connection with the presentment of the Grand Jury to Mr. Justice Riddell at the Spring Assizes yesterday, the following recommendations were added at the suggestion of the presiding judge: "We strongly recommend that some action be taken by the county to overcome the noise cousedby the public entering and leaving the court room during the session, and also that the court constables be provided with proper uniforms.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

Foremost in the advance guard of spring delicacies comes delicious shad roe. This tidbit is more or less like "beauty unadorned," requiring not "the foreign aid" of new sauce or novel serving to render it tempting.

On the other hand, there are several little variations in ways of offering it which add to the attractiveness of the dish and enhance rather than detract from its characteristic flavour.

For one bill of fare serve it with a cucumber jolly and let the jelly have slices of the tasty melon with which it is flavoured either moulded in it or grouped around it on the plate.

Another idea is to saute the roes as usual and pass them on a platter decorated with sprigs of crisp water cress, while at the same time is passed a bowl filled with whipped cream flavoured with a little horseradish to taste or with any nice catsup. It will be found a piquant accompaniment.

Shad Roe Croquettes.

A favourite variation, which makes a truly delicious entree for a luncheon or dinner is shad roe croquettes. To make these, two shad roes are put in boiling salted water and simmered a quarter of an hour. They are then dipped out, the skin peeled off and the roe mashed with a silver spoon. Boil one cup cream and stir into it one large tablespoon of butter, blended with two tablespoons of flour. When it is very thick add yolks of two eggs. Remove from the fire, add a slight squeeze of lemon juice, a tablespoon of parsley chopped fine, salt, black and red pepper. Mix well together and set to cool. When cold form into croquettes, dip and fry as usual.

Chafing Dish Style.

Another phase of cookery to which the roes lend themselves successfully is the chafing dish. Results are quick and palatable. For instance: Simmer a roe ten minutes in salted water, which should be at the boiling point when the fish is added and afterwards reduced.

Put in the blazer two tablespoons of butter and a tablespoon of lemon juice or vinegar. Break the roe up lightly with the fork, add two hard boiled egg yolks mashed fine, a small cup of finely grated bread crumbs, a little chopped parsley and seasoning to taste. Stir continually until thoroughly mixed and serve very hot.

Roes fifteen minutes, adding salt and

Or, cook the required number of a little lemon juice to the water. Remove, cover with cold water and let stand for five minutes. Dry carefully with soft cheese cloth. Sprinkle with "the seasons," coat in the usual way with egg and bread crumbs, and saute in butter. Serve surrounded with tomato sauce.

Roes as a Salad.

Even less familiar to the hostess is a delicious salad made by simmering two shad roes in boiling salted water for twenty minutes and serving them in slices (the skin removed) on lettuce, with plenty of mayonnaise. A white mayonnaise made by stirring into the usual egg and oil combination some stiffly whipped cream is excellent for a fish salad.

In the way of spring soup the Easterlike green of water cress should not be overlooked. It pleases both the eye and the jaded palate.

Wash and chop a large bunch of cress and simmer in a pint of water for twenty minutes. Strain, add a pint of milk, thicken with butter and flour, add quickly the yolk of an egg or this may be blended in with the flour. Stir till smooth and serve with whipped cream on each plate. Salt not, of course, flavour or sweeten the cream.

The Easter Egg.

Egg timbales are dainty, too, and are not too difficult of preparation to be available for the home, as family dish. For them, beat four eggs slightly, add a cup of cream, a few drops of onion juice, a fourth teaspoon of salt and a suspicion each of pepper and celery salt.

Turn the mixture into small, buttered timbale moulds, set in a pan of hot water and cook until firm. Turn out and serve with bechamel or thin tomato sauce made from thickened strained tomato juice.

The prosaic, every-day kind of omelet may also be rendered novel and delicious by folding into it minced hard boiled eggs or chopped cooked mushrooms, or chicken livers, or minced kidneys. Heat up any one of them in a thick cream sauce.

While strawberries are still a novelty to the palate a delicious strawberry charlotte will make a dessert course fit for the gods — or for the captious critics who live off Olympus.

Soak half a box of gelatin in a cup of cold water until soft. Mash and strain enough strawberries to make a pint of juice. Stand the bowl containing the gelatine in boiling water until melted, then add the fruit juice and one cupful of sugar, stirring until dissolved.

Remove and stand in crushed ice, stirring slowly until it begins to set. Then fold in one pint of whipped cream. Line a bomb mold with sponge cake or lady fingers, turn the mixture into it, and set on ice until stiff. Just before serving, dip the mould for an instant in warm water, invert on a cold dish and it will slip out in shape. Garnish with the fruit and serve with cream. Fruit syrups could be substituted wholly or in part for the juice of the fruit if need be. In this case less sugar will be required.

MILD WEATHER IN WEST

Seattle, Wash., March 25.—News of mild weather in Alaska, following an unusual winter, has caused a rush into the gold country before the spring weather destroys the trails. On the steamer Olympia which sailed for Valdez to-day steerage berths were occupied by mine owners and merchants, who were willing to suffer any inconvenience in order to be ahead of the thaw. For a period between the breakup of the Yukon River it will be difficult to reach Fairbanks and Nome. Conflicting reports of the value of the new Iditared gold fields continue to be received. A good year at Nome and an output of $15,000,000 is expected.

Berlin Not Ready.

Berlin, March 31.—City incorporation was defeated by a vote of 987 to 583 here yesterday, and it is unlikely this town will don city clothes until it reaches the 15,000 mark.

Bylaws to take $60,000 worth of preference stock in the People's Railway Co. scheme, which consists of radial branches to New Hamburg, Wellesley, New Dundee and Breslau, and to grant certain franchises over Berlin's streets, were carried by majorities of 465 and 471 respectively.

PROVOKING A CRISIS

British Premier Will Bring Along His Big Measures at Once In the Hope of Getting Things Settled—Both Veto and Budget Will Go Through, Declares Home Secretary Winston Churchill.

London, April 1.—The official opposition amendment to Premier Asquith's resolution on the veto power of the House of Lords was removed in the House of Commons yesterday by Sir Robert Bannatyn Finlay.

It declares in favor of a strong and efficient second chamber and expresses willingness to consider proposals for the reform of the Upper House, but it declines to proceed with the Government's proposals which destroy the usefulness of any second chamber.

Winston Churchill, the Home Secretary, declared that when the veto resolutions were disposed of, the Government would advance with the budget, regardless of the consequences. Unless the House of Commons carried the budget, it was idle, he said, to look to the King or to the country to carry the veto bill; but he predicted that at the proper time and under the proper circumstances they would succeed in carrying both the veto and the budget measures to the steps of the throne.

Mr. Churchill closed with a significant statement.

"The time for action," he said, "has arrived. Since the Lords have used their veto to affront the prerogative of the crown, and have invaded the rights of the Commons, it has become necessary that the crown and the Commons, acting together, should restore the balance of the constitution and restrict for ever the veto power of the House of Lords."

Premier Asquith's guillotining motion, which is published to-day, provides that the committee stage of all three veto resolutions shall be concluded on the night of April 14.

The notice of closure to the veto resolutions in committee is coupled with intimation that similar action will be taken subsequently in regard to the budget, and has created the general impression that the Government has decided to accelerate the crisis, and so, if a general election is necessitated, which is almost the universal view, the dissolution will be in May.

Conferences between the Cabinet and the Nationalists have occurred in the last few days, but up to the present seem to have failed. Redmond insists on retaining his hold, at least until the final stages of the budget, and until the Lords have dealt with the veto resolutions, despite the promises of a remission of the whisky tax in the 1910-11 budget. Of course, desperate as the situation to the Government appears, there is still time for an arrangement. Dillon had a long talk with Lloyd-George yesterday.

Meanwhile, corroborative evidence of a belief in an election in May is found in the active preparations of all parties, and it is noticed, too, both in the tone and temper of the Churchill speech last night. This appeared to bear testimony to the failure of the Government to bring the Nationalists into line. Perhaps, however, the Nationalists may be conciliated by the Home Secretary's hint that the Cabinet may ask the King to create enough peers to pass the veto resolutions.

Complain of $25 Restriction.

London, April 1.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—Surprise is being expressed in shipping circles that copies of the Canadian Government regulations in force March 15 were only received in London yesterday.

The silent application of the £5 rule for emigrants is the subject of complaint, and steamship companies have asked the Canadian Government to suspend it until all the emigrants booked have reached the Dominion.

B. C. Examination Changes.

Victoria, B.C., April 1.—An important change in the public school arrangements in British Columbia has just been made by the council of instruction (which is the Government) in the substitution of annual for semi-annual exams. for admission to the provincial high schools.

Coal Strike Is Now On 300,000 Miners Are Out

American Mine Workers Strike But Operators Say They Have a Reserve of Fuel Laid Away for the Winter and Can Stand a Long Siege—Only a Suspension, Say the Men.

St. Louis, Mo., April 1.—Three hundred thousand organized miners of the bituminous coal fields of Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana, Iowa, Missouri, Kansas, Oklahoma, Western Kentucky, and Arkansas quit work last night.

The miners, members of the United Mine Workers of America, declared the walk-out was not a strike, but merely a suspension of work pending an arrangement between themselves and the operators for a wage scale for another year, the old scale having expired with the month of March.

The men demand an increase of pay, in some instances of five cents a ton, and in other instances more, and certain changes in working conditions.

Confidence is expressed by the operators that there will be no general coal famine, large supplies of fuel having been secured in anticipation of the walk-out.

While the miners predicted the suspension would be cut short by a prompt signing of wage scales, some [illegible] operators maintained that the [illegible] might be kept closed for a [illegible]rth or sixty days, or even longer. The conditions in the various states [illegible]re as follows:

[illegible]llinois, 900 mines closed and 75,000 [illegible]ners quit; Indiana, 18,000 miners [illegible]t; Pennsylvania, approximately 40,-[illegible]0 men out; Iowa every mine in Iowa [illegible]osed pending settlement of the wage [illegible]le.

Missouri, Kansas, Oklahoma and [illegible]rkansas comprising the southwest-[illegible]rn interstate fields, 35,000 miners [illegible]t; Ohio, all miners quit; at Lo-[illegible]aine, Ohio, one steel plant shut down [illegible]d threw out 4,000 men, the managers [illegible]announcing a shortage of coal.

The first victory for the men came [illegible]n an announcement from Brazil, [illegible]nd., the centre of the Indiana block coal district, where it was announced the men's demand for a five-cent increase would be granted.

ARE TRYING TO EXPLAI[illegible]

Mr. Lennox Bitterly Denounces t[illegible] Investigation as a Damnable Farc[illegible] and Mr. Barker Says It Is a Whitewashing Affair — T. W. Crothers Reads a Letter—Whip Taylor's Birthday.

Ottawa, April 1.—Rosy-cheeked a[illegible]ples, the gift of Mr. George Taylo[illegible] the chief Conservative whip, [illegible] celebrated his 70th birthday, strewe[illegible] the desks in the House of Commo[illegible] yesterday, and provided members wi[illegible] a toothsome repast while Messrs. Lennox, Barker and Crothers labore[illegible] to justify the course they had take[illegible] in retiring from the Lumsden committee, to which they had been a[illegible]ppointed by Parliament. The explanations of the intractable trio were not illuminating. They added nothing to what had already been said, and were singularly unconvincing as an excuse for conduct that is without a parallel in Parliamentary practice. All the "striking" members had to say for themselves was that they considered they should have had the right to choose counsel to conduct the investigation, and that having been refused that right they were warranted in withdrawing.

The matter was introduced by Haughton Lennox, of South Simcoe. He quoted from sessional papers to show that thirteen contracts on the National Transcontinental Railway, at $37,169,101, had cost $60,79[illegible]962, and that the total cost of the road completed, for schedule items only, would be $124,123,041. Adding seven years interest, at 3 per cent., compounded, the total cost of the scheduled items would be $152,855,169. The Minister of Finance had stated in 1903, that the cost of the railway would be $51,-300,000. Already the cost was three times the total pledged expenditure, yet not three-quarters of the total work was included, and there remained the cost of the right of way, the rails, the fastenings, the terminals, the station houses, the turn-tables, the sidings, the telegraph system, the workshops, the elevators and the bridges, including the Quebec bridge, all counting for more than $50,000,-000.

He further observed that in thirteen contracts, which were to cost $40,239,-203, the rock alone in these contracts would cost $42,029,600, which showed that rock was growing where it had not existed before the contracts were let.

Mr. Lennox described the Lumsden investigation as "an absolute and damnable farce," which was why he and the two other Conservatives left the committee. The three counsel appointed by the Government were all Liberals. F. H. Chrysler, who was supposed to represent the people, was a "good honest man as lawyers go," who had done good service for the Government, and since 1897 the Government had paid him $28,917. Apart from that, he was known as a representative of corporations against the people. Altogether, however, this was the most ridiculous, nonsensical and dishonest enquiry ever held in Canada.

Mr. Clarke (North Essex), one of the Liberal members of the committee of enquiry, expressed amazement that one of the members of the committee should come to the House and endeavor to prejudge a matter on which a decision had not been reached. Both the committee and the House had previous to the action of the minority, negatived the proposal that the right to name counsel should rest with the minority, which had not even taken the trouble to suggest the name of any capable lawyer. Had they suggested the name of a proper counsel, the majority would doubtless have agreed to the appointment. He described the minority members as "quitters."

Sam Barker of Hamilton, a minority member, said he had withdrawn because he was convinced that it was to be a whitewashing affair. He believed that the subordinates who had declined to follow the instructions of the chief engineer had been advised in the course they had taken by those higher up than Mr. Lumsden.

Victor Geoffrion, the chairman, condemned the Conservative members for leaving the committee.

T. W. Crothers (West Elgin) read a letter which the commissioners had written to Mr. Lumsden, in which they protested against the proceedings of the arbitrators, declaring that the examination of the work of the engineers was hasty, insufficient and superficial, that the engineers were not afforded a sufficient hearing, and that the contractors were not afforded an opportunity of showing cause.

Mr. Crothers said in the light of experience, he had refused to allow himself to be humbugged or to be a party to any such farcial proceedings.

E. M. Macdonald (Pictou) in dealing with a statement made by Mr. Barker to the effect that Mr. Tarte had been allowed counsel at the time of the McGreevy enquiry in 1891, said that Mr. Tarte had made the charges on that occasion himself, and had brought his counsel to the committee. He was subsequently paid by the Government.

Arthur Meighen (Portage La Prairie) and E. A. Lancaster (Lincoln) concluded the debate.

Geologists Say It's Lignite.

Ottawa, April 1.—Local geologists somewhat discount the reported coal discovery in Northern Ontario. They say it is lignite, having about 88 per cent. of the heating quality of coal, and that the bed has been known to the geological survey here since 1875. Its commercial export value is doubtful.

Two Elevator Fires.

Winnipeg, April 1.—Reports have been received of the burning of the Dominion Co.'s elevator at Rosthern, Sask., with 5,000 bushels of wheat, and the same company's elevator at Moosimin, Sask., with 12,000 bushels.

Insulted Chinese Official.

Ottawa, April 1.—Wednesday evening Dr. Siao, the secretary of the Chinese consulate, was held up near the postoffice by a well-dressed man, who spat in his face and used insulting and obscene language reflecting upon the Chinese. Siao endeavored to seize his assailant and Detective Jolliette rushed to the scene. The man, however, made good his escape. He is thought to be a doctor in the city and will be prosecuted.

Washington, April 1.—The Scott bill, prohibiting dealings in futures in the grain marts of the United States with amendments so as to apply specifically to the Cotton Exchanges only, is the indicated outcome of the deliberations of the sub-committee of the House committee on agriculture to which the anti-option proposed legislation was referred.

Marshville, April 1.—Jesse Adams, the young man who took poison after being arrested on a charge of theft, got out of the house of C. A. Cook, where he was under treatment, Wednesday night between 8.30 and 10 o'clock, and escaped. His present whereabouts are unknown.

Mitchell In Philadelphia.

Philadelphia, April 1.—Following the arrival yesterday of John Mitchell, the well-known labor leader, several conferences were held with a view of securing an adjustment of the strike against the Philadelphia Rapid Transit Co.

THE PORT OF MISSNG MEN

By MEREITH NICHOLSON,
Author of "Thmes of a Thousand Candles"

COPYRIGHT, 1907, BY THE BOBBS-MERRILL COMPANY

"This is yours. The baggage that came by express is there. A man goes with the place, and I brought things up yesterday. There is a shower bath beyond the rear verandah—the mountain water is off the ice, but you will require hot water for shaving—is it not so?"

"You oppress me with luxuries, dear. Wind up the clock, and none will be wasting."

Oscar unstraped the trunks and then stood at attention in the door. He had expected Armitage to condemn the place in bitter language, but the proprietor of the abandoned hunting preserve was in excellent spirits and whistled blithely as he drew out his keys.

"The place was built by fools," declared Oscar gloomily.

"Undoubtedly! There is a saying that fools build houses and wise men live in them. You see where that leaves us, Oscar. Let us be cheerful."

He tried the shower and changed his raiment, while Oscar prepared coffee and laid a cloth on the long table before the fire. When Armitage appeared coffee steamed in the tin pot in which it had been made. Bacon, eggs and toast were further offered.

"You have done excellently well, Oscar. Go get your own breakfast." Armitage dropped a lump of sugar into his coffee cup and surveyed the room.

A large map of Virginia and a series of hunting prints hung on the untinted walls, and there were racks for guns, and a work bench at one end of the room where guns might be taken apart and cleaned. A few novels, several three-year-old magazines and a variety of pipes remained on the shelf above the fireplace. The house offered possibilities of meager comfort, and that was about all. Armitage remembered what the agent through whom he had made the purchase had said—that the place had proved too isolated for even a hunting preserve and that its only value was in the timber. He was satisfied with his bargain and would not set up a lumber mill yet awhile. He lighted a cigar and settled himself in an easy chair before the fire, glad of the luxury of peace and quiet after his circuitous journey and the tumult of doubt and question that had shaken him.

He slit the wrapper of the Washington newspaper that Oscar had brought from the mountain postoffice and scanned the headlines. He read with care a dispatch from London that purported to reflect the sentiment of the continental capitals toward Charles Louis, the new emperor-king of Austria-Hungary, and the paper dropped upon his knees, and he stared into the fire. Then he picked up a paper of earlier date and read all the foreign dispatches and the news of Washington. He was about to toss the paper aside when his eyes fell upon a boldly headlined article that came his heart to throb fiercely. It recited the sudden reappearance of the fraudulent Baron von Kissel in Washington and described in detail the baron's escapades at Bar Harbor and his later career in California and elsewhere. Then followed a story, veiled in careful phrases, but based, so the article recited, upon information furnished by a gentleman of extensive acquaintance on both sides of the Atlantic, that Baron von Kissel, under a new pseudonym and with even more daring effrontery, had within a fortnight sought to intrench himself in the most exclusive circles of Washington.

Armitage's cigar slipped from his fingers and fell upon the brick hearth as he read:

"The boldness of this clever adventurer is said to have reached a climax in this city within a few days. He had, under the name of Armitage, palmed himself off upon members of one of the most distinguished families of the capital, whom he had met abroad during the winter. A young gentleman of this family, who, it will suffice to say, bears a commission and title from the American government, entertained a small company of friends at a Washington club only a few nights ago, and this plausible adventurer was among the guests. He was recognized at once by one of the foreigners present, who, out of consideration for the host and fellow guests, held his tongue, but it is understood that this gentleman sought Armitage privately and warned him to leave Washington, which accounts for the fact that the sumptuous apartments at the New American in which Mr. John Armitage, alias Baron von Kissel, had established himself were vacated immediately. None of those present at the supper will talk of the matter, but it has been the subject of lively gossip for several days, and the German embassy is said to have laid before the Washington police all the information in its archives relating to the American adventures of this impudent scoundrel."

Armitage rose, dropped the paper into the fire, and, with his elbow resting on the mantel shelf, watched it burn. He laughed suddenly and faced about, his back to the flames. Oscar stood at attention in the middle of the room.

Armitage dropped the paper into the fire.

"Shall we unpack—yes?"

"It is a capital idea," said John Armitage.

"I was striker for my captain also, who had fourteen pairs of boots and a bad disposition—and his uniforms—yes? He was very pretty to look at on a horse."

"The ideal is high, Oscar, but I shall do my best. Cut one first, please."

The contents of the two trunks were disposed of deftly by Oscar as Armitage directed. One of the bedrooms was utilized as a closet, and garments for every imaginable occasion were brought forth. There were stout English tweeds for the heaviest weather, two dress suits and Norfolk jackets in corduroy. The owner's taste ran to grays and browns, it seemed, and he whimsically ordered his raiment grouped by colors as he lounged about with a pipe in his mouth.

"You may hang those scarfs on the thing provided by my predecessor, Sergeant. They will help our color scheme. That pale blue doesn't blend well in our rainbow—put it in your pocket and wear it, with my compliments; and those tan shoes are not bad for the Virginia mud. Drop them here. Those gray campaign hats are comfortable. Give the oldest to me. And here is a riding cloak I had forgotten I ever owned. I gave gold for it to a Madrid tailor. The mountain nights are cool, and the thing may serve me well. Oscar, how far is it down to Storm Springs?"

"A forced march, and you are there in an hour and a half, sir."

Chapter XIII

THE LADY OF THE PERGOLA.

A FEW photographs of foreign scenes tacked on the walls; a Roman blanket hung as a tapestry over the mantel; a portfolio and traveler's writing materials distributed about a table produced for the purpose, and additions to the meager bookshelf—a line of Baedekers, a pocket atlas, a comprehensive American railway guide, several volumes of German and French poetry—and the place was not so bad. Armitage slept for an hour after a simple luncheon had been prepared by Oscar, studied his letters and cablegrams—made, in fact, some notes in regard to them and wrote replies. Then at 4 o'clock he told Oscar to saddle the horses.

"It is spring, and in April a man's blood will not be quiet. We shall go forth and taste the air."

He had studied the map of Lamar county with care and led the way out of his own preserve by the road over which the had entered in the morning. Oscar and his horses were a credit to the training of the American army and would have passed inspection anywhere. Armitage watched his adjutant with approval. The man served without question, and, quicker of wit than of speech, his buff gauntleted hand went to his hat brim whenever Armitage addressed him.

They sought again the spot whence Armitage had first looked down upon Storm valley, and he opened his pocket map, the better to clarify his ideas of the region.

"We shall go down into the valley, Oscar," he said, and thereafter it was he that led.

They struck presently into an old road that had been an early highway across the mountains. Above and below the forest hung gloomily, and passing clouds darkened the slopes and occasionally spilled rain. Armitage drew on his slicker, and Oscar enveloped himself in a slicker as they rode through a sharp shower. At a lower level they came into fair weather again and, crossing a bridge, rode down into Storm valley. The road at once bore marks of care, and they passed a number of traps that spoke unmistakably of cities and riders whose mounts knew well the bridle paths of Central park. The hotel loomed massively before them and beyond were handsome estates and ambitious mansions scattered through the valley and on the lower slopes.

"You will stay here until I come back. And remember that we don't know any one, and at our time of life, Oscar, one should be wary of making new acquaintances."

He tossed his cloak over the saddle and walked toward the inn. The size of the place and the great number of people going and coming surprised him, but in the numbers he saw his own security, and he walked boldly up the steps of the main hotel entrance. He stepped into the long corridor of the inn, where many people lounged about, and heard with keen satisfaction and relief the click of a telegraph instrument that seemed at once to bring him into contact with the remote world. He filed his telegrams and walked the length of the broad hall, his riding crop under his arm. The gay banter and laughter of a group of young men and women just returned from a drive gave him a touch of heartache, for there was a girl somewhere in the valley whom he had followed across the sea, and these people were of her own world—they undoubtedly knew her; very likely she came often to this huge caravansary and mingled with them.

At the entrance he passed Baron von Marbof, the Austrian ambassador, who, by reason of the death of his royal chief, had taken a cottage at the Springs to emphasize his abstention from the life of the capital. The ambassador lifted his eyes and bowed to Armitage, as he bowed to a great many young men whose names he never remembered; but, oddly enough, the baron paused, stared after Armitage for a moment, then shook his head and walked on with knit brows.

He walked toward the private houses that lay scattered over the valley and along the gradual slope of the hills as though carelessly flung from a dice box. Many of the places were handsome estates, with imposing houses set amid beautiful gardens. Half a mile from the hotel he stopped a passing negro to ask who owned a large house that stood well back from the road. The man answered. He seemed anxious to impart further information, and Armitage availed himself of the opportunity.

"How near is Judge Claiborne's place?" he asked.

The man pointed. It was the next house on the righthand side, and Armitage smiled to himself and strolled on.

He looked down in a moment upon a pretty estate, distinguished by no formal garden, but with the broad acres of a practical farm stretching far out into the valley. The lawn terraces were green, broken only by plots of spring flowers. The walks were walled in box and privet. The house, of the pillared colonial type, crowned a series of terraces. A long pergola, with pillars topped by wide urns, curved gradually through the garden toward the mansion. Armitage followed a side road along the box partition wall and contemplated the inner landscape. The sharp snap of a gardener's shears far up the slope was the only sound that reached him. It was a charming place, and he pictured to a temptation to explore it. He dropped over the wall and strolled away through the garden, the smell of warm earth, moist from the day's light showers, and the faint odor of green things growing, sweet in his nostrils. He walked to the far end of the grounds, sat down on a wooden bench and gave himself up to reverie. He had denounced as an impostor. He was on Claiborne soil, and the situation required thought.

It was while he thus pondered his affairs that Shirley, walking on the soft lawn from a neighboring estate, came suddenly upon him.

Her head went up with surprise and—he was sure—with disdain. She stopped abruptly as he jumped to his feet.

"I am caught—in flagrante delicto! I can only plead guilty and sue for mercy."

"They said—they said you had gone to Mexico?" said Shirley confusingly.

"Plague take the newspapers! How dare they so misrepresent me!" he laughed.

"Yes; I read those newspaper articles with a good deal of interest. And my brother"—

"Yes; your brother—he is the best fellow in the world!"

She mused, but a smile of reminiscent mirth now played over her face and lighted her eyes.

"Those are generous words for Mr. Armitage. My brother warned me against you in quite unequivocal language. He told me about your—your—"

WELCOME WORDS TO WOMEN

Women who suffer with disorders peculiar to their sex should write to Dr. Pierce and receive free the advice of a physician of over 40 years' experience—a skilled and successful specialist in the diseases of women. Every letter of this sort has the most careful consideration and is regarded as sacredly confidential. Many sensitively modest women write fully to Dr. Pierce what they would shrink from telling to their local physician. The local physician is pretty sure to say that he cannot do anything without "an examination." Dr. Pierce holds that these distasteful examinations are generally needless, and that no woman, except in rare cases, should submit to them.

Dr. Pierce's treatment will cure you right in the privacy of your own home. His "Favorite Prescription" has cured hundreds of thousands, some of them the worst of cases.

It is the only medicine of its kind that is the product of a regularly graduated physician. The only one good enough that its makers dare to print its every ingredient on its outside wrapper. There's no secrecy. It will bear examination. No alcohol and no habit-forming drugs are found in it. Some unscrupulous medicine dealers may offer you a substitute. Don't take it. Don't trifle with your health. Write to World's Dispensary Medical Association, Dr. R. V. Pierce, President, Buffalo, N. Y.,—take the advice received and be well.

Constipation.

No one need expect to be healthy if the bowels are allowed to become clogged up. A free motion of the bowels daily should be the rule with everyone who aspires to perfect health.

Costiveness or constipation clogs the bowels, chokes up the natural outlet of impure matter, and retains in the system the poisonous effete waste products of nature, causing bad blood, dyspepsia, headache, biliousness, foul humors, pimples, boils, blotches, piles, etc. Burdock Blood Bitters has built up an unrivalled reputation as a cure for constipation and all the diseases which arise from it.

Constipation Cured.

Mr. Burns Woodcock, Nashwaak Bridge, N.S., writes: "For over two years my wife was troubled with constipation. She tried several physicians, but could get no relief, but after taking three bottles of Burdock Blood Bitters she was completely cured and is to-day in good health. My wife and I cannot speak too highly of Burdock Blood Bitters."

ALWAYS AILING

How many women there are to whom these words apply exactly! They are not quite "sick in bed", but they almost wish, as they struggle through each day, that they were. Frequent headaches, loss of energy, loss of appetite, depression and attacks of biliousness and indigestion make life a dragging misery.

In nearly every case the cause of it all is chronic constipation, that trouble so often made light of, but which brings about so much suffering. As a result of it the whole system is filled with impurities and almost everything, including the special functions of womanhood, goes wrong.

Hundreds of thousands of women have had reason to thank Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills for relief from all this chain of miseries, and for restoration to health and happiness. For over fifty years, and in every part of the world, these Pills have been tested and proved a great female medicine.

Being purely vegetable, they are not harsh like salts and so many other purgatives, nor do they weaken, sicken or gripe.

Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills are a perfect blood purifier, and a sure cure for biliousness, indigestion, headache, sallow complexion, liver and kidney troubles, piles, pimples, boils and other ailments that arise from the sluggish action of bowels, liver or kidneys. By purifying the blood and invigorating every organ in the whole body they relieve and cure female ailments and restore normal, healthy conditions.

Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills are, in truth, a blessing to women, as Mrs. Harrison, of Richmond, Va., found. She writes:

"About six weeks ago I first used Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills, and I must state that I found them a most superior medicine. My complaint was peculiar to women—languor, debility, and bilious attacks, which combined to make my days thoroughly wretched. Indeed, there were spells when I used to wonder in the morning how I could manage to get through my household duties, and was forced to struggle through the day when I should have been in bed. Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills have made me vigorous and well. I noticed the change from the very first dose."

A number from town attended the funeral of the late Rev. J. A. G. Stirling, which took place on Wednesday afternoon. The citizens were greatly grieved on Monday when the news of the death of this honourable gentleman was received. During his stay in Havelock as pastor of the Presbyterian church he won the love and esteem of the whole community. He was always greatly devoted to God's work and only two weeks ago he preached at the Sunday services both morning and evening, although so weak that he had to be assisted to the church on each occasion. He was bright and cheerful through all his sufferings and his one desire was that he might die, as did his father, doing God's work.

He leaves to mourn his loss one sister only, who resides in the west, to whom the heartfelt sympathy of the Havelock citizens is extended in this, her time of sorrow for a dear, kind and loving brother.

Mr. Jas. E. Fowler was in Peterborough Monday on business.

Mr. Browning was in Peterborough on Tuesday.

The junior branch of the Women's Auxiliary held their annual meeting in the basement of the church on Saturday last at 2.30 in the afternoon. The president, Mrs. Thos. Cummings, fifteen members, six of the Ladies' Auxiliary and Rev. Mr. Holdsworth, were present, which made this the most largely attended meeting for many years past.

Secretary—Miss Bertha Bryans.

Treasurer—Miss Madge Curtis.

After other business matters were talked over, the meeting was closed with a hymn, followed by prayer, after which the meeting adjourned.

The vestry meeting of St. John's church will be held on Easter Monday night, at 8 o'clock.

Mrs. Jas. Watson, Mrs. Alex. Anderson, Mrs. Jas. Kitchen, and Mrs. Harry Morrison were among those from Havelock who attended the funeral of the late Rev. J. A. G. Stirling at Peterborough on Wednesday.

Only one service will be held in the Presbyterian church on Sunday, that one in the morning, and will take the form of a burial service in honour of their late beloved pastor, Rev. Mr. Stirling.

Great services in connection with the Methodist church will be conducted here on Sunday next, under the management of the McCombe Bros., the Irish evangelists. The opera house has been secured for that day, where the men of Havelock are to be addressed, the church being reserved for ladies only, who will be addressed by two able lady speakers. The topic of these addresses are as yet not known, but the people are instructed to be present and hear what is to be said, and they will never regret it.

Stomach Troubles

OFTEN COME FROM WEAK, EXHAUSTED NERVES — GREAT RESULTS FROM USING.

DR. CHASE'S NERVE FOOD

When the nerves become exhausted the first sign of trouble often comes from the stomach. The nerves which control the flow of digestive fluids fail and the result is loss of appetite, indigestion, nervous headache and sleeplessness.

Opiates and narcotics cannot possibly do more than afford temporary relief, and aids to digestion are merely make-shifts. To get well you must get the nervous system back into condition by such treatment as Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Food. Here is a letter which illustrates the point.

Mr. John McLean, 316 Hunter St., W., Hamilton, states: "My trouble was principally with my stomach. As a result of weak nerves my appetite was poor and I had severe attacks of indigestion. I found that Dr. Chase's Nerve Food relieved me and since using it regularly for some time my digestion is excellent, my appetite is good, my nerves strong and vigorous and I feel an altogether different person. I feel very grateful for the benefit I have derived from this medicine."

If you are in earnest about a cure why not make it thorough by using Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Food regularly and persistently until the whole nervous system is restored and you can know again the joys of living."

LITTLE DIGESTERS

positively CURE Indigestion. Stomach Troubles and distress of all sorts disappear like magic. Depression and brain fag, lassitude and that tired feeling all come from the stomach. LITTLE DIGESTERS make every day your good day. Read what others say:

EVERY MEAL BROUGHT AGONY

But Since Taking "Little Digesters" He Can Eat Heartily

From Osgoode Station, Ont., comes a story of five years of suffering from Indigestion and Dyspepsia—five years of doctoring in vain—then "Little Digesters" and a complete cure. Mr. R. H. Ralph tells the story—his own story—thus:

"I have been a sufferer from Indigestion and Stomach Trouble for five years. I had treatment from several doctors. I did not find a cure until I began using "Little Digesters."

"I can hardly describe how much I suffered at times. Every meal brought with it more or less agony and I seemed to have a complete distaste for food. I had almost begun to think my case incurable when I came across an advertisement in the papers about "Little Digesters." I decided to give them a trial. I am very thankful that I did so for I had not been taking them long when I found them helping me. I can now eat heartily and no longer feel pain and discomfort after eating."

"I Was in Bad Shape"

But Little Digesters "Have Done Wonders for Me"

Here is an experience with the first part of which you may be all too familiar. Mr. Josh Smith, of North Seneca, Ont., writes about "Little Digesters."

"Having been troubled with Indigestion for a number of years, I have tried nearly all kinds of pills and tablets for Indigestion only to be disappointed.

"Seeing your tablets advertised I thought I would give them a trial, and must say I am glad I did. Before taking them I was in bad shape. Bad taste in my mouth mornings and so dizzy that I hardly knew how I would put in the day. Everything I would eat would seem to sour and ferment, but after taking "Digesters" I can say they have done wonders for me."

If you know what the first part of this story means why not learn the relief and delight which comes from the use of "Little Digesters?"

HE FEARED TO EAT

Till "Little Digesters" Cured His Indigestion

Like many another sufferer from Indigestion, Mr. E. Thomas found forward to mealtime with dread instead of pleasure. Writing from his home, 141 Yorkville Ave., Toronto, on June 1st, 1909, he says:

"For two years I was troubled with Indigestion and obtained no relief from anything I took, including several prescriptions from prominent physicians. Every meal was followed with acute pain and I feared to eat, consequently I began to run down for lack of nourishment.

"'Little Digesters' were recommended to me by a friend who had tried them with remarkable results. They relieved me completely curing me. It is three months since I took any and have not suffered a pain no matter how heartily I eat. I would certainly recommend them to anyone suffering with Indigestion."

Toronto, Nov. 12, 1909.

THE COLEMAN MEDICINE CO.

Gentlemen,—

Having suffered for three years with Indigestion, nothing did relieve me, having seen your advertisements in the paper for "Little Digesters" took three, was entirely cured. I am convinced that anyone suffering with Indigestion will not fail to try "Little Digesters."

ARTHUR PAYN, Junior.

"Find Them Marvellous"

Here is a short but very convincing letter which we received recently:

THE COLEMAN MEDICINE Co.,

I have been using "Little Digesters" for some time. I like them and find them marvellous. I recommend them sincerely.

MRS. CHAS. BROOKS.

Low, Wright Co.

Here is another letter, dated Nov. 9th, 1909, almost as brief and to the point:

COLEMAN MEDICINE Co.,

Would say the box of "Little Digesters" has done me a lot of good. I think they are right for any Stomach Trouble.

ANTHONY FISHER.

Trout Creek P. O., Perry Sd. Dist., Ont.

Send Me Another Box of "Little Digesters"

That's what Mr. E. S. Glasco, of Toronto, wrote us last May, after he had tried and proved "Little Digesters" for Indigestion. He said:

"I wish you would send me another box of your "Little Digesters." All the members of my family have been using them and have obtained the most satisfactory results.

"I congratulate you on your success in putting up a tablet for the cure of Indigestion. I suffered for years and tried everything that was recommended to me. Nothing gave me relief until I was persuaded to try "Little Digesters." Now I never suffer from Indigestion. I enjoy my meals and am not afraid to eat, because I know a "Little Digester" after each meal will digest my food.

"I recommend them to all my friends who suffer from Indigestion and would further say that you may publish the above if you wish. I know there are thousands of people suffering from Indigestion who will be glad to know there is a safe and sure cure for them."

Cured at Seventy-four

Little Digesters are a Great Help to Mr. John F. Becker

The weight of years very often brings with it a still heavier burden, that of Indigestion or some form of Stomach Trouble.

Then "Little Digesters" come to the rescue—if you give them a chance, as did Mr. Becker. Here is his letter telling what they did for him:

New Dundee, Nov. 10, 1909.

Dear Sirs,—

I was for a long time troubled with bloating after meals, and my tongue was always coated. Seeing the "Little Digesters" advertised I bought a box, and they took all that trouble away, but I thought one box would not be enough, so I sent to you for more. They are a great help to my body. Yours truly,

JOHN F. BECKER.

ANALYSIS OF

St. Lawrence Sugar

THE STANDARD OF PURITY

Laboratory of Provincial Government Analyst.

Montreal, 22nd February, 1909.

I HEREBY CERTIFY that I have drawn by my own hand ten samples of the St. Lawrence Sugar Refining Co's EXTRA STANDARD GRANULATED SUGAR, indiscriminately taken from four lots of about 2,000 barrels each and six lots of about 350 bags each. I have analyzed same and find them uniformly to contain 99.95 to 100 per cent of pure cane sugar, with no impurities worth.

"BILL" PICKETT
Oklahoma Half-Breed Cowboy

HAND to HORN BATTLE with an ENRAGED BULL

HERE Is Told in Full, for the First Time, the Story of "Bill" Pickett's Life and Death Struggle in a Mexican Arena, Bombarded the While with Missiles Thrown by Hostile Spectators

The Bull Hesitated for One Providential Moment . . . It Saved Both Men

BY W. C. THOMPSON.

IT will come as a surprise to the people of this country to learn that an American is the only man in the history of bull fighting who ever battled, bare handed and unaided, with a Spanish bull; that the encounter took place before twenty-five thousand persons in the Mexico City arena; that all the southern republics are still angrily discussing the unprecedented event, and that the native newspapers published pages in text and pictures.

No sooner had Bill Pickett, an Oklahoma halfbreed cowboy, performed the feat and been dragged to safety from a fusillade of missiles hurled by the enraged Mexican onlookers than every outlet of news was closed. Neither by word of mouth, by telegraph nor by mail was news permitted to be carried outside of Mexico that an American had given a demonstration of nerve, courage, strength and daring that had belittled the boasted prowess of every professional toreador and that his achievement had nearly cost him his life at the hands of the mob.

But in spite of all the precautions, bit by bit the story has sifted into America. Here and there a picture or a hint of the amazing combat has appeared, but the full tale in all its splendid horror never before has been told exactly as it occurred.

The narrative is true in all its details. If you seek corroboration I commend the pages of El Imparcial, El Diario, El Tiempo, El Heraldo or any and all Mexican newspapers up to and including December 24, 1909. After that date they give no inkling of the event that for days had been their conspicuous sensation. Or interrogate the bull fight devotees even as far north as the Juarez or Laredo arenas. They'll shake their fists and hiss their abomination of the name of Pickett and all the national shame it recalls. Question one of the forty thousand American residents of the City of Mexico and the glorious memory of it will momentarily submerge even the omnipresent, all pervading dread of a revolution and its possible consequences to the colony. And that's some emotion, for I don't believe there's one of them who has neglected secret arrangements for sale and hurried flight if the dreaded clash of arms is heard.

Pickett is a strapping cowboy, whose mother was a full blood Choctaw Indian and father a mixture of the white, Indian and African races. He's commonly known in the Southwest as "the dusky demon." On the New Mexico, Texas and Oklahoma ranches they never tire of the stories of his reckless daring with wild horses and cattle. Never has he failed to respond with grinning alacrity to the challenge of the rough and ready Westerner who vowed he could never subdue this man killing horse or wrestle and throw that murderous steer. Once they pitted him at the El Paso fair against a furious elk, with a tremendous sweep of snaggy, bladed horns and strong enough in its forefeet to have killed him with a single stroke. Pickett threw the creature on its back in less than ten minutes and emerged from the combat unscathed. Then the Southwest decided that the four footed herbivorous beast who could beat the man in a stand up fight didn't exist, and it was with this conviction that we penetrated Mexico.

Pickett's exhibition of daredevilry with the tent show that had invaded Mexico consisted of a mad scamper, a-horse, in chase of a Texas steer, a midair leap from the saddle of the galloping horse to the horns of the still fleeing quarry and a struggle for supremacy which inevitably ended in the overturning of the steer. The feat is not an uncommon one at prairie gatherings, but it was new to the Mexicans. It was the only American achievement they had ever seen that had anything at all in common, even vaguely, with their own beloved bull fighting. One afternoon the bull fighters came in a body to watch. They laughed contemptuously.

Joe Miller, one of three brothers who own the big 101 Ranch of Oklahoma, happened to also own half of the show. That night he was at the Café Colon, the rendezvous of the bull fighters, announcing his belief that for fun or money none of the fraternity would dare perform the trick. Bienvenida, famous for his eye and stroke, as cunningly dexterous and deadly a matador as Spain or Mexico ever produced, accepted the challenge. He would be at the scene at ten o'clock the following morning and give the boasting Americans a lesson in grace, courage and skill as applied to the subjugation of the bovine species. Señor Louis F. Correa, of the Mexican Herald, was the interpreter at the interview, and the details were duly chronicled the next morning in that publication and in the native contemporaries.

Well, Bienvenida didn't show up. No word of explanation or apology came from him. Two score guests waited and wondered. We despatched a messenger to his hotel. There lolled Bienvenida, rather shame faced and languidly regretful that he had been forbidden by the bull ring authorities under their contract with him from risking his valuable bones and body outside the national arena!

It was only been content with this moral triumph—for were convinced that Bienvenida had deliberately shun the coward's white feather and so publicly express our exultation—the most exciting chapter in the history of the Mexican bull ring would never have been written. But Joe Miller's glee knew no bounds and his mericanism was running rampant. To the Café Colon he and Señor Correa hurried again, and the dumfounded bull fighters and their assembled worshippers heard him propose to match Pickett, barehanded and unaided, against the most blood hungry, man baiting, fighting bull the republic could provide. Incidentally, I may mention that he hadn't ever consulted Pickett in the matter!

The apparent superlative folly of the proposition and why to the Mexican mind its execution meant the sure, speedy and sickening death of the luckless man may not be obvious to the American unfamiliar with the bull ring and its practices. I'll explain.

You see in the combats as professionally provided for the entertainment of the public the bull fighter relies upon his quickness of eye and foot. He evades the mad rushes of his antagonist, never grapples. The fight has been described as a tragedy in three acts. The picadores, mounted on worthless, blindfolded bosses, first receive the charges of the bull with lances. Whenever a horse is wounded the rider betakes himself to flight, and when either this happens or a picador is thrown the chulos rush in and attract the animal from his prey by their red cloaks, saving themselves if need be, by leaping over the palisade which encloses the arena.

When the bull has been roused to frenzied fury by the proddings the picadores are replaced by the chulos, who bring with them the banderillas, barbed darts which they drive into the beast's shoulder. Then the matador enters to complete the tragic business. The bull is weak from loss of blood and bewildered, but still fierce and active. In his right hand this chief combatant holds a naked sword; in his left the muleta, a stick with a piece of scarlet silk attached. As soon as the bull's eyes catch the muleta he rushes blindly at it, the matador dodges nimbly, dexterously plunges the sword into the spine and the animal drops dead at his feet.

The bull fighters thus, you will understand, perform their deadly work at a distance from the four footed foe. Never would one of them dare to even lay hands on a bull. They save their precious lives by their remarkable agility in evading the animal's furious assaults. Moreover, the brandished cloth, the color of which the bull has been taught from infancy to detest, is the target of attack, not the man who flourishes it and springs aside. A bull, too, closes his eyes when he charges. A steer doesn't. Few not intimately familiar with bovine habits know this.

To return to Joe Miller and his cowboy. Pickett, the gay Mexican capital was immediately agog with the story of the audacious challenge. The bull fighters laughed uproariously. The Mexican newspapers and the Mexican public demanded that the Americans make good. If Pickett wanted to sacrifice himself upon the altar of American egotism let him do it. They would turn out in force to witness the "fun," they promised, for human death in the bull ring affords only hereditary amusement to the patrons of the "sport."

Señor Rivero, impresario of El Toreo, the big new steel and concrete bull ring, promptly gave permission to hold the encounter there, and Mr. Miller delegated him to select the animal against which the cowboy should be pitted. He named Bonito, a great, fierce, coal black bull, who had once been loosed in the arena, who had killed two men and half a dozen horses, and who had been spared the death thrust upon the entreaties of the spectators. So fierce and strong a bull, they cried, should not suffer an ingloious death. This tribute was one paid not more than once or twice before or since in the history of Mexican bull fighting. Bonito was returned to the corrals, and there he remains to this day, pawing the ground ceaselessly and bellowing his unabated longing to fight and kill.

This, then, was the lambike creature selected to gore the American to death and fling the lifeless body triumphantly in the air. A rare afternoon's entertainment, Mexico City agreed. Bienvenida accelerated public anticipation by publishing over his signature in the newspapers "El matterro de esta Pickett cera el segundo acto de esa drama," whose free translation is, "Pickett's funeral will follow his foolhardiness."

How much effect the dire prediction had upon the "dusky demon" may be gained from the fact that we persuaded him with difficulty from attending a dance the night before the battle which would have kept him awake until daybreak. Instead, we escorted his reluctant steps to the Hotel St. Francis and saw to it that he was securely locked in a room for the night.

The largest crowd ever assembled in El Toreo was there to view the spectacle. Figures showed an attendance of more than twenty-five thousand persons, and probably not one hoped or expected that Pickett would leave the arena alive. Every visitor to Mexico knows that the native has no love for Americans. Added to this pervading general hostility was the knowledge that Pickett's successful accomplishment of his hand to horn combat would shame the efforts of every toreador. We American circus people, several hundred strong, escorted Pickett to the bull ring. Señor Rivero, impresario, and Señor Bravo, presidente, received us. Both were obviously apprehensive. They told us afterward that they had felt certain that Pickett would lose courage at the last moment and refuse to chance his life. But the cowboy was coolly confident and eager for the fray. Never did man so impress me with the virtue of physical courage and a contempt of death.

Then, while the crowd was pouring into the enclosure, came the staggering news that the Governor of the federal district had forbidden the battle. A delegation of American women, residents of the city, had waited upon him at noon and protested in the name of humanity, arguing that the outcome of the affair would inevitably be the death of the brave but rash Oklahoman. They had earlier enlisted the influence and assistance of powerful American officials and business men, which the Governor could not resist, and he had grudgingly revoked the permission given with alacrity several days before.

The bull ring managers, much relieved at the escape from the awkward position in which they found themselves, attempted to promptly announce the cancellation and dismiss the spectators, but Mr. Miller, schooled and ready witted in dire exigencies, would not agree.

"The Governor has forbidden Pickett to fight him," he affirmed quickly, "but you have other bulls as savage. Pickett will meet any one of them. Pick."

A new license was in our hands before the impressed impresario and presidente could frame other excuses, and while the well meaning American was complacently congratulated themselves in their times preparations for the cruel struggle were made.

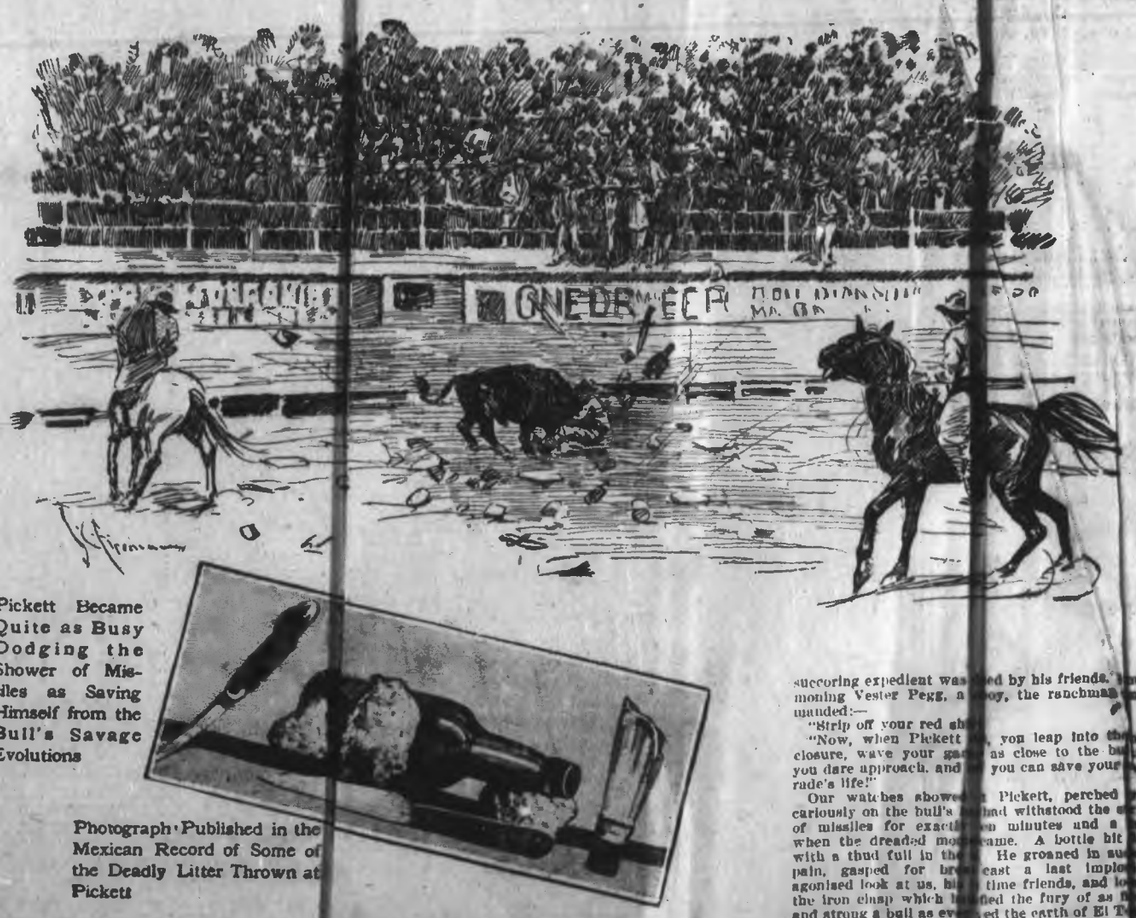
As a substitute bull M. Rivero stipulated Frijoli Chiquita (Little Beans), fully as wild, wary and wicked a creature as Bonito, and awaiting his encounter in El Toreo stalls. The bull was brought the famous Tepeyahualco granaderia. His short, thick, powerful neck commended him to the experienced impresario even more forcibly than Bonito. It would be upon the neck and horns that Pickett could exert his strength to throw the beast if ever he succeeded in getting a hold.

Meanwhile an unfair advantage of us was being taken in the arena. A twenty foot board was displayed before the gaze of the partisan spectators, bearing in Spanish this announcement:—"By request Bonito has been withdrawn and another bull substituted." The implication, of course, was that we had made the request in fear of Bonito's prowess. The crowd howled its rage and derision, which was little assuaged when we discovered the imposition and posted a second bulletin with the emphatic declaration that by order of the authorities Bonito would not appear, and that the bull ring impresario had selected Frijoli Chiquita as quite as worthy a combatant.

We had planned to present our regular circus tournament as a preliminary to the fight between man and bull, but the tremendous audience would not have it so. They demanded "El feroz fenomeno negro de Oklahoma!" The mad lust for bull ring blood and battle, come to them through generations, was upon them. Soon their attitude became menacing and we desisted.

A mob of twenty-five thousand frenzied, hostile Mexicans, many of them irresponsible peons, is not a force to wittingly antagonize. We retired behind the barriers and the "Gran Lucha Taurina-Humana" was announced.

There is no doubt that Pickett had underestimated the awful danger of his undertaking. His victories in the American Southwest had made him overconfident of his prowess. He had never even seen a Spanish fighting bull, I am told, and in his mind had likened the big bellowing monsters, quivering with life and strength and rage, unto the vicious Texas steers which he had so often conquered. Frijoli Chiquita's size and proclivities were as much like his bovine American brothers' as a wildcat is like a chipmunk. And while the cowboy was saddling his horse and receiving from us worthless suggestions as to the tactics to employ half a dozen El Toreo vaqueros were tormenting and torturing the bull in the effort to arouse him to the extreme pitch of man hating fury.



Pickett Became Quite as Busy Dodging the Shower of Missiles as Saving Himself from the Bull's Savage Evolutions

Photograph Published in the Mexican Record of Some of the Deadly Litter Thrown at Pickett

Pickett's entrance into the enclosure received mingled hisses and cheers; then a wild tumult of acclaim as a gate was thrown open and Frijoli Chiquita dashed upon the scene, sighted Pickett and made for him with the power and speed of a runaway locomotive. The man's face blanched momentarily; for the first time he fully realized the peril of his position and the overwhelming odds against him in a fight for life with this bovine demon. But every nerve was steady, every muscle ready and all the consummate craft and cunning of his calling summoned as he awaited the irresistible onslaught. Nor less prepared was Spradley, the wary cow pony he bestrode, learned by long, stern experience on the prairies to know the moods and moves of cattle as a shepherd dog knows his sheep. Never before had such a terrifying thing buried itself toward Spradley, but the shock of it didn't bewilder him.

Like a flash he dodged and implanted his hind hoofs with all his strength full on the charging bull's side. Back rushed the bull, not at all disconcerted, and the attack was too suddenly renewed for defence or evasion. The cruel, needle pointed horns penetrated the helpless horse's shoulder. As they withdrew, blood covered, Pickett leaped between them to the bull's head and clasped his arms around the neck.

This was the expected moment that had drawn twenty-five thousand Mexicans to El Toreo that afternoon. Experts had conceded that the wonderfully lithe and agile American might, perhaps, secure a hold on the bull, but never, they declared, could he maintain that hold for half a minute. One toss of the powerful head would dislodge him and then the end would be a matter of seconds, as he lay prostrate and exhausted.

It looked to me as if every man, woman and child was on his or her feet, straining for a clear view of the grewsome spectacle the Mexican and had fondly pictured. Not a sound they uttered but a concentrated paean of wild exultation was wrung on their lips.

But down in the arena the unexpected—no, the supposedly impossible—was happening. The dreaded bull was frantically tossing his head with all his great strength, bellowing his rage and bewilderment, pirouetting in dizzy circles, and there still dangled Pickett, his bearlike hug unbroken and he clinging like a burr. Never before had such disrepute been cast upon the noble sport of bull fighting. How infantile the strength, how clumsy the skill, how feeble the courage of the adored toreador in comparison with the exhibition being given by the hated stranger from the north! A shout of anger at the ignominious sight swept through the seats and someone cried in Spanish:—"Remember Bienvenida's words, Pickett's funeral will follow foolhardiness." And then pandemonium broke loose.

Pickett was meanwhile giving a continuous and convincing demonstration that Frijoli Chiquita had met his human match. Not once could the bull toss or trample or otherwise harm his antagonist, but the cowboy actually had the bull tottering on his feet. The haughty, shaggy head was aslant under the force exerted upon the horns by the swinging man. The hold was Pickett's favorite and never before had four footed creature withstood it.

Whether Frijoli Chiquita will have been added as a historic victim of the Oklahoma man's prowess will ever remain a moot question. A chair cushion, thrown with accurate aim and judgment, struck him full in the face. A great chorus of approval and a fusillade of the canvas missiles followed. Pickett became quite as busy dodging the shower as saving himself from the bull's savage evolutions.

To some one shied a stone, hit the luckless, beleaguered man on the cheek and drew a stream of blood. It seemed then as if every person in the seats became a participator in the ensuing shameful proceedings. Fruit bottles, canes, and even folding knives fell upon the brave cowboy who was battling for his life, single handed, with that blood hungry bull. Not one person in that great hostile throng lifted hand or voice in protest or defence. I am not exaggerating. The arena was bedded with weapons. The Mexican Record, next day, published a photograph of the deadly litter, and even the instantaneous picture in El Imparcial, the government organ, plainly showed the missiles on their course.

You can imagine the helpless wrath of us handful of Americans. We appealed formally to the police. They laughed in our faces. Pickett's cowboy friends pleaded with Mr. Miller for permission to retaliate with American cartridges, but the ranchman forbade. He and the wiser heads knew the wholesale extermination would have followed. Our hats were soaking with expectorations from the mouths of the human brutes over our heads above the barrier. Pickett was no longer on the offensive and weakening fast. It seemed inevitable that his funeral would take place in Mexico, after all, as Bienvenida had promised. Once his hold relaxed the furious foe would have him at his mercy and give him death.

In all that awful pandemonium Joe Miller alone kept his wits. He realized that sooner or later Pickett would be desperately wounded by a missile and that his end would come with shuddering suddenness unless some succoring expedient was devised by his friends. Summoning Vester Pegg, a cowboy, the ranchman commanded:—

"Strip off your red shirt, you leap into the enclosure, wave your garment as close to the bull as you dare approach, and maybe you can save your comrade's life!"

Our watches showed that Pickett, perched precariously on the bull's head had withstood the storm of missiles for exactly fifteen minutes and a half when the dreaded moment came. A bottle hit him with a thud full in the face. He groaned in sudden pain, gasped for breath, cast a last imploring, agonised look at us, his life time friends, and loosed the iron clasp which had withstood the fury of as fierce and strong a bull as ever trod the earth of El Toreo. Frijoli Chiquita, the incarnation of brute ferocity, relieved of the maddening burden, lowered his head for the death thrusts. Pickett lay a limp and writhing form almost under the animal's nose. The Mexicans yelled their joy.

Over the barrier at a bound hurdled a half naked figure. The bull glimpsed it even more quickly than the astonished and disappointed human audience. For the hated colored face was beneath a red bandished almost in Frijoli Chiquita's face. Vester Pegg was obeying orders. In the desperate emergency with hazardous impulsiveness. The bull hesitated for a providential moment whether to turn upon the insignificant newcomer or to vent its vengeance upon his helpless and fallen adversary. Short as was the respite it saved both men. Pickett staggered to his feet, stumbled groggily to the barricade and our outstretched hands dragged him to safety. Pegg retreated precipitately and beat the bull to succor by a foot. Frijoli Chiquita, doubly robbed of prey, bellowed his impotent rage and hatred to the empty arena.

So ended the only battle of its kind that ever was or probably ever will take place. The tumult over the unexpected deliverance was, of course, appalling. Pickett took refuge behind the gates in one corner of El Toreo and remained concealed for two hours. The Governor then sent a hundred mounted soldiers to the scene. They dispersed the more violent of the spectators who remained threatening our safety, and escorted us back to our hotels. There were small demonstrations against the hotel that night at our quarters on the Paseo de la Reforma, but in twenty-four hours the hotheads had cooled down. The feeling against Pickett personally remained bitter, however, and he did not again make public appearance.

THE FARMER'S FRIEND--THE HEN

From Farm and Dairy.

One of the most practical and sensible articles that we have seen in a long time upon the subject of poultry raising is that by Mr. George A. Cosgrove, president of the Connecticut Poultry Association, which he wrote for the managers of the Connecticut Fair to use in connection with the educational work of the exhibition. The article follows:

Comparatively few farmers realize how profitable the keeping of hens on the farm may be made. The old-fashioned farmer considers the hens as something for the women folks to look after, as not worthy of a man's time and attention. He thinks they are a kind of nuisance anyhow, and although he does not object to good, fresh eggs for breakfast or fried or broiled chicken for dinner, he grudges all the money spent for feed, and absolutely will not clean out the poultry houses, or take any pains to make the hens happy and comfortable which has so much to do with their being also profitable. With reasonable care and attention, the ordinary hen will lay a net cash profit of a dollar and a half a year. Estimating the hen's value at 75 cents, she pays a net profit of 125 to 200 per cent. This is where all the grain and feed is bought. If the farmer had to buy all the hay and grain he feeds his cows, how many herds would pay even 50 per cent. profit? And yet the farmer is contented to keep cows.

The farmer has greater facilities for profitable poultry-keeping than the ordinary man; a field adjoining his poultry yards can be sown with wheat, oats and barley, and as soon as it ripens, the growing young chicks turned into it will save him all the trouble as to harvesting, and all the care as to feeding at the same time. The writer of this article has made a good living for himself and family for 15 years from poultry keeping and has never kept over 500 hens to do it. And this has been done from commercial poultry keeping; that is, eggs and poultry sold at market prices. The prices obtained and the profits of 'fancy' poultry are beyond the belief of the average farmer. When Mr. Northup, in New York State, obtained $1,000 for a rose-combed Black Minorca cock, it was then the top notch as to price, but since then the wife of Paderewski—the pianist—paid Mr. Kellerstrass of St. Louis $7,000 for a half dozen White Orpingtons, and Mr. Charles Brundage, of Danbury in this State has a Golden Wyandotte cock that he values at $20,000 because the chicks sired by that bird in one year have actually sold for an amount equal to six per cent. interest on $20,000. But only a few men are skilful enough as breeders to obtain such prices, the statement above is made to show what is possible.

People are realising more and more that poultry keeping is a business that needs special knowledge, and most of the agricultural colleges now give a short course in poultry keeping for the benefit of those who cannot attend the regular college course. Attendance at one of these courses will show the farmer where he is all wrong in his housing and feeding poultry, and will teach him methods whereby the profits may be materially increased.

There are seasons when the farmer finds the market glutted with milk or butter, and it is almost impossible to dispose of his products, but there is never a time when good, fresh eggs are not saleable, and the equivalent of cash almost anywhere. On the farm all the green food for winter—cabbage, mangels, beets, etc., may be easily raised, and an acre or two of oats, tied in bundles and stored in a rat-proof corn house, makes an ideal litter to throw in the scratching sheds, in which to scatter the wheat and cracked corn and thus compel the exercise which is so necessary to the production of eggs in cold weather. No fear that any of the oats will be wasted, the hens will prove most excellent threshing machines. Among the points in favor of poultry keeping is the small capital on which a start can be made, and the fact that the chick becomes a producer in six months from the time it is hatched, while the sale of the young cockerels for broilers usually pays the expense of raising the pullets to the laying age.—F.C.E.

THE SOIL FOR STRAWBERRIES

From Farm and Dairy.

If possible, the site for the strawberry plantation should be chosen where the snow will lie in winter. A good covering of snow usually ensures a good crop of fruit. One of the most important requisites in a soil for strawberries is thorough dainage, as where water lies on or near the surface, the plants are sure to suffer either in summer or winter. While too much moisture is bad, too little moisture is unfavorable to the development of fruit, hence a soil should be retentive of moisture while not saturated with it. Warm soils, such as sandy loams, will produce early fruit, but friable clay loam will usually produce the best crops. Much, however, depends on the richness of the soil, as strawberries need an abundance of available plant-food to give the best results.

Soil which will grow good crops of roots will usually grow good strawberries. A soil should be chosen, if possible, which does not bake naturally or which by thorough tillage may be brought into such good condition that it will not bake. It is difficult to keep the plantation free of weeds in soil that bakes and it is also hard to conserve soil-moisture in a dry time.

Soil should be chosen, if possible, that has been prepared in a measure, by growing a crop of roots which have been heavily manured. After the roots or other crops have been removed in the autumn, the land should be stirred deeply, it being a good practice to use a subsoil plow after the ordinary kind for this purpose. By using the subsoil plow the soil may be loosened to the required depth without bringing the subsoil to the surface, which would probably happen if it were plowed very deep with the ordinary plow. Clover sod plowed in the autumn is also good, as the sod furnishes humus, but grass-sod land should be avoided as there is great danger of injury from the white grub. In the spring the soil should be brought into good tilth with the harrows and when it is thought best it may be plowed beforehand.—Extract from Bull. No. 92.

TESTING SEED CORN

From Farm and Dairy.

E. G. Montgomery and C. W. Pugsley, Lincoln, Nebraska

Testing every ear of seed corn will cost about five to 10 cents an acre, and may mean five to 10 bushels an acre increased yield. Do it now before the rush of farm work. In many parts of the state not one-half the seed corn will grow. Reports from Farmers' Institutes in various sections indicate that the vitality is very low.

First make a preliminary test of your seed. Select 100 ears at random. Take three grains from each ear, each grain from a different part. Place 300 grains in a germination box. Use any shallow box for germinator. Place sawdust, sand or soil in the bottom. Cover with clean cloth or blotter. Scatter grains, cover with another cloth or blotter and put some more sawdust, sand or soil on top. Wet down thoroughly and keep in a warm place. Grain should be sprouted in four to six days.

If 95 per cent. of the grains germinate in the preliminary test, your corn is safe to plant. If less than 85 per cent. germinate, it will pay to make the ear test.

THE EAR TEST

Lay out all your seed ears side by side on floor, shelves or boards. You should have at least 12 ears for each acre. Keep them in such order that you can easily locate any ear after the test is completed. This is easily done by marking the ears which occupy the first space of each row in the tester. It may also be done by numbering each ear to correspond with the number of the squares in the tester. Prepare the germination box by placing two to three inches of sawdust, sand or soil in the bottom. Cover with white cloth marked in 2-inch squares.

Remove six kernels from each ear, two from near the butt, two from the middle and two from near the tip. Turn the ear partly around each time. Place the six grains from each ear in the germination box in the same order that you have the ears laid out. Remove the kernels with a knife blade, and be careful not to injure the germs.

Cover the kernels with a cloth, and over this place some sawdust, sand or soil. Keep well moistened and in a warm room. In four to six days germination should be complete. Discard all the ears that have not shown a good, strong germination.

A handy rack for drying seed corn and for keeping track of the ears in testing may be made by the use of 2 x 4's and heavy smooth wire. The ears in the rack correspond to the squares in the germinator, so that it is not necessary to number either the ears or the squares.

A representative test after it has been in the germinator for three days (it should be left longer to get the best results) in which six grains from each ear were taken, showed some of the ears to be absolutely dead. In others the sprouts were weak, while with some the sprouts were vigorous. If one ear in every 40 fails to grow, you will lose also acre out of every 40 acre field. It is a very simple matter to make a test at home. No material need be purchased, as every farmer possesses rough lumber of which the boxes can be made, and cloth that can be used for the cover. The only thing that is necessary is to keep an accurate record of the ears and to keep the germinator moist and in a warm place.

Many mixtures are offered as substitutes for Royal.

None of them is the same in composition or effectiveness, so wholesome and economical, nor will make such fine food.

FRUIT GROWING IN NEW ONTARIO

From Farm and Dairy.

Chas. Young, Algoma District

In the past, fruit growing in New Ontario was attended with failure. This was caused by planting unsuitable varieties and by planting on unsuitable soil. The heavy impervious clay, so common in New Ontario, is not adapted for the tree fruits, and it is quite a troublesome matter to make it suitable. All bush fruits do exceedingly well except blackberries. There has been a general belief that there is no use trying to grow fruit in the north. This impression has almost entirely disappeared, chiefly owing to the perseverance of many who refused to accept this common opinion.

The effects of this persistence may be seen today in many of the older settlements where the orchard is bringing more money than the rest of the farm and which bids fair in a very few years to supply this vast district with all the more hardy fruits. In small fruits this is done now and about the only difficulty is in winter fruit. Pears and grapes will never be a success here, that is, with the kinds of winters that we have at present. Apples, cherries and plums can be grown at less expense than in the east, as many of the pests common there are entirely unknown here. The necessity for spraying is not apparent. With the information we now have we may quite easily grow all the fruit we require and some for export farther north.

Had Weak Back.
Would Often Lie in Bed for Days Scarcely Able to Turn Herself.

Weak back comes from the kidneys, and when the kidneys are out of order the whole system becomes deranged. Those who have never been troubled with kidney trouble do not know of the suffering and misery which those afflicted undergo.

They begin by heaping the kidneys to flush of all the acrid and poisonous impurities which have collected, thus clearing out the kidneys, bladder and all the urinary passages and carrying away the uric acid, the chief cause of rheumatism, from the blood.

Mrs. Arch. Schnare, Black Point, N.B., writes:—"For years I was troubled with weak back. Oftentimes I have lain in bed for days, being scarcely able to turn myself, and I have also been a great sufferer while trying to perform my household duties. I had doctors attending me without avail and tried liniments and plasters, but nothing seemed to do me any good. I was about to give up in despair when my husband induced me to try Doan's Kidney Pills, and after using two boxes I am now well and able to do my work. I am positive Doan's Kidney Pills are all that you claim for them, and I would advise all kidney sufferers to give them a fair trial."

Price, 50 cents per box, or 3 for $1.25, at all dealers or The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

In ordering specify "Doan's."

Two Mills Using Same Quality of Wheat May Not Produce Same Quality of Flour

The quality of flour largely depends on the milling. Two mills might grind wheat of the same quality and the product of one far outclass the other. It is not only the high quality of the hard wheat used, but also the superior milling facilities, that places "PURITY" flour so far above all others. Our milling plant at St. Boniface, Manitoba, cost nearly $1,000,000, and is one of the most perfectly equipped mills in the world. The wheat itself is subjected to the most wonderful system of cleaning and scouring, passing through twenty distinct machines. Fifty-five steel rollers, the largest in Canada, reduce the wheat into flour. Then it is purified and dressed by "bolting" it through silk sifters of fine mesh. Not a "branny" particle or speck of dust is ever found in "Purity" Flour.

You may have to pay a little more for Purity, but baking results, quality and quantity, prove it is worth far more than the slight difference.

We have two other modernly equipped mills at Brandon, Man., and Goderich, Ont.

EDUCATIONISTS CONCLUDE.

Attack Is Made on Present Method of Spelling.

Toronto, April 1.—The 49th annual convention of the Ontario Educational Association held its closing sessions in the university building yesterday. "It has been without doubt one of the most successful and prosperous gatherings ever held by the association," said retiring President Henry Ward.

William Metford, speaking in part from his experience in teaching Italians to read English, gave a paper on the losses occasioned by our irrational spelling. First, there is the stultification of the child's reasoning powers. He showed by quotation from several eminent educators and examples that the habit of learning without or contrary to understanding and reason, formed in the spelling lessons, injuriously affects the mind for the proper study of the other subjects.

In connection with the financial loss, the one due solely to carrying the load of superfluous letters has been carefully computed by Henry Holt, the well-known publisher. By actual count there are nearly five per cent. of the letters we put in words unnecessary. There, for writing, printing, type founding, stenographers' and teachers' time, etc., total as wasted over $100,000,000.

Prof. J. G. Hume of Toronto University was not at all in sympathy with the agitation for a uniformity in writing, and described the same as an abominable curse. "No two men write alike, and it is not right to ask the pupils to write along any such set of hard and fast rules."

Fires to Hide Thefts.

Windsor, April 1.—The provincial police may be asked to investigate a fire which destroyed the power plant in connection with the Fighting Island hotel property some time Wednesday morning, involving a loss of several thousand dollars. Bailiff Frank St. Louis, who took charge of the island about a week ago on a $3,000 rent claim against Pittsburg lessees, believes the fire was started by some one who wanted to wipe out the whole place, in the hope of covering up extensive theft of the hotel property. St. Louis claims he was unable to find qualities of silverware and other goods shown by the inventory.

Edward Laforest, 25 yearsold, wanted for over two years by Canadian authorities for burglary and arson, was arrested at Delray, Mich., by Detroit officers. He has been turned over to the Windsor authorities, and will be taken to Chatham. Laforest is charged with burning the Joy clubhouse at Mitchell's Bay, in March, 1909, after plundering the club.

All-For-Ireland League.

Cork, April 1.—The All-for-Ireland League, the object of which William O'Brien, M.P., said was to enable the Irish people to choose between his program, which would reconcile Catholic and Protestant fellow-countrymen, and John Redmond's, which set them against each other, was inaugurated yesterday.

Mr. O'Brien characterized the Nationalist party as "a mere puppet, a detestable sectarian, secret society, whose avowed purpose was to build up a system of Catholic, Orangeism, more inexcusable than its Protestant forerunner."

Garneau Alleges Libel.

Quebec, April 1.—Sir George Garneau, president of the National Battlefield Commission, has taken an action for $999 damages against The Chronicle.

The action arises from several editorials The Chronicle published on the Battlefield Commission.

New York, April 1.—Explosion of a bomb in the basement of an East 39th street tenement yesterday shook the structure to its foundations, shattered every pane of glass in it and created a panic. There have been several explosions in the vicinity recently.

LOST IN SNOW.

Four Bodies of Unknown Men Found Near the Soo.

Sault Ste. Marie, April 1.—March thaw has laid a bare lone trail between Grassett and Michipicoten, revealing the bodies of four men who perished while venturing over the dangerous corduroy road during the blizzards of winter.

The news was brought to the Soo by George Henderson, engineer of the Algoma Central Railroad. This trail is a hazardous one and inspires terror to those who venture on it even in summer months. There is no human habitation during the entire 52 miles.

The bodies were found at different points within a dozen miles of Michipicoten, some within a short distance of the trail, indicating that the blizzard, in which the men perished, came upon them suddenly, and that they lost their trail after it was obliterated by snow.

None of the bodies have as yet been identified, but one of the men had a letter with a Guelph postmark, from a woman named Susan Edwards. This man was about 32 years of age and had $400 in the inner vest pocket. Money was also found in the pockets of the other men. It is supposed they were on the way to mines which are in course of development in that region.

BRIEFS FROM THE WIRES.

At Paris, Jean Moreas, leader of the "decadent school" of poetry, died yesterday, aged 54.

Beginning to-day British postal notes will be negotiable at twenty of the large Canadian postoffices at face value.

A Liverpool employment agency has received a cable from the Dominion Coal & Steel Co. to send men to take strikers' places.

Twenty-five dogs have been killed and many other quarantined as the result of a mad collie running amuck near Bryson, Ont.

The Louisiana State Game Commission will ask the Legislature for an appropriation for the importation of big African game to Louisana for breeding purposes.

At Philadelphia yesterday, three strike-breakers from New York were committed to jail by Coroner Hord, to await the action of the grand jury, on the charge of homicide. They are accused of being responsible for the death of Leo Timmerman, an aged man, who was thrown from a car while it was running at high speed.

Government Will Appeal to People.

Halifax, April 1.—The Local Legislature will likely prorogue next week. The prohibition bill will be introduced on Monday. It will likely call for provincial prohibition outside of Halifax city, but some members will insist on its provisions applying to the whole province.

In this case there is likely to be a lively debate, as there are 88 saloons in this city, and the liquor men have a strong influence with the Government.

It is expected that immediately after the close of the session the Government will go to the country, the prohibition measure being made the main issue.

Premier Murray brought down the financial returns yesterday for the year ending Sept. 30, 1909. He announced a surplus of $15,422.21. The revenue did not suffer from the strike in the coal district as badly as might be supposed. The effect of the strike, however, will be felt more keenly the present year, as a result of the loss in coal royalties which furnish about half the revenues of the province.

Got Married as a Joke.

Detroit, April 1.—George A. Reinhardt, son of Ald. Reinhardt of Detroit, is seeking a divorce from his wife, Mayme R. Husband. Yesterday afternoon, on the stand, he testified to making a quiet little trip to Sandwich before his marriage, where he got married for a joke.

Mrs. Reinhardt declared he abused her and said he insisted on practicing "race suicide" because his parents would not like to be called "grandpa" and "grandma."

Royal Arcanum Ban on Liquor.

[illegible], April 1.—The Appellate Division of the Supreme Court yesterday sustained the rule of the supreme council of the Royal Arcanum, prohibiting members enjoying benefit funds if engaged in the retail business or the selling of intoxicating liquors as a salesman.

SALARY IS INCREASED

Medical Health Officer to Receive $600 Per Year—Property Committee Decide on Increase—His Duties Outlined—Look After Milk Inspection.

ADDITIONAL WORK FOR HIM

At a meeting of the Property committee of the City Council held last evening, it was decided to increase the salary of Dr. McPherson to $600. It is at present only $400. While Mayor Morrow and the members of the committee realize that even $600 is too small a salary for the Medical Health Officer, when his extensive duties are taken into consideration, it was thought that was all the appropriations could stand this year. $800 was thought to be a reasonable sum, but an increase of $200 was all that could be added. Those present at last night's meeting were Mayor Morrow and Ald. Duncan (chairman), Batten, Bradburn and Graham. A list outlining the duties of the Medical Health Officer was read. These include the proper looking after of all contagious diseases, attendance at the fire hall in the event of there being any sickness there, and on all charity cases. Dr. McPherson will also conduct the milk inspection.

It was moved by Ald. Batten, seconded by Ald. Graham that the same arrangements be made for the refuse ground as last year and if it was impossible to secure it, procure another lot.

Ald. Bradburn moved, seconded by Ald. Graham, that the chairman be authorized to purchase a door for the vault at the new Public Library.

SPLENDID PRESENTATION OF "GEISHA" BY LOCAL AMATEURS

Peterborough Amateur Operatic Company Scored a Triumph Last Night When They Surprised and Delighted a Large Audience at the Grand---Miss Hallihan Starred In the Title Role.

Whether or not the Peterborough Amateur Operatic Company will be successful in the Earl Grey Dramatic competition in Toronto next week, the many Peterborough people who were present at their production of "The Geisha," at the Grand Opera House last night are satisfied that they will at least do credit to themselves and to their city. The presentation was a genuine surprise to most of those in the audience, and they had no conception of the magnitude or merit of the undertaking until they discovered for themselves what had been accomplished through the energetic efforts of Mr. R. J. Devey, and the earnest and faithful work of those taking part. The "Geisha," that most beautiful production of Hall Jones and Greenbank, is a play, that while affording many openings for brilliant work, makes exacting demands upon the musical ability of the cast, and it is, therefore, a most ambitious undertaking for amateurs to undertake the staging of a musical comedy of such calibre. Under such circumstances it is all the more gratifying to the members of the company and to the people of Peterborough, generally, that there should be in our midst a director and leader capable of preparing for such a presentation, and talent in sufficient numbers to permit of such a triumph being scored. That it was a triumph cannot be gainsaid. The almost constant applause that echoed through the house, the exclamations of delight and surprise from the audience as it was filing out after the last curtain, were sufficient proof of that fact, and Mr. Devey and his company, no matter what success they have in Toronto, should feel proud of themselves and of each other.

The work of preparing for such a production is enormous, and upon Mr. Devey, under whose sole direction it was given, has fallen all the labour of drilling his company and making all other arrangements. Too much cannot be said of Mr. Devey for the work he has accomplished, and it is the sincere hope of the people of Peterborough that he and his associates may be successful in the undertaking they have set their minds upon, that of carrying off the Earl Grey Trophy. In any event they cannot fail to well advertise Peterborough and bring credit to the musical name of this city. Mr. Devey has worked for many weeks in preparing for the contest. He has given the best that was in him to the task, has toiled faithfully and earnestly, and, with the assistance of the clever young people he has gathered around him in the Peterborough Operatic Company, accomplished something of which he has every reason to be gratified. He has had no assistance whatever in the work, except from the members of the Company and his success is therefore all the more commendable.

To the members of the company, too, more than a passing word of congratulation is due. There were abundant evidences that every member of the cast must have rehearsed assiduously and sacrificed considerable time to the work of preparing for the production. The members have evidently had their heart in their work, and are to be commended for the zeal they have displayed as well as for their splendid showing.

The merit of the performance, considering that it was produced solely by amateurs, was surprising. The first act, which, by the way, is all that the Company will present in Toronto, was a veritable gem. Considerable of the time taken up in rehearsing has been devoted to this act, as the company knew they would be only called upon to give one act in the competition, and specialized upon that portion of the play. The presentation went through with a vim and zest and was wholly enjoyable. The acting throughout was uniformly good and the vocalism of the principals superior to most of the professional companies that have appeared here and none of the musical shows that have graced the boards of the Grand have had such a splendid singing chorus. The cast had been chosen with judgment and the result was a most artistic production. The costumes and scenic investiture had been carefully looked after, and a charming series of stage pictures was presented, the ensemble numbers being well arranged. In fact there could be no criticism offered in regard to any side of the presentation, and the audience was more than delighted with the offering.

The story of "The Geisha" is too well known to theatre-goers to require any explanation in these columns. It is enough to say that the production is a comic opera standard of the older and better variety, as superior to the frothy American musical comedy as day is to night. The lines are bright and witty; the piece abounds with clean-cut comedy and amusing denouements, and fairly sparkles with tinkling tune music of a type that is unfortunately fast passing away beneath the sway of such inane drivel as "Oh, Gee, be Sweet to Me, Kid." The music is of a nature that requires ability on the part of those interpreting it, and it is therefore a bouquet for local vocalists that they should be able to score such a hit. The scenes are laid in Japan, thus giving an opportunity for the weaving in of the bright coloured garb of the land of the Rising Sun, and the costumes are of unusual brilliance.

Where every one did so well, special references are perhaps, not necessary, but one would be doing an injustice to Miss Lavina Hallihan if one did not pause to compliment her most heartily upon her splendid work in the title-role. This talented young lady, whose magnificent soprano has been a source of unmitigated pleasure to Peterborough audiences, upon so many occasions, has never appeared to greater advantage and she scored a personal triumph. Her singing of "A Geisha's Life" in the first act, was undoubtedly the feature of the production and took the audience by storm, while her solo number in the second portion, "The Star of Asia," a supplementary number, was not far behind in point of merit. Her perfect enunciation, her clear, sweet, powerful voice, which loses none of its purity or sonorousness in the higher registers, made her solos things of beauty, indeed, and the enthusiasm of the audience knew no bounds. In addition to her delightful vocalism, however, Miss Hallihan is to be congratulated also upon her finished acting, her attractive stage presence and natural and unaffected manner allowing her to artistically interpret the important role she had in hand. She was presented with a beautiful bouquet in the second act, and the audience recognized the tribute with enthusiastic applause.

Mrs R. J. Devey, as Molly Seamore, threw life and vim into her part, and added much to the success of the occasion by her clever work in the role. The score gave her several opportunities to display her singing ability and she took full advantage of the openings offered her. Her work throughout was of a superior calibre. Mrs. J. E. Firth, as Lady Constance, looked and acted the part of a member of the British nobility with considerable success, and was true and natural in her methods, while Miss Lillian Dean scored a success as Juliette Diamant, a part that afforded opportunities for finished work. The minor feminine parts were in good hands: Miss Beach, as Nami, did good work; and Miss Delaire, Miss Quartermaine, Miss Horsfield, and Miss Primeau, as Geishas, sang with decided success. Miss Daisy Wood, Miss Shannon and Miss Collinson, as the three English ladies, gave a good account of themselves.

To Mr. George Chandler, who was cast as Reginald Fairfax, a good deal of the work fell, and he demonstrated that the role was entrusted to the proper person by his finished portrayal of the part of the English officer. He had several chances to exhibit his charming tenor in solo work, and his vocal numbers were happily received, while his acting throughout was good. Mr. MacLaren, as Wun-Hi, the Chinese proprietor of a tea-house, had the principal comedy role and extracted the last ounce of fun out of an unusually amusing part. His quaint langage and funny appearance and gestures elicited continuous laughter, while his solo song and dance was one of the gems of the second act. His role is a long one and he is to be praised for his skilful portrayal.

Mr. Nat Greenhalgh was cast as The Marquis Imari, a characterization that his stature and voice eminently fit him for, and he gave a finished conception of the Japanese potentate. Mr. John King exhibited his splendid bass voice effectively in several solo numbers that were among the most appreciated features of the programme and Messrs. Hickey and Sutcliffe, as English officers, also sang well. Mr. Lee had not any opportunities as Captain Katna, but in his solo in the first act, showed that he has a splendid tenor, which the audience would have enjoyed more often. Master Cyril Devey did some good work as the Midshipman.

Following is the cast:

O Mimosa (Chief Geisha)—Miss Lavina Hallihan.

Juliette Diament (A French Girl, attached to the Tea House as Interpreter)—Miss Lilian Dean.

C. G. E. WILL BUILD POWER HOUSE EQUIP IT AND PAY $2000 YEARLY

Mr. Frederic Nicholls Laid Proposition of the Company Before the City Council at a Special Meeting---Would Extend Present Works, Expending $250,000 in Improvements and Extensions---To Be Either Made Here or in Toronto.

At a special meeting of the City Council, held yesterday afternoon, Mr. Frederick Nicholls, vice-president and general manager of the Canadian General Electric Co., laid before the Mayor and Aldermen the proposition whereby the company proposes to purchase 1000 h.p. that the city has available at the waterworks dam. If they secure this power it is their intention to considerably enlarge their works here, expending $250,000 in improvements and extensions. Those present at the meeting were Mayor Morrow, in the chair, Ald. Phelan, Bradburn, Duffus, Hicks, Buller, Turner, Duncan, Metheral Gillespie and Graham and Water Commissioners Hill and Moore, and Mr. Nicholls and Mr. E. G. Patterson, Superintendent of the Canadian General Works.

The Proposition.

The following statement from Mr. Nicholls was read:

To the Mayor, Peterborough, Ont—

Dear Sir,—I beg to submit herewith a brief memorandum of the result of my conference with yourself and members of the Water Commission. We propose to extend our works, either at Peterborough or Toronto, but have met with a difficulty at Peterborough, that we have no additional power available. Understanding that you have surplus power at the waterworks dam, we beg to make you the following proposition; we will build and equip power house, operate and maintain same and pay the sum of $2,000 per year for twenty years, on the understanding that not less than 1,000 horse power will be available. Should the city's requirements at any time render less than 1,000 horse-power available a fair and equitable allowance to be made to us, for such amount as may be deducted from the 1,000 horse power by the City of Peterborough, and in the event of disagreement as to what a fair and equitable allowance shall be, the matter to be referred to arbitration at the expiration of the term of twenty years, the power house and equipment shall, be appraised, and the city of Peterborough to pay to the company one-half of such appraised value.

Should an agreement be entered into between the City of Peterborough and the Company, the Company agree to spend not less than $250,000 in improvements and extension.

The Canadian Gen. Elec. Co.

Frederick Nicholls.

Mr. Nicholls, in his remarks to the council, said that it was the company's intention to enlarge their works either here or in Toronto, but the question as to which one it would be was a matter of great concern. They required non-productive power for testing purposes. They could get this power from the Niagara Power Co., on the meter basis, but if the local council would accept his proposition, he would recommend to his Board of Directors that the extension be made here. In their present works here they paid out one million dollars yearly and if the proposed extension was made that amount would be increased by 50 per cent. Three storeys would be added to the office building and the warehouse and machine shop would be greatly enlarged.

Following Mr. Nicholls' remarks a number of those present engaged in a discussion of the proposition, but nothing definite was decided upon. The matter will be taken up at the meeting of the Council next Monday evening. After Mr. Nicholls had withdrawn, His Worship stated that Mr. Nicholls had agreed to one change in the above proposition, whereby the city would be given over the power house and equipment at the expiration of the twenty years.

Mr. W. H. Moore stated that he thought the proposition was highly inequitable. He thought the city would get better returns by using the surplus for reducing the water rates and establishing a filtration system. Ald. Metheral pointed out that if the city disposed of all the power now, at the end of four and a half years when the lighting contract expired, they would be in a position to be held up by the Light and Power Co. The advantages to be gained by the increased population and the necessary outlay of money in building and other lines, resulting, were pointed out, and Ald Hicks, Bradburn and Turner expressed themselves in favour of the proposition.

Murdered By a Masked Burglar Who Escaped

Springfield, Mass., March 31.—Miss Martha B. Blackstone, daughter of C. J. Blackstone, was murdered by a masked burglar in the home of Mrs. Sarah J. Dow, Roundhill, at eight o'clock this evening. Miss Harriet Dow, daughter of the house, was shot in the head and is in a dying condition. The murderer escaped.

Mrs. Dow, her two daughters and Miss Blackstone, who was a guest for the night, were seated in the living room of the home about a small table solving a picture puzzle. Suddenly there came a demand for money from the dining room, just in the rear. The woman looked up to see a masked man in the dark doorway, threatening them with a revolver. Mrs. Dow retained her composure and replied:

"We have no money," but Miss Blackstone in fright jumped to her feet and ran screaming into the reception room. The burglar said: "If you want to be killed, keep on screaming," and fired as he spoke. The bullet entered Miss Blackstone's left breast and death was instanteous. The murderer hardly paused to see his victim fall before he turned the revolver on the group, shooting Miss Dow in the head.

He then jumped through the front door, leaped over the piazza railing and ran away.

English Soldier Is To Be Rewarded With Bride

Berlin, March 31.—Major Enver Bey, one of the most notable leaders of the Young Turk Revolution, which overthrew Sultan Abdul Hamid of Turkey, and now the military attache of the Turkish embassy here, will become a husband under most peculiar conditions. His bride to be is an Imperial princess, a niece of the present Sultan, Mohammed V., and of his deposed brother.

The princess has been bestowed upon Enver Bey, in accordance with the ancient Turkish Royal custom, as a reward for his services and the gallant part he played in the overthrow of the old regime in Constantinople. Enver Bey has never seen his princess sweetheart, who is only sixteen years old. He is laughingly telling his Berlin friends, however, that he has seen her brother's photograph and that if the princess looks anything like that, he is sure he wil be the happiest of husbands.

Enver Bey, of course, gratefully accepted this signal mark of his Sovereign's favour, but requested that the marriage be postponed for two years. In the meantime he desires to widen the scope of his international knowledge by residence in England and France. The princess, who has never set foot outside Constantinople, will employ the time she is waiting for her marriage in perfecting herself in the English and French languages and in other accomplishments necessary to fit her to be the wife of a Turkish soldier with the most brilliant prospects. Enver Bey is now only 26 years old.

Lodge Goat Responsible For A $75,000 Conflagration

Trenton, N.J., March 31.—"King Bert," a lodge goat, was responsible last night for the destruction by fire of the Ribsam building, one of the handsomest and most modern business structures in the heart of the city.

The loss is $75,000. For an hour the city's business centre was threatened.

The upper stories of the building were occupied in great part by the labour and fraternal organizations. One of the lodges was initiating a number of candidates last night, when the goat, which a member was riding, became balky, and started ramming and came into contact with a lighted tin lamp, tipping it over.

The lodge members were too busy trying to capture the goat to continue the initiation to notice that a spark from the lamp had ignited a curtain. Before the blaze could be extinguished the room was all affre, and the members had to flee for their lives. Several had narrow escapes. The goat was the first to get out of the burning building. The flames spread rapidly, and the structure was soon in ruins.

THE TARIFF SETTLEMENT.

In the House of Commons on Wednesday afternoon Hon. Mr. Fielding, Minister of Finance, made the official statement of the result of the negotiations between Canada and the United States, looking to a solution of the tariff friction created by the Payne-Aldrich tariff of our neighbours. According to this it will be remembered the maximum tariff, 25 per cent. above the ordinary tariff against Canada was required to be brought into force by presidential proclamation on April 1st, against all countries which "unduly discriminated" in the matter of preferential tariffs against the United States. Canada was, by virtue of the French treaty held by the United States to be one of these countries. President Taft, realized the difficulty of his position. He was the instrument designated by law to bring the maximum club down on Canada. He did not want to do this because he realized that the reprisals which Canada was in a position to make—the imposition of the 33 1-3 surtax, the prohibition of the export of pulp wood and nickel and the increase of the British preference—would strike the United States harder than the maximum tariff would strike Canada. At the same time the Canadian government realized that a tariff war would produce serious unsettlement of profitable trade relations with the United States and no little immediate injury to many Canadian industries; and when the United States sent to Ottawa representatives who sought or besought the opening of negotiations with a view of settling the question, the overtures thus made were met in a reasonable spirit.

The United States demanded the concession of the same duty on 110 designated articles as was conceded under the French treaty. This request Canada could not for a moment entertain. But, in view of the fact that President Taft would probably be satisfied with a nominal concession by Canada so that he would have some justification, if chiefly in name only, for withholding the maximum from application against Canada; and in view of the fact that some small concession would avert a disastrous tariff war which would destroy mutually desirable trade relations for many years between two nations with a total international trade of more than 300 millions dollars, a compromise was suggested. Mr. Fielding decided in Canada's name to offer some slight concessions, which aside from their importance in "saving President Taft's face" and leading to tariff settlement, are otherwise and on their merits of trivial importance. Mr. Fielding selected thirteen tariff items for a 2 1-2 per cent. reduction.

These items include oats, nuts, prunes, etc., and other articles not produced in Canada and whose import at a slight reduction of duty will affect no Canadian industry.. The reduced items do not apply to the United States alone but to every country with which we do business. In reality these concessions are not made to the United States, but as a matter of policy to all other countries.

To emphasize the importance of the concession—2 1-2 per cent. reduction made on the thirteen articles—it may be pointed out that our total importation of these last year amounted to only 1 1-2 million out of the 113 millions of United States imports into Canada last year.

In making this arrangement Canada surrenders no part of her fiscal independence. We stand, as Sir Wilfrid Laurier pointed out on Wednesday night, precisely where we stood three months ago. We have retained absolute freedom and power of action. We can make treaties with Germany, France and Belgium without reference to the United States. And we can, and probably shall, make a treaty on reciprocal trade lines with the United States. Secretary Knox has made, apparently with the approval of the United States President, an offer to treat with Canada in this direction.

It is claimed by the more extreme of the party organs, that in this arrangement Canada has made a surrender to United States exaction and that we have gained nothing by the concessions we have made. We have gained one important point; we have averted trade war, which would have played havoc for a long time with many Canadian industries. One of Peterborough's most important industries would have been practically put out of business temporarily at least; hundreds would be, for a time at least, thrown out of employment. This is a type of what might have taken place all over Canada. It is all very well for political journalistic filibusters, who, in a strife to gain a petty political advantage and with nothing to lose, talk of standing out, war to the knife, etc. But the government, with the responsibility of Canadian interests resting upon it, felt that by making concessions, it could serve and conserve the trade interests of Canada and retain for Canada favourable access to a market of 90 millions, and avert a trade war that would throw national industry and trade movement out of gear for years.

The tariff settlement is a good settlement, in which Canada has compromised neither its national dignity nor its interests. The United States receives no favours — no favours but what Canada gives to any other country and this country which held the whip hand, under cover of concessions of little practical moment elected to be magnanimous. Canada was in a position to defy the United States and survive a trade war better than our neighbours. But in this war, as in all wars, there would have been great loss. Victory might cost, as it does in many, if not all wars, much more than it is worth. We have secured place with honour.

Our international relations will hereafter be better. The United States has had its lesson. It has not treated Canada well in trade matters in the past. It has learned, however, by the late experience, that Canada is a power to be reckoned with, that its trade friendship is worth seeking: that more desirable trade relation, more reciprocity of trade relations will be to mutual advantage.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Up to the years 1905-6 the Dominion Government has assisted railway construction in British Columbia, by way of subsidy, to the extent of $21,105,487.

The Customs returns for the year ending March 31st, 1910, are the largest in the history of Canada, amounting to more than 61 millions, as against the record year of 1908, when they were $58,331,000, the increase over the total of last year, $47,368,000. is $12,693,926, or over a million dollars a month.

As a mere matter of news it is to be stated that there is a movement in the Conservative party to depose Mr. Borden from the position of Conservative leader, but it is not likely to be successful. The powerful cry of last night's Review—"hands off"—will doubtless convince the insurgents that fighting against so powerful a defender would be hopeless.

A PECULIAR ACCUSATION.

(Toronto Globe.)

False repetitions have evidently misled The Peterborough Review, and the result has been some very erroneous conclusions that need correcting. Our contemporary says:

"Compare the clean, honest, and economical administration of affairs by the present Conservative Government of Ontario with the corruption, laxity, and waste that prevailed under the Liberal Administration that preceded it."

This shows how the continuous repetition of a statement even when obviously contrary to the known, recognized, and acknowledged facts can mislead a generally careful and accurate newspaper. In all the history of popular government there is no record so free from corruption, laxity, and waste as that of the Liberal tenure of office in Ontario. Honesty, care, and economy even to the verge of parsimony were the distinguishing characteristics of that regime under Sir Oliver Mowat, Hon. A. S. Hardy, and Hon. Geo. W. Ross, and the colleagues who gave them able and faithful support. No Administration has ever kept a tighter hold on the purse-strings in the public interest. Even when free expenditure seemed to promise an easy road to popularity the Liberal leaders preferred the sober appreciation of the better elements with a stake in the Province and an appreciation of sound financial methods. We can search the history of popular government on this continent without finding a parallel to the Liberal regime in Ontario for care of a great public heritage or economy in spending public money. That is a strong claim, but it is fully sustained by obvious facts. When reckless and irresponsible charges of corruption, laxity, and extravagance deceive such a careful newspaper as The Peterborough Review it is necessary to recite the facts, although they may be fresh in the public mind.

The session just closed was marked by the voting of about ten and a quarter millions for the year, independent of the expenditures under special statutes. The changing in the fiscal year makes accurate comparisons difficult, but the outlay for 1908 was $8,557,000, for 1907 $7,836,000, and for 1906 $6,720,000. The swift advance of this expenditure appears in contrast to an outlay of $5,396,000 in 1905, $5,267,000 in 1904, $4,889,000 in 1903, and $4,345,000 in 1902. There are new duties devolving on the Government of the present day through the adoption of a power policy and the development which the Liberals inaugurated in northern Ontario. But making the widest allowance for these, the record shows that the period of Liberal rule was marked by strict economy and zealous care, while there are now evidences of a departure in the opposite direction. It must be admitted that in election campaigns some Liberal workers with more zeal than wisdom descended to the methods of their opponents. Although the leaders were in no way responsible for such departures they had to suffer the resentment naturally aroused in their supporters. But so far as the trust reposed by the people was concerned in the administration of the people's heritage, the management of departmental affairs, and the expenditure of public funds, there was not during that long term in office a single example of either corruption, laxity, or extravagance. Now that the people of Ontario are able to look at the record of the Liberal Government without the confusion of reckless and unfounded charges the mistake of the change of political support has become apparent. The record of care and economy stands out distinctly in the history of our political development. As a result of that era of sound business methods and fidelity to public interests the Province now enjoys the easy prosperity of reduced public burdens.

How Nervous Men Get Most Out of Life.

(From "Successful Men.")

Every normal minded man wishes to get all he can out of life—but many a man knows that he is falling far short.

The successful man works, eats and plays with the keenest enjoyment, because his nerves are keenly sensitive. He tastes, hears, sees and feels all with the highest emotions of vigorous healthy nerves. As a consequence he has stamina, endurance, and personal magnetism, which makes those near and dear to him, worship his manliness, chivalry, and strenuousness.

Without keen, sensitive, well-nourished nerves, such a man would be an object of pity, and not the brilliant success he is. All men should have well-nourished nerves, but if the blood and vital organs do not supply the chemical or substance known as nerve fluid, then the waste of the nerves is not renewed daily and hourly as it should be. The nerves become exhausted, giving rise to such symptoms as trembling hands and limbs, cold feet and hands, melancholia, hysteria, timidity, nervousness, sleeplessness, dizziness, heart palpitation, pains in the back, headache, languor, and weakness at all times. A most valuable nerve treatment, restorative in every sense, is to be found in the following prescription, emanating, it is said, from a brilliant and successful specialist on nervous ailments.

The treatment can be prepared in the privacy of home and thus causes no one any embarrassment. First get three ounces of syrup of sarsaparilla compound in a six-ounce bottle. To this add one ounce of compound fluid balmwort, shake well and let stand two hours. Then add one ounce of tincture cadomene compound (not cardamom) and one ounce of compound essence cardiol. Mix. Shake well and take a teaspoonful after each meal and one when retiring.

It is astonishing to feel the new nerve force, the steadied nerves, and the control of every muscle in the body after using this. Overworked office men, and the many victims of society's late hours and dissipation will surely find in this the restorative, rejuvenating force they are sorely in need of. The ingredients are used in various prescriptions and any good druggist can supply them.

IN THE WORLD OF SPORT

Toronto Ball Team Shows Good Form In Practice

Charlottesville, Va., March 30.—A combination of extremely hot weather and the annual dual track meet between Virginia and Pennsylvania, prompted Manager Kelley to hold only one practice to-day, but he put his men through a gruelling workout this morning in spite of the general soreness of body and limb from which almost the entire squad is now suffering. There has been no rain for weeks, and the diamond on which the men are working is baked as hard as a board, a condition not suited to the older players especially.

Jimmy Mullen reported early this morning, and turned out in uniform at the practice. He came direct from his home in Avoca, Penn., where he has been doing a great deal of gymnasium work for the past three weeks. Mullen is an accomplished gymnast, and will not be long in rounding into condition. He has a tough job in prospect to beat out Fitzpatrick for the position of second base. The youngster looks better every day, and is hitting wonderfully in the practices. Not even in speed has the shifty Mullen anything on Fitz., and the only apparent advantage he will have over his younger rival is experience. That, however, is a big factor with a young first baseman working on one side, and a young shortstop on the other, in the event of Vaughn beating Frick out at short field.

Andy Kyle, the native Torontonian, was out in uniform and surprised the veterans with the form he showed in the outfield. Kelley will certainly find a place for Andy in some good class B circuit. The pitchers were all given a trying workout this morning, all of the seven flingers now in camp taking a turn on the mound, while the batters hit their offerings to the outfielders and infielders. The only pitcher who unbuckled at all was Sammy Smith, who is about ready to jump into the opening game should he be called upon. It is altogether likely that he will be one of the pitchers to work against Roanoke or Lynchburg in the first games of the trip after breaking camp. Kelley tested the fielding ability of his pitchers by having them occupy the slab two at a time, the flinger delivering the ball having nothing else to do, while his partner fielded bunts. With men running the bases they were a tired corps of slabsters when 1 o'clock arrived.

"I have heard nothing from Catcher Sam Brown," said Kelley to-day, "and am not at all worried on account of his continued silence. With Tonneman, Vandy and the catcher coming to us from Stallings' club we are well fixed for backstops. "A contract was sent to Brown's last-known address, but it was not returned signed or otherwise, neither did the catcher acknowledge its receipt. He was purchased by Toronto from the Boston Nationals in the spring of 1908 for $1,000, and the Leafs had the use of him for that season only, when Mike Kelley piloted the club. He did not show the class expected of him, and has evidently retired from the game. His loss will not be felt except in the club treasury. He is still the property of the Toronto Club, but would not bring thirty cents were he placed on the market.

Grimshaw is still conspicuous by his absence, and the Toronto manager will shortly put forth an additional effort to have him report. Notice that a goodly percentage of his first month's pay will be deducted might have the desired effect. There is no trouble whatever between "Grim" and the club. He was met at New York a month ago by President McCaffery and Manager Kelley, and tendered a contract in keeping with his position at the head of the Eastern League batting roll of honour. He expressed himself as being entirely satisfied with everything, but the protracted illness of Mrs. Grimshaw probably accounts for the big slugger's tardiness in reporting.

"BISCUITS" WON

The Pole Succeeded in Beating Yussuf Mahmout.

Chicago, March 31. — Stanislaus Zbyszko of Poland won the privilege of meeting Frank Gotch for the wrestling championship of the world, by defeating Yusiff Mahmout, of Turkey, in two straight falls at the Coliseum last night.

The first fall was a crotch-hold, and half-Nelson, in 1:04:51, and the second was a back-arm and half-Nelson in 25:43.

The Turk was the aggressor throughout, Zybszko playing a waiting game, merely jumping in when he saw a good opening. Probably the Pole was not on top more than a dozen times in one and one-half hours of wrestling.

Arrangements Complete.

The date and place of the meeting between Gotch and Zbyszko is to be decided later, nothing but the verbal agreement for the match having been entered into.

All the prominent wrestlers who could reach the scene were on hand, including Frank Gotch, Joe Rogers, of New York, was introduced and challenged the winner, but he has little chance to peek in where there is a match with Gotch in sight. The crowd showed patience with the slowness of the match.

Pole's Judgment Good.

The Pole showed the class of his judgment when he won the first fall from Mahmout by rolling him over with an ordinary wing-lock, ending in a crotch hold and half-Nelson, in 1:04:51. The crowd went wild and the contestants were half carried from the ring, tired out from their efforts.

A short fight between over enthusiastic bugs relieved the monotony during the intermission, but no fatalities were reported.

The second bout went along on the same lines as the first, the Turk doing the heavy work. Several times he failed to get away with anything because of Zbyszko's strength. As on the first fall the Pole jumped in when the opportunity offered, caught a back bar and half-Nelson and had two points to the mat when the timers' watch hit 25:43.

MR. HERMAN DYING OF STONE IN THE BLADDER

Gin Pills passed the Stone

513 James St., Hamilton.

"Four years ago I was taken down with what the doctors called Inflammation of the Bladder—intense pains in the back and loins, great pain and difficulty in urinating. The pain was greatest in the region of the bladder, and the attacks, which became more frequent, amounted to unbearable agony, and I became so weak that I could not walk across the floor. Doctors could do nothing to help me. My wife read in the paper about Gin Pills and sent for a box.

From the very first I felt that Gin Pills were doing me good. The pain was relieved at once, and the attacks were less frequent. In six weeks the Stone in the Bladder came away and the pain stopped entirely. I have had no return of the trouble and have not lost a day's work on account of it. I cannot express myself strong enough when I speak of what Gin Pills have done for me. When I remember how I suffered, and how now I am healthy and well and strong and able to do a full day's work, I feel I should speak and tell other sufferers of my experience and of the wonderful merits of Gin Pills."

JOHN HERMAN

You don't have to buy Gin Pills to test them. Simply write The National Drug & Chemical Co. Dept. B. Toronto, and a free sample will be sent you by return mail. When you have used the sample and feel that at last you have found the remedy that will do you good—then buy Gin Pills at your dealer's—50c. a box, 6 for $2.50. Remember, please, that Gin Pills are sold on a positive guarantee of a cure or your money back. And this guarantee is backed by the largest wholesale drug house in Canada, who will take your unsupported word if you want your money refunded.

PICKING THE WINNERS IN MARATHON DERBY

The task of picking a favourite for the Marathon Derby to be run at the Polo grounds, New York, Saturday afternoon, is by no means an easy one, but a thorough sifting of the candidates shows Thure Johansen, the wonderful Swede, coached and managed by Ernie Hjertberg, and Hans Holmer, of Canada, handled by A. Copeland, as the most likely candidates for the big prize. At that experts have only the one race to judge Johansen by—the one in which he ran Hans Holmer and Jim Crowley into the ground. In this event he ran the fastest 26 miles, 385 yards ever done by a human being either indoors or outdoors, on a slippery ten-lap track.

Johansen has what so many Marathoners lack — speed alond with his tremendous endurance. He can run a slashing fifteen miles and still go on to the Marathon distance as though he was just out for a little warming up spin. In the race in which he broke the Marathon record Johansen did not do anything like his best. He ran most of the distance on a schedule, and only cut loose in the last five miles when Hjertberg saw that Crowley and Holmer were "all in," and easy picking for any one who could put one foot in front of the other for five miles.

Johansen is a remarkable athlete in that he is a vegetarian and has been for three years past. He eats beans, nuts, fruit and all such things, and loses much less weight in his races than the average meat-eating athlete. For instance, in the race in which he broke the record Johansen lost but one pound in running the 26 1-4 miles.

The only condition that may upset Johansen is running on a grass track. He has never run a big race on the turf, but Ernie Hjertberg says that after the rought road work he has been doing the Polo grounds track will look like a billiard table to Johansen.

About Hans Holmer.

To turn to Hans Holmer—the Halifax boy has an enviable record. Commencing with his defeat of Chuck Skeene at a mile at the C. A. A. U. games at Halifax, in 1908, he has made things hum. At Montreal in 1908, Holmer chased Longboat into town in lively style in 15 miles, and the same fall he cleaned up the Hamilton road race, beating a classy field. When he turned pro. Fred Meadows cleaned him up nicely at 15 miles and so did Abbie Wood in a Marathon at Montreal last spring, run in 2.39, but at Belleville Holmer won the pro. Marathon in 2.44.49 and went right on and won the Plattsburg Marathon in 2.44.31, and the Atlantic City Marathon in 2.32.40. Now Johansen's best time in 2.32.55 1-5, made in an indoor Marathon. Holmer's 2.32.40, made outdoors, certainly looks good to Canucks. Holmer—big, flat-footed pounder that he is — can go the route and is as courageous as a lion. He is cool, too, and under Al. Copeland should land a generous slice of the $10,000 prize money.

However, it is a classy bunch all the way and Johansen, Holmer, Sellen, Acoose, Mendows and Crowley all have a chance.

CURE FOR WHOOPING COUGH

Mrs. William Ball, Bracebridge, Ont. writes: "My three boys had whooping cough and we could get nothing to help them until we used Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine. It arrested the coughs at once and they kept on improving until they were cured at the cost of one dollar. This was not a large bill for so dangerous and distressing an ailment."

First Proposition Of The Canadian General Company

The folowing letter explains the Canadian General Electric Company's first proposition to the city:

Ald. G. A. Gillespie, President, Board of Trade, Peterborough, Ont.

Dear Sir,—With regard to the negotiations between the City authorities and our Company, it seems to me that the matter has not been given as thorough consideration as the importance of the subject demands. I would submit the following for your serious consideration, and for you to judge as to whether you consider it advisable to bring the matter up before the Board of Trade, and again, possibly, before your confreres in the Council.

The proposition that our Mr. Nicholls, Second Vice President and General Manager, made to the Mayor and yourself; was that the City should equip and install at the Water Works dam, the necessary apparatus and machinery to utilize the surplus power, and sell it to us at $10 per h.p., in the event of our spending $100,000 on buildings and equipment, and for every additional $100,000.00 that we spend in like manner, the price for the power to automatically drop $1.00 per h.p., and when we had spent $600,000, the price per h.p. would automatically have fallen to $5.00, to remain at that price, no matter how much more we should spend in increasing our factory.

If an agreement were reached between the City and the Canadian General Electric Co. on this basis, the attached table will show how much revenue the City would get from this Company. I would particularly draw your attention to the fact that in twenty years we would have paid the City $120,000, for the use of the power, and the total cost to the City would be $95,000.

The Water Commissioners have been advised by their consulting Engineer that the cost to develop the surplus power at the Water Works dam would be from $60,000 to $65,000, and assuming that it would cost $65,000, there would be about $15,000 worth of electrical apparatus. We offered to install this equipment and take our pay in power, which would mean that the City would only have to issue debentures for $50,000. Capitalizing the 16,0000, on a basis of selling debentures at par, bearing 4½ interest, and providing a sinking fund for redemption in twenty years at 8½ per cent., means that our offer would save the city $1,275 per year in interest and sinking fund, which, in twenty years, amounts to $25,500, or $1.25 per h.p.

The remainder of the amount necessary to develop the surplus power, $50,000, capitalized on the same basis, would mean $4,250 a year that the City would have to raise, or for twenty years, $85,000 on a total yearly cost per h.p. of $4.75.

The proposition that the City authorities have submitted to this Company is that we spend $200,000. They would give us the surplus power at $12 per h.p.; if we spend $400,000, $11.00 per h.p.; if we spend $600,000, at $10.00 per h.p., and then remain at that figure. This would mean, if we were to take the power from the City on that basis, when paying the City $12 per h.p. it would actually cost us $12.75 per h.p., which I will later show.

I am sure if Peterborough is to grow and increase in population and importance, it must necessarily grow through its manufacturing industries, and if the City is not prepared to give its advantages to either its present manufacturers who wish to grow, or to those who wish to locate here, at cost to the City, then the City has nothing to offer to induce any manufacturers to locate here or to induce its present manufacturing industries to grow and expand. I am informed that in Welland, the manufacturers who have located there purchase their power at $13.00 per h.p., and have been told that the price in Orillia is $12.50 per h.p., delivered, without any further cost, and you will readily see that there is not much chance for this city to get manufacturers on a basis of supplying them with power if the power is not supplied at cost, because the advantages of locating in the cities are so considerable that unless the power is sold at cost there would be no advantage in locating here.

In the terms in which the City authorities have stated they are prepared to sell us this power, it is also stipulated that we would have to operate the power house, which means labour, maintenance and repairs, and also provides the means of distributing the power to ourselves. The cost of labour for operating the power house, maintenance and repairs, etc., will be probably from $2.00 to $3.00 per h.p. Regarding the cost of distribution, Mr. Larmonth informs me that it costs the Peterborough Light and Power Co. between $6.00 and $7.00 per h.p. to distribute their power over the city. The report of the Ontario Hydro Commission is that the cost of distribution is from $3 to $7 per h.p., with an average of $5.00 per h.p. for distributing power, and I feel quite satisfied, when I tell you that it will be $2 per h.p., to distribute it from the Water Works dam to ourselves, that I am not extravagant in this figure.

Summing up the proposition from the city, you will see that the price per h.p. is $12, to which must be added the cost of operation and maintenance, $2 to $3, then $2 for distribution and $1.25 that we are prepared to bear in interest and sinking fund, and we find that the cost figures up to $17.75 per h.p., whereas it will actually cost the city $4.75 per h.p.

From the attached table you will see that in the first ten years we will pay the City $70,000, and in the next ten years, $50,000, and save them $25,500 in interest and sinking fund, or $145,000, which, deducting $15,000, value of the electrical apparatus which would be paid for in power, means that we would pay the city $130,500, whereas the total cost to the City is $95,000.

I am sure that the City Council and the citizens want to see the City grow, both by its present manufacturing concerns expanding and by securing others, and I think that if the members of the City Council will go over their figures again carefully, they will see that it is much in the interests of the city, generally, that everything be done to accomplish the above results, particularly when it does not cost the City one dollar. This Company cannot expand without more power being available and secured.

Yours truly,
CANADIAN GENERAL ELECTRIC CO., LIMITED.
General Superintendent.

Proposition Made By The City To The Canadian General Co.

In connection with the power question between the Council and the Canadian General Electric Co. there were [illegible] propositions made by the Council to the Company. The Council first offered the 1,000 h.p. at $12 per horse power, if the Company spent $200,000 in improvements and extensions, or at $11. per horse power, if they spent $400,000, or at $10 per horse power, if the company spent $600,000, or over. The Company refused to consider the above, at all, and after a great deal of discussion between Mr. Nicholls and Mayor Morrow and Mr. T. F. Matthews, chairman of the Water Commissioners, the city made an offer, by which the Electric Co. would take the dam as it is, put up a power house and equip it with all machinery, and pay the city $2,500 a year for ten years and $5,000 for the next ten years. The reply to this was the letter read at the Council yesterday afternoon.

Great Rush Is Being Made To Northwest

Montreal, March 31.—Mr. J. S. Dennis, superintendent of Irrigation and Canadian Pacific Land Commissioner for British Columbia, who is here today on his way to St. John, N.B., to meet the first considerable party of settlers for the "improved farms" prepared by the C. P. R. east of Calgary, made the announcement to-day that the Canadian Pacific Railway Company will spend this year two million dollars in preliminary work in the central and eastern part of the six million acre section set apart for irrigation purposes.

At the beginning of the year 1650 miles of canals and ditches serving 370,000 acres of land were completed in the western part, and practically all the lands in that division have been sold. When the work now in hand in the central and eastern divisions of the section has been finished there will be 6,000 miles of canals and ditches serving 1,150,000 acres.

Mr. Dennis says the movement of farmers from the United States to Canadian farms this year is so great as to amount to a stampede from the republic. It is already equal to that of the two previous years combined. The cause of it is the exceedingly mild open spring which has been most favourable to cultivation, and to settlement on the new selections as well as to a vigorous publicity campaign.

The demand for land this year has been so great that it is most difficult to serve the prospective settlers. The farmers are really quarrelling to get the lands. They don't even take the trouble to examine the lands before purchase. They buy them first and examine them afterwards, relying for their knowledge upon the company's description. The number coming from England this year is about three times the usual amount at this time. The quantity of land broken up this spring will exceed that of all previous years. Disking and harrowing commenced early in March, and when Mr. Dennis left Calgary the steamplougha were working day and night, making the prairies bright with their head lights after nightfall.

The party due at St. John is 160 in number, all from England.

MILITARY FUNERAL.

All members of the Peterborough Garrison, who can do so, are asked to turn out at the Armouries, at 1.30 o'clock, to-morrow (Saturday) afternoon, in uniform, to attend the funeral of Private E. Moss, 57th Regiment. Members of No. 2 Company of the 57th are asked to turn out at 8 o'clock to-night at the Armouries, to form a firing party.

DORANDO BEAT LONGBOAT

Pittsburg, March 31.—With a lead of only fifty feet Dorando, the little Italian runner, to-night beat Tom Longboat, the Canadian runner, in a foot race of twenty miles at Exposition Rink. It was one of the closest races perhaps ever run, for at no time was the leader more than half a lap ahead of his adversary. The time was 1.54.08 2-5. Dorando took the lead in the start and was never headed, save in the fourth and fifth miles, in which Longboat led, but he was unable to retain the lead. Both the winner and the loser were almost dead from fatigue at the end of the race and the last two laps, with not more than twenty feet separating, was a gruelling finish.

Passed the 100-Million Dollar Mark.

Ottawa, April 1.—The country's fiscal year closed yesterday, and it is announced that the customs revenue has passed the hundred-million dollar mark.

The revenue is an increase of two and a half millions over Mr. Fielding's estimate in his December budget speech.

The customs revenue will, it is estimated, total over $61,000,000 when the final figures are in. This is an increase of nearly three millions over the highest previous record, namely, $58,331,000 for the twelve months ending March, 1908. As compared with last year, it is an increase of a little over thirteen millions.

The receipts for the month ending yesterday total $5,979,989, an increase of $1,232,697, or about 25 per cent. as compared with March of last year.

Serious Fire at Chatham.

Chatham, April 1.—Fire at 6 o'clock yesterday morning in James King's hardware store did $12,000 damage to that place, while smoke and water damaged the stock of C. Austin & Co., dry goods, to the extent of $10,000; George Weynell's clothing stock also suffered. Loss to building is $4,000.

Chief Pritchard was cut by falling glass and Firemen Pritchard and Ellwood were overcome by smoke in the basement, but soon recovered.

Goat Causes $75,000 Fire.

Trenton, N.J., April 1.—"King Bill," a lodge goat, was responsible Wednesday night for the destruction by fire of the Ribsam Building, one of the handsomest and most modern business structures in the heart of the city. The loss is $75,000.

The upper storeys were occupied by fraternal organizations. One of the lodges was initiating, when the goat became balky and upset a lighted lamp.

"Rider" Nullified Award.

Brantford, April 1.—The action for damages for the death of William Hawke, engineer, killed in the explosion at Ungar-Williamson Laundry last year, was concluded at the Assizes before Justice Clute. The jury gave a verdict for $2,000, but added a rider stating that the accident could have been avoided by reasonable care on the part of the engineer. The judge thereupon dismissed the action.

A Lesson to Britain.

Cape Town, April 1—(C.A.P. Cable.)—Commenting on the success of Canada's negotiations with the United States, The Cape Town Times draws attention to the obvious lesson which these events convey to Britain. In fiscal matters, it declares, so far as a commercial federation is concerned, British politicians must adopt a very different attitude from that shown by Lloyd-George.

Vernons Show Class As Roller Skaters

One of the best exhibitions given on roller skates in this city was seen last night at the Brock Street Roller Rink, when Mr. and Mrs. Vernon produced some of the most difficult feats on rollers. The [illegible] was in attendance and skat[illegible] allowed to skate during acts.

Skating on stilts [illegible] first number on the programme. On these skates the two performed all usual twists and turns. This act was concluded by Mr. Vernon skating between eighteen burning candles on the front trucks of the skates. The next was a double exhibition of scientific trick and acrobatic skating, followed by every style of two-step. The feature of this act was the barn-dance. The concluding "stunt" of the evening was the auto skates. Mr. Vernon has two small aluminum automobiles equipped with every fixtute of a modern automobile, even to the numbers. On these autos, weighing together thirty-two pounds, Mr. Vernon performs every act that he did in the preceding part of his programme. Mr Vernon and wife will present a new set of feats at the Brock Street Rink to-night.

SOME SOUND ADVICE TO CHEESE MAKERS

From Farm and Dairy.

Dr. C. A. Publow, Ithaca, N. Y.

Ontario cheese makers are internationally recognized as the best cheese makers in the world. I feel proud to be classed with them in anything of so high a rating. But let me say also that the making of cheese in itself is not the only accomplishment for us to observe both in the future and right now. What reputation we may have, we have won by doing things, and if we are to hold our good name, then we must keep on doing things. A baseball championship is won or lost in a single game, and one man may be responsible for either; a horse may lose a championship in less than two minutes; the Americans lost the European export trade on cheese in a single season. It's hard to keep on top, and we can't do it by standing still. New Zealand and others are after our markets, and we as factory managers must do more than manufacture cheese.

MAKERS AS INSTRUCTORS.

At present you have in Eastern Ontario about 30 dairy instructors. In the State of New York we have six cheese instructors, but we have over 1,400 persons whose duty it is to instruct the farmers in the production of clean milk. Now to my mind there is no reason why every factory manager should not be a dairy instructor. He knows or should know best the needs of his own patrons, he meets them or can reach them any or every day, and if he is the right kind of chap they will do as he asks. Think what it would mean to have 1,000 such instructors instead of 30, right here in Eastern Ontario. The regular instructors are all right, but they only get around about once a month. It seems to me that if the makers would do their part it would only be necessary to have the instructors attend to difficult or obstinate cases which the makers might not be able to handle, and results would be much more noticeable.

We say we are kept so busy in factory work we cannot find time to look after the patrons. But we can. I have been long enough in factory work to know we can. The trouble with most of us is we don't know how and don't try to find out. I tell you men we don't do enough. We don't think enough. We are more like transfer companies carrying other men's ideas. Why don't we have more originality and more enthusiasm in our work? This country gives us strong bodies and brains. We use the body too much and the brains not enough. We talk about cheese makers' unions and raising the wage scale, but let me say right here that the best union we can have is a union with the patrons of our own factories. This is the union that will determine a man's worth and his salary; the union that brings greater profits to the farmer and the one co-operative necessity in successful factory management.

AN UNIQUE STATE OF AFFAIRS.

We criticise the farmer, but gentlemen, the farmers are the finest people in the land. They are most generous in their own way, and willing to do the best they know how. They are conservative and content to let well enough alone till something else proves better. Now it's up to us to show them the things that are better. The milk business is theirs, the product is theirs, and they should control their business. Did you ever stop to consider this peculiar and unique state of affairs? Farmers hire a man to work for them, but unconsciously the farmers work for the factory manager instead. They take his orders and his abuses, and in the great majority of cases do as he bids them. Now, surely this should not be the case. It is so in no other business that I can think of. The farmers should know better their own part in the work and then be able to control the men they employ. Then and only then will our factory managers be compelled to perfect themselves in their chosen professions in order to hold the select positions and demand the larger salaries.

SPRING CARE OF THE FARM

From Farm and Dairy.

Spring is at hand and it is time to be getting ready to put in the crops. Among other things to think of in this connection is the matter of getting the horses into condition. The first work in the spring is the hardest of the year, and the horses are the least prepared to do heavy work. To be deprived of the use of a horse in the spring is serious, even though the horse is not greatly depreciated in value or lost entirely. Young horses, especially, should be broken and given some work during the winter and should be fed some grain. This will toughen their shoulders and at the same time they will have become accustomed to grain and will, therefore, be less liable to colic, and in every way better able to stand the work.

A sudden change of food in horses is always dangerous, but to start a colt in on grain, with heavy work, that has never had either, is almost sure to be disastrous. A young horse especially cannot stand heavy pulling all day on soft ground unless his shoulders are well hardened by regular work in the collar.

Here are a few suggestions which will be well worth remembering:

When a horse is tired he is much more subject to colic. Do not change the feed on the horse during heavy spring work. There is much more danger in feeding corn or wheat than there is in feeding oats. Water your horses when you first bring them in from the field; then let them eat hay for a half hour, and give them their grain last. Pull their shoes off while doing the spring work.

Remember, the horse will have a heavy coat of hair, and will, therefore, sweat easily and be all the more likely to catch cold and get pneumonia. For the first week or two bathe the neck and shoulders with cold water every night and after the day's work is done. See that the collar fits snug and that the hames are buckled up tight. The shoulders are less likely to be scalded and bruised without a pad than with it. If the horse gets sweenied, he will have to be laid off for several months. Guard against that dangerous disease—azoturia. This disease almost invariably comes on after the horse has been resting two or three days during a storm and kept on full feed. Reduce the grain at least one-half while the horse is not at work.

Founder is caused from too much feed, a sudden change of food, or a drink of water when the animal is warm. Distemper is especially liable to attack the young horses in the spring of the year, just when their services are most valuable. This disease is contagious, and care should be exercised against exposing the young horses to the infection. The most common way that young horses get this disease is when they are taken to town and allowed to drink out of public watering troughs and tied to hitching posts where other horses have been tied that had the disease.—G. H. Glover, D.V.S., Colorado Agricultural College.

THE USE OF LIME-SULPHUR

From Farm and Dairy.

The increasing importance of the lime-sulphur wash as an aid to fruit growers was well attested by the interest taken in Professor Harcourt's lectures on this insecticide and fungicide at the short course in fruit growing that was held at Guelph. The professor stated that lime-sulphur, as a spray material, is a compound made by boiling together lime (fresh stone) and sulphur, either the flowers or the finely ground flour. From 45 minutes to one hour's sharp boiling is sufficient. Once the lime has entered into combination with the sulphur, further boiling causes the wash to deteriorate in value and at the end of two hours the wash may be of much less value than at the end of one hour.

There are two general classes of these compounds used, the home-boiled and the commercial brands. The home boiled is usually made by boiling together 15 lbs. of sulphur and 12 lbs. of lime (fresh stone) in about ¼ of a barrel of water. When boiled sufficiently it is made up to 40 gals. and applied while warm. This gives a great excess of lime, which, when the wash cools, causes the sulphides to crystallize, thus lessening the value of the spray. If crystallization takes place, heating will render the crystals solutle again. The excess of lime is useful as an aid to holding the wash on the tree and making it easy to see what you have covered. This wash is always used as a winter spray and is prepared at home.

COMMERCIAL BRANDS

The commercial brands are made in factories. In these a great excess of sulphur is used and they are made up in concentrated form and shipped to the grower who is directed to dilute for a winter spray at the rate of about 1 to 10 or 12, according to the make. As there is an excess of sulphur in these compounds, crystallisation does not take place so that cold water can be used to dilute the spray and it can be applied cold. It has been generally found useful to add lime to these sprays in order to make them stink and to indicate the thoroughness of the application.

Home-made concentrated lime-sulphur is being used now as a substitute for the commercial brands. This is made by boiling together 50 lbs. of lime and 100 lbs. of sulphur in 15 gals. of water. When done boiling it is made up to 40 gals. This can be stored in barrels the same as the commercial article and diluted from 5 to 8 times for a winter spray.

As many factors enter into the question of the strength of a spray, there is a great variability in the strength both of the commercial washes and the home-made. A large number of lime-sulphur home-boiled sprays that were doing effectual work were gathered from various parts of Ontario and tested at the O.A.C. The average showed a specific gravity of 1.028 by the hydrometer. Experiments made in the United States indicate that this is about what the specific gravity of a good winter spray should be. It would seem that the hydrometer should be a satisfactory method of testing a spray. Many times unnecessarily strong sprays are applied and again weak useless ones. By means of a hydrometer every barrel of spray applied could be made of uniform strength. If too strong, dilute; if too weak, boil down. It will also form an accurate test for commercial sprays.—D.S.

DRY DOCK SUBSIDIES

Minister of Public Works Turns Neat April Fool Jest When Called on For the List of Conservative Papers That Get Advertising From the Government—Sir Wilfrid Outlines the Work Yet to Come.

Ottawa, April 2.—Hon. Mr. Fielding has given notice of a resolution providing for an important change in the subsidy provisions for aid to drydocks.

At present the act authorizes a subsidy of three per cent. per annum for twenty years on a maximum expenditure of $1,500,000. The new act will provide for a considerable extension of this aid with a view to encouraging the construction of the largest class of drydocks, capable of accommodating the largest warships of the British navy as well as the largest ocean steamers.

In supply on the dredging estimates the Opposition entered their annual protest against the withholding of Government advertising from Conservative newspapers in Ontario.

Shortly before the evening recess Mr. Blain asked the Minister of Public Wrks to produce a list of the Conservative newspapers in Ontario in which the Government advertised invitations to tender for contracts.

When the House resumed last night, Mr. Blain asked for the list, and Mr. Pugsley handed a paper to a page, and went on with explanations about another matter.

A moment later Mr. Blain arose. "The Minister has not given me what I asked for," he said. "I wanted a list of the newspapers in which the advertisements appeared, and he has sent me a blank sheet of paper."

"I think," replied Mr. Pugsley sweetly, "that the hon. gentleman is mistaken. I have sent him exactly what he asked for. If he casts his mind back, he will remember that he first asked for a list of the newspapers in which the advertisements appeared, but later said that he would be satisfied with a list of the Conservative papers. I have sent him that. If I had given him a sheet of paper with any names on it, it would have been a false return. So how could I do anything else?"

Dr. Sproule severely lectured the Minister on "playing a boy's prank," and then the debate turned into the familiar dispute as to whether the patronage list had been abolished.

The Opposition said "No." Dr. Pugsley said "Yes." Finally Pugsley settled the matter with a burst of characteristic candor.

"There's no use being hypocritical over these things," he said. "If my hon. friend Mr. Blain were in my position to-morrow, he would not give a single advertisement to a Liberal newspaper."

"How do you know it?" asked Mr. Blain.

"I know it by my hon. friend's appearance," replied the Minister calmly. "I know it by the satirical look on his face."

In reply to R. L. Borden, who asked what further Government legislation the House might expect this session, Sir Wilfrid Laurier said there would be some resolutions to amend the legislation regarding subsidies to dry docks, the renewal of some railway subsidies, but no new ones, an amendment of the Ottawa Improvement Commission Act, and legislation regarding judicial appointments rendered necessary by the action of the local Legislatures.

The Premier's resolution that the House should meet every sitting day hence until the end of the session at 11 a.m. was passed.

The House then went into committee on public works' estimates.

Mr. Pugsley explained that the $90,000 vote for Tiffin Harbor would about complete the work of dredging that harbor to depth of twenty-five feet at low water. This was one of the works recommended by the commission on transportation. The Grand Trunk was spending several millions at Tiffin and expected to be able to divert to Canadian ports much of the grain trade now going to Buffalo.

Mr. Bradbury asked Mr. Pugsley if it was proposed to construct a fishway at St. Andrew's locks. He said he had discussed the matter with the Department of Marine and Fisheries, and the Deputy Minister had agreed that a fishway should be provided so that fish can get up the Red River from Lake Winnipeg. Mr. Pugsley said the matter had not yet been drawn to his attention, but that he would inquire into it.

Mr. German expressed the opinion that no public funds should be expended on Port Credit Harbor. It was rumored that private interests had acquired it with a view to selling it to the Government after improvements had been made at a profit.

Mr. Blain of Peel did not agree to this proposal. If there was any such scheme afoot, he said, it was confined to the political friends of the Government.

It has been arranged that consideration of H. H. Miller's anti-gambling bill will be taken up in the Commons on Wednesday next.

It is expected that there will be a somewhat protracted discussion in the committee stage of the bill, but the probabilities are that it will pass.

A Thousand Foreigners Out In Hamilton

Constables Watch the Plant and are on Duty to Prevent Trouble---One Man is Arrested---The Men are Said to be in an Ugly Mood.

Hamilton, April 2.—Practically the whole of the police force reported at six o'clock this morning to protect the Hamilton Steel Plant from the foreign laborers on strike. Both the company and the police look for trouble. Carlo Basle, 300 North Sherman avenue, was arrested last night near the works on a charge of carrying a revolver and a knife. His story is that he is not a striker, but remained at work all day, and was afraid to go home for fear of the strikers. He says the foreman gave him the revolver to protect himself with.

Nearly 1,600 laborers struck yesterday morning for an increase from 15 to 18 cents an hour. They were evidently in an ugly mood, and the company lost no time in applying for police protection. Chief Smith and a posse of armed men guarded both the Queen street and the east end plants of the company all day, and more officers were kept in reserve. The strikers were hustled off the ground just as fast as they dropped their tools. No one was injured, although an attack was made on Constable Duffy.

The journeymen carpenters and the linemen employed by the Cataract Power Co. have made demands for an increase in wages.

Found Seven Bodies.

Montreal, April 2.—Montreal's spring cleaning resulted in the finding of seven dead bodies in different parts of the city yesterday. Two unidentified men were taken from the canal, a baby's body was found in Mount Royal Park, another near Notre Dame Church, and three men were picked up along the waterfront.

Skull Fractured.

St. Catharines, April 2.—Yesterday afternoon, John Allen, who works for the Roe Motor Co., was thrown from an auto and had his skull fractured. He will probably die.

Australia Willing to Pay for Men.

London, April 2.—As a branch of the Central unemployed body, a league has been formed in South Australia. The London secretary states that the body will be delighted to send more men to Australia if only because they get money advanced for fares returned much more regularly and quickly than from those they send to Canada when they only get a dollar or ten dollars from the Dominion, they often get a sovereign or ten pounds from Australia.

N.Y.C. Increases.

New York, April 2.—The New York Central Railroad has increased the salaries of all employes receiving $100 or less a month on the lines east of Buffalo by 7 per cent., excepting the engineers of way and maintenance, whose pay was recently increased, and the trainmen, conductors and telegraph operators, whose demands are now under consideration.

The addition means an approximate increase in the annual pay roll of $2,500,000.

No Coal Conspiracy.

Halifax, N.S., April 2.—The grand jury yesterday found "no bill" in the cases of the King v. Duck and the King v. Cowans.

These are the famous conspiracy cases which occupied the attention of the City Court from October last till February.

Liberals Hold Mid-Glamorgan.

London, April 2.—The result of the Mid-Glamorgan bye-election was F. W. Gibbons, Liberal, 8,220; Hartshorn, Labor, 6,310.

The vacancy was caused by the resignation of Sir S. T. Evans (Lib.).

Pickets Prohibited.

Halifax, April 2.—In the Supreme Court yesterday, Judge Lawrence granted an injunction to restrain strikers from picketing the Dominion Coal Co.

THE LIQUOR STATISTICS

There Are 149 Licenses Less Issued For 1910 Than For 1909—Commitments For 1909 Show an Increase, However, Despite Local Option Methods — Total of Fines Received During Year $34,330.25

Toronto, April 2.—Issued by the license branch of the Provincial Secretary's office yesterday, the 34th annual report respecting the operation of the liquor license laws of the province shows that a reduction of 113 tavern and shop licenses were made in 1908-9, as compared to the previous year, and for the current license year (1909-10) to date, there have been issued only 1,863 tavern and 244 shop licenses, which represents a further reduction of 149.

This is accounted for by the increasing number of municipalities in which local option is being brought into force and the reduction of licenses authorized by municipal bylaws.

The form of the report has been somewhat improved. The figures given this year are more compactly arranged and show more clearly the operation of the act for the license year.

A statement of license revenue for the financial year of 1907-08, and up to Oct. 31, 1909, shows a decrease each year, thus:

1907—Brewers' warehouse licenses, $5,533.34; breweries licenses, $33,826.20; distillers, $43,160.66; wholesale, $9,300.25; tavern, shop, club, transfers and fines, $479,918.15; refund for collection of revenue and premium on bonds, $2,817; refund on detective services, $195; total $587,126.60.

1908—Brewers' warehouse licenses, $6,300; brewers, $30,582.50; distillers, $44,666.67; wholesalers, $9,487.75; tavern, shop, transfers and fines, $485,098.44; refund for collection of revenue and premium on fidelity bonds, $1,655.75; total, $577,771.11.

1909—Brewers warehouses, $7,000; brewers, $31,400; distillers, $44,666.67; wholesalers, $8,600; sample and commission licenses, $3,900; seized liquors, $1,133.83; taverns, shop licenses, transfers and fines, $254,896.29; refund for collection of revenue and premium on fidelity bonds, $2,186.75; fines from L.O., Thamesville, $146.52; total, $353,929.06.

There were nine more fines imposed for selling liquor in local option sections in 1909 than the previous year, and $1,035 more collected.

There were 3,857 less licenses of all varieties—tavern, shop, wholesale, vessels and club—issued last year than in the initial year 1874, and 2,783 less tavern licenses. Thirty-four years ago there were 4,733 tavern licenses as against 2,010 last year; 1,307 shop licenses, as against 253; 52 wholesale, as against 23; 33 vessels, against 0; no club licenses, against 42; total $6,185 as against 2,328.

The aggregate amount received for licenses in all municipalities last year was $393,203.23, of which the province received $409,654.19.

The total amount received in fines in all licensed districts last year was $34,330.25; for transfers of licenses, $41,068.50.

There were 237 more commitments to jail for drunkenness in 1909 than the previous year, throughout the province, and 1,297 more than in 1895. There were 252 cases of infraction of the liquor license act prosecuted last year, 168 being convictions and 84 dismissals.

Village Policeman Was Navvy.

Brockville, April 2.—Ford Ormiston of Gananoque, and W. Blair of this town, with police records, made things lively in the little village of Morristown, on the American border, opposite Brockville. Blair burglarized a bosthouse and started for the Canadian side, followed by the village cop. Blair used the oars to fight off the officer, but the constable won out. Blair gets a sentence of three months and Ormiston was driven out of town.

Another Strike.

Denver, Colo., April 2.—A strike of 3,000 miners of the Northern Colorado coal fields, effective to-day, was ordered yesterday, following the refusal of the operators to grant the compromise demands of approximately 5.55 per cent. for day workers, an advance of four cents a ton for pick mining and three cents a ton for machine-mined coal.

Short Shift For Veto.

London, April 2.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—The Canadian Associated Press learns that the Government will give only a week's consideration to the veto bill after its introduction.

It is expected the bill will be presented to the Lords before the end of April. Should the Government fail to pass the veto proposals through the Lords they will not resign, but will advise dissolution and ask Parliament for a vote on account to carry them through a general election.

It is anticipated that dissolution will take place before the end of May.

Australia Wants Juveniles.

London, April 2.—Sir George Reid, speaking in London, said he was sent to increase emigration to Australia. He is making very strong representations to the Government to arrange for thousands of poor law children to go to Australia. Juvenile emigration is the best emigration, he says.

Not So Much Publicity.

Washington, D. C., April 2.—That the corporation tax law will be amended to restrict the operation of its publicity feature was virtually assured yesterday, when the House slightly amended a provision previously adopted by the Senate for that purpose.

THE PORT OF MISSING MEN

By MEREDITH NICHOLSON,

Author of "The House of a Thousand Candles"

COPYRIGHT, 1907, BY THE BOBBS-MERRILL COMPANY

"Oh, the cigarette case!" and he held it up. "It's really mine, and I'm going to keep it. It was very damaging evidence. It would argue strongly against me in any court of law."

Shirley came suddenly upon him.

"Yes; I believe that is true." And she looked at the trinket with frank interest.

"But I particularly do not wish to have to meet that charge in any court of law, Miss Claiborne."

She met his gaze very steadily, and her eyes were grave. Then she asked in much the same tone that she would have used if they had been very old friends and he had excused himself for not riding that day or for not going upon a hunt or to the theater:

"Why?"

"Because I have a pledge to keep and a work to do, and if I were forced to defend myself from the charge of being the false Baron von Kissel everything would be spoiled. You see, unfortunately—most unfortunately—I am not quite without responsibilities, and I have come down into the mountains, where I hope not to be shot and tossed over a precipice until I have had time to watch certain people and certain events for a little while. I tried to say as much to Captain Claiborne, but I saw that my story did not impress him. And now I have said the same thing to you"—

He waited, gravely watching her, hat in hand.

"And I have stood here and listened to you and done exactly what Captain Claiborne would not wish me to do under any circumstances," said Shirley.

"You are infinitely kind and generous"—

"No. I do not wish you to think me either of those things—of course not!" Her conclusion was abrupt and pointed.

"Then"—

"Then I will tell you—what I have not told any one else—that I know very well that you are not the person who appeared at Bar Harbor three years ago and palmed himself off as the Baron von Kissel."

"You know it—you are quite sure of it?" he asked blankly.

"Certainly. I saw that person—at Bar Harbor. I had gone up from Newport for a week—I was even at a tea where he was quite the lion, and I am sure you are not the same person."

Her directness—her manner of speech, her decisive tone, in which she placed the matter of his identity on a purely practical and unsentimental plane, gave him a new impression of her character.

"But Captain Claiborne"—

He ceased suddenly and she anticipated the question at which he had faltered and answered, a little icily:

"I do not consider it any of my business to meddle in your affairs with my brother. He undoubtedly believes you are the impostor who palmed himself off at Bar Harbor as the Baron von Kissel. He was told so"—

"By M. Chauvenet."

"So he said."

"And of course he is a capital witness. There is no doubt of Chauvenet's entire credibility," declared Armitage, a little airily.

"I should say not," said Shirley unresponsively. "I am quite as sure that he was not the false baron as I am that you were not."

Armitage laughed.

"That is a little pointed."

"It was meant to be," said Shirley sternly. "It is"—she weighed the word—"ridiculous that both of you should be here."

"Thank you for my half! I didn't know he was here! But I am not exactly here—I have a much safer place." He swept the blue hilled horizon with his hand. "M. Chauvenet and I will not shoot at each other in the hotel dining room. But I am really relieved that he has come. We have an interesting fashion of running into each other. It would positively grieve me to be obliged to wait long for him."

He smiled and thrust his hat under his arm. The sun was dropping behind the great western barricade, and a chill wind crept sharply over the valley.

He started to walk beside her as she turned away, but she paused abruptly.

"Oh, this won't do at all! I can't be seen with you, even in the shadow of my own house. I must trouble you to take the side gate," and she indicated it by a nod of her head.

"Not if I know myself! I am not a fraudulent member of the German nobility—you have told me so yourself. Your conscience is clear. I assure you mine is equally so! And I am not a person, Miss Claiborne, to sneak out by side gates, particularly when I came over the fence! It's a long way around anyhow, and I have a horse over there somewhere by the inn."

"My brother"—

"Is at Fort Myer, of course. At about this hour they are having dress parade, and he is thoroughly occupied."

"But—there is M. Chauvenet. He has nothing to do but amuse himself."

They had reached the veranda steps, and she ran to the top and turned for a moment to look at him. He still carried his hat and crop in one hand and had dropped the other into the side pocket of his coat. He was wholly at ease, and the wind ruffled his hair and gave him a boyish look that Shirley liked. But she had no wish to be found with him, and she instantly nodded his dismissal and half turned away to go into the house, when he detained her for a moment.

"I am perfectly willing to afford M. Chauvenet all imaginable entertainment. We are bound to have many meetings. I am afraid he reached this charming valley before me; but, as a rule, I prefer to be a little ahead of him. It's a whim, the merest whim, I assure you."

He laughed, thinking little of what he said, but delighting in the picture she made, the tall pillars of the veranda framing her against the white wall of the house and the architrave high above speaking, so he thought, for the amplitude, the breadth of her nature. Her green cloth gown afforded the happiest possible contrast with the white background, and her hat—for a gown, let us remember, may express the dressmaker, but a hat expresses the woman who wears it—her hat, Armitage was aware, was a trifle of black velvet caught up at one side with snowy plumes.

Her annoyance at finding herself lingering to listen to him was marked in an almost imperceptible gathering of her brows. It was all the matter of an instant. His heart beat fast in his joy at the sight of her, and the tongue that years of practice had skilled in reserve and evasion was possessed by a reckless spirit.

She nodded carelessly, but said nothing, waiting for him to go on.

"But when I wait for people they always come—even in a strange pergola," he added daringly. "Now, in Geneva, not long ago"—

He lost the profile and gained her face, as he liked it best, though her head was lifted a little high in resentment against her own yielding curiosity. He was speaking rapidly, and the slight hint of some other tongue than his usually fluent English arrested her ear now, as it had at other times.

"In Geneva, when I told a young lady that I was waiting for a very wicked man to appear—it was really the oddest thing in the world that almost immediately M. Jules Chauvenet arrived at mine own inn! It is inevitable; it is always sure to be my fate," he concluded mournfully.

He bowed low, restored the shabby hat to his head with the least bit of a flourish and strolled away through the garden by a broad walk that led to the front gate.

He would have been interested to know that when he was out of sight Shirley walked to the veranda rail and bent forward, listening to his steps on the gravel, after the hedge and shrubbery had hidden him. And she stood thus until the faint click of the gate told her that he had gone.

She did not know that as the gate closed upon him he met Chauvenet face to face.

Chapter XIV

AN ENFORCED INTERVIEW.

"MONSIEUR CHAUVENET!"

Armitage uncovered smilingly. Chauvenet stared mutely as Armitage paused with his back to the Claiborne gate. Chauvenet was dressed with his usual care and wore the latest carnation in the lapel of his top coat. He struck the ground with his stick, his look of astonishment passed, and he smiled pleasantly as he returned Armitage's salutation.

"My dear Armitage!" he murmured. "I didn't go to Mexico, after all, my good Chauvenet. The place is full of fevers. I couldn't take the risk."

"He is indeed a wise man who safeguards his health," replied the other.

"You are quite right. And when one has had many narrow escapes one may be excused for exercising rather particular care. Do you not find it so?" mocked Armitage.

"My dear fellow, my life is one long fight against ennui. Danger, excitement, the hazard of my precious life—such pleasures of late have been denied me."

"But you are young and of intrepid spirit, monsieur. It would be quite surprising if some perilous adventure did not overtake you before the silver gets in your hair."

"Ah! I assure you the speculation interests me, but I must trouble you to let me pass," continued Chauvenet in the same tone. "I shall quite forget that I set out to make a call if I linger longer in your charming society."

"But I must ask you to delay your call for the present. I shall greatly value your company down the road a little way. It is a trifling favor, and you are a man of delightful courtesy."

Chauvenet twisted his mustache reflectively. His mind had been busy seeking means of turning the meeting to his own advantage. He had met Armitage at quite the least imaginable spot in the world for an encounter between them, and he was not a man who enjoyed surprises. He had taken care that the exposure of Armitage at Washington should be telegraphed to every part of the country and put upon the cables. He had expected Armitage to leave Washington, but he had no idea that he would turn up at a fashionable resort greatly affected by Washingtonians and only a comparatively short distance from the capital. He was at a great disadvantage in not knowing Armitage's plans and strategy. His own mind was curiously cunning, and his reasoning powers traversed oblique lines. He was thus prone to impute similar mental processes to other people. Simplicity and directness he did not understand at all. He had underrated Armitage's courage and daring; he wished to make no further mistakes, and he walked back toward the hotel with apparent good grace. Armitage spoke now in a very different key, and the change displeased Chauvenet, for he much affected ironical raillery, and his companion's sterner tones disconcerted him.

"I take this opportunity to give you a solemn warning, M. Jules Chauvenet, alias Rambaud, and thereby render you a greater service than you know. You have undertaken a deep and dangerous game. It is spectacular, it is picturesque, it is immense! It is so stupendous that the taking of a few lives seems trifling in comparison with the end to be obtained. Now look about you for a moment, M. Jules Chauvenet! In this mountain air a man may grow very sane and see matters very clearly. London, Paris, Berlin, Vienna—they are a long way off, and the things they stand for lose their splendor when a man sits among these American mountains and reflects upon the pettiness and sordidness of man's common ambitions."

Insurance Companies Lose About $125,000.00 by the Wreck at Spanish River

Double Liability for About Twenty-five Persons

A loss of somewhere in the neighbourhood of $125,000 is what the Accident Insurance Companies estimate the wreck at Spanish River bridge means to them.

They figure that about 25 of those who met death carried Accident Insurance, and the average insurance, according to the tables, is $5,000. In case of death in a railway disaster there is a double liability, making the figure $10,000, or $5,000 to be more conservative.

Their loss may total more than that, for the commercial travellers, a number of whom were killed, usually carry very heavy insurance. In addition, some of the companies make the policies payable on the death of the wife while travelling, though the policy is taken out in the husband's name. In such cases they pay the husband the same amount as they would have paid the wife were the husband killed.

We issue the BEST Accident and Sickness policy offered to the public.

HIS TAPESTRIES.

The Gems the Collector Bought and Showed to the Expert.

That the collector falls into a trap occasionally is shown by an episode which we recall. An enthusiastic purchaser of old tapestries was once offered in Paris a masterpiece executed on a large scale and held at a large figure. Consulting an expert, he was urged to buy, but the sum demanded seemed to him at the moment a good deal to invest in a tapestry, and he let the opportunity pass.

A year or so later he met his friend, the expert aforesaid, and asked him to come to his house to look at two tapestries he had just secured. "They are smaller," he said, "than the one you advised me to buy and which, to tell the truth, I have always regretted, and I paid twice as much for them as I was asked to pay for that glorious piece, but while it seemed a fearful lot of money to spend I simply couldn't resist the chance."

The specialist in tapestries walked into the gallery of the proud collector and gazed upon his prizes. He gazed for a time in silence and then had to be very guarded in his speech of congratulation. He was looking at the original tapestry, which his friend could have had for half the money, now neatly cut in two and supplied with borders. He never revealed to the victim of this ingenious little game what precisely had happened.

Conscious During a Fall.

Every time a workman falls from a forty story building there are people to say, "Well, he probably didn't feel it when he struck." There is little or no basis for this belief that a person is dead or unconscious at the end of a long fall. Our surviving jumpers from Brooklyn bridge prove this, and that a person retains consciousness is shown by the case of the English boy who fell down a pit some 250 feet deep and shouted "Below!" three times on the way down. One theory is that a person falling would not be able to breathe, but a train at sixty miles an hour is moving faster than one would move in falling a hundred or so feet and no one pretends that one would die of suffocation if he put his head out the train window.—Exchange.

A Way of Explaining It.

Wife—Why, John, just see what a stupid blunder the newspaper has made in its account of our silver wedding! Don't you remember I wrote it out for the reporter that we had spent together twenty-five years of married happiness, and the stupid typesetter has gone and made it twenty-five years of marred happiness. Isn't it awful! Husband—Oh, well, dear, don't be too hard on the poor fellow. Perhaps he's been married twenty-five years himself.—London Tit-Bits.

First and Last Words.

"Why do we pay so much attention to the last words of great men?"

"Possibly because their first words are all alike."

He Found It Was.

Judge (to prisoner)—You are charged with having seriously injured your wife by inclosing her in a folding bed. What have you to say for yourself? Prisoner—Your honor, I wished to see if it was possible to shut her up.

The Rescue.

The Major—What's this I hear, David, about your nearly saving a man from drowning? David—I did save 'im from drownin', only the life buoy 'it 'im on the 'ead and killed 'im.—London Tatler.

Did Not See It Before.

Miss Eastside — That is a lovely gown, but haven't I seen it before? Miss Westside—No; I think not. I have only worn it at a very few smart affairs this season.

On the Trying Art of Puff Paste Making

Across the briny, we are told, when a tenor is up for Grand Opera honors, they test his range in all manner of ways.

And if he emerges triumphant, they hand him the score of "William Tell".

Being, as you know, the supreme test of cooking ability.

Could YOU stand the test, Mistress Housewife?

Can you really make Puff Paste, Paste that is Puffy?

Pastries that raise aloft, crisp, mellow-flavored?

With a clear, delicate appearance, a golden creamy bloom that is eye-tempting?

With a crinkly, close-grained texture that is tender, melting away on the tongue-tip while producing a rich effect on the soft spot of the palate?

Plus that longed-for quality so hard to secure—an even flakiness?

The kind mother tried to make but couldn't, you know.

• • • •

Don't say: "Ah, if I could only make puff paste like that!"

Why shouldn't you, Madam?

You can get FIVE ROSES flour, if you really want to.

FIVE ROSES richness improves every recipe — its healthfulness, its quality and evenness never vary.

For we won't allow it, Madam.

• • • •

For puff paste, all sorts and conditions of puffs and tartlets, FIVE ROSES will seem like another Alladin's Lamp.

With the same amount of shortening and water, because of higher absorption, you use at least ONE-FIFTH LESS FIVE ROSES.

It makes up so much lighter, raises so much higher even when rolled thinner from slacker dough, makes so much richer-looking pastries. And since it's stronger, you get MORE out of your paste.

Don't you want YOUR puff paste perfect combine with economy?

Wont YOU try FIVE ROSES, Madam?

A TRYING ORDEAL.

The Fattening Process of a Marriageable Girl in Tunis.

The marriageable girl in Tunis has a trying ordeal to go through after her betrothal to the man not of her choice, but whose choice she is. She has to be fattened to the required size before the ceremony can take place.

As soon as the betrothal takes place she is taken to a room and there cooped up till the fattening process is concluded. Silver shackles are fastened round her wrists and ankles, and the task of her parents and future husband is to increase her bulk till her wrists and ankles fill up the shackles. If the husband is a widower or has "discharged" his first wife the girl has the shackles of the first spouse placed on her, and she must fill them out.

It takes a long time to do this as a rule, and sometimes it cannot be accomplished in spite of all efforts. It is then open to the future husband to cry off the bargain or waive the condition. In the case of a bachelor he takes care to see that the bracelets and anklets are not too large—that is, if he is fond of the girl—but if he is being forced into the marriage by his parents he is a great stickler for custom. Stout girls are the more quickly snapped up in Tunis.—St. James' Gazette.

Wrong Diagnosis.

Mrs. Slingchin put her head over the fence and thus addressed her neighbor, who was hanging out her washing:

"A family has moved into the empty house across the way, Mrs. Mangle."

"Yes, I know."

"Did you notice the furniture?"

"Not particularly."

"Two loads, and I wouldn't give a sovereign's load for it. Carpets? I wouldn't put 'em down in my kitchen. And the children! I won't allow mine to associate with 'em. And the mother! She looks as if she had never known a day's happiness. The father drinks, I expect. Too bad that such people should come into this neighborhood. I wonder who they are."

"I know 'em."

"Do you? Well, I declare! Who are they?"

"The mother is my sister, and the father is the superintendent of the Sunday school."

"Oh—ah—um! Do you think it's going to rain?"

The First Tooth Festival.

Among the Syrians there is no such thing as giving a party in celebration of the first anniversary of the birth of a child. The celebration is held when the baby cuts its first tooth. On such an occasion friends of the parents are not invited to the house to eat cakes and listen to a phonograph, but whatever sweets may be prepared for the occasion are sent by the parents to the homes of the friends whom they wish to inform of the news. The friends later visit the parents and tender their congratulations. The dishes in which the sweatmeats is carried to neighbors and friends are not returned immediately. Sometimes it is a week or even two before they are back in their customary places in the family cupboard. When they are returned they are not empty.

Keeping Up Appearances.

Husband (suddenly waking up at dead of night)—What in the world was that noise? Wife (calmly)—It's all right, dear. The guests of the Moneybags' ball are just coming home, and I slipped down and gave our front door a slam, so the neighbors would think we were there.—New York Journal.

A GOOD MEDICINE FOR THE SPRING

Do Not Dose With Purgatives—A Tonic Is All You Need.

Not exactly sick—but not feeling quite well. That's the way most people feel in the spring. Easily tired, appetite fickle, sometimes headaches, and a feeling of depression. Pimples or eruptions may be twinges of rheumatism or neuralgia. Any of these indicate that the blood is out of order: that the indoor life of winter has left its mark upon you, and may easily develop into more serious trouble. Don't dose yourself with purgatives, as many people do, in the hope that you can put your blood right. Purgatives gallop through the system and weaken instead of giving strength. Any doctor will tell you this is true. What you need in the spring is a tonic that will make new blood and build up the nerves. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills is the only medicine that can do this speedily, safely and surely. Every dose of this medicine helps make new blood, which clears the skin, strengthens the appetite, and makes tired, depressed men and women bright, active and strong. Miss Mary Baker, Tancook, N.S., says: "Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have been a great blessing to me. Last year while I was attending school I became so weak and completely run down that I thought I would have to give up going to school. I was affected with dizzy spells and would fall down at any time. I got half a dozen boxes of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and before they were half gone I felt my strength returning. By the time I had used them all, the dizzy spells were completely gone, and I was again enjoying good health."

Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

An Observant Child.

Little Adelaide was inclined to be cowardly. Her father found that sympathy only increased this tendency and decided to have a serious talk with his little daughter on the subject of her foolish fears. "Papa," she ventured at the close of the lecture, "when you see a cow aren't you afraid?" "Why, certainly not, Adelaide. Why should I be?" "Well, when you see a dog aren't you afraid then?" "No, indeed!" with marked emphasis on the "no." "Aren't you afraid when it thunders, papa?" "Why, no," and he laughed at the thought and added, "Oh, you silly child!" "Papa," and Adelaide came closer and looked into her parent's eye, "aren't you afraid of nothing in the world but just mamma?"—Success Magazine.

Always Marked Down.

While prices swell and wages don't
And living hard and harder gets,
There's consolation mixed with all
These vain and clamorous regrets.

That verse this snarling habit mocks;

Their volumes in the ten cent box.

Can You Beat It?

"Woman is very unreasonable," said a venerable New Hampshire justice of the peace. "I remember that my wife and I were talking over our affairs one day, and we agreed that it had come to the point where we must both economize. 'Yes, my dear,' I said to my wife, 'we must both economize—both!' 'Very well, Henry,' she said, with a tired air of submission, 'you shave yourself, and I'll cut your hair.'"—Everybody's Magazine.

A STRANGE PLANT.

The Drinking Orchid and Its Fruitless Search For Water.

"The strangest orchids I ever saw," said a naturalist, "live on the edge of a lagoon on the Rio de la Plata—'live,' I say, for surely no animal is more alive than they, and among them I first realized the pathos of a plant's immobility, the cruelty of its roots that bind it forever to one spot.

"These orchids had each at the center or axis a long stem a half inch wide and a quarter inch thick. They grew on dead limbs overhanging the lagoon, and now and then when in need of water they uncoiled their axial stems, lowered them three or four feet to the stream and when enough water had been drunk coiled the stems up again as a tape measure coils up on its spool.

"A strange sight that still and tropical afternoon—a silent, sun drenched lagoon, a scarlet blaze of orchids and here and there those slim, supple tubes descending to drink, satisfying themselves, then coiling up again.

"But what impressed me most was a mass of faded orchids that continually and restlessly let down their tubes in vain, for the stream had fallen, and hence the tubes descended upon dry ground. It was pitiful. The orchids were dying, but with what strength was left to them they lowered and drew up their tubes. They felt feverishly and weakly for the water that wasn't there.

"A sad sight—a sight that brought home the pathos of the immobility of plants!"—Exchange.

BLAKE'S VISIONS.

The Curious Hallucinations of the Poet-Painter.

William Blake, the contemporary of Charles Lamb, was a man of visions. Blake dined with prophets and held converse with archangels. A friend of Blake called on the poet-painter and found him sitting, pencil in hand, drawing a portrait with all the seeming anxiety of a man who is conscious of having a fastidious sitter. He looked and drew and drew and looked, yet no living soul was visible. 'Disturb me not,' said Blake in a whisper. 'I have some one sitting to me.' 'Sitting to you!' exclaimed the astonished visitor. 'Where is he? I see no one.' 'But I see him,' answered Blake haughtily. 'There he is. His name is Lot. You may read of him in the Scriptures. He is sitting for his portrait.'"

Blake's hallucinations, however, rarely took a malignant form. One of his most beautiful visitors was of a fairy funeral. "I was walking alone in my garden," he said. "There was a great stillness among the branches and flowers and more than common sweetness in the air. I heard a low and pleasant sound and knew not whence it came.

"At last I saw the broad leaf of a flower move, and underneath I saw a procession of creatures of the size and color of green and gray grasshoppers, bearing a body laid out on a rose leaf, which they buried with songs and then disappeared. It was a fairy's funeral."

The Manchus.

The name "Manchuria," to designate the country of the Manchus, is not known to the Chinese, but was invented by French geographers. The Manchus are a tribe of Tartars who gained the ascendency in China in the seventeenth century. Manchu is Chinese for "pure" and was applied by an ancestor of Shun Che, the first Manchu emperor of China, to his dynasty and his people.

The Manchus resemble the Chinese only to the eye of a stranger, just as we think that all Chinese laundrymen look alike. To themselves the Manchus are distinct from Chinamen in appearance, as in race, and one who knows eastern races easily distinguishes them. Most of them are short and good looking, with brown and ruddy skins.

OXO is the only British fluid beef whose makers guarantee that every ounce of their beef comes from their own cattle.

You would be careful in buying milk from a milkman who bought supplies from other people and mixed them with his own—wouldn't you? In fact, if a lot of milkmen came along, one of whom got all his supplies from his own healthy cows and the others got their supplies partly from their own cows and largely from outside sources, you would give your custom to the man who got all the milk from his own cows—wouldn't you?

It is just the same with fluid beefs. Firms who have to buy raw material from somebody else cannot guarantee from actual personal knowledge that the beef is absolutely healthy.

CRUISE of L'HIRONDELLE

TALES of the CHINA SEAS

No. 3

By Foxcroft Davis

IN April the overflowing waters of China subside and the people who have sought refuge on the bleak inlands descend once more to their drenched houses and begin again that fierce struggle to force the niggardly earth to bring forth enough to feed the hungry millions.

The Sikiang, which makes it sinuous way to the Yellow Sea, becomes in April a shallow and sluggish stream, with a fluctuating channel and treacherous mud flats upon which a native pilot can with the greatest ease stick a war ship and point to his chart, which gives good water over the place.

Lieutenant Tourneau, commanding the French baby gunboat L'Hirondelle, with a draught of eleven feet, could skim about the river in comparative safety, particularly as Tourneau had two eyes in his head and a pair of small, acute ears. He was a handsome little Frenchman, this indomitable Tourneau, with stories of Suffern and Jean Bart tingling through his veins.

"This was a good time for a European or an American to distinguish himself, for the Boxer uprising was only smothered and still smouldered. Every foreign devil in China stood in jeopardy every hour. There were no longer armed bands of Boxers who seized and slaughtered Europeans in the public streets of towns and villages, but strange disappearances took place and it was difficult to keep telegraph wires in operation. And when communication was restored it was often found that European dwellers had gone into the unknown.

All over the great, groaning, haggard empire, which has faced famine every day for centuries, was seething unrest. And the blood thirst was upon it. The Americans and Europeans on the spot knew what this blood thirst meant. The captains of the naval vessels, dining together pleasantly aboard each other's ships, would speak of it jovially, as men do of ever present terrors. But blood thirst on one side produces blood thirst on the other, and these keen eyed alert naval men represented the gospel of the whetted sword.

Tourneau, the French lieutenant, had a stake in this fearful game of murder and reprisal which no other man in the international naval force had. In the little low town of Howchin-kwang, far up on the left bank of the muddy Sikiang, lay a French convent, built firmly in the marshy ground. Around the stone convent was a high walled garden to protect it from the encroaching floods.

The superior of the convent was a short, stout, black eyed woman, the older sister of Tourneau. He had been a little boy when she, a pretty young woman of twenty-five, put on the garb of a sister in one of those adventurous orders of women which go forth into the savage places ahead of the advance guard of civilization. The little boy wept and lamented much for his sister and wrote her passionate letters begging her to return home. To these outbursts of the boy's quivering heart the nun, his sister, wrote letters full of fascinating stories of danger and adventure; but, like the soldier, she would not take off her uniform and come home to peace and safety. As the boy grew older he realised that this small woman in her blue habit had in her the fighting spirit which grows to love danger, its grim companion.

Twenty Years After.

Nearly twenty years had passed before the little boy who wept and kicked frantically when his sister left home to be a nun saw her again, and then he was the commanding officer of the little gunboat which sauntered up the Sikiang to see what was going on along shore. The smart young lieutenant and the middle aged Mother Superior of the convent in the squalid Chinese town fell into each other's arms when they met, and each looking into the eyes of the other saw there that they were truly brother and sister of the full blood. If Mother Seraphine had been dressed in the uniform of a lieutenant in the French navy and if her brother had put on the blue habit and flapping white bonnet of a Sister of Charity they could not have been told one from the other, except that the lieutenant was slim and Mother Seraphine though fasting and praying and working like a dray horse, had become as round as a barrel. Each had the Gallic eye, bright and hawk-like.

The Mother Superior, although she did not know it, dearly loved fighting. And in truth she had her hands full in contending with the Chinese officials. Upon the writing table in her office lay a copy of the International Code, and on that international code Mother Seraphine, figuratively speaking, planted her two sturdy feet and stood there. In her secret heart there was nothing Mother Seraphine liked better than a row with the Taitao. She never entered into a row with the local authorities unless she knew she was right, and then it was about as easy to bully her as to bully the Dowager Empress of China. She could speak the Chinese language fluently, and, going to the Taitao, accompanied by a meek looking sister, who was, like herself, as ready for a fight as for a fast on Good Friday, she would speak her mind so freely that the Taitao would frankly promise to murder her and all the sisters and set fire to the convent. To this Mother Seraphine would answer with equal frankness:—

"You may murder and burn all you like, but if this convent is burned every house in this town will be levelled to the ground, and, as for the executions to follow—Heaven help you! Your Serene Excellency's head will probably be the first one cut off, and the bones of your ancestors will float upon the river."

On L'Hirondelle's first visit, which was in November, Tourneau spent a week at the town of Howchin-kwang with his ship and had never enjoyed himself more in his life.

Sister Seraphine managed the convent precisely as Tourneau managed his ship, and, like a good commanding officer, was everywhere and saw everything. Tourneau chuckled with delight at the complete preparation for danger which Mother Seraphine made. The Sisters each had a stout stick, which they were prepared to use if necessary in defending the European children committed to their charge and the native children, which they bought for something like forty cents apiece. Tourneau suggested that he should leave a supply of revolvers at the convent, but this Mother Seraphine declined as being contrary to the rule of their order. Nevertheless, she accepted some little shells, made by Tourneau himself, who had an inventive genius. These shells had in them some mellite, and when thrown over the wall at an attacking party would probably terrify them, so Tourneau said. He showed his sister where to keep the shells buried in the ground, and warned her to be careful of them. At which the brother and sister exchanged significant glances.

The Love Story

Tourneau, in his sister's private office, where she kept the code, confided to her that he was deeply, desperately and wildly in love with a rose of a girl, Clarice Harbord, the daughter of the fierce British Admiral, commanding the China Station.

"The old Bluebeard," cried Tourneau, bringing his fist down on the International Code, "is full of insular prejudices. He will have none but Englishmen to marry his daughters. Very well, we shall see! I have a friend, an American, Lieutenant Alywin—ha! ha! ha!—who adores the eldest daughter, Mary Harbord. You will see, my sister, how we will outwit that heavy lumbering beef eating Englishman."

"Would you, my brother," cried Mother Seraphine, deeply shocked, "marry a girl against the wishes of her father?"

"Only give me a chance," responded Tourneau, pulling at the end of his peaked black beard.

Mother Seraphine thought this very immoral, and told her brother so roundly, saying:—

"Parents have the right to dispose of their daughters' destinies."

"I think, my sister," responded Tourneau, "that our parents were quite unwilling for you to go into a convent, and you persisted, and arranged your own destiny in the end."

Mother Seraphine looked a trifle embarrassed, and Tourneau, pursuing his advantage, cried:—

"Clarice, that adorable girl, has a right to give her heart where she likes, and she has given me a little bit of it in return for all of mine, and I shall act as you did, my sister. I will wait a reasonable time and then if the Admiral does not consent it will be the worse for him. That is all."

Tourneau left the convent and returned down the river, where soon after he was ordered up the Yangtse, four hundred miles below Hankow, where the war ships of the nations were gathered, like the eagles. Tourneau was full of his sister and bragged about her to his chum, Alywin, of the United States gunboat Alletta.

Alywin's affair with Mary Harbord went prosperously after a meeting with her at Hankow, in which the Admiral was openly defied and was at last forced to make an unconditional surrender and to agree to the engagement between Mary Harbord and her American lieutenant. Then, by way of saving Clarice, his one ewe lamb, the Admiral sent her to the convent at Howchin-kwang, blissfully unconscious that the superior of the convent was the sister of Tourneau, the French lieutenant who had the infernal impudence, as Admiral Harbord expressed it, in sulphurous language, to lay siege to Clarice.

When Tourneau heard that the lady of his love was in charge of his sister all unbeknown to the Admiral he was in an ecstasy. And then, as if to complete the cycle of good fortune, he got orders in April to drop down the Yang-tse further and patrol the Sikiang River, which was only possible for vessels of light draught like L'Hirondelle. Tourneau patrolled the river vigorously, meanwhile laying his course for the squalid little town of Howchin-kwang, in which lay the white walled convent.

On a shining April morning, when the waters had receded and the earth was growing green under the warm sun, L'Hirondelle cast anchor for the second time in a twelvemonth before the little town, and Tourneau, the young commander, was pulled across the shallow, muddy river to the landing place. He was in full uniform, with side arms, and had with him a seventeen-year-old midshipman, Choubry, as his aid. There were no European carriages in the place, so Tourneau secured by stratagem and bullying a rickety palanquin, with faded yellow silk curtains. In it he seated himself magnificently, with little Choubry by his side.

In the Garden.

The aspect of things was threatening. Tourneau saw this in the sullen, savage looks of the people, the sharp, yelping cries of the children playing in the streets and the way in which occasional unsuccessful efforts were made to damp the palanquin in mud puddles. Tourneau's coolness and that of the little midshipman and the way in which their right hands fondled their revolvers got them without accident to the entrance of the Taitao's garden.

In troublous times the Chinese officials never refuse to see a European officer and say to him:—

"How is it with thee, my brother?"

Carrying meanwhile a sharp, curved knife up the sleeve or in the folds of their robe.

The palanquin being set on the ground in front of the Taitao's house, Tourneau and his aid scrambled out. Facing the street was a wide archway, opening into a prim Chinese garden. The Taitao's house, imposing from the Chinese point of view, fronted upon the garden. At the gateway stood an official of the Taitao's house to receive the foreign devil, and other clerks and servants, with clattering shoes and pigtails and harsh, high voices, stood within.

Since Tourneau's visit in the autumn a new Taitao had been appointed and Tourneau was anxious to see the man who held in his hand, as it were, the lives of Mother Seraphine and Clarice Harbord.

The interior of the house was handsome after the Chinese fashion, but when Tourneau entered the Taitao's room, where he sat in state, a shock of surprise ran through the French commander. One glance around showed him that it was unlike any Chinese room Tourneau had yet seen. Ranged around it were European arms and equipments. A standard compass, which Tourneau recognized as having once belonged to a European vessel, stood in a corner. Along the wall were groups of arms, and from the ceiling of the room hung ship's lanterns. In one corner was a brass cannon, such as merchant ships use for saluting, and directly over the seat of the Taitao was something which made Tourneau's hot French blood suddenly reach the boiling point. A number of European and American flags, including a French flag, were draped together, half covered by the huge yellow dragon flag of the Chinese Empire. The French flag was in full sight. Beneath this decoration sat a tall Chinaman, with a face like hammered brass and a voice like a peacock's with catarrh. No less a person, in short, than Ah Fong, the piratical gentleman whom Tourneau perfectly remembered as having seen on board the American gunboat Alletta.

Remembering that the chief quartermaster of the Alletta, a man well versed in Chinese ways, had said that Ah Fong could not be considered a screaming success as a pirate, and had weakened before the screws were fairly turned upon him, Tourneau felt somewhat reassured.

Ah Fong was big, but not brave, and Tourneau recalled the quartermaster's prediction that it was doubtful whether Ah Fong would ever reach any greater distinction as a judge than as a pirate.

Tourneau, looking into Ah Fong's narrow slits of eyes, saw in them recognition and a cowering fear. Little Choubry, the midshipman, gazed about him with frankly contemptuous eyes while flowery compliments were being exchanged between Ah Fong and Tourneau through an interpreter. Tourneau had not forgotten that Ah Fong knew English perfectly well, but chose to keep that accomplishment as far as possible to himself. Suddenly in the midst of the conversation Tourneau felt his sleeve touched, and, following the glance of the little midshipman's eye, which was fixed upon the French flag, half covered by the yellow ensign of China, he brought his teeth together with a snap, but remained cool when replying through the interpreter to the Taitao's ceremonious compliments and offers and proffers.

Tourneau was careful to inform the Taitao that the Mother Superior of the convent was his sister, and casually inquired whether any marauding bands of villains who chose to defy the wishes of the Taitao had lately infested the town. The Taitao, on this being repeated to him, shook his head vigorously and declared that the European sisters were as dear to him as the children of his father and his mother. Then he concluded with the usual speech:—

"Consider myself and all my family and servants at your disposal, and this house and all that is in it as yours."

"Thank you," responded Tourneau in English, without resorting to the interpreter. "Since you are so good I will avail myself of your kindness and take possession of that French flag, which, no doubt, you stole."

Tourneau kept his eyes fixed upon Ah Fong, and at these unexpected words the Chinaman raised himself up and glared with the same angry and wolfish grin with which he had received the intimation that he was a thief and a pirate from the chief quartermaster on the Alletta, gunboat.

Then Tourneau, drawing his pistol and cocking it, little Choubry doing the same, the two walked up to the wall and Tourneau, seizing the flag, tore it down and put it in his breast. The cocked pistols were so eloquent that Ah Fong remained mute, while Tourneau and little Choubry went out of the room back to back, Tourneau facing the Taitao and little Choubry the crowd of Chinese servants and officials outside. No hand was uplifted to injure them, however, and, getting into their rickety palanquin, they were carried straight toward the white walled convent.

Mother Seraphine was overjoyed at seeing her brother once more, and, while little Choubry kicked his heels in the reception room, Mother Seraphine led her brother into her own private office beyond the grille, where they talked face to face. Tourneau took the French flag out of his breast and showed it to Mother Seraphine, telling her meanwhile how he came by it. To this Mother Seraphine replied, patting him on the shoulder as if he were a little boy instead of a lieutenant, commanding:—

"That is my brave boy."

Although Mother Seraphine rarely went outside the convent walls, except to the Taitao's house for the purpose of bullying him, she knew more news concerning the situation at Howchin-kwang than any other European in the town except Fitch, the Baptist missionary, who lived in the town and was a prime favorite and chum of Mother Seraphine.

"The Europeans think themselves safe," she said, nodding her flapping white cornette sagely. "They will know better before long, poor souls! The convent is the only place here capable of making any defence at all. I have sent word by trusted persons to every European in town—the Baptist missionary, the Englishman who keeps the hotel, and two German shop keepers and their families, and every one of them, in fact, that when they see two lanterns lighted and hanging from the highest window of the convent tower they had better make for the convent. The gates are strong, the walls are thick, and a few men could defend the place easily for a week."

"After that?" asked Tourneau anxiously.

"We shall be in God's hands still," replied Mother Seraphine. "The Baptist missionary, a worthy man, told me that he and the other Europeans intended, if it became plain that the convent could hold out no longer, to save a bullet for every woman and child in the convent, and I thanked him for it."

"So do I," responded Tourneau. "And now, my sister," he added, "can you not find it in your heart to let me see Mlle. Clarice Harbord, and in your presence? I know she is here."

Tourneau's eyes glittered as he spoke. It was one on the Admiral to find that he had put Clarice in the very place which Tourneau desired, where she would be safe from the attentions of all the young officers except himself. Before his nimble imagination rose the picture of walks and talks with Clarice in the convent garden and loiterings under the apricot trees, trained against the convent walls and now growing a tender green with the advancing spring.

This vision of Paradise, however, was rudely shattered by Mother Seraphine answering tartly:—

"Certainly not. Admiral Harbord sent the girl to me to keep her out of the way of sentimental young officers at Hankow. And am I to break faith with the Admiral by allowing my own brother to see Clarice?"

Never Asks for Him.

"I remember," continued Mother Seraphine, "when you were a little boy how you kicked and screamed every time you heard me say I should become a religieuse. You seem to have kept up the practice."

"You are cruel! cruel! cruel!" cried Tourneau, grinding his teeth. "Tell me, does that adorable girl show any signs of longing or yearning for any one?"

"Not the least," promptly said Mother Seraphine.

"Has she ever asked for a word about me?"

"No."

Mother Seraphine omitted to mention that Clarice had no notion that the Mother Superior of the convent and the fascinating lieutenant were brother and sister, but Tourneau hit upon this solution at once.

"She does not know that you are my sister. But she shall know; she shall know, the angel! Adieu, my hard-hearted sister. My ship will remain in these waters for the present, prepared for emergencies, but will drop down the river to-morrow evening for a few days. I will come again to see you at two o'clock to-morrow. I love you, though you take pleasure in lacerating my heart."

Tourneau, by way of showing that the strong hand was there, had his palanquin carried all about the town, and treated the scowling, threatening natives to the sight of the two uniforms within. Then he went to the house of the Baptist missionary, a small, meek man, as brave as a lion, and expressed the wish that he should take command of the convent in case it should become a besieged fortress. Then he visited the English hotel keeper, the two shops kept by Germans, and the American telegraph operator, whom he informed that L'Hirondelle would remain in those waters for the present, but would drop down the river for a while the next day.

All that afternoon and evening the saucy little gunboat lay out in the stream, the black smoke from her funnels showing that steam was up. When night showed her black poll L'Hirondelle's sharp white searchlight swept the earth and was reflected in the starless heavens. The first spot upon which it was turned was the convent and at a window it revealed a white figure, which Tourneau recognized with rapture as that of Clarice Harbord. Clarice had found out by means of a babbling portress that the gunboat, snorting and puffing, out in the muddy river was L'Hirondelle, and she knew well enough who commanded that extremely smart little vessel. The second time the searchlight was turned upon the convent Clarice, shading her eyes with one hand, laid the other, holding a rose, upon the window sill. The searchlight flashed three times in quick succession upon the window, as much as to say:—"I see you. I understand you. I love you." This species of conversation went on until nine o'clock, when the convent windows were closed for the night.

Two o'clock next day was the hour appointed by Tourneau to visit the convent, but at half-past eleven Mother Seraphine, happening to glance out of the window, saw a sight that made her blood boil with wrath. This was Tourneau being admitted by a too obliging portress into the convent garden, the spring sun shining bravely upon his trim uniform and glittering sword hilt. Suddenly Tourneau caught sight of a girl with violet eyes sitting on a bench under the apricot trees, and he darted to the place.

Mother Seraphine waddled rapidly out of the convent and across the garden, but before she reached the culprits Tourneau and Clarice had had at least ten minutes of blissful conversation together. Clarice fled, taking with her a letter, which was hidden close to her beating heart. Tourneau, although not used to running away, was making for the gate as fast as he could, when Mother Seraphine, with blazing eyes, stopped him.

A Gentleman's Honor.

"Is this the honor of a gentleman?" she wrathfully inquired of her brother, as if the Lieutenant Commander were still a small boy who kicked and screamed at the thought of separation from her.

"My dear sister," replied Tourneau earnestly, still edging toward the gate, "if you will get up into the tower and look toward the river, you will see the signal flying from my ship, which demands presence on board."

"No doubt hoisted by orders you left behind you," was Mother Seraphine's indignant reply.

"I must obey the call of duty," said Tourneau. "We are dropping down the river this afternoon, and I shall be unable to return at two o'clock, as by that time I shall be on my way down the river. But this day week the ship will return. Adieu, adieu, my ever dear sister."

The portress, who seemed to divine the state of affairs, very obligingly let Tourneau out of the gate. He did not feel quite safe until the gate was shut between him and the indignant Mother Seraphine.

By two o'clock L'Hirondelle was slipping down the river. Tourneau's orders were to look in all the smaller rivers and creeks, so as to show that there was a European ship at hand for any emergency.

It was exciting work, and the aspect of things was so alarming that Tourneau counted the hours until he could return to Howchin-kwang. Nevertheless, he chuckled to himself at the way in which he had outmanoeuvred his sister and Admiral Harbord.

On the seventh afternoon from leaving Howchin-kwang L'Hirondelle was twenty miles down the river and Tourneau reckoned upon reaching Howchin-kwang by sunset. The current was against him, but by using coal more liberally than the French maritime authorities would have approved L'Hirondelle scudded up the stream, passing quickly the overflowed rice fields on either hand, the heavy rafts coming down the stream and the slow junks pulling painfully up the river. Tourneau, who was on the alert, saw some things that made his heart beat a little quicker for the women in the whitewashed convent. At three places on the river banks he saw bands of men marching toward the town, and at one place, a little low-lying village, where he knew there were several European residents, a fire was raging and the soft April air brought with it the smoke from the burning houses. Tourneau shouted down the engine room hatch not to spare coal, but to give L'Hirondelle all the speed possible. And then the little gunboat, her vitals warmed by the white heat in her engine room, increased her pace, while the engineers, stripped to the waist in the stoke hole, poured in coal, and the chief engineer, watching the steam valve, shouted out:—

"More! More!"

As the little vessel neared the town, lying low upon its banks, the signs of disturbances grew more marked. There were few laborers in the fields, which at that hour of the day were wont to be populous. Along the river front were moored strange native craft, crowded with men whose business was not peaceful. There was no dock, and L'Hirondelle, with smoke pouring from her funnels, pulled up short in mid-channel, a quarter of a mile from shore.

Before her throbbing engines had paused a moment the launch was in the water, and Tourneau was giving his last instructions. The men were at quarters, the magazine was open and ammunition was being rapidly hoisted up in the sight of thousands of curious eyes that watched the little gunboat from afar.

"When you see me land," said Tourneau to his second in command, "look at your watch, and if I do not return to the launch in forty-five minutes open fire upon the town at once with both the main and secondary batteries. Do not enter into any negotiations for my release. If you see a boat approaching with a white flag sink it."

A great crowd of menacing and chattering natives were pouring from the squalid quarters of the town to the water side and watching the little launch, the tri-color floating from the fore, as it sped toward the landing place. They knew well enough the meaning of the little vessel's open ports, the cleared decks, and the men going to quarters, by the blare of the bugle. The afternoon was balmy, and the sun still glowed rose red, although it was nearly six o'clock.

The Threat.

On the edge of the squalid town the convent lay, cool and clean, with the tender green of the apricot trees peeping over the white walls, while the tall and lacelike branches of the weeping willows shone against the blue sky.

The people watching Tourneau's launch saw in it only seven men—the coxswain, four sailors and Choubry, the little midshipman, and Tourneau, the lieutenant commanding.

As the bottom of the launch grazed the mud Choubry sprang ashore, followed by Tourneau. The crowd of angry natives closed silently about them, listening to Tourneau's orders to the coxswain.

"Wait for me in the stream," he said, showing his watch, "forty-five minutes precisely. If by that time I do not appear, return to the gunboat, taking the north side of the river, to be out of range of the guns, which will then begin the bombardment of the town."

Tourneau spoke in French, but among the listening Chinese one or two understood his words and conveyed their meaning, in loud, chattering voices, to the others. And all could interpret his resolute eye and commanding voice.

There is something in courage which is at once a defiance and a protection. The threatening crowd fell back as Tourneau and little Choubry took their way through the narrow and devious streets toward the Taitao's house. Each carried in his right hand a cocked revolver, which was a mute but eloquent persuader.

In front of the Taitao's house in the prim Chinese garden were gathered a crowd of the lesser officials, who attempted to block the way. Turning to little Choubry, Tourneau said:—

"Stand back to back, my friend, as we did before, when we came out of this house, and use the butt of your pistol unless you are compelled to fire." The youngster had, like Tourneau, a bright and indomitable eye, and, turning his back upon his commander, faced the mob, which closed in behind them. One Chinaman, bolder than the rest, threw himself deliberately in Tourneau's path. Without a word the French lieutenant, raising his pistol, brought the butt down on the Chinaman's temple. The man staggered back and then collapsed in a heap on the ground and was dragged off. At that the crowd grew more threatening, and Tourneau, looking over his shoulder and laughing, said to little Choubry:—

"Do not imitate me, my friend; your arm is not yet strong enough. Give them a bullet and aim well, if their attentions become too pressing."

The mob, chattering and gesticulating, did not make any further attempt to bar Tourneau and Choubry from entering the Taitao's house. Before the closed door of the Taitao's room were armed guards. Tourneau, without a word, raised his foot and kicked the frail door down. The crash resounded through the rickety building. Within, at his table of office, stood Ah Fong. A sickly pallor overspread his yellow face as the crash of the falling door brought him to his feet. Tourneau, remembering what the chief quartermaster of the Alletta had told him, addressed Ah Fong in English, meanwhile gently presenting the cocked revolver about a foot from Ah Fong's nose.

"I believe," said Tourneau, sweetly, "that this is not the second, but the third time I have had the pleasure of meeting you. The first time was in the cabin of the American gunboat Alletta, some months ago, when an order was made out for hanging you as a pirate. Now I have reason to know that Howchin-kwang is not a safe place for Europeans, and I desire you to produce every European and American in the place on the water side within thirty minutes from this time. I left orders upon my ship that if I did not return within forty-five minutes the town was to be bombarded and destroyed, and also that no negotiations should be entered into for my release, or that of my junior officer, and that any boat bearing a white flag should be sunk. Fifteen minutes of that time have already elapsed, and you will find it necessary to be very energetic in order to save the town."

Ah Fong stared at Tourneau, who, leaning forward gently, with the muzzle of his pistol scratched the Chinaman's nose.

"Keep still, my friend," said Tourneau during the process. "The least movement on your part may cause this pistol to go off."

Ah Fong's Head.

Through the open windows and doors the clacking mob outside witnessed this little performance, which lasted about thirty seconds really, but appeared to last something like ten minutes. The perspiration meanwhile pouring down Ah Fong's frightened face. As in a former instance, he had weakened rather in advance of the expected time, so he did in the present case.

"I will write the order," he said in perfectly good English. "I may probably lose my head for it when the Viceroy knows of it."

"No great loss to anybody but yourself," responded Tourneau. "And you will certainly lose it if you do not write the order."

Then Ah Fong, with a nervous and trembling hand, wrote according to Tourneau's dictation, Tourneau standing over him meanwhile and meditatively passing the muzzle of the cocked pistol up and down Ah Fong's skull behind his left ear. The crowd outside began to melt away, and in two minutes no one was left except the Taitao's own clerks and servants. These were enough, however. A dozen of them went flying along the streets, notifying the English hotel keeper, the two German shop keepers, the American telegraph operator and the half a dozen other Occidentals who still remained in the town.

A couple of swift messengers sped to the convent, where they found Fitch, the Baptist missionary, and a little band of frightened native Christians, ready to march with the Sisters; the Chinese children under their charge, and about a dozen European ladies and young girls, visitors and refugees in the convent.

By that time the sun was sinking in great splendor. Tourneau, standing in the market place, with the little black eyed Choubry behind him and a clear road to the landing place, watched the procession approaching from the convent. It was led by Mother Seraphine and Fitch, the Baptist missionary, who was ready both to fight and to pray. Behind them walked the women and young girls; next them the Chinese children. After that the band of native Christians, and last of all the sisters in their dark blue habits as a rear guard. Mother Seraphine, who came of fighting stock, was as calm as if taking her daily exercise in the apricot walk of the convent garden, and conversed cheerfully with the Baptist missionary at her side. In the crowd that followed her, walking two and two, was Clarice Harboard, tall, slight, fair and smiling. She too came of fighting stock, and had in her the blood of courage. Her modish costume, her carefully arranged and filmy veil, her well fitting gloves, showed that her toilet had not been made in haste. When she caught sight of Tourneau she blushed up to the eyes and looked away as his radiant glance sought hers.

"I beg, ladies," said Tourneau, with a low bow to his sister that included all the women present, "and you, Monsieur," to the missionary, "to accept the hospitality of my vessel for the present. It is known that great danger exists in this town to all Christians, and it is better to leave it for a while. I and my officers and my ship are at your service."

Then, taking his stand with little Choubry behind the rear guard, the procession made its way quickly to the waterside. Tourneau held his watch in his hand, and when they reached the shore there was still one minute to spare. In the red glory of the sunset the river ran wine colored, in the old Homeric phrase. The sharp and beautiful lines of the little gunboat shone in the crimson light. Her crew had remained at quarters, the guns run out and her battle lanterns lighted in advance of the coming night; her rapid fire guns would have done for the town in short order.

The launch as soon as the procession was seen approaching steamed up from mid-channel, and, obeying a signal, other boats were seen dropping into the water from the gunboat's side. They were soon at hand and filled with the refugees, and then were pulled back to L'Hirondelle, from whose funnels the black smoke grew denser, while her screw churned up the water as her engineers held her in leash.

Tourneau assisted Mother Seraphine, the Baptist missionary and several ladies into his own launch. The last one to step in was violet eyed Clarice Harboard. As Tourneau took her hand to assist her he gave it a delicate pressure, which turned the girl's cheeks, already rose pink, into a deep scarlet. Mother Seraphine's eyes, which matched her brother's precisely, grew wrathful. The conviction shot into her clear and logical mind that Tourneau was making surreptitious love to her charge. Mother Seraphine was the more convinced of this when the launch's passengers were transferred to the gunboat. The cheeks of Clarice had lost a little of their vivid red in the launch, while Tourneau talked earnestly with the Baptist missionary, but when his hand assisted her over the side her face once more flamed up and her eyes dropped. Tourneau meanwhile looking as innocent as the cat who has eaten the canary.

By the time the last of the rescued were upon L'Hirondelle's deck the boats were hoisted in, and the gunboat went rushing down the river, her engines throbbing fast like the heart of a strong runner.

All Safe on Board.

All night she kept up this speed, and through the gray dawning. At sunrise even the great, fierce, ugly, squalid, yellow Chinese Empire is beautiful. The muddy river burned to gold, the fields were like green velvet and the sky grew glorious. The life and movement on the river began and the fairway became populous, like a city street.

Among the slow, flat Chinese craft Tourneau saw in the morning glow the swift black hull and low freeboard of a torpedo boat destroyer. She was doing twenty-five knots and panting with heat and speed. The two vessels introduced themselves to each other by wigwagging; the destroyer was the Viper, and had on board Vice Admiral Harbord.

By wigwagging L'Hirondelle conveyed the news that it had gone to Howchin-kwang——

Here there was a confusion of signals, and the Viper wigwagged back:—

"We cannot understand you; please repeat."

The destroyer was rushing on so fast that by the time of the last wigwagging she was close enough to hail L'Hirondelle. Standing on her deck was a big man in an Admiral's uniform, whom Tourneau recognized, with a grin of rapture, as Admiral Harbord. L'Hirondelle's young commander, taking the megaphone himself, aimed it straight at Admiral Harbord, about a hundred yards away, and bellowed suavely:—

A thundering cheer went up from the Viper, which was answered by a loud cheer from L'Hirondelle; the men on both ships had tumbled up on deck to watch the wigwagging.

Meanwhile, as if to show the Viper's people that the English rose of a girl was really rescued, Tourneau had gone below and returned with Clarice upon his arm. On the other side of her was Mother Seraphine, grim and watchful. Like a capable general, however, she knew that the battle was lost, and all that remained for her was to make a masterly retreat when the time came.

In spite of the cheering, the excitement and the fact that L'Hirondelle was chock-a-block with the rescued Christians, none of the honors due a British Admiral was forgotten on the smart little gunboat.

Admiral Harbord, however, did not see the sideboys nor the marine guard, nor anything except Clarice, smiling and tearful, standing by the side of Mother Seraphine. As he came over the side and was met at the gangway by Tourneau he silently wrung the lieutenant's hand. Clarice ran forward and threw herself, weeping, upon her father's breast. The Admiral's weather beaten face was pallid and two small tears dropped from his grim eyes. Tourneau, with a lump in his throat, and looking away, uttered the usual phrases of compliment, and did not glance toward the Admiral for a couple of minutes.

Presently L'Hirondelle and the Viper were threading their way down the river in the morning light.

Admiral Harbord was the guest of L'Hirondelle's young commander, Tourneau, who was quite incapable of anything so banal as making love to a girl upon his own ship, yet managed, under the very nose of the Admiral and Mother Seraphine, to convey some eloquent glances at Clarice, which she understood perfectly well and returned with interest.

Not until they reached Hankow did he mention this very interesting subject of Clarice to her father.

On the second morning after their arrival Tourneau, dressed in his newest uniform, boarded the first class cruiser Drake and, sending his compliments, requested a private interview with Admiral Harbord. The Drake had fine quarters for an Admiral, and Admiral Harbord's large presence seemed to fill them. Tourneau was never so frightened in his life as when, with the Admiral's keen eyes fixed upon him, he told the story of his love for Clarice. He had taken his life in his hands with gayety of heart a hundred times, but now he was so frightened he could hardly sit still in his chair. An awful, a terrifying silence followed Tourneau's declaration; then the Admiral spoke briefly, after the fashion of his nation:—

"You have my full consent—my highest approval."

Tourneau did not know whether he was standing on his head or his heels, and this confusion of mind was further increased by the Admiral going to the door of the inner cabin and calling his daughter. Clarice came out, all rosy red, her violet eyes downcast. The Admiral then disappeared in a most gentlemanly manner. It is not the custom among French people for an affianced man and woman to be left alone together. Nevertheless, Tourneau knew how to acquit himself in this novel situation.

Admiral Harbord, taking his constitutional upon the quarter deck, reflected upon the singular illustration of his designs concerning his two daughters; one was to marry an American and the other a Frenchman. But, like a Sabine father, the Admiral was able to reconcile himself philosophically to the situation.

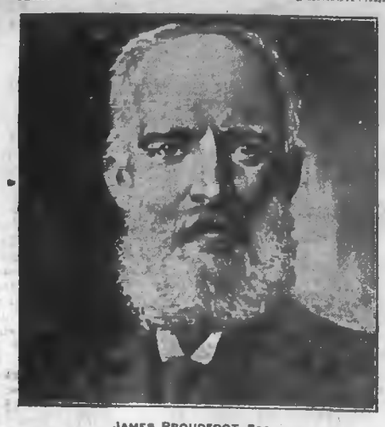
A TERRIBLE SUFFERER for THIRTY-FIVE YEARS

Treasurer of Caledonia Township says

"If it were not for "FRUIT-A-TIVES", I am satisfied I could not live."

Practically everybody in Prescott County, Ontario, knows of Mr. James Proudfoot. He was born over 70 years ago on the farm where he lives to-day. He is one of the most prominent farmers and stock raisers in this section of the country, and has been Treasurer of Caledonia Township for years, succeeding his father.

FENAGHVALE, ONT., JAN. 29TH., 1910



JAMES PROUDFOOT, Esq.,

"For thirty five years, and I am now a man over seventy, I have been a terrible sufferer from Constipation.

No matter what remedy or physicians I employed, the result was always the same—impossible to get a cure. About 2 years ago I read the testimonial of Hon. John Costigan regarding "Fruit-a-tives" and I decided to give them a trial. I have used "Fruit-a-tives" ever since. They are the first and only medicine that suited my case. If it were not for "Fruit-a-tives", I am satisfied that I could not live."

JAMES PROUDFOOT.

"Fruit-a-tives" is the greatest remedy ever discovered for all forms of Dyspepsia and Indigestion, because "Fruit-a-tives" keeps the blood pure and rich. You may ask, what is the connection between Stomach Trouble and Impure Blood? Because impure blood means an impure disolving fluid in the stomach which cannot digest the food. Digestion depends on the purity and composition of the disolving fluid. If the liver is congested—bowels constipated—kidneys weak—then the blood will be loaded with impurities. These impurities will taint the disolving fluid, which is supplied to the stomach by the blood.

"Fruit-a-tives" cures Indigestion and Dyspepsia because "Fruit-a-tives" makes the liver active, cures Constipation, strengthens and invigorates the kidneys, purifies the blood and keeps the stomach sweet and clean.

WORLD'S GREATEST.

U.S. Is Now Growing Jealous of the Canadian Ship Canal.

As this fast world now whirls it seems ages since the projecting genius of Jay Cooke pointed out that the Great Lakes and the St. Lawrence river were to be the greatest intercontinental commercial waterway on earth.

Jay Cooke spent his valuable life and handled many fortunes with this idea in view, and the immeasurable imperial material wealth and resources that it and the swelling future promised. But all in vain; his countrymen were too dumb. If Cooke had been half backed the United States would long ago have secured a capitalistic clutch and claw hold on what will be the continent's future stream of Pactolus-streams, bearing fleets of golden grain. Again, here is a serious military water cordon.

In no sense was there a great commercial imagination like Cooke's behind the Louisiana and Alaskan purchases. We were literally kicked into these. Our own acquirements of great intellectual origin were those of the revolutionary fathers getting the United States and the military mind of Gen. George Rogers Clark seizing and holding the Northwestern Territory. At any rate, the Canadians got wise to the great dream of Cooke, and are going to have, before we wake up, Cooke's waterway half across the continent, all but to Winnipeg, carrying to Europe all the wheat and cattle and minerals of the new great golden northwest.

Sir Robert Perks, M.P., shows there is nothing in a name. He is intimately associated with the project of the great Georgian Bay ship canal, and has decided to come over to Canada the first of this year so that he can devote undivided attention to the enormous work—the greatest he has undertaking—dwarfing by far the memorable Manchester ship canal. This grand waterway is to be stretched from Georgian Bay, Lake Huron, to the St. Lawrence river, near Montreal; thence to the seaports for ocean goers. For 440 miles plowed across the land, like a monster ditch built by Titans, this great canal will wind its way. Imagine a mighty ditch, 24 feet in depth, being dug from New York to Buffalo, and this is but an idea of what it means. Twenty-six thousand men will work continuously for 10 years, until one more of the gigantic dreams of Jay Cooke is realized. Sir Robert briefly pencils out the cost at the mere matter of $150,000,000.

It should occasion no surprise to realize that there will be more than a million horsepower electrical energy developed and sold from the different gradients of this canal. But this is a trifling incident of this intellectual commercial scheme of Yankee Cooke. The beds of lakes along the route will be raised, and also rivers will be dammed and their beds and courses changed. Large areas now dry land will be covered with water. Through all this great waterway walls and bottom of plain and reinforced concrete will stand, and when it is complete great merchant ships will be able to steam through it. It will make more money in a month than Panama in a year.—New York Press.

Women Advertising Canada.

Women seem to be advertising Canada at the moment most satisfactorily. Miss Agnes Deans Cameron, who has come to the front amazingly of late years, as a journalist and author, lectured Feb. 25 before the Royal Geographical Society in London, in itself a great honor.

Another lady who has been booming Canada in England is Miss Emily Vaughan Jenkins, who knows the country well, and is lecturing upon its many advantages to town and country audiences. She lately delivered a lecture in Wales, as well as speaking to a number of English audiences, all of whom seemed much interested. Before the members of the "United Colonial" circle of the Lyceum Club, she told a great deal that was interesting about what Canada has to boast of in the way of art and artists. It was a good list, beginning with Paul Kane, and coming all the way down (in one sense) to the modern Toronto and Montreal artists. The Canadians present "swelled visibly" with pride, as they heard, for a change, something about the cultured side of Canadian life, instead of the chances for emigrants and the enormous size of the country. And nobody breathed the word "snow" or "ice-palaces!".

Surprised Her.

A gentleman who had spent the greater portion of his life in Canada relates an amusing experience which befel him.

He had been on a hunting expedition for several days in the backwoods, roughing it rather severely, and on taking a seat in a railway carriage returning homewards he looked as begrimed and weather-beaten a trapper as ever brought his skins into a settlement.

He happened to find a seat next to a young lady—evidently belonging to Boston—who, after taking stock of him for a few minutes, remarked:

"Don't you find an utterly passionful sympathy with nature's most incarnate aspirations among the sky-topping mountains and the dim aisles of the horizon-touching forests, my good man?"

"Oh, yes," replied the apparent backwoodsman; "and I, also am frequently drawn into an exaltation of rapt soulfulness and beatific incandescent infinity of abstract contiguity when my horse stumbles."

"Indeed!" said the young lady, much surprised, "I had no idea the lower classes felt like that."—Tit-Bits.

Kinrade Murder a Year Ago.

Just about a year ago Ethel Kinrade met her death in her home at 105 Kerkimer street, Hamilton, under conditions which marked the tragedy as the most mysterious in Canadian criminal annals.

The adage, "murder will out," seems to have been disproved in this particular case, practically all hope of an ultimate solution having been abandoned by the provincial authorities after an expenditure of $10,000.

A BONSPIEL STORY.

Jovial Curler at Winnipeg Had His Ideals Seriously Affected.

The big Bonspiel in Winnipeg, which has made the western metropolis lively during the past fortnight, has started many a good story on the rounds. And it would be strange if it were otherwise, for this annual gathering of curlers is now one of the world's big sporting events. Enthusiasts with stone and broom gathered in Winnipeg this year from all over Canada—from Halifax to Vancouver and Dawson City, from Montana, form New York and Boston, and even from old Scotland. In Winnipeg everybody curls, including of course the mayor and the city council, so the visiting "brithers" have enjoyed the freedom of the city in quite a literal sense.

In connection with this year's Bonspiel a traveling man tells a story which illustrates the odd manner in which a man's ideas are affected by even wild indulgence in certain red and yellow waters. Of course it must not be inferred that curlers are hard drinkers as a class, and it may be further explained that a Winnipeg Bonspiel brings with it quite a number of sideshows, among which this year is ice-racing on the Red River. So it is very easy to blame the horse-racing end of the Bonspiel carnival for the incident related by the traveler. This knight of the grip landed in Winnipeg when the curlers had arrived in some force and were fairly in possession of the town, and he had great difficulty in securing accommodation in a hotel. Finally he secured a room on the fifth floor of a good hostelry, but when he went to bed his slumbers were not peaceful. Late in the night he heard an extraordinary uproar, and sat up in bed to listen. A number of hilarious curlers were ascending the stairway leading to the floor on which his room was located, their brooms which they dragged behind them thumping and banging on every step. Presently they gained the hallway and came tramping past the traveler's door. Just then one of the curlers exclaimed in a loud voice:

With the absence of logic peculiar to men in his stimulated condition, the curler overlooked the fact that when he registered at the hotel a day or so before he was not by any means a "mon wi' a jag on."

KILLED THE BILL.

De Cosmos Talked It to Death In Twenty-Six Hours.

Mr. De Cosmos, a member of the Legislature of British Columbia, certainly deserved the medal for lung power, and he won it seemingly in a good cause and at grave risk to himself. The chamber was considering a bill that would drive many settlers from their homes, and there was a sufficient majority to pass it. The end of the session was only a day and two hours distant. At noon on the morrow the House must close its business. De Cosmos was desperate. He must stop the bill, and there was only one way to do it. He would have to speak right on till the end of the session and prevent a division being taken.

It was 10 o'clock in the morning when he rose to "make a few remarks in regard to the measure before the House." Eleven o'clock came, noon, 1 o'clock, and still De Cosmos talked. Members in a spirit of jest omitted to adjourn for lunch in order to see how long he would keep going. The afternoon waned, the sun went down and lamps were lit, but De Cosmos never faltered.

The situation was becoming serious. He certainly held the floor and seemed likely to keep it. All sorts of plans were tried to get him to stop, but eloquence poured from him as water from a mountain spring. He was not allowed to halt for food, though he was permitted to drink.

The Speaker insisted on keeping to the question before the House and objected to him repeating himself. Through the watches of the night De Cosmos toiled on and successfully evaded all traps of "order." He went manfully on with his speech as the dawn broke, kept up a slow pace as the breakfast hour arrived and was still speaking as the clock slowly approached the hour of 12.

On the last stroke of that hour he stopped in the middle of a sentence and fell to the floor. For twenty-six mortal hours he had stood on the floor and addressed the House and had nearly killed himself in doing it. The excitement had kept him up till the end, but when the desired result was achieved his faculties gave way, and it was several days before he recovered. But the bill was blocked, and the settlers kept their homes.

NA-DRU-CO

Formulae Have Been Well Tried Out

Though the NA-DRU-CO line of Medicinal and Toilet Preparations have been on sale for a few months only, don't think for minute that in buying NA-DRU-CO goods you are experimenting with new or untried preparations.

Their Origin

The twenty-one wholesale drug firms now united in the "National" had all of them lengthy careers, some for fifty to one hundred years, prior to the union. Each firm had acquired or developed a number of valuable formulas for medicinal and toilet preparations, all of which became the property of the "National".

Since the union our expert chemists have carefully gone over these formulae and selected the best for the NA-DRU-CO line. Every formula has been carefully studied by these experts, improved if possible, and then thoroughly tested again, in actual use, before we consider it good enough to bear the NA-DRU-CO Trade Mark.

An Example

A good example of what we mean is NA-DRU-CO Nervozone for Brain Fag or nervous break-down. The formula was pronounced the most scientific combination of nerve medicines, but this was not enough for us; we had it tried out with a dozen different kind of Brain workers — School Teachers, Lawyers, Bookkeepers—as well as Society leaders and home workers, and everywhere the result was so good that we adopted it as one of the best of the NA-DRU-CO line.

There are therefore no experiments among NA-DRU-CO preparations. We have invested altogether too much time, work and money in the NA-DRU-CO line to take any chances of discrediting it with preparations that might not prove satisfactory. We make absolutely certain that each preparation is satisfactory before we endorse it with the NA-DRU-CO Trade Mark.

Ask your physician or your druggist about the firm behind NA-DRU-CO preparations and about the NA-DRU-CO line. They can tell you, for we will furnish them, on request, a full list of the ingredients in any NA-DRU-CO article.

"Money Back"

If by any chance you should not be entirely satisfied with any NA-DRU-CO article you try, return the unused portion to the druggist from whom you bought it and he will refund your money—willingly, too, because we return to him every cent he gives back to you.

If your druggist should not have the particular NA-DRU-CO article you ask for in stock he can get it for you within two days from our nearest wholesale branch.

SASKATCHEWAN WARNED.

The Province Will Organize University With Care.

That it is the intention of the authorities of the University of Saskatchewan to profit by the experience of the older universities is evident after a perusal of the president's report. Whatever is good will be adopted. For instance, the system of residence in college in vogue in England will be adopted to some extent.

The governors have purchased a site of 1,333 acres, and they are setting aside nearly 300 acres for a campus. This is to provide for future growth, nearly every university having suffered because short views were taken in the beginning. The work of higher education will not be divided among separate institutions, and in this university the instruction will be so liberal that the farmer studying in the College of Agriculture will receive a training that will place him on an equality with the most skilful engineer or professional practitioner.

In this connection great praise is given the University of Wisconsin, which includes within its scope subjects as diverse as the criticism of poetry and the curing of cheese.

Plans have been recommended that make ample provision for the establishment of:

1. A College of Liberal Arts and Science with Schools of Music, Art and Commerce.
2. A College of Agriculture with Schools of Forestry, Domestic Science, and Veterinary Science.
3. A College of Education with Practice Schools.
4. A College of Law.
5. A College of Medicine with School of Pharmacy and adjacent Hospitals.
6. A College of Dentistry.
7. A College of Engineering.
8. An Extension Department making provision for local Technical Schools, Correspondence Classes, Lecture Courses, and Farmers' Clubs.

The ideals of the new university are outlined in one of the president's concluding remarks:

"If our university is to serve the province in the things that abide, it should provide both the schools of science, where mastery over nature is taught, and the school of the humanities where men learn the purpose of life and the art of living. It should conserve the best of the past, and meet the needs of the future."

The following appointments have been made:

Wm. John Rutherford, B.S.A. (Tor.), Dean and Professor of Animal Husbandry. He has served on the staffs of the Agricultural Colleges of Ontario, Iowa, and Manitoba, and is Deputy Commissioner of Agriculture for the Province of Saskatchewan.

George Herbert Ling, B.A. (Tor.), Professor of Mathematics. Prof. Ling was one of the most distinguished students of his time in mathematics at Toronto and Columbia. At the time of his appointment he was Adjunct Professor of Mathematics in Columbia University.

Alex. Rodger Greig, B.Sc. (McGill), Professor of Agricultural Engineering and Superintendent of Building. Mr. Greig took his degree in Mechanical Engineering at McGill, and afterwards spent several years in railroad work with the Canada Atlantic and the Canadian Northern Railways. Three years ago he was appointed professor in the Manitoba Agricultural College.

Reginald John Bateman, M.A. (Trin. Coll. Dub.), Professor of English and French for one year.

Arthur Moxon, B.A. (Dal.), and B.A. and B.C.L. (Oxon.), Assistant Professor of Classics for one year.

Fifteen scholarships, ranging from $100 to $75 each, have been offered for competition, and a nomination to a scholarship has been placed at the disposal of each of the Collegiate Institutes and High Schools of the province.

"My Name is Shackleton."

In connection with Sir Ernest Shackleton's recent visit to St. Petersburg, an interesting story is told. When the famous Antarctic explorer crossed the Russian frontier at Wirballen, he was seen by a Russian journalist, ignorant of his identity, walking up and down the station platform, wearing no overcoat or any other addition to his ordinary clothing save a light pea-jacket. The journalist, meaning well, warned him to beware of inflammation of the lungs. "This is Russia, not a southern country," he said. "I am accustomed to frosts," replied Sir Ernest. "It is sometimes much colder in the south than here. My name is Shackleton."

His Whole Business.

Tar water as a remedy many years ago in England became the universal nostrum. Horace Walpole tells that a man went into a chemist's shop and asked, "Do you sell tar water?" "Tar water!" replied the apothecary "Why I sell nothing else."

Her Daughter
Took Very Sick As Result Of Catching Cold.

Mrs. Dennis Delaney, Friar's Head, N.S., writes: 'At the close of the year 1907, our youngest daughter, five years old, took very sick as the result of catching cold. She became very weak and could not move around at all. We consulted doctors and gave her various kinds of medicine but they did not seem to relieve her any. On the advice of a friend I procured a bottle of your valuable remedy, Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, and after using the first bottle noticeable improvement was the result and after using three bottles she was entirely cured. I can certify that it was through your valuable remedy that she regained her strength and would advise every mother having young ones similarly afflicted to obtain your valuable remedy. For myself I would not be without a bottle in the house."

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup contains all the lung healing virtues of the Norway pine tree combined with Wild Cherry bark and other pectoral remedies. It has stood the test for many years, and is now more generally used than ever. Price 25 cents at all dealers. Manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

What Thos. McDonald Says of Dodd's Kidney Pills.

He Had Lame Back, Kidney Disease and Heart Flutterings, and One Box Cured Him.

Shubenacadie, Hants Co., N. S., April 1.—(Special)—"I suffered from Lame Back, Kidney Disease and Heart Flutterings, caused by a cold and a strain, for three years. I was looking over some papers and saw Dodd's Kidney Pills advertised and I bought one box, which completely cured me. Dodd's Kidney Pills are wonderful."

This is the simple, straightforward statement of Mr. Thomas McDonald, a well-known resident of this place. It shows how quickly Dodd's Kidney Pills cure Kidney Disease when taken in its earliest stages. Lame Back is one of the first symptoms of sick Kidneys. It is caused by blood, from which the sick Kidneys have failed to strain the impurities, increasing the work of the heart. Dodd's Kidney Pills make the sick Kidneys well, the lame back disappears, the blood is purified, the heart is relieved, and the flutterings stop.

If the case is of long standing, it may take longer to cure it, but Dodd's Kidney Pills never fail to do it.

MORE ABOUT CREAM TESTING

From Farm and Dairy.

James Stonehouse, Ontario Co., Ont.

The question of cream testing has apparently reached an acute stage judging by the articles appearing in Farm and Dairy during the past few months on this question. One would be led to think that a great injustice was being done to the patron sending rich cream to the creamery. Whether there is injustice or not under the present system of testing, creamery men, generally, will admit that patrons sending the richest cream are almost invariably the best satisfied with the creamery.

The 17.6 c.c. pipette should, undoubtedly, be condemned and prohibited for testing cream. I am not so sure, however, that we are going to cure all the evils by discarding the 18 c.c. or the 9 c.c. pipette and adopting the scales. Farm and Dairy of March 10th gives the data from the Agricultural College of Ithaca, N.Y., showing a remarkable difference in results between testing by the 17.6 pipette and the scales. Such discrepancies have not been found in comparison made at the Kingston Dairy School by Mr. Singleton during the past two or three years and while not disputing the data from Ithaca, N.Y., would it not be a satisfaction to hear from Mr. Singleton and have him give us some conclusions which he has reached?

I have understood Mr. Singleton to say that where the 9 c.c. was used and the work carefully done, the difference between that and the scales was slight. However, it would be more satisfactory to have data from our own institutions and let us see how results compare and if results warrant the change then we will have to discard the old methods. There is no doubt but what a good deal of carelessness has been allowed to creep in in connection with testing by the pipette and where an operator does not rinse his pipette, a double injustice is done the patron with rich cream because a much larger proportion of rich cream sticks to the pipette.

The 9 c.c. pipette is much more satisfactory than the 18 c.c. because of water to be used in rinsing out the pipette whereas the old style of bottle with a 17.6 c.c. or an 18 c.c. pipette only allows for a small proportion of water which is not sufficient to clean out the pipette.

Where the patrons of a creamery are all sending fairly rich cream and the testing is carefully done, I do not consider that much injustice is done to anyone and we know this, that the patron sending the rich cream always has a more constant test, not up one month and down the next, as is nearly always the case with a poor cream.

TRICKS IN THE SEED TRADE

From Farm and Dairy.

It is difficult to adjust any trade so that there will not be misrepresentation in the goods offered. In the seed trade the temptation is strong and there is reason to believe that a good deal of trickery is practised. It is often done in such a way that it is hard to secure a conviction if it were tried. For instance the other day a seed dealer was offering some red clover seed of last year which would probably run three or four noxious weed seeds to the thousand, for 20 cents a pound. No grade name was given. Only the price served to indicate that the seed was represented as No. 1. This is unfair competition to other dealers who really have No. 1 seed to sell.

Again, one dealer sells his best grades at a certain price. Another dealer, who only handles inferior grades, says to the buyer: "This is my best seed," and he charges two or three cents a pound less than the first dealer, and yet there may be fully ten cents a pound difference in the value of the seeds. Herein is where purchasers of seed should be able to judge the quality of seed in order that they be not misled and for the sake of a few cents a pound buy the cheap seed, which is often the dearest seed in the long run.

Then again it is alleged and there is ground for suspicion on this point that some dealers place good samples of seed at their front doors, but when you buy, you are given seed kept in a rather dark place and much inferior in quality to what you saw at the front door. Thus it is evident that we should be able to judge the seed we buy to see that it lives up to what is required of good seed. We should remember too that we have only seven days from the time we purchase the seed to take an official sample so that if seed is wrong we may get redress against the dealer from whom the seed was purchased.

In every case buyers of seed should compare the seed they get with the sample they purchase by. Many dealers might take this advice too when they order from representatives of the wholesale houses. Furthermore, remember that it is a foolish policy to take notice of a lead seal on an open bag of seed, as inferior seed may have been emptied into such a bag.

Editor Used a Well Known Tonic and System Builder

The Editor and Manager of the Burk's Falls "Arrow," is only human. This being so it is not surprising that he should feel and suffer as other men. Mr. Alex. Fawcett says: "I had a very severe attack of La Grippe which left me very weak, spiritless and run down. I seemed to have lost all ambition. "At this point I realized that my condition was likely to become more serious unless I took myself in hand. One day while in this 'Half dead and alive condition' I was listlessly looking over recent issues of my paper, The Burk's Falls Arrow' (of which I am Editor and Manager), when my eyes rested on an advertisement of PSYCHINE. This clearly and explicitly set forth a case so exactly resembling my own that I at once purchased a bottle at the Medical Hall. After taking two or three doses I felt like a new man, and before half the second bottle had been used, every trace of the bad effects of La Grippe had left me. "PSYCHINE is a marvel and I have strongly recommended it to some of my friends similarly afflicted and they have used it with equally beneficent results."

STRENGTHENS WEAK LUNGS

The Absinth Tippler.

The symptoms of the absinth tippler are muscular trembling and a marked decline of strength, the hair begins to drop out, the face takes on a despairing look, and he soon becomes wrinkled and sallow. Lesion of the brain follows, horrible dreams come thick and fast, and gradually a paralysis takes him to the grave.

To Meddle.

Meddle once signified "to concern oneself with." It is so used in the Scriptures, where the expression occurs, "Meddle with your own business."

The Musk Ox.

In systematic zoology the place accorded to the musk ox is intermediate between those of the sheep (ovis) and the ox (bos), and for its special accommodation a new genus has been created, "ovibos." Most writers notice its resemblance in many ways to the buffalo or bison, and it undoubtedly has much affinity with this species.

Deaf Mutes.

In beginning to teach deaf mutes the art of speech they are first placed before a mirror and taught to form with their lips the vowel sound.

Brooms.

Nearly all the high grade brooms of the world are made in the United States, where, too, they are for the most part sold, though some of the inferior grades are sent abroad. It is a peculiar fact that Europeans generally cling to the old style broom of twigs and do not look with favor upon the modern American broom.

A 100 ACRE DAIRY FARM

From Farm and Dairy.

Wm. W. Whitton, Northumberland Co., Ont.

Nine years ago, I purchased a 100 acre farm in the township of Seymour, Northumberland county. The farm is located in a fine neighborhood, but it was in a bad state of cultivation. It had poor fences and very inferior buildings. A few days after I made the purchase, I met a friend who said, "Well, William, start right and you will come out all right." That was my policy. The following deals more or less with the results I have obtained to date.

The first spring I bought $25 worth of clover seed. I always sow lots of clover. I have since fenced the farm and in 1908 I built a new barn with stone basement 40 x 70 feet. This barn was shown in the back ground on the front cover illustration in Farm and Dairy last week. The barn cost $900. Last year I built a drive house, 20 x 40 feet. The floor of the drive house is cement which keeps down all odors from the hogs.

My farm and farm practice is so planned that I can keep 11 cows, six horses and colts along with some young cattle and grow 1,000 bushels of grain every year. From three to four acres of corn provide my cows with fall and winter feed.

My herd of 11 dairy cows was entered in the dairy herd competition conducted by the Eastern Ontario Dairymen's Association last year. They won second place averaging for the six months of the test, 5,140 pounds. I endeavor to have them freshen in April. I feed straw and corn stalks all winter and start them on hay the first of March. I am by no means a heavy feeder as I do not think it pays. When my cows freshen, I start feeding hay, oat and barley chop mixed, two quarts, up until about May 24th, at which time I turn them out in clover up to their knees. Last summer my cows averaged $61 a piece in returns from the cheese factory from April 10th to November 20th. They also made $50 worth of butter.

Cows in summer time require plenty of grass, lots of salt and good water. They require to be milked at regular hours and by no means should they be abused.

The orchard illustrated on the front cover of Farm and Dairy last week has been set out only 10 years. Pumpkins are grown between the trees and the pumpkins are used in the fall for the cows They are excellent feed for milk.

I always exercise great care in buying a cow. I go to a man that I can depend upon and pick the best from his herd. I have to pay a good price for such cows, but they are the kind that pay.

BRIEFS FROM THE WIRES.

Ludger Genest, aged 62, chief of the Hull fire and police departments for 37 years, died yesterday morning.

Maude Adams will play the role of "Chantecler" in Frohman's American production of the Rostand play.

While walking from one coach to another, Boyd Grey, aged 9, of Pakenham, Ont., fell from a C.P.R. train north of Chalk River, Ont., on Wednesday night and received concussion of the brain.

Apparently having failed to bring about an end to the car strike in Philadelphia, John Mitchell, accompanied by Denis Hayes, fourth vice-president of the American Federation of Labor, went to New York yesterday.

The next Fourth of July in New York will be noiseless. Mayor Gaynor decided yesterday that the order of former Fire Commissioner Hayes, that no permits for the retail sale of fireworks between June 10 and July 10 be issued, shall stand.

The New York police yesterday reported that they had traced another girl to young Wolter's flat, but are unable to find out what became of her. The detectives give her name as Elsie Schwartz, who is said to have called on Wolter the day before Ruth Wheeler was killed.

Wilbur H. Turner, a saloonkeeper of Buffalo, is dead; Charles Woodcock, a farmer, is fatally injured, and G. N. Adwen of Tonawanda is seriously injured as the result of a collision between an automobile and a line of farmers' rigs on the Lewiston road, near Niagara Falls, N.Y., last night.

Canada Gains From U.S.

Washington, D.C., April 2.—A report was submitted to Congress yesterday by Senator Billingham, chairman of the joint immigration commission, in regard to the immigration situation in Canada.

Probably the most important statement made in the report is that Canada wants immigrants whose purpose is to enter agricultural pursuits either as owners, tenants or laborers, and desires to exclude those immigrants whose presence would tend to the congestion of towns and cities.

Another striking feature of the report is the comparison of immigration into Canada during the past decade with that into the United States. This shows that while 70 per cent. of Canada's immigrants during that period came from Northern and Western Europe, and only 30 per cent. from southern and eastern Europe, the reverse was true in regard to the immigrants entering the United States.

Of the total number of immigrants going from the United States to Canada during the past three years more than seven-eighths were classed as farmers or farm laborers.

Gave Inside Information?

Calgary, Alta., April 2.—What appears to be a scandal in Calgary has come to light.

On March 26, D'Arcy Tate, solicitor of the G.T.R. of this city, approved a general location route map of the Grand Trunk's entry into Calgary, the first official document of this nature that has been received.

City Clerk Gillies, it is alleged, with one or two exceptions, kept the matter dark, only putting Mayor Jamieson wise and some real estate men. The latter got busy and took options on the right of way as taken from the map, which should have been laid before the City Council writs' session on Tuesday.

Mayor Jamieson's only explanation of the papers not being given to council is that he had seen them, but had done nothing with them.

Windsor Customs Receipts.

Windsor, April 2.—A. L. Iron, proprietor of the British-American Brewery, yesterday purchased the Fleming Block for $50,000. It is one of the best business and office blocks in the city.

All records for receipts have been beaten at the Windsor customs office. Collections for March totalled $176,-060.51. In March, 1909, they were $99,-935.79. Receipts for the fiscal year which closed yesterday, were $1,086,-099.29. The increase is said to be due largely to the prosperity of Windsor merchants. The number of importations this year over last, showed an increase of 5,000.

A Censor of Their Own.

Pittsburg, Pa., April 2.—The Allegheny County Federation of Catholic Societies has appointed a standing committee to censor theatrical performances in Greater Pittsburg. The 20,000 parishioners whom the federation represents are expected to abide by the decisions.

Huge Oil Firm Fails.

Amsterdam, Holland, April 2.—Vreeswyk and Galdermans, one of the most important of the firms of brokers on the oil exchange, failed yesterday.

Their liabilities are reported to be between $1,250,000 and $2,000,000.

All Over In 30 Days.

St. Louis, Mo., April 2.—"Don't be alarmed over the outcome of this affair; don't be afraid that we will not be able to sign up an agreement. It will all be over within thirty days. Anyhow, this is good fishing weather," said Thos. L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Works of North America, in addressing 3,000 Illinois mine workers yesterday.

"It isn't work we want," he continued, "we are willing to do our part, but we want a full and complete share of the results of our labor and we never will be satisfied until we get it."

In an interview Mr. Lewis said the miners would win in all their demands within thirty days in all fields with the possible exception of Illinois and Western Pennsylvania. In these fields, he said, more time might be necessary.

Foreman Sues For Slander.

Brantford, April 2.—Harold Kitchen, 14 years old, while visiting his uncle at St. George, sustained serious injury by a discharge from a rifle, the bullet lodging in his side.

As a result of a letter addressed to the City Council by E. P. Park, a resident of Brant avenue, in which it was stated civic money was being wasted because a large gang of sewer workers were idle half an hour each morning, the foreman, waiting for Chief Foreman Legacy to appear, the foreman has instructed a lawyer to proceed against the writer for damages.

Big Catch of Seal.

St. John's, Nfld., April 2.—The sealing steamer Iceland, one of the fleet operating in the Gulf of St. Lawrence, was crushed in the ice last Wednesday and went to the bottom. The sealer Florizel, which arrived here yesterday rescued the 163 members of the crew and brought them here.

The Florizel brought the largest catch of seals ever recorded here, her fare numbering 49,000, valued at $120,-000. The season has been remarkably prosperous, the catch in sight being worth $600,000.

Fed Him Buns, Marries Another.

Montreal, April 2.—Thomas E. Dalton, the Point St. Charles man who was recently arrested on a charge of bigamy was brought into court yesterday to permit of the presentation before the court of the two marriage certificates. Dalton pleaded guilty the other day and still maintaining that plea stated that the reason he left his first wife was that she fed him on buns. The day he left he had a dozen buns for his dinner.

Welcome to Cast-Off Battleships.

London, April 2.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—Speaking in the House of Lords yesterday, Lord Brassey suggested that instead of scrapping vessels the Admiralty should make a free gift of them for service in colonial waters.

Earl Granard, replying on behalf of the Government, said there had been no demand by the Dominion for such ships. If they really wanted them, the dominions would have asked for them.

From Bad to Worse.

Montreal, April 2.—Joseph Drouin, a member of the bar of Montreal was recently suspended from practice by the council of the Bar for improper conduct in dealing with a client. He had his case re-opened to offer new evidence when it was found this evidence was doctored. Yesterday seven months' suspension was added to the sentence of the Bar council, making thirteen months in all.

These Miners Get More.

Baltimore, Md., April 2.—About 45,-000 unorganized coal miners in Maryland, Northern West Virginia and South Pennsylvania have received an advance in wages of five per cent., according to an announcement made here yesterday.

They had made no demand.

FINGER TIPS CUT OFF

Mr. Henry Allison, who resides on Mark street, East City, and who is employed in the Quaker Oats mill, met with a painful accident while at work there on Thursday. He had the misfortune to have the tips of two fingers cut off in some machinery with which he was working. However, the injury is not a serious one, and he will be able to return to work in a few days.

MAPLE SYRUP STOLEN

High Constable Cochrane went out to Dummer this morning to arrest two young men, who, it is said, stole eight gallons of maple syrup from the sugar bush of Mr. Batten, in the above township. It appears that the accused went into the woods, and when there was no one in the immediate vicinity of the syrup, carried it away. About eight gallons is said to have been taken. The young men will be brought before Magistrate Edmison this evening on the arrival of the evening train, and a day will be set for their trial.

STRANGE ACTIONS

While driving along a North Monaghan road in company with two young ladies, a young man was held up by two others, who caused him considerable inconvenience. Grabbing the horse by the head, it is alleged, that these four fellows, made the driver get out. They took off their coats and wanted to fight, and before they got through with him, his clothes were pretty badly torn. A runaway accident, it is said, was narrowly averted. The four young men will appear before Magistrate Edmison in the County Police Court on Wednesday next.

THE LENNOX CHARGES OF COLLUSION DO NOT SEEM TO HAVE BEEN WELL FOUNDED

Were Aired in the Public Accounts Committee of the House Yesterday and Result Was a Disappointment to Mr. Lennox.

WITNESSES HEARD

Special to The Examiner.

Ottawa, April 1. — The charge brought on March 11th, by Mr. Haughton Lennox, of South Simcoe, implying that there had been collusion, between Mr. L. F. Clarry, barrister, late of Hastings, and Mr. James Dickson, P.L.S., government valuator of alleged drowned lands, with the knowledge of the government, was ventilated in the Public Accounts committee to-day. The charge in effect was that Mr. Clarry while acting as solicitor for the claimants (mainly in the township of Asphodel) to compensate for damages from the raising of the water for canal purposes was at the same time acting as legal agent of the government in the matter of verifying the land titles of persons to whom damages had been awarded, to the lands affected. It came out in the committee that Mr. Lennox had been very zealous in the matter, having spent several days in the vicinity of Hastings interviewing the residents and generally working up a case. He evidently felt that he had a big scandal up his sleeve. Mr. Sexsmith in whose riding the alleged scandal took place should be satisfied with the zeal displayed by Mr. Lennox. In the committee Mr. Clarry was first examined and told a plain, straightforward story, apparently not at all to the liking of Mr. Lennox, who seemed at times anxious to have the witness accept his views and versions of facts. Mr. Clarry's evidence, which was supported by the evidence of some half a dozen other witnesses from Asphodel for whom he had acted, showed that there was, as had been practically charged, no collusion between Clarry and Dickson, and that the former's arrangements with his clients, none of whom had any fault to find with the commission charges, had been open and above board, and with no attempt at concealment. It was proven that while Clarry had subsequently acted as agent for the Department of Justice through which payments to him were to be made, it was only after the awards for damages had been made and the relation of solicitor and client closed. Nor was it shown that the Department of Justice had any knowledge of the identity of the agent, employed to verify titles, with the solicitor who had acted for claimants in respect of damages to lands. The hearing of the case is adjourned till next Wednesday, when further witnesses will be examined.

HAS HAD EXPERIENCE

Mr. Bert W. Sharpe, who has taken charge of the Boys' Department of the Y. M. C. A., arrived yesterday. Mr. Sharpe has, for several years, been connected with the Boys' Department of Hamilton Y. M. C. A., as a member, and latterly associated with Mr. T. L. Best, as assistant-secretary of the same association. The local association consider themselves fortunate in securing Mr. Sharp's services, as his experience in the Hamilton Boys' department and with Mr. Best, qualifies him as a valuable officer of the local executive staff.

A progressive policy will be the feature of the Boys' department, and a work carrying lasting benefit to the lives of Peterborough boys is expected under Mr. Sharpe's leadership.

A request from the Horticultural Society asking for the scrapings off the trees was granted.

Uopn the report of the City Engineer that the foutain on Hunter St. be changed to a flowing one for $23, it was decided to have it made. The chairman was instructed to inquire into the cost of the keep of the Board of Works team at the fire hall. The street commissioner was authorized to arrange for providing gravel and that it be paid for on the certificate of the City Engineer.

NEW RABIES CURE

Jas. S. Cumming of Ann Arbor Discovers New Treatment.

Ann Arbor, Mich., April 1.—Dr. James S. Cumming, director of the Pasteur Institute of the University of Michigan, to-day announced the discovery of a new method for the treatment of hydrophobia.

The new treatment, Dr. Cumming says, eliminates many of the dangers attending the former methods and shortens the time of treatment by one week.

Dr. Cumming uses a virus prepared from spinal tissues from a rabid animal. This is injected into the patient. The virus is said to have been used in several cases recently with marked success.

DOMINION REVENUES FOR YEAR AMOUNT TO 100 MILLIONS

Hon Mr. Fielding's prediction, made during the budget debate, that this year Canada's revenue would reach the hundred million dollar mark has come true. The Finance Department has made an unofficial announcement that the Dominion revenues for the fiscal year ending March 31st, amount to 100 million dollars. This represents an increase of 63 million dollars a year since the Liberal government assumed office, fourteen years ago. It is only a type of the progress that has taken place in every department of national activity; in expansion of trade, industrial improvement in growth of agricultural development, increase of population and enlargement of national standing.

Traffic Resources For Railway To The North

Another Lindsay citizen has expressed his views in regard to the proposed railway from Peterborough to the north country. He pointed out that the railway would not only bring a stream of tourists to the lakes, but that it would develop a large traffic in timber and minerals. "If a line were built between Peterborough and Wilberforce," he says, "it would hardly be completed before half a dozen or perhaps a dozen portable steam saw mills would be in operation. It would be the same as it is in Chandos, Faraday and Methuen, where they are cutting timber and shipping by C. O. R. from Coe Hill station. There are miles of track there with piles of timber on each side; poles, pulp wood, tan bark, etc., ready for shipment. The result would be the same here if a railway were built and your enterprising city of Peterborough would benefit.

"The district has farm products for shipment—cattle, hogs, sheep, cheese, and the present production would be very largely increased if there were proper facilities for getting things to market.

"Then there are undoubtedly minerals here and a railway would bring about mining development. I have a sample of gold found within six miles of Apsley.

"This country has given your monied men all or nearly all that is on the top of the ground. Do you want us to open up several gold mines and give you that also? The mineral is here. Come and get it by building a road."

Y. M. C. A. Arranges An Educational Campaign

The Y. M. C. A. have arranged for an educational campaign, under the leadership of Rev. J. Aspinall C. McCuaig, United States Vice-President, and Canadian President of the National Christian League for the promotion of purity.

In the United States no movement of social reform has been accorded such generous and spontaneous welcome as this, which has also commended itself so that civic authorities, medical associations and labour federations vie with churches and universities in enthusiastic response and hearty co-operation.

Because of the exceeding delicacy of the subject of social vice, the press, the pulpit, the school and the home have been almost silent about it; but now a great effort is being made to place before the people the importance of action and proper knowledge, which is the essential need. Fundamentally, the crusade is on behalf of the child, who is viewed as the seed force of reform, by spreading knowledge among adults and parents, which shall in turn be placed before younger persons.

On Sunday, April 10th, Mr. McCuaig will deliver morning and evening addresses in churches, to be announced later, and in the afternoon a mass meeting for men will be held in the Opera House. During the same week a series of addresses and lectures will be given; of which further notice will follow.

Railway Needed To Reach The New Discovered Coal Fields

North Bay, Ont., April 1.—W. J. Baldry, who has just returned from the Metagami River country, where he was sent in charge of a party to investigate coal possibilities for the T. and N. O. Railway Commission, was in town to-day.

Mr. Baldry stated that on account of the lateness of the season and the imminence of a break-up, his party made a very hurried trip. Still, test pits were sunk in one section at intervals of half a mile for several miles, and coal found each time. The coal was used as fuel in the camp stoves of the party, the only trouble experienced being that the stoves were of tin, and the heat generated was so intense that the tin was melted, causing discontinuance of the use of the coal.

According to Mr. Baldry there is at least a section of 100 miles in length seamed with coal, and he states that the quality is the same as that found near Edmonton, semi-bituminous coal, which can be used for steam or cooking, and which is very popular with farmers and ranchers of the prairie section, where it is found and mined.

Queer Superstitions Of Famous Athletes

Philadelphia, Pa., April 1.—Athletes always develop a lot of theories about little tricks that may help them to win. About as old a system as any was that of a college broad jumper, whose name is on the list of intercollegiate champions.

This man was not a smoker, so that an occasional puff of a cigarette made him nervous. In order to induce this feeling of agitation he was accustomed to light a cigarette a moment or so before he went on the field for his jumping. He contended that a man had to be on edge to be either a good sprinter or a good jumper, and that even if his feeling of slight agitation were induced by smoking it was, not withstanding a good thing.

Another man, who was a more or less successful quarter miler, both as collegian and club athlete, nerved himself up for the start of his races by swearing profusely at himself. He had the idea that if he got thoroughly angry at himself and swore a lot it would take his mind off the race that was about to start.

One great high jumper used deliberately to practise before the competition actually began by knocking the bar off at all sorts of minor heights. He had an idea that by doing this beforehnd he got it all out of his system and entered his competition with the assured feeling that he wasn't going to slip up on any poor performances.

The blind reliance of the novice on externals as the causes for good performances by the crackerjacks occasionally had some odd sequence. There was a quarter mile runner who was accustomed to hold his index and second fingers pointed downward as he strode along, and immediately after this was observed by several new men at the game they all began holding their fingers in similar fashion as they ran.

SCORE OF MONTREALERS HUNT FOR MYSTERIOUS LEGACY

Victims of Dead Adventuress in 1907 Think That They See Some Hope for Themselves—A Queer Complication.

DID NOT REACH OWNER

Special to The Examiner.

Montreal, April 1.—A score of Montrealers, who were in 1903 swindled for amounts totalling many thousands of dollars, by that fascinating and masterly queen of swindlers, Mrs. Eva Fox-Strangways, who died in New York a fortnight ago, poisoned by her own hand, are now in search of the holders of a ten-thousand-dollar legacy that was never received by the adventuress.

It appears that in August, 1908, the lady with the taking way had for the time suspended business, and her whereabouts were unknown to the police.

When she was in hiding a relative died in Dublin, Ireland, and bequeathed her ten thousand dollars. She could not be found by the attorneys for the dead relative's estate until she was heard of in New York just prior to her death.

Driven by despair on account of lack of money and poor health, and arrested on a charge of theft, she took a dose of poison and expired some hours later.

The day after she died a letter was received from the firm of Dublin solicitors in charge of the estate that they were forwarding the legacy to New York, care of the British Consul in New York.

The Consul says that he never received the money, and the creditors are unable to get the name of the Dublin attorneys. They are at present moving heaven and earth to persuade the British consul to tell what he knows, and, if possible, to disclose the name of the Dublin firm or who has got the money.

When Mrs. Fox-Strangways was in Montreal she lived in style befitting a lady with millions at her back. She bought only the best and piled up debts in all parts of the city. She took in the great and the small with her air of a 'grande dame, 'and they had no scruples in giving her what she wished.

During part of her stay in Montreal she lived at the Place Viger Hotel for three months, and the Canadian Pacific Railway is a creditor to the extent of something over a thousand dollars.

A well known lawyer is another of the large creditors, and is working hard to ascertain if possible where the myatérious legacy has gone to. Mrs. Fox-Strangways did him out of over five hundred dollars. His bill is for legal services rendered in helping Mrs. Fox-Strangways get out of some of her numerous troubles during the latter part of her stay.

During part of her stay at the Place Viger the adventuress was ill, or thought she was, and engaged the services of one of the best doctors in the city, with her usual desire to have the best that it was possible to obtain. She in addition had the services of a trained nurse for two months. Both these are out what they should have obtained. The doctor wants to have a piece of the legacy.

In addition to her ambitious wishes in regard to board and lodging, Mrs. Fox-Strangways dressed well and only patronized the best. It is understood that Mr. William St. Pierre was swindled to the extent of some hundreds of dollars. She was a steady buyer from the Henry Morgan Company and a large number of smaller concerns, who will all share in the division of the spoils if the searchers succeed in locating the whereabouts of the Dublin attorneys who are thought to have the money.

THE C.G.E. PROPOSITION.

The application of the Canadian General Electric Company for the use of the surplus power developed at the new water works dam is one of great importance to the people of Peterborough and should receive the earnest and sincere attention of the City Council and the Water Commissioners.

Two proposals have been made, one by Mr. Patterson, superintendent of the company to the chairman of the Peterborough Board of Trade, and another by Mr. Nicholls, managing director of the Canadian General Electric Company. These propositions will no doubt be carefully considered by the City Council. It is desirable that an amicable arrangement may be arrived at both in the interests of the city and of the Canadian General Electric Company. The proposition and the alternative require full consideration before coming to a conclusion. The first proposition means the submission of a by-law to the people for a considerable sum of money to carry out the scheme. The alternative proposal would mean that the company themselves would do the work of development and pay the city yearly for the power consumed.

The Examiner will look into the matter and as soon as it has satisfied itself it will have no objection to announcing its view of the situation. On Monday the Examiner will have something more definite to say in regard to the matter that is of so much importance to the city.

A GOOD AD.

The Canadian Chicle Co. has obtained one of the best pieces of lithographic work from the Howell Lithograph Co. of Hamilton, for the purpose of advertising their gum from coast to coast. The back ground of the picture advertisement is of fruits, which are very appropriate, as the gum manufactured by the local firm is made in all flavours. Across the centre of the picture is a white bar, bearing the name of the gum, "Fruitlets." Some of these advertisements have been already posted on Hunter street by Mr. Stocker.

THE NIGHT STREET HABIT.

The Chief of Police, Ottawa, has issued an edict requiring all newsboys in the city to be off the streets at nine o'clock. The order is based upon an old curfew by-law, which, of late, has been more honoured in the breech than the observance. The police have noticed, which needs very little close observation to perceive, that the presence of young boys on the streets at nights leads to the acquirement of vicious habits. The devil's school is the night school, where not only boys, but girls, learn the first lessons in vice, and immorality. It is dangerous for boys to be allowed to roam the streets late at nights, but that practice is ruin for girls. While it invariably takes the delicate edge off maidenly modesty, it happens that very speedily if there is any modesty left it is not maidenly. Ruin, more or less complete, is sure to follow. The term "street walker" is a term of reproach, but if it does not apply to every girl who frequents the streets at nights without escort, in the vast majority of cases, if the habit is persisted in, it is not long before the term will apply in its offensive sense. While there is a very real difference between reputation and character, there is little difference in the case of a girl. A girl who gets a bad reputation, whether she deserves it or not, in a social sense comes under the condemnation of having a really bad character. Girls who frequent the streets at nights, without proper escort, or without legitimate and definite business, soon get an undesirable reputation, whether or not they deserve it. Mothers who give their boys and girls, especially their girls, too much liberty of the streets, especially after nightfall, are sowing the wind to reap the whirlwind.

THE CONSERVATIVE LEADERSHIP

There is no little talk in the Conservative press of the reorganization of the party, and, incidentally, the decapitation of Mr. R. L. Borden is suggested as a necessary preliminary step. Mr. Borden has not been a conspicuous success as a leader, but all the blame does not fall upon him. The forces he is compelled to lead are not above reproach. There is, as the Toronto News points out, a strong insurgent element in Mr. Borden's following; too many would-be leaders; too much insubordination; too much disregard of discipline. To the lack of the cohesive quality of a party policy any higher than scandal mongering, is added to the element of insurrection. To the left of Mr. Borden, in the front row, sit the remains of the "nest of traitors," in which was hatched the downfall of the Conservative party in 1896, and—a little leaven leavens the whole lump, the lump in this case being the Conservative opposition, which has for some time, and in modified degree, shown a restlessness under discipline and impatience of restraint, suggestive of the transmitted and persistent spirit of the nest of traitors. Mr. Borden seems to have at last realized this, and seems to have found courage with the advent of spring, the regenerative inspiration to contemplate in earnest a thorough party house cleaning. The first step will probably be the effacement of Hon. Geo. E. Foster, Mr. Borden's long-time first lieutenant. Mr. Foster's illness, consequent upon the result of the Globe libel trial, his physical incapacity for active service, not to speak of more important disqualifications, give Mr. Borden an opportunity, without violence to his characteristic kindness of disposition, to cast about for a successor to Mr. Foster. Thus the reorganization of the party begins. This is not a matter of exclusive party concern; it is a matter of interest to the Government party, and through them to the country at large. Paradoxical as it may appear a strong Government is made stronger by a strong opposition. An ineffective opposition, an opposition of low standard, of petty methods, fails to afford a government the stimulus to eternal vigilance, which is the price of good strong administration.

PREVALENCE OF GAMBLING.

Victoria (B.C.) Times.

We are told that as a consequence of the great prosperity of Canada and the tremendous increase in the wealth of the country during the past few years old-fashioned ideas of morality have become submerged to some extent and that gambling was never so general or so much inclined to be winked at as is the case at the present time. The country is young, however, and now is the time for the watchmen upon the walls to issue a warning respecting the inevitable results of the cultivation of such a habit. Not that we see any particular harm in small wagers between friends on such sporting events as are constantly taking place, although even that seems a silly practice for mentally and morally sound persons to indulge in. It is the professional gambler in his various guises and in the many forms in which he plies his games of plunder who is a danger and a plague to the community. He combines with the abhorrence of labour and the greed of the thief the intellectual finesse which enables him to escape the penal consequences that ought to follow every "deal" in which he participates. He is a parasite who first destroys the moral fibre and finally accomplishes the ruin of his unfortunate victims. Why do the unfortunates permit themselves to fall into his toils? That is a question which is also as old as the race. And the only answer possible is that it is the duty of society to protect its members against all animals or birds of prey.

The secretary of the anti-gambling league of Great Britain, where there is also being waged a vigorous warfare against this insidious vice, in a recent public address said: "Whereas, at the commencement of the nineteenth century there were only 20 book-makers in England, there are now 30,000, and the financial effects are declared to have been as deplorable as the moral deterioration involved. During the past five years and a half, the anti-gambling league has traced 80 suicides, 320 embezzlements, and 199 bankruptcies to the results of race-track betting." We know that crusaders are prone to exaggerate or are sometimes not sufficiently careful about verifying statements of this kind, but everyone knows that lives and homes are being ruined by the growing vice of gambling and that the time has come for a vigorous attempt to uproot the unhealthy growth.

GENERALLY SPEAKING

(By F. M. D.)

The 57th Regiment.

Peterborough young men do not seem to be as fully alive as they might be to the exceptional advantage offered them by the establishment of the Armuries in this city. Centrally situated, splendidly equipped, possessing every facility for the acquirement of the rudiments of military training, it seems strange that more young men do not offer themselves for membership in the ranks of her citizen soldiery. A few days ago the writer had the good fortune to be kindly entertained at the Armouries by some of the officers, and he was astonished to see how thoroughly the government has equipped the ordnance departments as well as catered to the sport loving side of man's nature. In addition to indoor baseball, which is a favourite game during the winter, and for which the main floor affords ample accommodation, the men have recreation rooms and two splendid bowling alleys. There is also a fine shooting gallery. The 57th Regiment is always needing men to replace those whom exigencies of business remove to other spheres of action ,and as there is no expense attached to enlisting, the bugbear of cost that deters many estimable young men from joining a club or association is here conspicuously absent.

Whilst on the subject of the Armouries it seems pertinent to observe that no less than three separate bodies appear to be empowered with the task of taking care of Central Park. These are the authorities at the Armouries, the School Board and the Town Council. Central Park can easily be made a beauty spot, but can it be made so with three separate bodies going to work to beautify their own special confines in their own special ways?

Patrol the River.

There was a good deal spoken and written last summer in regard to the danger to yachtsmen and canoeists, incurred by parties of young men shooting along the banks of the Otonabee.

The suggestion was made in these columns that the county authorities should have the river patrolled in order to catch a few of the budding Nimrods, and make an example of them. Those who make a constant practice of taking jaunts to Rice Lake remember well enough the risks they occasionally have run, on Sundays and holidays in past years.

There should be no trouble whatever in regard to the matter. On Sundays and holidays, at any rate, a special effort should be made to safeguard those who make use of this popular waterway.

Just as by the unpremeditated touch of a button, the complete machinery of a vast factory may be set in motion, so the haphazard reading of a paragraph, or the inhaling of some sweet-scented flower will set on the machinery of one's mind, setting to work kaleidoscopic views of scenes and faces long gone by. The reading of a short article on autograph hunting has just had this effect on me and has raised up from the depths of memory a figure that had not obtruded itself, on my mind these thirty years. There he stands, short and chubby, in his snuff-coloured suit,hobnailed boots, and dilapidated cap and tie; just as lifelike in his appearance as if we had only parted company yesterday. Croft was his name. He was a funny fellow, remarkable only for two things, an inordinate thirst for autograph hunting, and as the possessor of elephantine ears of so fiery a hue that they earned for him the affectionate sobriquet of "Lamps." "Lamps" really had some very fine autographs obtained by the exercise of all sorts of unconscionable methods. His plan was to write to persons of eminence in literature or the arts, complimenting them on this or that work and often the scheme was crowned with success. Autographs are not so easily obtained nowadays. Authors have been a prey to the autograph fiend too long not to have become conversant with his ways. Tennyson once said bitterly, "Every crime and every vice in the world is connected with the passion for autographs," and Prof. Huxley, stigmatized autograph hunters as "the progeny of Cain." But autograph hunting has its humorous features. When the late Duke of Clarence was a boy at school he wrote boy-like to his grandmother, the late queen, asking for a present of five shillings. She wrote back giving him lots of grandmotherly advice on the subject of thrift, but withholding the money. The prince promptly went to a dealer and sold the letter for thirty shillings. In 1849 that same letter, at a London sale, brought £16. There is an instance in Horace Greeley's "Recollections of a Busy Life," which is also funny enough to transcribe. A gushing youth wrote to him as follows:

Dear Sir,—Among your literary treasures you have doubtless several autographs of our country's late lamented poet, Edgar A. Poe. If so, and you can spare one, please enclose it to me, and receive the thanks of yours truly.

Mr. Greeley promptly responded as follows:

Dear Sir,—Among my literary treasures there happens to be exactly one autograph of our country's late lamented poet, Edgar A. Poe. It is his note of hand for $50 with my endorsement across the back. It cost me exactly $50.75 (including protest) and you can have it for half that amount.

Yours respectfully,

Mr. Greeley regretfully adds, "That autograph, I regret to say, remains on my hands and is for sale at the original price, despite the lapse of time and the depreciation of our currency."

PLANS COMPLETE FOR ENGLAND'S INTERNATIONAL HORSE SHOW

GARDEN SETTING FOR HORSE SHOW

PLAN NOVEL FEATURE

[SPECIAL DISPATCH.]
LONDON, Saturday.

WITH the publication of the schedule of classes and prizes this week the arrangements for the International Horse Show at Olympia from June 6 to June 16, may be said to have entered upon their final stage.

For this year's show the scheme of decoration is more ambitious than ever. Mr. Frank T. Euren, related to the correspondent details of this side of the show. Everything possible is to be done to give the effect of an old English garden, with homely but beautiful and sweet scented old English flowers. The big oaken gates through which competitors will enter the arena will be flanked by rock gardens, in which little waterfalls will splash among the huge bowlders, and will be surmounted by a high rustic trellis, on which roses and jasmine and wistaria will climb. All around, rising to the skyline, will be grass clad hills.

Among the new features will be a class for State Coaches, preserved as family relics, quaint survivals of an age long past, which are to be shown in all the georgeousness of their proper harness and trappings. In this class Lord Lonsdale and Sir Walter Gilbey are sure to be worthily represented.

EXCITING JUMPING EVENTS.

This year the jumping promises to be more exciting than ever. There are a number of new features, one being a competition in which teams of the same nationality will jump the fences abreast. For this competition the prizes amount to £310, the first prize being £100. The Connaught Gold Challenge Cup for Jumping, to be competed for by British officers, and King Edward's Gold Cup, value £500, which was won last year by France, will again be competed for.

A new feature will be a wide water jump. This jump, which will be twelve feet wide, will be constructed in the arena. In front of the jump will be a movable brush fence, so arranged as to admit of widening the space to be jumped to any extent necessary to the running off of the heats.

The total value of the jumping prizes this year is £4,785. Officers will attend from America, France, Italy, Spain, Belgium, Sweden, Greece and it is hoped from Germany. They will be the guests of the horse show during their stay, and every courtesy will be shown to them by officers appointed by the British War Office to act as their cicerones.

Of the other competitors, France and Belgium will send as many as ever, and even more enthusiasts than in previous years are coming from America, so that there is sure to be the usual keen competition in the stable adornment of "Millionnaires' avenue." Judge Moore has again decided to bring over his magnificent stable, and Mr. C. W. Watson, Mr. E. T. Stotesbury and Mr. R. P. McGrann will be among his rivals.

AMERICAN EXHIBITORS.

Mr. Alfred Vanderbilt will be coaching over here throughout the season and it is understood that he has set his heart upon winning the "Coaching Marathon." Two very well known American exhibitors, Mr. J. W. Harriman and Mr. Paul Sorg, who have not hitherto shown at Olympia, are now entering the lists. Mr. Walter Winans, who keeps more than a hundred magnificent horses in his stables at Surrenden Park and who does things in a grand way, has already requested, without bothering about details, that "the usual accommodations" shall be reserved for him. His brother, Mr. Louis Winans, will again be a prominent exhibitor.

Appointment Classes—Park Teams, Phaetons, Postilion, State Coaches, Victorias, Broughams.

Cobs, and Carters, Champion Cups, Coach Horse Competition, Coaching Marathon, Coaching Corinthian, Covert Hacks, Four-in-Hands, Hackney Stallions, Mounted Constables, Officers' Chargers Pace and Action, Ponies in Harness, Riding Horses, Riding Ponies.

Harness Classes—Pairs, Tandems, Four-in-Hands, Gig Horses, Ponies, Ladies' Teams.

Hunters to Jump—Jumping, High Jump, Hunters, Military, Over the Course, Territorial, Wide Jump.

Selling Classes—Tandems, Trade Turnouts, Vanners.

The judges will include Lord Lonsdale, Sir Gilbert Greenall, Baron de Neuflise, France; Lord Shrewsbury and Talbot, Mr. Rosser Williams, Lord Orkney, Mr. T. Wickham Boynton, Major General Brocklehurst, Mr. Alfred Vanderbilt, Baron M. Rösing, Germany; Mr. Lewellyn Meredith, Canada; Captain John C. Groome, America; Mr. Alfred B. Maclay, America, and Mr. A. SELECTING TEAM FOR INTERNATIONAL GAME

[SPECIAL DISPATCH.]
LONDON, Saturday.

CAPTAIN HARDRESS LLOYD, the Irish polo player who was recently given a free hand by the Hurlingham Polo Committee to select a team to represent England against America this summer in the international matches for the American Cup, with additional powers to appoint an Advisory Committee of three to help him in the selection of that team, has taken advantage of the latter power and has chosen Viscount Valentia, Major F. Egerton Green and Colonel H. S. Rawlinson.

With three such men to help him Captain Lloyd will experience, it is thought, little or no difficulty in forming an English combination that will be thoroughly representative and which may be relied upon to put up a keen struggle against the Meadow Brooks.

All three of the Advisory Committee on whom Captain Lloyd's choice has fallen are high authorities on the fashionable pastime. Viscount Valentia is chairman of the Hurlingham Polo Committee, Major Egerton manages the club which governs the game in Great Britain, and Colonel H. S. Rawlinson represents army polo on the Hurlingham committee.

Lovers of polo in America will be afforded an opportunity of seeing a good English team perform long before the international matches come on, for the players who will form the Hurlingham team which Messrs. Henry Payne Whitney and L. E. Stoddard have invited to America to take part in a tournament from April 1 to 20 next, on the grounds of the Lakewood Polo Club, at Georgian Court, Lakewood, N. J., are all first class men

They consist of Captain G. E. Belleville, of the Sixteenth Lancers; Captain C. C. de Crespigny, Second Life Guards; Captain E. D Miller and Mr. W. S. Buckmaster, with Major the Hon. J. Beresford, Seventh Hussars, as spare man.

The invitation to the English team is the outcome of the success attained by Mr. H. P. Whitney's team in England last year. The team that carried away the International Cup were sportsmen in every sense of the word, and it was not long after their return home that many distinguished players received cordial invitations to cross the Atlantic.

The players who have accepted the invitation will leave in about a fortnight, and look forward to the trip with much pleasure, as they anticipate fine sport. The entries for the tournament in which they will play are sure to be numerous and representative. Mr. H. P. Whitney, Mr. Devereux Milburn, the brothers L. and J. M. Waterbury and Mr. L. E. Stoddard, all known to fame on this side, and many other good men of the Lakewood and other clubs will compete, so those who emerge with final honors will indeed have something to be proud of

QUEEN'S PET DOGS SIT FOR PORTRAITS

Well Known Animal Painter Has Togo and Haru, Famous Japanese Spaniels, for Royal Subjects.

[SPECIAL DISPATCH.]
LONDON, Saturday.

KING EDWARD has often set the fashion in some things—in the matter of the cut of a coat or the color of a tie—but His Majesty has never been able to compete with his consort in setting the fashion on dogs. It is well enough known that the Queen loves her Borzois, of which she possesses some splendid specimens, prize winners at every show, but her real favorites are her little Japs, which are now "sitting" to Miss Frances Fairman, the well known animal painter. Miss Fairman is a very busy woman, engaged on no end of commissions, but her "first subjects," as she calls them, are just now the Japanese spaniels Togo and Haru, the pets of Queen Alexandra.

"They are Her Majesty's favorites," she said to a correspondent, in talking over her task, "and are two lovely dogs, red and white, with the loveliest silky coats I have ever seen. They accompany Her Majesty wherever she goes and are as much attached to their royal mistress as she is to them. They have something of the haughtiness of royal favorites and are bad sitters. Togo particularly finds his dignity rather ruffled by being compelled, or rather persuaded, to sit for hours before an artist in whom he is not in the least interested. He is a famous dog. He was presented to the Queen by the Emperor of Japan, and, accustomed to the atmosphere of courts, he is a little difficult to persuade into the required posture. Her Majesty occasionally visits her pets during the sitting and criticises my work. Frequently her suggestions are most helpful to me. When their royal mistress enters the joy of Togo and Haru is unbounded, and the sitting is instantly suspended."

SEEKING IDENTITY OF NAVY HOAXERS

First Lord of British Admiralty Stirred by Abyssinian Princes Received on Dreadnought.

NOT THE FIRST TIME

[SPECIAL DISPATCH.]
LONDON, Saturday.

THAT hoax which certain practical jokers, one of whom was a woman, perpetrated on the officers of the British battle ship Dreadnought, at Weymouth, by passing themselves off as Abyssinians of noble birth and being received aboard that war ship with a maximum of dignity and ceremonial, will not down. It has been the subject for repeated questioning of the First Lord of the Admiralty by members of Parliament during sessions of the House of Commons. Demand has been made that the aforesaid official take steps to identify and punish the offenders, and the First Lord has asserted his intention of endeavoring to do that very thing.

To questions as to whether a special train was furnished for the return of the "Abyssinian princes" to London, the First Lord has entered an uproarious negative. It now has been pointed out, in the effort to relieve the pressure on the heckled government officials, that this was not by any means the first time the British navy has been hoaxed in similar fashion. With reference to the Weymouth hoax an eyewitness has narrated how the affair took place, as follows:—

STORY OF AN EYEWITNESS.

"A telegram was received during the afternoon of the day in question saying that the 'Abyssinian princes' and suite, with a Foreign Office official, would visit the Dreadnought that afternoon and expressing regret at the short notice. Preparations were immediately made for their reception and a hurried clear-up of the ship all around was made. The barge of the Commander-in-Chief, Vice Admiral Sir W. May, with the flag lieutenant, proceeded to Weymouth and the party arrived on board the Dreadnought shortly before five o'clock. A royal guard of marines and the band were drawn up, and the Commander-in-Chief himself met the 'Abyssinians' on the gangway. He only remained, however, a few minutes talking and then left them in the hands of Mr. Richmond, flag captain. The Commander-in-Chief went on shore before the party concluded their visit, leaving his own boat to disembark the visitors.

"The flag captain and several other officers conducted the party round the ship in the usual manner, the first thing being an inspection of the guard of honor by the 'Abyssinians,' who were very much interested in the band.

"One of the turrets was trained around and the guns worked for their edification, but they did not care to go down into the turret, fearing, no doubt, the disarrangement of their costumes which the climbing would have occasioned. Refreshments were offered them in the wardroom, which they declined. The visitors preserved an Oriental calmness during the whole of the visit, and even up to the present opinions are equally divided as to which was the woman of the party. This says a great deal in favor of the admirable disguise. They landed again in the Commander-in-Chief's boat. Nothing was really suspected on board until the report of the hoax appeared in a London half penny journal, and the impression remains that it was a good hoax, well carried out."

HOAX OF THE POST.

A correspondent of the Yorkshire Post, however, who has a long memory, has related rather a more embarrassing hoax which was played on British naval officers two score years ago.

"A big fleet assembled at Gibraltar forty years ago," he wrote. "The Admiralty flag was flying supreme over the insignia of no less than four admirals, for the H. M. S. Agincourt displayed at her masthead the emblazoned anchor that denotes the sovereignty of four seas and an ocean or so beyond. The First Lord of the Admiralty of the time was Mr. Hugh Childers, M. P. for Pontefract, who, greatly daring for a layman, adventured upon a cruise with the fleet which he was supposed to control and so found himself under the shadow of the Rock of Gibraltar on a summer morning when Fate had a surprise in store for him.

"The combined fleets—Mediterranean, channel and reserve—were swinging to their moorings in the bay when the signal officer of the Mediterranean flagship, lying furthest south in the long extended column, reported a steam yacht swirling around Europa Point and flying the Moroccan flag, a white crescent on a blood red field. Instantly every service telescope was levelled at the stranger, on whose after bridge were seven persons whose glory almost outshone the radiant sun uprising over Telegraph Hill. Evidently the bedizened ones on the bridge were persons of tremendous importance, fresh from the Moroccan shore. 'Ex Africa semper aliquid novum,' murmured the middy of the watch of the H. M. S. Lord Wardbo, and then translated for the benefit of the bewildered quartermaster, 'Out of Africa always something new.' Yards were manned, bunting flew, sailors cheered 'three times three' and the 'Moroccan Ambassadors' feasted sumptuously aboard the flagship. Full dress for officers invited to the feast was ordained by signal from the Agincourt, and Gibraltar Bay had never been so gay since the day when the British repelled the foreign attack in 1783. The Mauretanian missionaries had a rearing time at the expense of the Admiralty all that day, concluding with fireworks as the yacht steamed out of the bay in the direction of Tangiers.

"It was a fortnight later when the combined fleets anchored in the Tagus, when the deluded officers learned from the newspapers that the 'Moroccan pirates' was composed of seven freshmen from Cambridge undertaking boat."

DEFENDS RIGHT TO WEAR SILK HAT

British Labor Member Indignantly Repudiates Insinuation That "Topper" Betrays Aristocratic Leanings.

[SPECIAL DISPATCH.]
LONDON, Saturday.

IS a silk hat a luxurious variety of headgear that cannot be classed as democratic? Mr John Hodge, labor member of Parliament for the Gorton division of Lancashire, shouts a determined negative to that question. Further, he has hotly resented the intimations of certain members of the labor party that recourse to this style of headgear has demonstrated that with his seat in the House of Commons he is getting aristocratic ideas under his bonnet, for labor members are not wont to wear "toppers."

"That insinuation is wholly wrong," said Mr. Hodge. "I want to say that I look upon the silk hat as a British institution and one which is not to be trifled with lightly. I shall always wear one at the opening of Parliament and at any other function at which some degree of dignity is desirable. It is true that I was 'snapshotted' in a high hat at the opening of Parliament, and my constituents, among whom are a large number of hatmakers, were delighted to see that I was wearing a silk hat at the time.

"In my constituency are to be found the finest silk and felt hat makers in the world. England still is undisputably prominent in this particular trade, and one of the reasons that I am a thorough [illegible] that in my opinion a tariff would ruin the industry. But I do not confine myself to stiff hats. I wear straws, Panamas and soft and hard felt hats as well. But I really prefer a square shaped, lightly built felt hat of English make, and I always take care to see that the trade union label is on the inside. This distinguishing mark is not on silk hats because with England's supremacy in this field so few are imported, and it is not necessary to differentiate between the British and the foreign made article. But I'm not the only labor member to wear a silk hat. Mr Glover, one of my colleagues, does the same thing."

As a result, Mr. Hodge has been assailed at the intimations

WHY AMERICAN WOMEN CHARM BRITISH BARONETS

[SPECIAL DISPATCH.]
LONDON, Saturday.

THAT the mater familias in high society in England is much concerned about the future of her daughters is an old story. If the pick of the nobility in the matter of heirs to titles do not go to musical beauties they are captured by well endowed American heiresses. Why? "Algernon," in a recent number of the Gentlewoman, tries to explain why and draws a comparison between the English and the American girl, very much to the advantage of the latter. "Algernon" asks himself—or herself (?)—the question, "Why do they do it?" and thus replies:—

"Either American or theatrical young women still seem bent on capturing all our eldest sons; scarcely a week passes but one of our young lordlings or budding baronets succumbs to the charms of a transatlantic belle or a young woman from Daly's Theatre, or sometimes a combination of both. The precise fascination of the musical comedy 'young lady' as helpmeet for a young man of birth and breeding it is difficult to imagine, but as regards American society belles, they have the inestimable advantage of being much gayer, more independent and more forthcoming even in their 'teens' than are our ladies personnes at a similar age. Moreover, the American girl is nothing if not adaptable, and into whatever métier she marries there will she be as much in the picture as if born to the place. Whereas English girls until they marry are so often overshadowed by their more agreeable mothers that they seem all at sea when the moment comes for fulfilling the duties of a great position.

"Why do not parents, instead of cramming their girls with accomplishments (for which they very likely have no aptitude) try to teach that best of all qualities in a wife, adaptability? Then, perhaps, the plums of the matrimonial market might occasionally fall to English belles, instead of almost invariably to their more 'cute' American cousins."

BURNS RELIC TO BE SOLD AT AUCTION

[SPECIAL DISPATCH.]
LONDON, Saturday.

The desk, an old mahogany bureau with solid oak lining, on which Robert Burns wrote the world famous lyric "Auld Lang Syne" and other poems of scarcely less renown, is, after being in the Burns family for more than a hundred years, to be sold by auction at Sotheby's. Until now it has been in the possession of Miss Annie Burns, a granddaughter of the poet. The bureau was a gift to her from her uncle, Colonel William Nicol. On Burns' death in 1796 the desk passed to his widow, Jean Armour, who died in 1834.

Apart from "Auld Lang Syne," it is believed that "Scots Wha Hae," "A Red, Red Rose" and "Tam o' Shanter" were composed on this solid and useful piece of mahogany furniture.

ELOPING WITH CHAUFFEUR A PSYCHOLOGICAL RESULT

[SPECIAL DISPATCH.]
LONDON, Saturday.

LORD MONTAGU OF BEAULIEU has attempted a psychological diagnosis of the problem of why women sometimes elope with their chauffeurs and thus provide subjects for society gossip. He believes that he has solved the question. In an editorial jotting in the Car he opines:—

"One often hears nowadays of fair women eloping with their motormen, and the commonest remark when such events happen is, 'How could she' or 'Just fancy: with a motorman!' But is there nothing more than an ordinary masculine attraction for the feminine mind in a smart looking motorman, a skilled driver gifted with a good mind, deferential yet independent, and well educated also, as often happens now? I think there is. Just as the fair sex on a steamship say of the captain, 'What a dear!' and often wish they were Mrs. Captain, and just as the most feminine of them adore the actor, the singer or the author, so women in general love a man of action who does things, controls things and could control them, too, if the occasion arose. The sense of being absolutely dependent upon the man at the wheel has a peculiar fascination, and results in the sense of trust broadening sometimes into senses of other things.

"And, looking back, this attraction toward the driver or guider of moving vehicles or ships is very old. A hundred years ago it was the most interesting form of tittle-tattle and gossip to discuss how so-and-so's stud groom or horseman had run away with an heiress, or proposed to a ward of court. The seventeenth and eighteenth centur. histories and plays are full of allusions to such events. Perhaps Jehu, who drove furiously to the common danger, was a charmer in his time; at any rate, there is no doubt that rapid motion has a distinct effect upon the human mind. Sometimes it induces sleepiness, sometimes thought, sometimes affection for the god or maybe goddess controlling the car; but it is certain that no human person remains quite uninfluenced or normal in a good car by the side of a good driver and in congenial company, to which, if you add picturesque scenery, the picture and the sensations should be complete."

Lord Montagu's remarks, so it is held by those who lend attention to the psychological side of life, make the prospect decidedly alluring and must be encouraging to those who, having much leisure but little cash, aspire to the hands of heiresses.

VANDERBILT GRAYS AGAIN IN LONDON

Will Be Used on Coach to Brighton, This Year's Season Being Inaugurated May 3.

[SPECIAL DISPATCH.]
LONDON, Saturday.

MR. GEORGE WILSON, who last year alternated with Mr. Alfred G. Vanderbilt in driving the coach from London to Brighton, has just arrived from America. He brought over with him the four famous Vanderbilt grays, which will be used again on the coach this year.

The first trip will be made on May 3, and thereafter trips will be made daily, except Sundays, throughout the season. Mr Vanderbilt will drive the greater part of the time. A new route will be followed this year, making the trip from London to Brighton about ten miles longer. It will be through a much more picturesque country than the road previously taken, bending further to the west and making a loop into Surrey, from Epsom through Leatherhead by Borough's Bridge, Boxhill, Dorking and thence on in the straight road to Brighton.

There is no prettier country round London anywhere than this stretch between Epsom and Dorking, but it will be found a difficult road for coaching. There is one very bad turn just beyond Leatherhead, which Mr Vanderbilt will need all his expertness as a driver to negotiate without accident. The road is narrow, with high walls on each side. At the foot of a steep hill there is a turn sharper than a right angle, and at the turn the road goes up another steep hill.

Mr. Wilson and Mr. Vanderbilt went over the road first in a motor car last week, and since then have been taking the Venture out almost daily to familiarize themselves with all the tricks of the way. Already seats for the trips have been well booked up.

BRIDE'S DOG HAS "GOING AWAY" COAT

[SPECIAL DISPATCH.]
LONDON, Saturday.

The latest form of pampering canine pets is to provide them with motor goggles and hot water bottles.

Another "doggy" idea is the "going away" coat, which, if the salesman are to be believed, is quite a necessary part of the bridal outfit of the smart set woman who could not go honeymooning without her pekine companion.

LONDON TO SEE AN IDEAL HOME

Princess Christian to Open Unique Exposition at Olympia on April 8, Lasting Two Weeks.

[SPECIAL DISPATCH.]
LONDON, Saturday.

IN the series of exhibitions which will follow fast on each other at Olympia during the London season not by any means the least interesting will be that which the Princess Christian is to open on April 8. It is to be devoted to "The Ideal Home," and many society women are taking a prominent part in the organization of the exhibition, which is intended to be instructive as well as beautiful and amusing.

The great building of Olympia will be totally transformed in appearance for the fortnight that the show will be open. A false roof under the glass arch will soften down the harshness of the lighting and the ugliness of the iron supports, and a huge window between the main hall and the annex will give the effect of stained glass. The scheme of decoration will cost thousands of pounds.

The chief features of the exhibition will be a Tudor village, with its real bowling greens, waterfall and growing grass; a Russian cottage of the fifteenth century, especially brought over from the Tsar's dominions; "Babyland," Lady Helmsley's model "crèche," with real babies; cottage industries from Scotland, Ireland, Wales and the English counties; a three thousand dollar villa built complete in ten days by a famous firm of London builders, and numerous novelties connected with the furnishing and beautifying of the home. With music and other entertainment and the patronage of society, Olympia promises to be in April the gayest spot in the metropolis.

IRVING MEMORIAL UNVEILING SOON

Mr. Thomas Brock's Work Ready for Presentation by Sir John Hare in June or July.

[SPECIAL DISPATCH.]
LONDON, Saturday.

At last London is promised its long awaited Irving Memorial, though it appears that it has not been the particular fault of anybody that it has been so long delayed. Mr Thomas Brock, the sculptor, has been so busy on the Queen Victoria Memorial that it was impossible for him to bet on with his Irving statue. However, it is now definitely stated that at the end of June or beginning of July next the memorial will be unveiled by Sir John Hare.

The statue is to have a very fine site, back of the National Gallery, and, very appropriately, opposite the Garrick Theatre. There the vast public who loved Irving will have the satisfaction of seeing—to quote his son Laurence Irving—"his features set up in the street, amid the noise and the turmoil."

When the subject of the memorial was first mooted there was some difference of opinion among actors and actresses as to the form it should take. Miss Ellen Terry was one of the most notable dissenters from the statue proposition.

METEORITE BROUGHT FROM ARCTIC CIRCLE TO BE ON EXHIBITION HERE

The Peterborough branch of Royal Astronomical Society of Canada will hold its next meeting in the Collegiate on Tuesday evening next, when Mr. H. B. Collier, Phm.B., will give a lecture on "Meteorites". Mr. Collier has made a study of Meteoric matter at New York, Boston, and Toronto, and is thoroughly conversant with the subject. It will be illustrated with a number of slides which have been procured from New York. The famous Victoria meteorite will be on exhibition on Tuesday night. It weighs 324 pounds and was found in the Arctic circle by Rev. Mr. McDougall, a missionary to the Indians. It fell from the skies, and was the object of worship by them for nearly two hundred years. It was brought to Victoria University, and it was found to be 90 per cent. iron and 8 per cent. nickel. The University has been offered $5,000 for it, but it was refused. The local Society appreciate the kindness of Chancellor Burwash in allowing them to have it for a few days.

"MUDCATS IN THE INDIAN RIVER"

(By Beatrice Scriver, Keene, Ont.)

Near Rice Lake by the Indian river,
Stands the thriving hamlet Keene,
Tradesmen of all kinds within her
Good as any elsewhere seen.

For worship there three churches stand,
Grist and saw mills in her, too,
Two blacksmiths also close at hand,
Which are always working true.

Three stores likewise in her are,
With drugs and goods of every kind,
One tavern, where, at any hour
Travellers good refreshments find.

The Indian river which by her flows,
Contains fish of many kind,
And if you tried to trowl, who knows,
A bass, or lunge, you'd likely land

Of all the summer sports in Keene, I think there is none like an evening's fishing mudcats on the Indian river. Some may not like it, but any who want sport and fun should try. That's what I did and I will tell you how.

True, I am only a girl, and just in my 'teens at that, but girls like sport as well as men and boys and can enjoy themselves if they feel like it.

Being always fond of fishing, my father promised me a summer at it. We lived in Keene and could see Rice Lake and the Indian River, (or as it is some times called the "Quahnelsba" an ancient Indian name, meaning the river of lilies) from our house. My father was an experienced fisherman, as he could give, and gave me a lot of information.

About the first of August, 1908, father and I left home at half past four in the afternoon, for a night's fishing in the Indian river. We took with us fish poles, frogs, worms, a lantern, two separate yards of mosquito netting and two or three extra fish hooks and lines. We went through our pasture to a canal flowing beside it and followed its course to the Indian river. We then took out "The Harvern" (father's small fishing punt), put in our luggage and started, but we had forgotten an anchor, so we had to go back for one. It was about 6.15 when we got started. However, once in the water it did not take long for us to get to our destination. We rowed as far as the Devil's Elbow. The Indian River is full of crooks and turns, but in one place it is very hard to get around, as it is just the shape of an elbow. Lately a canal or cut has been put through it, which has helped it a great deal. Around the elbow the mudcats seem to make a regular feeding ground as it is filling with marsh and wild rice, and we anchored there. The sun was just setting, so I baited my hook. I caught first a perch, then a sunfish, and after waiting for a while I pulled in a mudcat. Such a horrible thing; I was frightened and would not take it off the hook. So papa showed me how and told me at the same time that we would get nothing else now unless an eel, for no other fish would stay near a mudcat, and true enough I didn't catch another kind of fish. Papa got an eel that night, but I never desired to see another. Well, we fished until ten o'clock when they gradually dispersed and nothing would induce them to bite. As our frogs were pretty well exhausted and we were nearly ate with mosquitoes, we decided to return home. My, it was grand sailing in the moonlight with only the sound of frogs, mud hens and muskrats, which answered each other's call. I could merely hear the dip of the oars and as I sat there I recalled to memory how Wolfe with his army rowed down the St. Lawrence to Quebec in the dead of night, he repeating Gray's elegy, "The paths of glory lead but to the grave."

We reached the wharf about half past ten, lit the lantern and picked up our fish, which lay on the bottom of the boat. We found that we had fifty-nine fair-sized mudcats. Then, getting together our paraphernalia, we started for the house. Every person was glad to see us, for they had begun to get anxious at us staying out so long. They were also surprised at our good luck, but papa said that we should get more than that if we kept at it.

The next time I wanted to go out papa was busy and could not go with me, so I secured two of my girl chums and we went ourselves. I think, without any exception it was the grandest night's fishing I ever had. We laughed, talked and hauled in ninety-six mudcats. On our way home we sang patriotic songs and evening hymns, which seemed indeed to suit our spirit and the evening.

I spent from August till October, 1908, in fishing. I trowled in the daytime and fished out at night, which seemed the time for my luck, as I only caught one maskinonge and eight bass all summer.

I have found out that mudcats and hardly any other fish bite before a thunder storm, sometimes after. Also, I have learned from many reliable sources as well as from experience that small frogs furnish the best bait for mudcats.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON QUESTIONS

Golden Text. All things are possible to him that believeth. Mark 9:23.

Verse 18.—How do you account for this man's extraordinary faith?

Would it be possible, or not, for a man who is not a follower of Jesus to have such a faith as this?

What is faith caused by, or based upon? Is it a matter of evidence or a result of deep reasoning, or is it a divine impartation possible only to those who are spiritual, or what? (This question must be answered in writing by members of the club.)

Verse 19.—Did Jesus, while in the flesh ever refuse any request for help, and how is he to-day in that particular.

Give your views as to whether it is possible for a person to be a true Christian, who is not as willing to help those in need as Jesus was?

Verses 20, 21.—How do you harmonize with the goodness of God the fact that there are so many with incurable diseases, in great pain all the time, dying a living death, much like this poor woman?

If all such sufferers would come to Jesus now, in faith, like this poor woman did, would it be his will to always cure them, as he did then?

It was a notable faith that this woman had in believing she would be cured by touching his garment, but, is there reason to believe that, she could have been cured without touching him at all?

Was it the touch that cured her, or the conscious consent and power of Jesus?

Verse 22.—Jesus knows and sees all who would come to him for help and always welcomes and helps each one who comes, why then do so many hesitate, or neglect to come to him?

Verses 23, 24.—It appears it was a custom to play mournful music when death entered a home, and for the friends to make a great lamentation, please say whether this harmonizes with the teaching of Jesus, and whether in this case his words were meant for a rebuke?

Why is not mournful music, the wearing of mourning, the giving away to violent grief, and other similar heathenish customs, when friends die, displeasing to God?

Can you give any examples of Jesus using words with two or more meanings, and in such a way, that only those who were honest hearted could understand what he meant?

Verse 25.—Why did Jesus put the people out, before he raised this young woman to life?

Was it possible for Jesus, and is it possible for any follower of Jesus, to work effectually in the presence of scorners?

Verse 26.—Why did the world reject Jesus, notwithstanding his great fame as a loving teacher with marvellous wonder working power?

Verses 27-29.—How did these two blind men know that Jesus was the son of David?

Do all men need to cry for mercy, and why?

Would Jesus have healed these blind men if they did not have faith that he could do so?

What part does faith play in the temporal and spiritual progress of men to-day?

Verse 30, 31.—Why did Jesus forbid them from telling of this miracle?

Did they do right to tell it, seeing Jesus had requested them not to do so?

Which is the right thing to do, follow our good impulses or obey God, when these are contrary the one to the other as in this case?

Verses 32-34.—Jesus spent his life in one continuous work of healing all manner of diseases and doing good; in what measure are we to follow his example?

Why was it that the more good he did, and the more clearly he demonstrated his claim as the sent of God, the more the Pharisees hated him?

"The Climax"

"The Climax," which Mr. Joseph Weber will present at the Grand Opera House, Thursday, April 7th, is the work of Mr. Edward Locke,, an author heretofore unknown to fame, but from whom even more brilliant things are expected. The musical theme, which has a strong bearing on the play, is by Joseph Carl Breil.

The story of "The Climax," in brief, concerns Adelina von Hagen, daughter of a German musician, and an Italian opera singer. She is studying music with a relative, Lui Golfanti, in New York. They are poor. She, Luigi, and his son, Pietro, who hopes to become a famous composer, live in a little unpretentious studio apartment in Gotham's Latin quarter. Pietro, hot-headed and ardent, thinks himself in love with Adelina, but she loves only the career she is to follow. Her voice is sure and her spirit light. John Raymond, a doctor from Azalia, Ohio, where Adelina's infancy was spent, does not believe the stage a proper vocation for any woman, and especially for Adelina, whom he loves. The girl has a little trouble with her vocal chords, which a slight operation would cure. The operation is performed by a prominent specialist, who assures Adelina that there is only one chance in a thousand for failure. Dr. Raymond, ready to do anything to keep the girl from the stage, suggests to her the probability of this one chance. He continually persists in this suggestion until the day when the vocal chords should have healed. When she is permitted to try to sing, her voice will not come, the suggested failure had become an accomplished fact.

After an intense grief she agrees to fulfil her promise and to marry the doctor. On the wedding day Adelina discovers that her voice is not dead, but merely sleeping. She tries again and the tones come clearer than ever before. Dr. Raymond confesses what he has done, offering as an excuse a blind intoxication of love. The thoroughly delightful little play ends with Adelina left to follow the brilliant career before her, but with the knowledge that ultimately love will find a way.

FOR BABY'S SKIN TROUBLES

There are times in the life of nearly every child when Dr. Chase's Ointment proves itself a blessing. The tender skin chafes and is irritated by the clothing. Oftentimes baby eczema developes from this very cause. In a dozen ways Dr. Chase's Ointment can be used to sooth and heal the skin and prevent suffering of the little one. No treatment is so well suited for this purpose and none is so entirely satisfactory.

INTERESTING LETTER ON SUBJECT OF SOCIALISM

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Dear Sir,—

Socialism as I understand it. Is there a place for it in the world to-day?

In asking the question I append the answer. I say there is and given its place, it will in some degree remedy the wrongs and ills that exist among us to-day. I do not think there is one to-day who can say our social system is what it should be when we see on the one hand at the same time those who neither toil or spin, amassing untold wealth at the expense of those who hardly know how to make two ends meet for a living, and yet we are told such has been the case for years, and it will be so till the end of time. What a prospect to look forward to.

Perhaps in the first place there is no word more misconstrued to-day than the word Socialism. There are many that put the Socialist and the anarchist upon the one level, yet I will admit that where Socialism is not properly used and governed it may lead to anarchism.

Others look at it as a scheme with the object of amassing the world's wealth into a heap and sharing out the same so as to give everyone a start equally. For a moment I would say let that take place and in less time (under our present conditions) than it takes to share out the wealth would be in the same hands again.

There are others who look upon the movement as one that would reduce all kinds of government to the common level or commonly speaking, "down with everything and let us rule."

None of these ideas, as far as I can see, will ever bring the desired effect, we should look for. Far sooner would that effect be obtained by educating the masses to their rights as citizens. One idea of Socialism is that all public utilities should be owned and governed by the people.

Our first right is to a living. It has been said the world owes those that are brought into it a living and a right to work for the same. Does such exist to-day? I say no, nor never will, as long as the common utilities of life are held by monopolists, capitalists, trusts, etc.

In the first place take the land and the fruits thereof, above and below the soil. Show me, I say, any authority for such; far from it. I read that the land shall not be sold forever, yet what do we see. For one thing, the very coal taken from the bowels of the earth held by trusts and combines, and as governments rule (as many believe by divine right), why should they not hold the same in stewardship for the people. They control our timber limits, that which is grown above the soil. Why, I ask, should they not exercise the same right in regard to that which is taken from below the soil?

The next public utility I may refer to is our railway systems, built by and with the people's money, and then afterwards controlled by companies, capitalists and others. What hold have the people on what they have provided? None! They can charge you what they may think fit as to freight and passenger rates and the running of trains, and we, as citizens, have to abide by their decision. That is another example of monopoly ruling at the expense of citizens. The telegraph system is another example. Then there is the telephone monopoly, the inner lights of which is being brought to light by the commission that is investigating the present strike.

Now all of these I have mentioned are common utilities that should be controlled by the government of the day. If large dividends are to be made out of these, let the same go into the public purse, not as at present, into the hands of capitalists.

Then take in the country that does control these things and you find a prosperous country. Take the cities of England and Scotland that follow in this groove and you will find the public rates less than elsewhere, provided they are run by proper and honest men.

Another system that savours of Socialism is the Cooperation Movement. We are told that the labourer is worthy of his hire. Under our present conditions does he get it? Far from it! Under our present system we are working a little better than the sweating asylum. To-day labour is being bought at the cheapest markets and its products sold in the dearest.

If cooperative grocery and provision stores can be made to pay back dividends to its shareholders, why, I ask, could not the same be applied to the many of our manufacturing industries? True, that is being done in some lines and producing good results, and doing much to bridge over the gulf that is lying between capital and labour, for there is none of us but what will admit that labour is dependent on capital, and on the other hand capital depends upon labour for the production of wealth. It has often been said that competition is the life of trade. That may be true, but the competition that is in existence to-day far oftener assists in the greater amassing of wealth on the one hand and the increase of poverty on the other.

That something will have to be done in the near future is apparent. To-day it is brain and inventive genius of one man that takes the earning power from the hands of his fellowman. Every day we see some new piece of machinery invented that will do away with the manual labour of several men and the power of the purchase of the same is in the hands of capitalists, not of the labourer. Still those who are thrown out of their various trades have to live.

The remedies as far as I can see that will solve this question, one is the system of cooperation ,the other is a decrease in hours of labour.

Some will say that there is an overproduction of the necessities of life, food, raiment, furniture and other comforts that should make life worth living for. Such can never be the case while there are thousands in our large cities lacking these very things through no fault of their own except that the purchasing power of the same is out of their hands.

One more idea I have of Socialism was this: That it demands that those who assist in the production of the wealth of a nation should have their just share of the wealth produced. Next it demands that every able-bodied man should be employed in the production of that wealth at a fair wage, whereby he can provide for old age.

If these few ideas I have mentioned might be a means of solving this great problem that confronts the world to-day, how, and by whom, is it to be brought into effect and practice.

In the first place the State can do a great deal to bring about the better conditions of the masses by direct legislation along the lines I have indicated.

Secondly, the church has its share in this great work. To-day it is working along that line and many of the churches' greatest workers are to-day found working along this groove, yet there is more to be done.

If Socialism teaches one common brotherhood, as many believe it does, no greater work was ever written in its defence than the Book of Holy Writ. Socialism is no new idea. Its fundamental principles are based upon the Mosaic law. The laws of greed and oppression have been cried down through the ages by the ancient prophets till the time of Christianity, whose founder emphasized the brotherhood of humanity when he taught us to pray Our Father, and gave to the world the teachings of the golden rule.

Thirdly and lastly we as citizens have our share in bringing about the desired change. Our weapon is the ballot. See that we use it for good.

Our various actions will either help it on or retard its progress. As fire and water are antagonistic, one to another, so is Socialism and selfishness Let us, one and all, drop our petty jealousies and strive to follow that greatest of commandments, which was given two thousand years ago by the Carpenter of Nazareth, when he said the second is like unto the first. Thou shalt love thy neighbour as thyself by doing these things. We shall be bringing about that time when, man to man the world over, shall brothers be for a' that.

A POSSIBILITY.

That Became a Fact and Pleases Many People.

A. R. Lewis, M.D., in a lengthy article in the columns of the American Journal of Health, says concerning hair: "Its deterioration is a constant source of worriment to humanity, consequently bald people are readily deceived by 'fake' hair restoratives. The wish that a hair preparation will 'fill the bill' is father to the fancy that it is likely to do so. A rare case in point is that of Newbro's Herpicide, which actually does 'fill the bill.' It destroys the parasite that attacks the hair root, and prevents dandruff, falling hair and baldness." Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c. in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich.

SOME APRIL JOKES THAT WERE PLAYED ON THE UNWARY YESTERDAY

All Fools' Day in Peterborough brought about the usual number of calamities for the unwary. A method that was very much in practice yesterday, of fooling one's friends, was that of treating them to what looked, from outside appearances, to be a very delicious chocolate. However, when one bit into it, it was not so nice, and the taste lingered long in one's mouth. Inside the chocolate was a plentiful supply of red pepper. These were "April fool" chocolates, and not a few were "stung" by them.

Many a man who had a trick played on him yesterday, muttered to himself and forgot the Bible warning that he who calls his brother a fool is in danger of hell fire.

The man stopped short and wheeled around.

"Ling Over the Bounding Main," continued the lad, in a not unmelodious voice. Then he shouted, "April Fool."

The man who had been fooled started in search for a brick, and the boy slid for cover.

He Kicked the Hat.

On Murray street a man of mature years saw an old hat on the sidewalk. He gazed at it for a moment, and then gave it a healthy, hoist into the gutter.

He didn't know that a hard head rock, weighing about ten pounds, was under it. This is, not until he kicked it.

How that man did peeve! What things he did say! Such an illuminated line of plain and ornamental cuss phrases as he did carry for instant use!

After feeling his foot for some time he managed to walk, and immediately afterwards small heads began to poke out from behind a building on the opposite side.

The police station, 190, was the favourite number given by fool's day jokers.

Someone went to a number of Chinese laundries and said that a certain well-known businessman had a bunch of laundry to be taken away immediately.

Many Chinks dropped the pipe to hustle over for the laundry parcel. When the first Oriental arrived the businessman thought it was a mistake.

But no sooner did one Chink get out than another one came in. At last the businessman seized an inkstand, and resolved to wipe out the yellow peril.

"Are you running out of a hole in the ground?" he asked. "Who sicked you onto me?"

"Why you send for me if you no have laundlee " asked one Chink.

"I didn't send," the businessman explained.

"Can't foolee me," said the Chinaman. "Me wasn't bo'n lesterday."

"You'll be dead in a minute if you don't bike," the businessman retorted, and he seized the ink bottle.

The Chink ducked.

The Sad Plight Of A Remittance Man

Special to The Examiner.

Detroit, April 1.—In 1904 Nina Grosvenor, one of the most beautiful of Detroit's daughters, married William Strachey, grandson of Sir Richard Strachey, G.C.S.I., and a cousin of Sir Edward Strachey, baronet, and member of Parliament, who came to Canada as one of Lord Aberdeen's secretaries when the latter was Governor-General. Now after six years of wandering about the country the husband occupies a cell in the Sheffield avenue police station in Chicago. The young wife had him arrested in an endeavour to save him from himself. He had staggered into the wife's apartments asking for food.

Strachey had not been furnishing a cent for the support of his wife and small child for weeks, and himself had been living on meals given out by the Salvation Army, all because his "remittances" from England failed to come and he had no employment.

Mrs. Strachey says she will not seek a divorce.

"I met him at Winthrop Beach, near Boston, in the summer of 1903," she said, "A year later I left my mother's residence in Detroit and went to Winthrop Beach, to marry him. He didn't have any money except his remittances from England, and what he made working for the Gas Consumers' Association of Boston. If was only seventeen and he fascinated me.

"We got along pretty well, but when my baby was born I had to come to my mother's home in Detroit and he went to New York.

"When the baby was five weeks old he joined me in Detroit and soon after we left for Chicago, but soon we were back in Boston. From there we went to Providence, R.I., and then to Detroit, and back to Chicago, in July, 1909.

"I have been destitute ever since Christmas. Two weeks ago I had to appeal to the United Charities."

Mrs. Grosvenor the mother of the wife, has just arrived in Chicago, and is taking care of her daughter.

"Mr. Strachey is not like an American," said the mother-in-law. "When he has a little money he seems to think that more will fall from the skies, so he buys new clothes and everything. He can't get it through his head that he must work all the time. He is forty years old and despair seems to have seized him. He says that no work will restore him to the position he was born to and that his hope is gone.'"

The child is five years of age.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

Egg Dishes.

Everybody knows how to boil eggs, make them into omelets and scramble them, but few persons realize that this breakfast commodity can be resolved into an excellent dinner dish. The following recipes give various ways of preparing eggs for the piece de resistance—the main dish—of occasional Friday dinners.

Stuffed Eggs.—For four persons boil eight eggs twelve minutes and then drop them in a bowl of cold water. When perfectly cold peel and cut the eggs lengthwise into even halves and mash the yolks finely. Mix these with four tablespoonfuls of toasted bread crumbs, one tablespoonful of olive oil and salt and cayenne to taste. Stuff the mixture back into the whites, dust with more toasted crumbs, add a nut of butter to each half and put them in the stove till this is melted. These eggs may be served around boiled spinach or they may be fried a delicate brown in hot fat and put on fried pieces of toast. In the latter case a squeeze of lemon juice over the top of each will add to the taste.

Oyster Omelet.

Oyster omelet.—Beat the whites and yolks of six eggs separately. Let them stand a moment and place one dozen and a half medium-sized oysters, without their liquor, in a saucepan with a tablesponful of butter, salt, pepper, and a teaspoonful of lemon juice. Then proceed to cooking the omelet, mixing the whites and yolks of the eggs together first and pouring them into a medium hot pan on a little melted butter. When the omelet is brown on one side the oysters, which must be cooked only till the edges curl, may be poured in. Fold the omelet over them, flap it quickly over to the other side, slightly brown this and slip at once on to a hot dish. Brush over with melted butter, add chopped parsley, and serve at once.

Fresh or canned lobster, mixed with cream, green peas, mushrooms, tomatoes or green peppers, first stewed may also be used for the filling of this omelet.

Scrambled eggs with herbs.—Put two ounces of butter and two tablespoonfuls of finely chopped white onions over the fire and cook ten minutes, without browning. Add four finely-chopped mushroons and cook four minutes more; season all with white pepper, and salt to taste. Beat six eggs in a bowl with a beater until light, add four teaspoonfuls of cream and beat this in well. Put the eggs in the saucepan with onions and mushroons and stir till edges thicken. Then draw the saucepan to the edge of the stove, and add one tablespoonful of finely chopped parsley, stirring one minute more. Serve on a hot dish with a melted butter and parsley sauce.

Eggs a l'Espagnol.

Eggs a l'Espagnol.—Tomatoes, green pepper and cream are other ingredients necessary for this delicious and filling dish. Drain a can of whole tomatoes of superfluous liquid, put them in a baking dish and add two green peppers, denuded of seeds and pith, a gill of pure cream, a little butter, cayenne, salt, and a shaving of garlic, if this taste is liked. Let the dish bake slowly three-quarters of an hour, adding cream or good milk, if it gets too dry. Then, a few minutes before serving, carefully break six eggs, side by side, on top, and let the dish bake further until these have poached. Serve on crisp buttered toast made of white bread.

WHAT WOMEN ARE DOING

Few brides of the present day plead guilty to the old superstitious feeling against the removal of the ring after it has once been placed on the finger by the bridegroom. It was then considered unlucky for the ring to be taken off after it had once been put on. Nevertheless, in one family the same ring has been used for generations for the marriage of its members and an ordinary ring has been substituted for it after the wedding ceremony.

The female headdress is carried in some countries to singular extravagance. The Chinese beauty carries on her head the figure of a certain bird. This is composed of copper or of gold, according to the rank of the person. The wings spread out and fall over the front of the headdress and conceal the temples' the tail, long and open, forms a beautiful tuft of feathers; the beak covers the top of the nose; the neck is fastened to the body of the artificial animal by a spring, that it may the more freely play and tremble at the slightest motion.

Bathing with the ancients was as familiar to them as eating or sleeping and even in the heroic age of Greece the Greeks are mentioned as bathing in the sea and rivers. A method of home bathing with the Greeks was heating water in a large vessel with three feet and then pouring it over the head and shoulders of the bather, who was seated in a large wooden tub. The Roman baths were the epitome of luxury, and in imperial days there existed 870 baths, which were masterpieces of art and magnificence. Cold baths were much recommended by physicians in those bygone ages, and the works of Strabo, Pliny, Hippocrates and Oribasius contain frequent mention of the beneficial results of cold water and sea bathing. Queen Medea is said to have been the first person to indulge in warm baths, but unfortunately Leilas, king of Thessaly, who took warm baths at her suggestion, died from the results. Afterward the enraged queen, for some unknown reason, boiled people alive who offended her.

Spring Complexion Helps.

Our grandmothers, with their dosing of sulphur and molasses each spring, were not so cruel as we thought them. They knew the need of purifying the blood and getting it and the whole system in trim to sustain the intense heat of our summers.

Modern mothers have returned to the spring blood purifiers; their dosing, if less nauseous than old-time cures, is equally beneficial.

There are several forms of sulphur that are more easily taken than the old sulphur and molasses mixture, and are less likely to disarrange the digestion. Any good druggist will tell you of a reliable preparation.

Home mixtures can be made from red clover blossom tea. This is excellent to take for three or four weeks each spring. The dried blossom can be bought at the drug store, full directions as to making being given.

An easy way to manage is to purchase a small earthernware teapot, put in it two tablespoons of the herbs and cover with boiling water, a pint and a half. Let mixture steep on back of stove for half a day—not boil—and cool in the pot. Strain and drink a wineglassful three times a day or a teacupful in the morning.

This tea is not only a good blood improver, but has been known to relieve tumorous conditions. It will quickly clear the complexion and give colour.

Other herb teas, as dandelion and sage, are excellent for the blood, though children prefer sarsaparilla.

In addition to these special decoctions have a liberal diet of greens for at least a month in the spring. Cut down on meat and eat plenty of fresh vegetables, salads, with French dressing, three times a day, and cress when ever you get a chance.

Among the best vegetables for purifiers are spinach, carrots, parsnips, which contain an abundance of iron: lettuce, cress, celery, endive should be eaten freely; tomatoes are good for the liver and asparagus for the kidneys.

Drink plenty of pure water—not at meals—and avoid made dishes, coffee, and tea or rich chocolates. Under this systematic treatment the blood is bound to get in better condition.

If there be a tendency to biliousness it will be well, in addition, to take a little calomel.

FOR THE WOMAN THAT'S FAT

A Detroit physician says that the cheapest and safest mixture a fat woman who wants to get thin can use is 1-2 ounce Marmola (get it in the original 1-2 ounce package), 3-4 ounce Fluid Extract Cascara Aromatic and 4 3-4 ounces Peppermint Water. The proper amount to take is a teaspoonful after meals and at bedtime.

These ingredients may be obtained from any druggist at small cost, and make a combination that is not only excellent as a fat reducer, being able it is claimed, to take off a pound a day without causing wrinkles, but it is also a splendid help to the system as a whole, regulating the stomach and bowels (where the fat person's troubles begin), and clearing the skin of pimples and blotches. No exercise is required to help the remedy in its work and, best of all, no dieting is necessary, while taking it—you can eat what you like.

LIEUT. ROLETTE'S FEAT

YOUNG OFFICER ONE OF THE HEROES OF WAR OF 1812.

Commander of the Detroit, Which Carried Prisoners and Plunder From the Fall of Detroit, Gallantly Defended His Vessel Against Big Odds —Was Born In Quebec and Had a Strenuous Career With Nelson.

On the morning of Oct. 8, 1812, two vessels flying the British colors—H. M. brig Detroit (late the U. S. brig Adams, surrendered at Detroit) and the private brig Caledonia—came down the lake from Amherstburg and anchored off Fort Erie. The Detroit, Lieut. Rolette in command, mounted six 6-pounder long guns and was manned by three officers and eight marines, besides two officers and seven privates of the Royal Newfoundland Fencibles. She also had on board about thirty U. S. prisoners of war, including three officers, and a number of French-Canadian voyageurs. Her cargo consisted of five 12-pounder cannon, a large quantity of shot, several hundred muskets and other munitions of war — all taken from the Americans at the surrender of Detroit.

The Caledonia, a merchant brig, under Captain Irvine, carried two small guns and was heavily laden with furs and dried deerskins. She had a crew of twelve men, including officers, and a few American prisoners on board.

The following night was dark and foggy, with no wind. An armed watch was set on deck of the Detroit and the commander retired at 12 o'clock. At 5 o'clock in the morning (of the 9th) one of the watch saw a boat creeping up near the Caledonia, which lay inshore of the Detroit, and ran down to warn Rolette, who, with Ensign Kerr, an officer of the Fencibles, rushed on deck to find his vessel had been cut adrift and two boats alongside with several naval officers and a hundred American seamen, while another boat came in sight with two officers and about thirty soldiers of the U. S. army. The Americans demanded the vessel's surrender, which was promptly refused by Rolette, and the U. S. soldiers immediately opened a brisk musketry fire, and the seamen, armed with cutlasses and pistols, boarded the Detroit, several going aloft in the rigging to loosen the sails. The British made a desperate resistance. The surprise, however, was so complete that not a gun could be brought to bear on the enemy' boats. Two U. S. officers grappled with Rolette, one firing a pistol at him, and the American seamen, by overpowering numbers, drove the crew before them with the bare steel, slaying several and forcing others down the hatchways. At the end of fifteen minutes half of the British were killed and wounded and the rest driven below. The vessel was then taken without further opposition, and drifted slowly down the river.

In the meantime Captain Irvine of the Caledonia was aroused by the confusion on board the Detroit. He hastily armed himself and, calling on his men, ran to the gangway to defend his ship. He discharged two blunderbusses in succession into the enemy's advancing boat, which was leaving the captured Detroit to board the Caledonia—killing and wounding no less than seven of his assailants, when he was felled by a cutlass stroke from one of the enemy who had boarded his brig on the opposite gangway. The Caledonia made a gallant and desperate resistance, fifteen of the enemy's men being killed and wounded before she was captured. Her cable was also cut and both vessels were then directed towards the American shore.

At this moment the heavy guns of Fort Erie opened a tremendous fire of round, grape and canister shot on the Americans, causing great confusion and loss on the ships. Timbers were splintered, sails torn to shreds, and the rigging shot away; while several guns of the Royal Artillery were sent to the shore and kept up a destructive fire. The Americans brought all the guns on the Detroit to the side next the British and directed a vigorous fire for a time, but, owing to the withering storm of shot and shell from the British batteries, she became unmanagable and drifted aimlessly with the current. The Americans were soon compelled to abandon both vessels, taking all on board off in their boats. The Detroit shortly afterwards grounded on the west side of Squaw Island, a little below Black Rock. A party of forty soldiers of the 49th British Regiment put out in a boat and boarded her, but, finding the anchor gone and the vessel generally disabled, they threw her guns overboard under a smart fire from musketry on the island and artillery on the enemy's shore, and decided to quit her.

This caledonia grounded near Black Rock. Later in the day the Americans landed her cargo, with some loss of life, however, from British cannon balls. Her captain was afterwards promoted for his gallant conduct to a lieutenant in the provincial navy.

At daybreak the batteries on both sides of the river again opened fire, and were warmly engaged all day—the fire of the enemy was incessant. The first shot from the British batteries struck Major Cuyler, who was riding on the beach opposite, and went through his body. He fell from his horse instantly — over three hundred cannon balls followed, causing further loss of life and property along the United States shore. Three times during the day the Detroit changed owners.

Gen. Sir Isaac Brock, on hearing of the attack, mounted his horse and galloped up from Fort George, arriving late in the afternoon, and immediately took command of the British forces. He at once gave orders to recover the Detroit with ropes and tackle, assisted by the crew of the Lady Prescott, which had anchored a short time before, and had every prospect of accomplishing his end, but before all arrangements could be made the enemy again boarded her. In a few minutes she was seen in flames, and soon after blew up.

The commander of the Detroit, who was taken prisoner was exchanged by Gen. Van Rensselaer a short time after, and at once renewed his aggressive operations against the enemy. Perhaps no nativeborn Canadian has had such a remarkable naval career, or displayed such gallantry and fearlessness in action. Born in Quebec in 1783, Frederic Rolette at an early age went on board a man-of-war and enlisted in the British navy. He was present in several famous battles, having fought under Nelson at the battle of the Nile, where he received five wounds, and later on he took part in the glorious battle of Trafalgar, where England's mightiest seaman, Admiral Lord Nelson, was killed, after having gained a decisive victory over the combined French and Spanish fleets. After seven years of service on the ocean, Rolette returned home and was appointed a second lieutenant in the provincial marine. He was promoted in April, 1812, to first lieutenant, and to command the brig Hunter, cruising on Lake Erie. The American war began soon after and afforded him an opportunity of exerting his courage and military experience in the defence of his country. On July 3, 1812, Rolette took by surprise, and by an act of astonishing daring, with only six men in a rowboat, the American schooner Cuyuga Packet, which had on board five officers and thirty-three soldiers, besides the crew. This vessel was loaded with stores for Gen. Hull's army.

This brave Canadian officer took part in many other engagements, and died in Quebec, in 1831, from the after-effects of his many wounds. Few men during that stirring period of our country's history have left such a brilliant record as the little-known French-Canadian whose patriotic devotion to the British flag is unsurpassed in the annals of this land of heroic deeds.

MYSTERY OF A DIAMOND RING.

How It Was Discovered In a Most Curious Way.

A prominent Toronto firm of silversmiths and jewellers was recently relieved of an atmosphere of suspicion that was making the whole institution depressed and unhappy in a most curious way. One day not long ago the discovery was made that a valuable diamond ring with a stone not extremely large but of the very purest quality was missing. Every man in the firm's employ who could have access to the ring has been long with the house, and was up this time thoroughly trusted. The examination of every one revealed the completest ignorance as to when and how the ring had disappeared. Yet the fact remained that it was gone, and everything seemed to indicate that someone in the institution had taken it and was concealing the fact. There seemed to be nobody in the store who would be foolish enough or ignorant enough to perpetrate a theft so easily discovered except a porter that had been with the firm for years. His honesty had never up till then been doubted, and it was only with the greatest reluctance that the members of the firm decided to watch him. They were also keeping a watchful eye on the habits of other members of the staff, but everyone in the firm's employ behaved in the most exemplary manner. Perhaps the consciousness that everyone in the institution was severally and generally under suspicion until some solution of the mystery was reached was responsible for making every man "mind his p's and q's." The atmosphere of the shop was certainly not pleasant for anyone to live in. Now everything is happy, however.

As in most retail stores in the old sections of the city mouse traps and rat traps are nightly set in the basement. The other morning the porter came running up from the cellar in a high state of excitement, and called the whole staff to come and see something curious. In one of the mouse traps was a fat and sleek little marauder and round its middle was the missing diamond ring! It was obvious that in scampering through a case, probably in daylight, the mouse had slepped on the heavier side of the ring where the stone was set and the hoop had sprung up over its head. The animal had succeeded in working its way half through it and there the ring had stuck. It had spent some weeks in mouseland wearing this adornment, and fortunately got itself caught in the same shop. Had it been possible the members of the firm would have gladly spared the beast's life, for it had recovered something better than the diamond in question—a feeling of security and confidence.

Icicle In His Muzzle.

A dog wandered into the Toronto City Hall the other day, and, like all citizens with a grievance, found his way to the Press Room.

Something was bothering doggie, that was apparent. He was muzzled, that was bother enough in the first place, but there was something else troubling him. He kept twisting his head about and moving it from side to side. Aparently his muzzle was hurting him, but it appeared to be a good fit.

After a close examination of the mouse-trap, which revealed no defect that could hurt the dog more than necessary, one of those present removed the muzzle, and the cause of the animal's worry was discovered.

Just above the dog's nose an icicle had formed. The icicle was removed and the muzzle readjusted. Doggie was all right then, and he trotted about wagging his tail vigorously to show his appreciation.

Great Building Year.

Of the nineteen cities reporting to Construction, the organ of the building trades, in January, the average gain for the month was 94 per cent., only two places showing a falling off. These were Brantford and Sydney. St. John, N.B., with 860 per cent., had the greatest gain. Toronto's increase was 70 per cent., and Vancouver's 72 per cent. Regina was in second place with a gain of 719. Some of the figures of the Ontario cities were: Ottawa, 141 per cent.; Peterboro, 210; London, 156; Fort William, 16.

The paper predicts that the year will be the greatest in Canada's history so far as building operations are concerned.

Damascus, a Garden City.

Damascus is a garden city touched by the great desert. Under its roses one feels the sands. Beside its trembling waters one dreams of the trembling mirage. The cry of its muezzins seems to echo from its mosque towers to that most wonderful thing in nature which is "God without man." The breath of the wastes passes among the poplars as that Bedouin boy passed among the merchants when he came and when he went. In Damascus one hears the two voices. And when one looks from the sacred mountain upon that city of dream, cradled among the woods, one sees far off the tawny beginnings of that other magic which looks out from the Bedouin's eyes. And though perhaps with the pilgrims from Samarkand one loves to rest beside the fountains under the hedges of roses, one is aware of the other love, intercourse with which has made Damascus an earthly paradise for them and for you.—Robert Hichens in Century.

Handicapped.

Two old settlers sat smoking in their cabin far away in the backwoods. No woman's hand had ever desecrated that sanctum, and grime reigned supreme and triumphant. The conversation veered around from state politics to cooking.

"Ya-as," said the elder of the two, with a drawl, "I did get one o' them there cookbooks wunst, but I could never do nothin' with it."

"How was that?" inquired the other. "What was the hitch?"

"Wal," was the answer, "every one o' them receits begun in the same way with the same words. Every one o' 'em started off with 'take a clean dish,' and I never got no farther."

And he slowly replaced his old black clay pipe in his mouth and fell to ruminating sadly on the narrow outlook on the world of human beings as displayed by authors of cookery books.

Origin of Kilts.

It will doubtless surprise many Scotchmen to learn that the kilt as at present worn is only a modern fancy costume and is not of Scottish origin at all. The honor of its invention is due to two Englishmen—an army tailor who accompanied General Wade's forces to Scotland in 1719 and Thomas Rawlinson, overseer of some iron works in Glengarry's country. For more than a century previously, indeed, the tartan plaid had been the common garb of the highlanders, but it was all in one piece, wound in folds around the body, leaving the knees bare. Prior to the adoption of the tartan, which probably took place about the close of the fifteenth century, the long, loose saffron colored skirt, the real "garb of old Gaul," was the highland dress.—London Mail.

Gift to the Ugly Man.

The practice of making such gifts appears to have arisen in America and is nearly obsolete. It therefore seems to deserve a note. It goes back to Harvard college (now Harvard university) beyond 1794. In that year William Biglow was the recipient of the jackknife. In 1795 he handed it on to Charles Prentiss, with these lines:

Item: C. P. has my knife
During his natural college life,
That knife which ugliness inherits
And due to his superior merits,
And when from Harvard he shall steer
I order him to leave it here
That it may from class to class descend
Till time and ugliness shall end.

—Notes and Queries.

Meaning of Cemetery.

It is not correct to say that "cemetery" means the "city of the dead." The word is from the Greek "koimeterion," meaning sleeping place, not the place of the dead. There is nothing in the etymology of the word to warrant us in thinking that it was originally intended to convey the idea that the departed were really dead any more than there is in the old Hebrew term for cemetery, "bethaim," the house of the living.—Exchange.

MANAGER OF COAL AND STEEL.

M. J. Butler, the New Chief, Is Quiet Unassuming Person.

Naturally there has been much interest aroused by the announcement that Mr. M. J. Butler, C.M.G., Deputy Minister of Railways and Canals has been elected by the shrewd body of business men composing the boards of the Dominion Steel and Dominion Coal Companies as general manager of that great combined corporation. Just as naturally, there is some curiosity evinced by the public as to the character, qualifications and antecedents of the man, who, without any pervious experience in the particular kind of enterprise he is selected to manage, is given a salary of $30,000 a year to start with. Well, Mr. Butler is a plain, unassuming man of quick discernment and sound judgment, a sparing user of words; but a doer of deeds. Capacity for work—work of the quiet, persistent, telling kind, is considered his chief characteristic by those who have worked under him and with him. His next conspicuous quality is absolute confidence in himself; not confidence of the small, priggish description, but confidence begotten of earnestness, thoroughness and steady success. Closely identified with this spirit of confidence is the admirable quality of unaltorable determination—a determination never expressed in words, for Mr. Butler is never a blusterer; but evinced by the undeviating development of the work under his direction along the lines laid down by him.

Now as to his technical qualifications. Originality and adaptiveness in design and organization are said to be his strong points as an engineer, and this can be easily understood when the wide range of his professional training and experience are considered. He was educated for two professions, engineering and the law, and he has practiced both. He was educated at De la Salle Institute and at Toronto University as a civil engineer and land surveyor, and at Kent College of Law, Chicago, Ill., as a lawyer. His name is still on the list as an attorney and counsellor at law of the Illinois Bar. He has the degree of LL.B., is an Ontario and a Dominion Land Surveyor, and a member of the Institute of Civil Engineers, of the American Society of Civil Engineers, and of the Canadian Society of Civil Engineers. From 1903 until 1904 he was chief engineer of the Locomotive and Machine Co. of Montreal, leaving that appointment to become assistant chief engineer of the National Transcontinental Railway; in June, 1905, being appointed Deputy Minister and chief engineer of the Department of Railways and Canals, to which aplat, 1909, the duty of chairman of pointment there was added on April the board of management of Canadian Government railways.

Mr. Butler was born at Descronto, Ont., his parents being Tobias Butler and Elizabeth McVery, both natives of Ireland.

Didn't Know What They Liked.

Markhamites are telling a good joke on themselves. The Women's Auxiliary of the Church of England there gave a pancake social last Shrove Tuesday. One of the ladies of the congregation, the wife of a local hotelkeeper, offered to provide the dripping with which to fry the cakes, and Mrs. Chauncey, a life member of the auxiliary, was unanimous elected chief cook. On the afternoon of the social one of the younger members posted off to the hotel to procure the promised dripping and returned with two bowls of beautifully rendered white grease.

The pancakes were light as Southern waffles, and browned to the color of golden syrup. While everybody was voting them the best they had ever eaten, and backing their assertions by encore orders for the delicacy, the donor of the dripping hurried into the hall and rushed through to the kitchen, laden with two more pots of snow white fat. All was hustle, commotion, laughter, and suppressed excitement in the smoke-filled kitchen, but only the delicious pancakes found a way to the tables, so well ordered was the work of the committee.

Never in the history of Markham had so many pancakes been disposed of at one sitting. The social was such a success that this year it was repeated shortly after the Christmas festivities. The crowd was just as large, the pancakes just as light and their color as delicate a brown, but somehow they lacked the flavor of the year before, and the people said so. This aspersion proved too much for the volunteer cook and her willing assistants. Then and there they let out the fact that on Shrove Tuesday, 1909, the maids at the hotel had made a terrible mistake which was not discovered until the entertainment was well nigh over—instead of the clear dripping specially rendered for the social, they had sent two pots of goose grease, and in this the pancakes had been fried.

IN THE WORLD OF SPORT

A DOZEN ENTRIES FOR THE MARATHON DERBY

New York, April 2.—Mat Maloney, of Yonkers, is figuring on annexing the Marathon Derby prize at the Polo grounds this afternoon. Mat. sent in his entry to the event yesterday, increasing the field to an even dozen. Maloney is training at Yonkers for the race, and yesterday he made some good time in his strides. He has been getting himself in shape for the past two months.

In addition to Maloney, Johansen and Ljungstrom, the Swedish pair; Sellen, of England; Meadows, representing Canada; Zauti and Blasi, of Italy; Crowley, running Irish colours; Acoose, representing the Indians, and Hayes, Holmer and Crook the United States will make up the field.

Blasi, the Italian runner who has just arrived from the other side, was given a short workout at De Witt Clinton Park yesterday morning. He pleased the critics immensely and seems to be very confident of winning first prize. His followers point to the fact that both St. Yves and Dorando were victorious in races held within a short time after they had got off the boat.

Johnny Hayes is working very much to the liking of the handicappers. His trip to the West certainly seems to have done him good. Dorando's brother, Ulpiano, was in town yesterday, and he talked very enthusiastically of Hayes's improvement and said it was his opinion that Hayes would carry off first honors to-day.

SOME BASEBALL BREVITIES OF INTEREST TO FANS

Imagine a batter going to the plate with a bat guaranteed to knock out home runs for him in either right or left field, as he desired. Can't you see the downfall of A. Joss, C. Mathewson, M. Brown, and others? Yet this is what a Chicago manufacturer claims will happen if the players all adopt his crooked bats.

Lafitte has refused to sign a Rochester contract, as the Hustler management refuses to give him the salary demanded. He has not reported to Manager Ganzel, and declares he will not until his terms are met.

Walter Blair declares they are sore in Newark because he would not go back there. He personally requested Frank Ferrell not to send him to Newark.

The Buffalo team will not lack for spiritual advisers this year. Dubus studied for the priesthood for four years, and Fred Burchell was facing ordination in the Methodist ministry when he informed his parents that he thought his talents called him more strongly to the life of the layman than to that of the pastor.

Dummy Taylor and George Speer are the only Bisons who are not safely under cover with Buffalo, as George Schrim and Wally Woods rushed to the embrace of their comrades yesterday.

Johnny Evers is twenty pounds over weight; yet in practice he is working in "old-time style." If that is so, what will he do when he gets down to weight?

Fifteen strike-outs, the total scored by the three Giant pitchers in a recent game at Dallas, is some going. Marquard, Druckle, and Ames were the three who officiated, and each whiffed five men. The Texans got three hits, two off Marquand and one off Ames.

Ames' strike-out record is now 20 men in 12 innings. Leon always has been great on this whiff thing, but in the past coupled a lot of bases on balls with the fannings. This spring he has shown more control than he ever had.

Statistics have it figured out that Willie Keeler, in his "long and successful" career as a ball player, played 2,099 championship games, scored 1,714 runs, and made 2,948 hits.

Nunamaker, the new Cub catcher, will probably become an indispensable part of the West Side team. He is so massive that not even Reulbach will be able to throw a ball above or to either side of his huge frame. It will be bound to hit him somewhere.

O'Hallorin ,Holt, and Hopkins, the Orioles' new men, are doing well.

Joseph Londrigan, of Hazelton, a student in the medical department of the University of Pennsylvania and former captain of the university baseball team, but debarred because of professionalism, has signed to play the coming season with the Jersey City club of the Eastern League. He finished the season last year with Jersey City and did good work.

Manager McGraw has been offered Larry McLean, the Cincinnati catcher, in exchange for Arthur Wilson, but the Giants' leader promptly turned down the offer. He considers Wilson too valuable a man to turn loose.

Fred Mitchell has so far shown himself all that could be asked in both the catching and the hitting line. Will Stallings carry four backstops, though? And if not, who will get the hook?

That scraping and cracking sound is the usual number of exploded baseball phenoms hiking back to the bushes.

Suppose baseball will have to be stopped or revised now. Man killed by being hit with thrown ball, and Yale has two catchers laid up. Simply make 'em play with a tennis ball, that's all.

John Kling, the Chicago National catcher, who has just been reinstated by the National Baseball Commission, has wired Manager Chance that he will report at Louisville for duty on Sunday.

McGraw tried to show his rookies how to steal home the other day. He made an estimate effort but he had overlooked padding his garments. "Napoleon" now resembles a sunburned bather about the chest and arms.

Gene Demontreville is now captain of the New Orleans team. Gene has been in harness a long, long time, but he is still fairly speedy—Brooklyn Eagle. Fairly speedy? Look at what he did to the Naps at New Orleans Sunday.

Harry McIntyre, the Brooklyn pitcher, is about to join the Chicago Cubs. The decision follows a conference at Nashville between Manager Chance, of the Cubs, and Manager Dahlen, of the Superbas. The dope is that Chance proposes to trade Beaumont and Zimmerman for the Superbs twirler. Besides McIntyre, Dahlen has a quartet of star pitchers in Bell, Rucker, Scanlon and Wilhelm, and the fans here figure he will dispose of McIntyre. A formal announcement is expected soon.

John Heydler, secretary-treasurer of the National League, says that "the Kling verdict is just and equitable, and is most fair to the player. Making it mandatory on the player to return to Chicago and fulfil the last year of his three years' contract at the figure he signed for is splendid from every angle of baseball law. It means that a contract once entered into, whether by the club on one side and a player or manager on the other, must be respected and lived up to."

Watch "Larruping Larry" Lajoie, the former manager of the Cleveland Americans, is the quiet little tip that is being handed out by members of the Naps. From the first day the team started training Lajoie has been as lively as a youngster who is trying his hardest to make the team. The real cause given for the new lease of life is that the famous player is now free of cares. His career as manager was a failure, and it affected his playing to a great extent. But now that he has been relieved of that burdensome task his team mates and the critics alike figure that he will be once more the "peerless Larry" and will make Ty Cobb and any other heavy sluggers look to their honours as leading batsmen of this country.

THE TEAM.
(Toronto Star.)

We're getting yards of dope each day
Of what the players do and say.
When Kelley in the far off south
Essays some gestures with his mouth,
The busy scribes all stand around
With one ear resting on the ground,
To catch the pearls of thought let fall,
And send it at so much per col.

We learn the team is strong, of course,
Except where it has Charley horse,
That Brown has most elusive slants,
That Smith looks well in bloomer pants.
If one has chills, or one perspires,
We get it promptly o'er the wires.
Whene'er our baseball writers please,
We get those farm hands' pedigrees.

We learn the short stop is a sport,
The centre fielder has a wart,
That Soaks, the pitcher, is a tank;
That Swipes, the catcher, robbed a bank.
We learn their virtues, follies, too,
Each member of Kin Kelley's Krew.
We give our baseball writers scope,
And that is why we get this dope.

No doubt in time the team we'll view,
When Kell has weeded out a few,
And when the umpire says play ball,
We'll go and gaze upon them all.
We'll see 'em fiercely swat the air,
And then at them we'll rise and swear.
We'll see the fielders make their muffs
The twirlers, too, we'll find are bluffs.

And tho' with rage our lips may foam,
We'll feel that we are right at home.
This team, we'll say, is just as bad
As those in other years we've had,
Despite the tales of lying scribes,
The baseball writers' diatribes,
And when the season ends in woe
We'll calmly say: "We told you so."

Next Tariff Conference.

Ottawa, April 2.—The conference between the Canadian and United States Governments, to be held with a view of arranging a reciprocal trade treaty, will not begin till the end of April, or possibly later.

It is hoped a conference may be arranged for a date early in May, for which Sir Wilfrid Laurier, Hon. W. S Fielding and possibly Sir Richard Cartwright will go to Washington.

It is pointed out here that the loss of customs revenue resulting from the tariff concessions will reach $250,000, but only $100,000 will be in duties on United States goods, the balance being on foreign imports, the concessions granted being made to the whole world. This sum represents so much saving by the Canadian consumer.

A Village Engulfed.

Catania, Sicily, April 2.—Prof. Ricco, director of the Mount Aetna observatory, has been forced to abandon his post after passing hours of terror there. He said last night: "One could not stand the deafening and horrible roar of the volcano for more than one day. It would certainly drive him mad."

Late yesterday the lavatic flow engulfed Cavaliero, a village of fifty houses. The inhabitants escaped unhurt.

Messina, April 2.—Seven slight earth shocks, accompanied by subterranean rumblings and explosions, have been felt here since Thursday night. No damage, however, his resulted.

Government Helps.

Victoria, B.C., April 2.—The Provincial Government has granted $1,000 to the joint board of trade of Victoria and Vancouver towards promoting an appeal to the Railway Commission against C.P.R. discrimination in freight rates, through which British Columbia shippers suffer.

The money is toward the cost of collecting supporting data, and an expert in rates will be engaged in this behalf.

Menelik May Not Be Dead.

Paris, April 2.—Although the announcement was made to the world on Wednesday that King Menelik of Abyssinia was dead, it now seems possible that the report of the demise of this picturesque ruler is as false as earlier assertions to the same effect.

The Foreign Office yesterday received a despatch from French Minister Bryce at Addis Abeba, dated Thursday, which made no mention of the death.

Upper Lake Business Resumes.

Chicago, April 2.—Because of the favorable conditions at the upper end of Lake Michigan water, traffic will begin at once. Present ice conditions at Sault Ste. Marie are unequalled, it is said, in the records of many years. From Whitefish Bay to Detour practically no ice remains and marine men believe St. Mary's River already will permit of the passage of the biggest freighter on the lakes.

Coroner Stole Son's Heart.

New York, April 2.—Because the body of the son she loved was robbed of its heart, Mrs. Mary Massard has brought suit for $25,000 against Dr. Timothy L. Lehane, a coroner's physician. She charges that Dr. Lehane performed an autopsy on the body, and in so doing illegally abstracted and retained the heart.

Julius Harburger, a former coroner, maintains that he ordered Dr. Lehane to return the heart to the relatives.

May Break Window Glass Trust.

Pittsburg, Pa., April 2.—It was learned last night that after three months' investigation, federal officers are ready to present to a special grand jury here next Monday, evidence that the Imperial Window Glass Co. is a trust in violation of the Sherman Act.

The corporation, formed under the laws of West Virginia, is said to control 33 large window glass plants in eleven states.

Thirty Thousand for Canada.

London, April 2.—It is stated that 30,000 immigrants will sail from Liverpool for Canada on 23 steamers during April.

Millionaire's Wife Dead.

Montreal, April 2.—The death is announced of Mrs. Lemay, wife of E. H. Lemay, the millionaire lumberman, which took place last evening at Palm Beach, Florida.

New Milling Company.

Ottawa, April 2.—Letters patent have been issued to the Canadian Cereal & Milling Co., Ltd., with a capital of $4,000,000, and head office at Toronto.

Peterboro' Boy's Success In Windy City

The following from the "Produce News" will be read with interest here. Mr. King is an old Peterborough boy, having left here about twelve years ago, for Chicago, residing there continuously since.

Chicago, March 25.—The firm of M. L. Brown & Co. was incorporated this week with $100,000 capital, all paid in. Marshall L. Brown is president and treasurer; John R. Tyler, vice-president, and J. E. Ingram, secretary. In addition to these officials the directors are Herbert King and Joseph T. Minarik, old employees of the firm. Mr. Brown said the step had been under consideration some time, and he took it solely to give more interest in the business to his faithful employes, who have won his regard and consideration by the ability with which they have performed their duties. Mr. Brown has built up one of the largest butter and egg brokerage businesses in the world. The firm has averaged between three and four million dollars a year for the past four years. Mr. Brown started the firm only ten years ago. Of late his financial interests have been widening, demanding more of his time, which made incorporation advisable. At the same time he devotes strict attention to the business, and during the busy seasons is always at his post. Mr. Tyler is his brother-in-law, and is one of the best egg men in the country. Herbert King and Joe Minarik are crackerjack butter men. Mr. Ingram is the attorney for the corporation.

Mr. Brown says in addition to the paid-up capital, he is prepared to furnish $200,000 additional cash, if necessary, to back up the business. Not a dollar's worth of stock is for sale. Mr. Brown owns every share except such as have been apportioned among the inside men—"the family," as Mr. Brown calls them. Mr. Brown says the volume of business he has been transacting is the largest done by any house of its kind in the country, but under the new arrangement he expects the amount to be doubled. He is one of the best butter and egg men in the country, and in addition, is one of the most popular. "Marsh" Brown is a prince, and his remarkable success in the trade and in business is no more than he deserves.

With the exception of Herbert King the officers and directors have been with the company for many years. Mr. King was with Earl Bros. for a considerable time until a little over a year ago, when he went with M. L. Brown & Co. His inclusion among the stockholders is quite a compliment to him.

AIRSHIPS WILL HAVE RIGHT-OF-WAY IN FUTURE---THE ADVANCE IS GREAT

New York, April 2.—The developments of the last few years in the science of air navigation both here and abroad and the probable developments of the near future certainly justify the assumption that this means of transportation is approaching practical solution. It seems to be assured that its adoption for commercial purposes—for carry freight and passengers to a limited degree at least—may be witnessed within a reasonable period and the establishment of regular "airship lines" between the important centres of trade may be confidently looked forward to at no very distant day, says T. O. Abbott, who has given this phase of aeronautics much attention.

For this purpose certain fixed and definite channels or routes of travel must be selected or "laid out." Not only will the requirements of trade render this desirable, but the rights of property will make it necessary.

Most persons doubtless will be greatly surprised to learn that it is possible for any question of property rights to be involved in the use of the air. "Free as the air" has become an axiom. It is in fact only poetic fancy. The waters of the sea are freer by far than the air, for there is no ownership in the sea nor in the soil under the sea, nor in anything that lives in the sea—beyond the narrow border along its edge, which is supposed to be within the cannon's reach. And yet the rules which have been established for the use of the sea are numerous, and but for these rules and their enforcement the "trackless sea" would be but a graveyard for ships.

Air Belongs to the Soil.

Although the air diffuses itself everywhere it is susceptible of division and allotment, and consequently of individual control, because the space it occupies is individual property. The right of the owner of the soil extends from the centre of the earth to the "dome of heaven," and he is not limited in the enjoyment of this right by his power to take possession of it. If it were possible for him to erect a vast cornucopia, or hopper, to enclose the height, depth and breadth of his earthly and aerial domain there would be none his right to dispute. As a consequence we have our Singer, Metropolitan and Eiffel Towers, our captive balloons, etc. Who can measure the heights to which the genius of the architects of the future may aspire?

But whether he can assert his dominion over the skies or not—whether he can take possession of ten feet or ten thousand feet—it is his to do with as he pleases. It cannot be taken from him without his express agreement or consent, or by condemnation and appropriation by the public in pursuance of a public necessity.

The only exception which the rule seems to admit is where land abuts upon a public highway. In such cases the owner of the abutting property is entitled to an unobstructed use of air and light at least to the centre of the highway.

The conclusion to be drawn from the authorities unquestionably is that the use of the air for any purpose, without the consent of the owner of the soil underneath the space which it occupies, is an invasion of his right of property, and therefore it may be accepted as a fundamental principle that the indiscriminate and unrestricted use of space for the passage of balloons, aeroplanes and other vessels of the air will be permitted.

Doubtless during the period of the development, while these vessels remain objects of popular interest and are used solely for pleasure, little, if any, question will be raised. But later, when they become numerous and are used for hire and their pilots become reckless, the commercial instinct is likely to assert itself, and the owner of the land will insist upon his right to compensation for the use of his property as a part of an aerial highway. When accidents have become frequent from this cause and human life has been sacrificed, and buildings and trees and shrubbery and other property injured or destroyed—bitter contests will arise, and owners will insist upon their property rights.

Control of Aerial Highways.

How, then, will the highways of the air be established?

In so far as these highways can be laid out along or over the natural highways of the earth—such as rivers lakes—or along the existing artificial highways—such as public roads, canals—or over public lands—doubtless public grants and franchises may be obtained which will suffice to extend ample legal authority and protection; but in so far as they may pass along or over private property, it will be necessary to secure the right by purchase or by condemnation. And it is by no means certain that condemnation "will lie," as the lawyers phrase it. The right to condemn and appropriate private property for any purpose is not a natural right; it can only be granted by the state. It always presupposes a necessity, and that a public one.

There is nothing to prevent the owner from making any kind of agreement he pleases for the use and enjoyment of the space aobve his land and of the air and light which fill it, and doubtless he will be ready to grant the privilege for this purpose as he has been under all other conditions in the past to make grants for similar purposes.

If it is objected that a fixed highway through space is impossible by reason of the variation of the winds, it may be answered that the width of the highway may be determined by the necessities. Those who saw Wilbur Wright in his recent flight up and down the Hudson river will not be impressed with the idea that great width of way is necessary for the navigation of the air.

The use of these highways of the air when once established will be the subject of much regulation. To the unlearned it may seem at first blush that if there is anything which cannot be regulated, and does not need regulation, it is the use of the air. But there must be signals, by day and by night. Much effort wil be expended and much law enacted before the matter of signals, of what they shall consist and where they shall be established and maintained—will be satisfactorily settled. "Rules of the road" must be established; rules for the passing of two vessels when approaching each other; when the turn shall be the right, when to the left, when over and when under. These will probably we worked out by the pilots themselves, and by experience as it is acquired.

Italian's Invention.

Vincent Ajello, who invented a biplane that resulted in the formation of the Italian Aero Club of New York, says the proposed machine will embody these special features: A greater lifting power than has been exhibited by any other aeroplane constructed up to date; an enormous velocity of speed; easy management; great security against disaster and loss of life; great stability of equilibrium, thus defying any and all sorts of conditions of weather; full control even in case of accident to the machinery or propellor in the course of navigation, thus enabling the pilot to pick his landing.

The Wrights' Hand.

In their suit to restrain Edwin Cleary, Paulham's former manager, from continuing exhibitions of foreign made flying machines, the Wright company made plain its purpose of making money out of exhibitions. In pleading for an injunction, the plaintiff corporation stated that unless Cleary was restrained from continuing exhibitions it would "practically destroy a large source of revenue which your orator would otherwise have from the said invention and patents by so preceding your orator at points over the country and making such public flights or exhibitions until the public interest in the radical novelty shall have been satisfied, and what is now an invention and machine whose fame has gone before it will become a known and seen thing, after which a large part of the public will not be further interested in exhibition flights when your orator comes to make them in the regular course of business."

Aero Houses Complete.

The Aero club's two new aeroplane houses in Mineola are practically ready for occupancy, and as soon as the March winds have subsided there will be daily flights over the Hempstead plains. The first aeroplanes to be installed in the new quarters will by W. L. Fairchild's monoplane of his own design, and Clifford B. Harmon's Farman biplane.

Dirigible for Passengers.

Professor T. S. Lowe, the 30-year-old inventor, who constructed balloons which were used in the Civil war, expects to have his dirigible airship completed in June. A company has been formed to place it on a regular service between San Francisco and this city. The first voyage is scheduled for the last week in July, with Frisco as the starting point. The craft is being constructed in Pasadena.

A great feature of the airship is that it will require no throwing out of ballast to govern its movements. Without losing an ounce of gas, it can be made to descend by means of planes and horizontal propellers. Even should it lose gas through an accident, other vertical propellers and up-push planes would keep his ship in the air, Professor Lowe maintains.

The Lesson in Golf.

A prominent business man not long since became afflicted with a bad case of "golfitis"—that is, he joined the army of cranks at the game, wanted to play all the time, talk of nothing else, etc. As is the case with all "duffers," he had his troubles at the start, and the way he fired questions at his friends was a caution. His golf acquaintances accommodatingly replied with all sorts of remedies, until finally the bewildered one got his stenographer to jot them down. One friend's advice included three points—first, keeping the eye on the ball; second, the necessity of hitting the ball with an easy stroke, and, third, the use of a rocking horse to develop the stroke. The fact that the friend had a keen sense of humor did not occur to the tyro until later. He immediately purchased a large rocking horse and after business hours seated himself astride the fiery charger and swung at the ball, which was securely fastened to the floor by a strong cord. He has learned a thing or two since. The hobbyhorse is no more, and he has vowed to get square with "Mr. Joker" if it takes a thousand years.—New York Tribune.

CONSTIPATION AND HEADACHE

Mrs. E. Morrow, Bracebridge, Ont., writes—"For years I was troubled almost constantly with constipation and never got anything to do me the lasting good that has been obtained from Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. Not only have they cured constipation but have also entirely cured the headaches from which I used to suffer terribly and have improved my health in every way."

Subduing a Bully.

A writer in a Vladivostok paper tells of an encounter he once witnessed on a Siberian train between a lady and a nobleman.

When the train pulled up at Tsitikar, in Manchuria, a Manchu noble who had bullied all his fellow passengers, alighted at the station restaurant after warning them that he would decapitate any of them who took his seat. During his absence a smartly dressed young Russian lady entered the car and, despite the alarmed expostulations of its occupants, calmly appropriated the seat. When the noble returned he flew into a passion and advanced threateningly with his curved saber drawn. But the young woman coolly covered him with a shining revolver.

"Do you take us for a pack of cowardly mandarins?" she exclaimed, and, then, pointing to her feet, she remarked, "Here is your place, my hero."

The Manchu noble surrendered and sat at her feet for the rest of the journey.

Used the Wrong Gender.

A Frenchman with an imperfect knowledge of English was once called upon for an after dinner speech. He struggled along manfully for a few minutes, managing to turn one or two good phrases. Finally he excused himself from further effort by saying, "I will no longer cockroach on your time."

An Englishman sitting next to him at the table remarked: "Your speech was dooced clever, bah Jove! But you used the wrong word at the close, don't you know. You should have said 'I will no longer hencroach upon your time.'"

"I see," said the Frenchman. "I used the wrong gender."—Exchange.

A MOTOR FLIMFLAM

Clever Woman Bamboozles New Yorker Out of $3000 Automobile.

New York, April 1. — The pretty young woman with dark eyes and a winning smile who buncoed Frank J. Homan, of the Homan & Schaltz garage, at 317 West Fifty-ninth street, out of a $3,000 Peerless automobile on Thursday afternoon, has been identified by the detective bureau here, as the cleverest and most successful automobile thief in the country.

She has originated a new flimflam, working it so successfully with the young man who is her confederate, and who is said to be her husband, that in a few months she has $30,000 worth of machines in different places from San Francisco to New York.

Detective Dunn said to-day that "Mrs. Morton or Mrs. N. J. Spalding" or "Mrs. Ortega"—these are only a few of her professional names—was the engaging young person who bamboozled John J. Burgess, a friend of Percy Nagle, the Tammany leader on March 9.

From Mr. Burgess she stole a $3,000 Packard by a ruse slightly different from the one she used on Frank J. Homan.

THE CANADIAN GENERAL AND THE CITY

The City Council, the Board of Trade, the Water Commissioners and the citizens generally are confronted with the most important proposal, bearing upon our industrial and civic interests, since the negotiations connected with the establishment of the Canadian General Electric Works in Peterborough. Large as the works are, and important as they are, in relation to the number of employees, the extent of the pay roll, and the consequent distribution of money in the city, the demands for the products of the works have overtaken and overpassed their capacity. Additional buildings, meaning increased manufacturing facilities, are absolutely imperative.

These enlargements will be made either here or in Toronto, where the head offices and abundance of lands for building are situated. It is in Peterborough's power and opportunity to secure the extension of the works, with all that that implies in increased employment and enlarged distribution of money, in Peterborough. The point that interests the city and its authorities particularly, is that an offer, made by Mr. Frederic Nicholls, vice President and General Manager, gives Peterborough an opportunity to insure the establishment of the immense additions in this city. To attract new industries in face of the keen competition that exists, we must supply power at a figure at least as low as rival places. The same necessity seems to be demanded to secure enlargement of the Electric works, which will be extensive and important enough to be equivalent to a new industry, whose capture we would regard as a most valuable acquisition.

According to the second proposal made by Mr. Nicholls, the city has an opportunity to provide power as an inducement to the enlargement of one of our greatest industries, equivalent to a very important new industry, without the expenditure of a dollar of money, and to secure a revenue of $2,000 a year from water now running to waste. The Canadian General undertakes, with the city's permission, to build and equip a power house at the water works dam, operate it, and pay to the city the sum of $2,000 per year for 1,000 horse power, this amount of horsepower, to be subject to the requirements of the waterworks for normal purposes, and to be released in the possible event of a large fire, which would demand the fullest available pressure. The Company further engages to expend not less than $250,000 in improvements and building extensions, (and it might be stipulated, employ a given number of additional hands) and at the end of twenty years turn over to the city, free of cost, the power house and equipment, which, in its own interest the Company will have maintained in first-class condition of repair and efficiency. If this arrangement is effected, in these twenty years the city will have received the sum of $40,000, which, if funded, would, at 5 per cent., secure a perpetual income of $2,000 per year, or the $2,000 a year could be applied to the water works sinking fund, or used year by year to increase the discount to consumers of city water.

The advantages attached to acceptance of the proposal are not confined to those apparent and existent, in its working out. The Works now employ a large number of hands, who occupy our houses; and almost the whole of the million dollars, which, according to Mr. Nicholls, is left in the city every year, in the form of wages and other expenses—is spent with our merchants and business men. And, besides, with the proposed extensions—in addition to the $65,000 or $70,000 apent immediately in power development, and $250,000 in construction—there will be, it is asserted, at the beginning a 50 per cent. increase in employment and in wages paid out, which will bring the money placed in circulation every year to a total of a million and a half dollars.

And more. It is asserted that the $250,000 spent in the beginning of extensions will not be all; that the plans now prepared to cover buildings and manufacturing facilities, urgently needed to meet the demands of the rapidly expanding business of the Company, will require the expenditure of two or three times $250,000. Canada is growing with such vigorous rapidity; the demand for electrical machinery and supplies is growing even more rapidly; and, if the extensions are begun in Peterborough, they will be carried out in Peterborough. But if, in Peterborough, they will be carin default of obtaining power in this city—the sole determining condition—the extensions are begun in Toronto, they will be continued there. That does not mean that the Works here will be closed, but they will be continued in the present condition; for the expanding business of the Company will call into use all the available production facilities.

The advantages of the proposal as above suggested, seem to the Examiner, to be fair deductions from a rough analysis of it. Whether or not they will appeal to the City Council and the Water Commissioners with equal force is another matter. These bodies have the responsibility of their position and in carefully considering the matter with a view of securing the best arrangement in the interests of the city, they deserve credit. However, in this regard, it is respectfully suggested that this is an occasion on which the exaction of the pound of flesh is not to be too rigidly insisted upon. We owe considerable to the Electric Works, and should be ready to deal with them, if not more favourably, at least as favourably, as we would do with a new industry which might make a similar offer. This question seems to be a natural and pertinent one—would we not regard the acquisition of a new industry, which would spend, in building and equipment, $70,000 plus $250,000, with a morally certain increase of the latter figure to $500,000 or $600,000, and employ 500 or 600 hands, and put $600,000 or $700,000 per year in local circulation—would we, or would we not, jump at such a proposal? The success of a new industry, would be problematical; but, in the case of the Canadian General Electric Works, we have a firmly established industry of proved stability and flourishing success.

The Examiner feels that the interests of the city would be greatly promoted by the acceptance of the proposal submitted by Mr. Nicholls, and also feels sure that the authorities will do their duty with a single eye to the advancement of the best interests of Peterborough, as involved in the successful and most extensive possible operation and expansion of one of our greatest, if not our greatest, industries.

The Water Commissioners and the City Council are to be commended for their efforts to make the best possible arrangements in the way of a bargain in the interests of the city, and if they are not able to do more than accept the proposal of the Electric Company, they will have done much for the betterment of our industrial interests, so closely allied with our general interests, and will, so far as we have been able to gauge opinion, meet with the approval of the ratepayers. With the necessary and inevitable increase of taxation, a proposal, that secures substantial money gain and involves large industrial expansion with all that that implies, increased employment, enlarged circulation of money, and without the expenditure of a single dollar of city money, or the addition of a dollar of taxation, appeals with great force.

The situation will need ot be dealt with and settled at the meeting of the Council to-night. The building season is at hand, and the Company is anxious to begin operations for enlargement, either here or in Toronto, at once. It is natural that there should be a desire to end as speedily as possible the conditions that compel the Company to turn away large orders, from pure lack of building accommodation to house necessary facilities to keep up with the work that offers.

The public will await with interest, not to say anxiety, whatever decision the authorities may see fit, in the city's interest, to arrive at to-night's meeting.

"Peterborough Means Progress."

MONDAY, APRIL 4, 1910

CONSISTENT IN INCONSISTENCY.

Our evening contemporary, the Review, in a short article, accentuates the divided policy that distinguishes the Conservative party of to-day. It asserts that the Laurier Government is gradually destroying the "national policy." It is more moderate than some Conservative journals which have claimed that the "national policy was destroyed with the advent of the Liberal Government, while others claim that the wonderful prosperity the country has had under the Laurier administration has been due to the continued operation of the "national policy." Now, with prosperity and progress daily increasing as exemplified in the wonderful expansion everywhere, and all the time in evidence, with a total trade of nearly 800 million dollars; with a hundred million dollar revenue as against 37 millions fourteen years ago, our contemporary tells us that the Laurier Government is still destroying the "national policy." Its position of contradiction is quite consistent with the prevailing conditions. With half a dozen naval policies shared by the Conservative party, with the leadership of the party partitioned amongst or assumed by as many aspirants, it is not remarkable that there should be diversity of opinion in regard to the relationship of the Liberal Government towards the so-called "national policy". Whether or not this policy has been, as severally claimed by Conservatives, retained by the Laurier Government, destroyed by it, or in process of destruction "little by little," the fact remains that under the Laurier Government Canada has grown and flourished more in the past fourteen years than in all the years of its antecedent existence. The resulting conditions from Liberal administration are an illustration of the truth of the homely proverb: "The proof of the pudding is in the eating." Results, not theories, are what count.

THE CONSERVATIVE PARTY.

The following from the Conservative Toronto Sunday World may be regarded as inside information regarding the subject of which it treats:

"At last, what the World has been saying for years is admitted by all—the Conservative party at Ottawa is full of dissension and insurgency. But how hard it has been to get it out, and what abuse has been heaped on those whose only aim was to put the party in the way of once more governing Canada with a progressive policy and with leaders that would evoke enthusiasm and devotion!

An Ottawa despatch in our news columns is to the effect that a thorough-going reorganization is at hand. It is to be hoped that this is the case. Great stress is laid on the fact that Hon. George E. Foster is to retire, a broken man. But he has not been the main cause of dissent. And that George Taylor, the chief whip, is to go. Also that A. E. Kemp is to come forward in North Toronto. Mr. Kemp has been one of the most active of Mr. Borden's advisers up to date; has the gift of business, but not of politics. Associated with Mr. Kemp is Mr. John S. Willison of the Toronto News, and they have been active factors in the inner circle. What the Kemp-Willison faction seek to effect is to reorganize on their lines under Mr. Borden. These are the very men, leaving Mr. Borden out, that constitute one source of dissatisfaction. What progressive views has either Mr. Kemp or Mr. Willison to raise the hopes of the people? What Mr. Willison—who is acting as party doctor—has to explain is why has not Mr. Borden seen all the things that are now admitted, and why was not the need of reform—now so much called for by these men—undertaken long ago? The inspired statements from Ottawa on Saturday were simply that Foster, Taylor and Monk are out—Mr. Borden will now have a chance. So he will, but it will be, first of all, a chance to explain. Not that Mr. Borden may not be the best man to lead, but the whole situation is up for review. No thorough-going reorganization can be effected otherwise.

Said an old-time Conservative, a companion of Sir John Macdonald: "We must get back to the ways and the programme of the old chief. The Conservative party has the ability to frame and work out a national policy for Canada, better than the Liberals, or any third party. We have got into dissensions, and we've gone astray; we must get together again and get back. Expressions of confidence in this man or that man, putting forward the claims of this man or that as leader, or deputy leaders, is not the work immediately ahead of us. First of all, let us find out who are in the party, and who are in it for no reason other than the party's and the country's welfare. There are men who must step aside, instead of entrenching themselves inside. There is no pressing need now for a rush convention to line everyone up—on the surface. A rush convention would not be attended by Quebec; we must take a little more time to find out what the Quebec wing have in their mind. They are worth listening to. So must time be given to what is called 'the insurgent members' at Ottawa to smooth themselves out. They must not be forestalled. There is little confidence in the inside council that seem to have surrounded Mr. Borden for years—they have certainly failed, and the feeling of insurgency may really be against them. And then there is the question of platform. Platform first; men afterwards."

IS THINNESS EMBARRASSING?

Undoubtedly It Is to Many a Maiden and Youth—While Even Those Well Along in Years Prefer Well Rounded Figures.

Prescription Increases Weight.

A scrawny, gangling youth or maiden is almost invariably slighted, overlooked or ridiculed in any social gathering. There is something about a plump or well proportioned figure which attracts not only friendship, but love and adulation as well.

People with a proper amount of flesh are favoured in all walks of life, while the thin are unblessed, unwelcome and frequently miserable for life. The difference lies in the power of the digestive functions and the ability of the blood and nerves to absorb and distribute over the body the nutrition extracted from the food eaten.

The thin person is abnormal and lacks the power to absorb and retain the flesh and fat elements which the gastric juices in the stomach and intestines should extract or separate from all kinds of food and drink.

A recent accidental discovery has proven that tincture cadomene when blended with certain other drugs, will add from one to three pounds of flesh per week during treatment, while the general health and strength also improves wonderfully.

Get in a half pint bottle, three ounces of essence of pepsin and three ounces of syrup of rhubarb; then add one ounce compound essence cardiol; shake and let stand two hours; then add one ounce tincture cadomene compound, (not cardomon). Shake well and take a teaspoonful before and after meals, drinking plenty of water between meals and when retiring.

CAUGHT BY BLOOD HOUNDS

New York, April 1.—A despatch to The Herald from St. Louis says: More thrilling than Uncle Tom's Cabin was a real man hunt which had its climax at the Coliseum tonight when John Watt, a negro boy, was trailed and cornered after a half hour's chase through the streets of St. Louis for the amusement of St. Louis society.

The chase marked the close of the Mississippi Valley Kennel Club's dog show. Watt, panting for breath, and thoroughly exhausted, crouched in a corner of the band stand, where he had climbed for safety, while the dogs, frothing at the mouth and leaping at the stand, bayed the note of discovery.

The hounds, Fanny and Queen, are the ones that captured the negro murderer of Annie Pelley of Cairo, Ill., last November, when the negro was burned by a mob. They are owned by Butler County, Mo.

At 9 o'clock Watt's hat was thrown to the dogs, and the negro boy started. The dogs were put on his trail ten minutes later. For a distance of perhaps twenty blocks, through alleys, down streets and frequently doubling on his trail, the hounds trailed the negro. He entered the Coliseum through a window in the rear of the building. As the dogs entered the band stand,

French Aviator Killed.

San Sebastien, Spain, April 4.—Another French aviator has met death while making a flight in an aeroplane. Hubert Leblon, who prior to his taking up aeroplaning, was a noted automobilist, was killed while making an exhibition flight here Friday. He was circling the royal palace of Miramar at a height of 140 feet, when his motor broke down. He attempted to glide back to the shed, but the machine turned over and swooped with terrific force against the rocks. The aviator was crushed like a shell.

Mme. Leblon witnessed the accident and when the body was recovered from the sea, she rushed shrieking toward the ambulance to which it was being carried, she threw herself upon the lifeless form, kissing it repeatedly, and refusing to be led away.

As the weather was stormy, Leblon's flight was unexpected, and only a few persons assembled to see the start.

Mad Mullah Out Again.

Aden, Arabia, April 4.—The ferocious campaign of Mohammed Abdullah of Somaliland, "the Mad Mullah," against the sultanates under British protection, continues unchecked.

Eight hundred of the tribesmen friendly to the sultanates have been slaughtered, vast areas laid waste and towns razed. Natives in great numbers are fleeing to the coast.

It is expected here that this will lead to another expedition against the Mad Mullah, who has caused the British Government great anxiety for many years.

RECIPROCITY HARD.

States and Canada Have Many Difficulties to Face.

Washington, D.C., April 4.—Within two months, according to the present plans of the administration, there will be a gathering in Washington or Ottawa of representatives of the Canadian and United States Governments for the purpose of negotiating a reciprocity and trade treaty between the two countries.

The felicitous exchanges between Secretary of State Knox and Minister Fielding of Canada, which concluded the recent agreement, contained an implied promise that the effort would be made to reach an understanding on broad lines that might settle for all time the various open issues regarding the land and water boundaries; the fisheries, the preservation of the seals and, finally, the tariff relations.

Most of these matters are of concern purely to the two principals, but the developments in the negotiations relative to the tariff is awaited with the greatest interest by nearly all of the European powers, which may be depended upon to make instant demands for any concessions of special value that may be made by the United States to Canada or vice versa.

As the extension of the concessions to all nations would result in making them practically valueless to the two countries in the negotiations, it begins to appear that Sir Wilfrid Laurier and President Taft will be obliged to devise some strong arguments on which to base a refusal of the concessions to third parties.

The task will be made the more difficult from the reason that the German and French tariff arrangements contains provisions that they shall be terminable within periods of three months, and that they are based upon the understanding that no other country shall be accorded tariff rates lower than those set out in the agreements.

Just how a reciprocity treaty can be framed with Canada that will avoid the objection that it does give Canada preferences is the problem that the tariff expert board will soon have to face.

Plans Model Loan Office.

New York, April 4.—Mrs. Russell Sage is to devote some of the millions left by her husband to saving the poor and needy of this state from the usury of loan sharks. The Sage millions are to be used to capitalize a chain of model loan establishments, which will advance money on chattel mortgages at the legal rate of interest.

The Sage Foundation, co-operating with Orion H. Cheney, state superintendent of banks, has prepared the plan, and it only awaits the final approval of Mrs. Sage. She has just returned from a trip across the continent and is expected to settle the final details of the plan at once.

According to Mr. Cheney the new loan offices will not only be of inestimable benefit to the poor, but will drive the usurers and loan sharks out of business, or, at least, cripple them. He has been engaged for some time in waging war on these loan sharks, and is very thankful for the aid proffered by Mrs. Sage.

Mustn't Tip In Columbia.

Washington, D.C., April 4.—A subcommittee of the House committee on the District of Columbia, headed by Representative Campbell of Kansas, yesterday reported favorably a bill by Representative Murphy of Missouri, under which all tip-giving or tip-receiving in hotels, restaurants and cafes in Washington shall constitute a misdemeanor, punishable by a fine not exceeding $500.

Not only are waiters, stewards and porters prohibited from receiving tips and managers and proprietors of public places enjoined from allowing their employes to do so, but patrons are prohibited, under the same terms, from offering tips.

New Naval Base For Germany?

London, April 4.—The English press publishes an unconfirmed report that the German Admiralty intends to create a special cruiser squadron for service in the Pacific, with some South American port as a base. The motive for this extraordinary measure is described as a deliberate intention to develop German commercial interests along the west coast of South America and the South Seas, and the fantastic suggestion is offered that a strong British squadron should be sent to New Zealand or Australia as a counter demonstration.

There may be a practice cruise of the German squadron similar to that undertaken recently by the American fleet, but the story of the maintenance of a permanent naval base in South America by the Kaiser's navy is a silly invention.

PEOPLE'S PULPIT.

Sermon by CHARLES T. RUSSELL Pastor Brooklyn Tabernacle.

THE NECESSITY THE MILLENNIUM

"Times of refreshing shall come from the presence of the Lord; and he shall send Jesus Christ, which before was preached unto you; whom the heavens must retain until the times of restitution of all things, which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began."—Acts iii, 19-21.

Brooklyn, N.Y., April 3.—Pastor C. T. Russell of Brooklyn Tabernacle preached here twice to-day to splendid audiences. One of his discourses was entitled, "The Overthrow of Satan's Empire." The other, which we report, was on the necessity for the Millennium from the text above quoted. Pastor Russell said:

Respecting two matters there can be no question:

(1) That the early Church thoroughly believed in a Millennial Kingdom hoped for it, prayed for it—"Thy Kingdom come; thy will be done on earth as it is done in heaven."

(2) It is equally certain that to-day the doctrine of the Millennium is tabooed as "out of date"—out of harmony with the views of the Higher Critics and Evolutionists, who are filling practically all the chairs in our colleges and the majority of the pulpits of Christendom.

What has led to this radical change on the part of the religious wise men of all denominations? Have they taken a step in advance or are they departing from the path—from the teachings of the inspired Word of God? That they have left the Word of God, that they make light of it, that they profess far more wisdom and ability than the writers of the Bible and a higher intellectual inspiration than they, is indisputable. The question for us is, Will Christians in considerable numbers follow these leaders away from God, away from all Divine revelation? Will we put our trust in literary princes who claim the right to instruct the world, not by Divine appointment or authority, but by virtue of their large amount of self-esteem?

The present day concept of the Church of Christ is that God planted it amongst men as leaven in a batch of dough with the intent that it should propagate itself until the entire mass would be leavened. But the Bible apostolic concept of the Church's message is the very reverse of this—that it is planted in the world, not with a view to converting the world, but on the contrary to keep itself separate from the world and to draw to itself "As many as the Lord your God shall call" of the pure in heart—to sacrifice earthly interests for Divine interests, unto death, and later, by the First Resurrection, to enter into the heavenly glory of the Redeemer as his "Bride," his "Wife," his "Joint-Heir" in the Kingdom glory and the Kingdom work. And the work of that Kingdom is set forth to be the "blessing of all the families of the earth."

The two views are so radically opposite that none should confuse them in their minds. If one is right, the other is wrong. If one is Scriptural, the other is unscriptural. In the above item Dr. Brown admits that the Scriptural view entertained by the early Church contemplated the Church in suffering and in a temporary or tabernacle condition in the present life and promised a share with Christ in his reign in power and great glory, as God's Kingdom during the Millennium. The safe, the proper, the right course is to go back and take up afresh the doctrine of the Millennium—the doctrine that the faithful of the Church now being tried and tested will constitute the glorious Kingdom of God's dear Son after their change from earthly to spirit conditions in the "First Resurrection" (I. Corinthians xv, 42-44).

God bless the Christian Endeavor and Epworth League and Students' Missionary League and the Laymen's Movement, all intent on "Storming the world for Jesus." We bear them witness that they have a zeal for God which we greatly admire and would encourage. But their zeal is "not according to knowledge," and is therefore considerably misdirected. To any one of logical mind, who will reason from statistics, the thought of converting the world by singing a few rousing hymns or holding a few enthusiastic meetings for the collection of money! money!! money!!! would be childish. We do not despise childishness. We have all had our share. But we all should say with the Apostle, "When I was a child, I spake as a child and understood as a child; but when I became a man I put away childish things" (I. Corinthians xiii, 11).

"Christian people have been fooling themselves long enough!" Yes, it is as absolutely irrational to think of converting the world, as it is unscriptural to believe that God ever gave us that impossible commission. The United States census reports show that there are twice as many heathen to-day as there were a century ago. The word heathen carries to many a very wrong impression. Many noble-hearted Christians have gone as missionaries to the heathen wholly unprepared for what they met—intelligent reasoning ability, etc. They found that the heathen were full of questions, logical questions, too, which they as Christians had never thought of, and which they were wholly unprepared to answer. Comparatively few of the missionaries are able to hold their own in argument with intelligent people in India, China and Japan. There is no danger of their converting those people. There is more danger of their losing their own faith in the Bible, because of their misapprehension of some of its teachings—respecting the mission of the Church, the hope of the Church and the hope of the world.

Missionaries are thus handicapped! Full of commendable zeal they leave our shores to tell the heathen that their forefathers have gone to eternal torment and that they are going there, too, unless they accept Christ. It is a rude awakening to be asked where hell is? and why God should have condemned them and their forefathers to such a horrible eternity? and how this could be true and yet he be a God of pity, compassion, Love? The heathen ask, Why the different denominations—the different theories of the terms of salvation—by Water, by Election, by Free Grace, by joining the Church, etc. The missionary, wholly unable to answer the adult native, gathers children about him, starts a school and does all he is able perhaps, to justify his presence in a foreign land—helping the sick and doing many other acts of kindness which are very commendable, whether from a religious or humanitarian standpoint.

Our Lord's instruction was that his people should preach the Gospel in all the world for a witness—not to convert all the world, but for a "witness" to all the world. The mission of the Gospel is to select the Kingdom class, a "little flock." The first opportunity to become members of this Royal Priesthood was offered to the Jews and, after the gathering of a remnant from them, and after their national rejection, the message was to go to the whole world irrespective of national lines, boundaries or language—anybody, everybody having the "hearing ear," was to be instructed respecting Christ and the opportunity of becoming his disciples by a full consecration of mind and body, time and talent, even unto death. These were to be promised the reward of a share in the First Resurrection, to be members of the Royal Priesthood which, during the Millennial Kingdom of Messiah, will bless all the remaining families of mankind—all the non-elect.

We are not complaining about the failure to convert the heathen! We are not faulting the missionaries! We are taking the Bible stand that all of God's purposes are being accomplished; that God's Word is accomplishing "that whereto it was sent". (Isaiah lv, 11); that it was not sent to convert the world, but to gather an "elect" sample or "first-fruits" from all nations (Revelation xiv, 4). Let civilizing influences continue in heathendom, as well as in Christendom. But let all Christians, missionaries and others, know assuredly that their labor is not in vain if they are seeking for the Lord's jewels to the best of their ability. I am in touch continually with laborers in India and Africa and well know that the pure Gospel of Christ is not greatly affecting their teeming millions. But the Gospel of the Kingdom is seeking out, blessing, sanctifying, happifying, encouraging some, here and there; some, who have ears of faith to hear, eyes of faith to see, and obedient hearts to obey the "call" to suffer with Christ and by and by to reign with him for the effectual blessing of all the families of the earth, by uplifting the willing out of their present conditions of sin and degradation and death.

We have shown the value and necessity for the doctrine of the Millennium—that all Christians who would hold fast to their Bibles as a faith-anchor and who would make progress in their study of the Word and be co-laborers with God in the gathering of "the elect" need to see that the elect only are now called to be heirs of the Kingdom for which we pray, "Thy Kingdom come." They need to see that that Kingdom is God's provision for the future blessing of the non-elect. They need to see that the Bible does not teach, as many of them suppose, that the saints are called of God to sit in the heavenly balcony and look over at the non-elect in eternal anguish, and hear their cries.

Next let us note that the Millennium itself is an absolute necessity for the world, according to the statistics of the worldly-wise. Many college professors and D.D.'s are inclined to speak glibly of the Second Coming of Christ being far in the future—"fifty thousand years yet," say some. But evidently these learned gentlemen have not used their educational advantages in connection with such statements. Any school boy can figure up what the population as per the census at sixteen hundred millions and the ratio of increase as shown by the census reports at 3 per cent. in ten years. The total would show 3,375,296,000 population for the year 2,000 A.D.—more than 2,000 for each person now living.

What would humanity do if the earth were crowded to that extent? Where would the necessary food, fuel and clothing be found? Computing all the tillable portion of the earth at twenty-five million square miles or sixteen billion acres would give but one acre for the support of two hundred and ten people, or less than five square yards each. At the close of a second such period, 3,900 A.D., at the same rate, there would be ten persons for each square foot of standing-room. In other words they would stand fifteen deep on each other's heads. What shall we think of the wisdom that tells us that the Millennium is fifty thousand years off? The answer is found in Isaiah's prophecy (xxix, 14.)

Are we asked how the Millennium if at once introduced would avert the difficulties of the first statement, two hundred and ten people for each acre of the habitable earth? We reply that the Scriptures clearly intimate that the rapid increase of our race is associated with man's fallen condition; as our Creator declared to mother Eve after her disobedience, "I will greatly multiply thy sorrows and thy conception" (Genesis iii, 16).

The Scriptures also intimate that with the return of humanity towards perfection the average increase will be less, and that eventually the human family will come to the condition where there will be neither marriage nor giving in marriage, and where sex conditions will be lost in a uniform standard of humanity embodying the qualities at present displayed in the two sexes. Further, God's promise for the Millennium is that under his blessing the earth will yield her increase and the waste places be reclaimed, springs breaking forth in deserts. Furthermore, recognizing the Divine power in connection with the matter we can readily see how vast continents can be raised in the Atlantic and in the Pacific Ocean. But aside from these miracles which properly enough could accompany the Millennial Kingdom of Christ, what can the world who ignore the Bible expect? In other words what shall they expect who claim that the present order of things is to continue, saying, "All things continue as they were from the beginning of the world?" (II. Peter iii, 4.)

Some may inquire, What about the resurrection of the millions who have died? We reply that the world has been only gradually working up to its present dense population. The people living in the world for the past six thousand years, according to what we believe are trustworthy evidences, would number altogether about twenty thousand millions. But more than twice that number could be buried in the State of Texas in separate graves and more than eight times that number could find standing room in Texas, as a school-boy with his pencil could readily demonstrate.

But we need not look a thousand years ahead. The world will find itself in great trouble very shortly unless the Millennium be ushered in. Already there is a shortage of timber. What will be the condition of things one hundred years from now? Already our capitalists are buying up the coal deposits on speculation, realizing that its rapid consumption is making it more valuable every year. Already geologists are calculating the number of tons of coal not yet mined and telling us that with the present average of increase in the consumption of coal the entire supply of the world will be exhausted in less than two hundred years. What will be the price of coal as the vanishing point is neared? and how will mankind do without it, and without wood for fuel unless the Millennium come promptly with its miraculous provisions? — the taking of fuel from our atmosphere, and from water, by methods which will, no doubt, be simple, when mankind come to understand them fully, but which at present are so expensive as to be of little service.

Other scientific men have been studying the increase of insanity and telling us that progress in this direction is terrific. Some have estimated that in less than two hundred years the entire world, at the present rate, will be insane. How opportune it would be for the Millennial Kingdom of the great Life-Giver to be ushered in with its uplifting influences, mental, moral and physical!

Last but not least the combination of wisdom and selfishness in our day, known as Unions and Trusts, is so influential that prices in every commodity are rising. Yet the trusts are not quite ripe yet. Their managers have not fully learned their power. Gradually the upper and the nether millstones will apparently be drawn closer together, while necessity will force the masses through the hopper. How great would those "giants" become within another century or so; if the Millennium be not ushered in in the interim to "lift the poor and needy out of the dunghill"—using the scriptural figure of the work of the Kingdom! (Psalm cxiii, 7.)

My friends, let us stick to the Bible and its Millennial theory. So doing we will be guided by the wisdom from on high and enabled to pray with the spirit and the understanding also, "Thy Kingdom come; they will be done on earth as it is done in heaven," and to labor intelligently as co-workers with God! Let us prepare as pupils in the School of Christ for the great work whereunto God has called us by the Gospel Message.

"Even so, Come, Lord Jesus: Come quickly!"

"Thy Kingdom come, and thy will be done on earth, even as in heaven."

For the Parson's Good.

According to The London Globe, a Scottish parish minister was going from home and procured the clergyman of a neighboring parish to officiate on Sunday. The parish minister's servant, who was also beadle, was sent over to the station to drive the visiting reverend gentleman to the manse. When the train arrived the beadle asked the visitor to be good enough to wait a while, as he had some errands to do before going home. It was two hours before he returned. The minister was furious and threatened to report the beadle to his master. "Weel, sir, ye can dae that if ye likt," said the beadle, "but he tell't me himself to wait till it was dark afore I drove ye ower, for if the folks o' the village saw what was to preach nasbody wad turn out the morn."

THE PORT OF MISSING MEN

By MEREDITH NICHOLSON,
Author of "The House of a Thousand Candles"

COPYRIGHT, 1907, BY THE BOBBS-MERRILL COMPANY

"Is this exordium or peroration, my dear fellow?"

"It is both," replied Armitage succinctly, and Chauvenet was sorry he had spoken, for Armitage stopped short in a lonely stretch of the highway and continued in a disagreeable, incisive tone:

"I ran away from Washington after you told that story at Claiborne's supper table, not because I was afraid of your accusation, but because I wanted to watch your plans a little in security. The only man who could have helped me immediately was Senator Sanderson, and I knew that he was in Montana."

Chauvenet smiled with a return of assurance.

"Of course. The hour was chosen well."

"More wisely, in fact, than your choice of that big assassin of yours. He's a clumsy fellow, with more brawn than brains. I had no trouble in shaking him off in Boston, where you probably advised him I should be taking the Montreal express."

Chauvenet blinked. This was precisely what he had told Zaxel to expect. He shifted from one foot to another and wondered just how he was to escape from Armitage. He had gone to Storm Springs to be near Shirley Claiborne, and he deeply resented having business thrust upon him.

"He is a wise man who wields the knife himself, M. Chauvenet. In the taking of poor Count von Stroebel's life so deftly and secretly you prove my philosophy. It was a clever job, monsieur!"

Chauvenet's gloved fingers caught at his mustache.

"That is almost insulting, M. Armitage. A distinguished statesman is killed, therefore I must have murdered him. You forget that there's a difference between us. You are an unknown adventurer carried on the books of the police as a fugitive from justice, and I can walk to the hotel and get twenty reputable men to vouch for me. I advise you to be careful not to mention my name in connection with Count von Stroebel's death."

He had begun jauntily, but closed in heat, and when he finished Armitage nodded to signify that he understood perfectly.

"A few more deaths, and you would be in a position to command tribute from a high quarter, monsieur."

"Your mind seems to turn upon assassination. If you know so much about Stroebel's death it's unfortunate that you left Europe at a time when you might have rendered important aid in finding the murderer. It's a bit suspicious, M. Armitage! It is known at the Hotel Monte Rosa in Geneva that you were the last person to enjoy an interview with the venerable statesman. You see I am not dull, M. Armitage!"

"You are not dull, Chauvenet. You are only shortsighted. The same witnesses know that John Armitage was at the Hotel Monte Rosa for twenty-four hours following the count's departure. Meanwhile where were you, Jules Chauvenet?"

Chauvenet's hand again went to his face, which whitened, though he sought refuge again in flippant irony.

"To be sure! Where was I, monsieur? Undoubtedly you know all my movements, so that it is unnecessary for me to have any opinions in the matter."

"Quite so! Your opinions are not of great value to me, for I employed agents to trace every move you made during the month in which Count von Stroebel was stabbed to death in his railway carriage. It is so interesting that I have committed the record to memory. If the story would interest you"—

The hand that again sought the slight mustache trembled slightly, but Chauvenet smiled.

"You should write the memoirs of your very interesting career, my dear fellow. I cannot listen to your babble longer."

"I do not intend that you shall, but your whereabouts on Monday night, March 18, of this year may need explanation, M. Chauvenet."

"If it should, I shall call upon you, my dear fellow!"

"Save yourself the trouble! The bureau I employed to investigate the matter could assist you much better. All I could offer would be copies of its very thorough reports. The number of cups of coffee your friend Durand drank for breakfast this morning at his lodgings in Vienna will reach me in due course!"

"You are really a devil of a fellow, John Armitage! So much knowledge! So acute an intellect! You are too wise to throw away your life futilely."

"You have been most generous in sparing it thus far!" laughed Armitage, and Chauvenet took instant advantage of his change of humor.

"Perhaps—perhaps—I have pledged my faith in the wrong quarter, monsieur. If I may say it, we are both fairly clever men; together we could achieve much!"

"So you would cut out, would you?" laughed Armitage. "You miserable little blackguard, I should like to join forces with you! Your knack of getting the poison into the right cup every time would be a valuable asset! But we are not made for each other in this world. In the next—who knows?"

"As you will! I dare say you would be an exacting partner."

"All of that, Chauvenet! You do best to stick to your present employer. He needs you and the like of you—I don't! But remember—if there's a sudden death in Vienna in a certain high quarter you will not live to reap the benefits. Charles Louis rules Austria-Hungary. His cousin, your friend Francis, is not of kingly proportions. I advise you to cable the amiable Durand of a dissolution of partnership. It is now too late for you to call at Judge Claiborne's, and I shall trouble you to walk on down the road for ten minutes. If you look round or follow me, I shall certainly turn you into something less attractive than a pillar of salt. You do well to consult your watch. Forward!"

Armitage pointed down the road with his riding crop. As Chauvenet walked slowly away, swinging his stick, Armitage turned toward the hotel. The shadow of night was infolding the hills, and it was quite dark when he found Oscar and the horses.

He mounted, and they rode through the deepening April dusk, up the winding trail that led out of Storm valley.

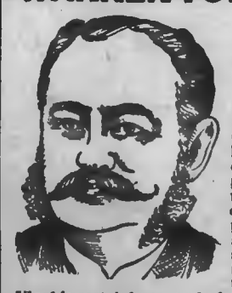
WARREN TOPPAN, Lynn, Mass.



Cured of severe compound cold and cough by

Vinol

"From Dec. 20, '08, to March 1, '09, I had three bad colds, one on top of the other. I got so weak I could hardly get around. Nothing seemed to help me until I began to take Vinol. The change was magic. Three bottles completely fixed that compound cold and stopped the terrible cough—and what surprises me most, at the same time it cured me of a severe stomach trouble that has bothered me for 20 years. Vinol is certainly a wonderful medicine."

Mr. Toppan is one of Lynn's most prominent and highly respected merchants, whose word is as good as his bond.

The reason Vinol is so successful in such cases is because it contains the two most world-famed tonics—the medicinal, strengthening, body-building elements of Cod Liver Oil and Tonic Iron.

HUSBAND'S SLIP IS FORGIVABLE BUT A WIFE'S MISTAKE IS FATAL

Remarkable Opinions on Marriage and Divorce Given by a Learned Judge—One Stand for Man, Another for Woman.

MANY INDIGNANT

London, April 2.—"I do not believe—I am speaking on a subject Idon't care much to speak about in public—I do not think that an act of misconduct on the part of a man has anything like the same significance as an act of misconduct on the part of a woman.

"Most—I think all—men know perfectly well that an act of misconduct on the part of a man may be more or less accidental. It does not diminish—very frequently at all events, and I am not speaking of continuous misconduct — it is not inconsistent with his continued love and esteem for his wife.

"Some people may say that it is inconsistent. I do not agree. On the other hand, an act of impropriety on the part of a woman is, in my opinion, quite inconsistent with continued love and esteem for her husband."

These words of Sir John Bigham, senior divorce judge of England, have raised a storm throughout Great Britain. No controversy of recent years has been so bitterly debated as that aroused by these opinions.

Sir John Bigham was giving evidence before a royal commission appointed to enquire into the working of the divorce law in England. The commission included leading lawyers, social workers, newspaper editors and highest representatives of the churches. Regarded as the strongest personality on the English bench, although exceedingly unpopular, Sir John Bigham expressly remarked that his evidence was given apart from religious considerations, and merely as that of a man of great worldly and legal experience.

Asked what should be considered due grounds for divorce, he said:

"I would not give relief to a man who habitually lived in open misconduct, but, looking at it from a man's point of view, I do not think that if in the course of 20 years' married life, a man once made a slip, that ought to take away his right to separate himself from a dissolute and bad living woman."

Asked whether, if as a result of an isolated act of misconduct, a child should be born, that should entitle the wife to a divorce, the reply was:

"No—on the bald facts, I do not think that the fact that a child comes into the world should justify a divorce. A wise wife, in my opinion, shuts her eyes to her husband's mistakes."

The significance of these statements can be easily understood when it is remembered that for many years a strong agitation has been going on in England for sex equality in matters relating to divorce. At present the law stands as follows:

A man can obtain a divorce solely on the ground of misconduct on the part of the wife.

A woman can obtain a divorce only if she can prove both misconduct and cruelty toward herself on the part of her husband.

For many years now the tendency of the courts has been to ignore the cruelty question as far as possible, and the law has been strained so that two acts of cruelty, however slight, on the part of the husband, coupled with misconduct, will justify the grant of a divorce to the wife. This is in accordance with the trend of the English opinion.

But now, Sir John Bigham, with all the weight of his position behind him, has gone back to the old view which regarded a wife as part of a man's chattels. He believes that women and men, in respect to sexual matters, stand on different planes.

Ministers of religion of all denominations, suffragettes, divorce reform associations and women's societies generally are all up in arms against the judge and they finally forced his resignation the other day

Briefly the following is the position of his antagonists: "At the present time, many men lead immoral lives, knowing that, so long as they are not actually cruel to their wives, they cannot be divorced. Justice Bigham's words simply encourage them in their ways ,and even efford them justification. Opinions of this kind simply put a premium on immorality."

WOMEN SHOULD NOT HAVE THE RIGHT TO CAST VOTE

Such Was Decision of Judges at Debate by the Ladies' Literary Society of St. Peter's T.A.S.

INTERESTING PROGRAMME

"Resolved, that women should not have the Suffrage."

The above was the decision of the judges as the result of a most amusing and interesting debate on the "Suffragette Question" at the meeting of the Ladies' Literary of St. Pete's T. A. S. on Friday evening last.

The leaders of the affirmative were Misses E. Picard and I. Coughlin and the opposite side was ably defended by Misses M. Grady and R. Fitzgerald. The judges were, Rev. Father Mather and Rev. Father Casey, of the aCthedral staff and Miss L. Deanard, President of the Ladies' Literary Association.

The chief argument for the defence was that based upon the statutes, which grant the privilege of voting to every man who has completed his twenty-first year, who is a British subject, either by birth or naturalization, and who has lived for a certain length of time in a specified locality.

The speaker contended that to give the word "man" a specific rather than a generic meaning was to interpret the term in a sense at variance with the common acceptance of the word in other important writings. Therefore, if the word "man" is accepted as being synoynmous with the word "mankind," it includes the weaker as well as the stronger sex and, since a woman can be twenty-one years of age, and also fulfill the other conditions named in the statutes, she should have the same right to vote as the men have.

The affirmative dealt, not so much with women's right to vote as with her fitness for voting, and, since it would be a logical sequence, her fitness also for holding public offices. Besides, it was contended, women haven't time to vote, or rather they haven't time to attend to all the various responsibilities that hinge on the privilege of voting. A woman's place is in her home, bringing up her boys so that they may make good men who will vote right when their time comes.

Again, if women are complaining about having too much to do already why should they be so anxious to add another trouble and worrq to the many they now have.

Neither do the majority of the women want the franchise. If as the defnce declared, women were influential in passing nine-tenths of the votes that are polled, why should they worry abo it wanting any more.

During the evening the folowing delightful numbers were much enjoyed:

Instrumental—Miss N. Shelvin.
Vocal Duet—Misses G. Rudkins and E. McCabe.
Dialogue—Miss H. Kane, and Messrs. H. Callaghan and N. Phelan.

Before the close of the meeting, a vote of thanks, moved by Miss M. Carveth and seconded by Miss M. Connor was tendered to Miss L. Deanard, the President, in consideration ofherpast capable and generous services to the society. Miss Deanard leaves on Monday for Belleville, where she has accepted a position as teacher in the Belleville Deaf and Dumb Institute.

Man Of Jewish Descent Is Premier Of Italy

For the first time in exile since Joseph, the son of Jacob, was premier of Egypt, a Jewish man, still keeping his religion, has become premier in the person of the present premier of Italy, Luigi Luzati. Although there are many leading cabinet ministers or men of high office at the present time in nearly every country of the globe especially in England, where there are three Jewish cabinet ministers just now and although there have been some Jewish prime ministers they were converted to Christianity to get the office. Now for the first time a man recognized as upholding the Jewish religion is prime minister of a leading country, and it is most gratifying that this should happen in a country like Italy, where the Pope has his seat and where the first prosecutions against the Jews were started. It is a change that the Mayor of Rome should be a Jew and the prime minister of the whole country of the same religion.

Senor Luigi Luzati is a descendant of one of the most famous of the leading Jewish families in Italy, whose members have for generations been among the most learned men of their time. The present prime minister was born in Venice in 1841 and studied law and philosophy in Padua. In 1867 he graduated as professor of political econmy from Padua. Fired A Revolver And Has To Pay A Heavy Fine Of $13.75

James Frampton pleaded guilty this morning at the police court to having had a revolver on his person and was given ten days to pay a fine of $13.75.

It appears that Frampton, under the influence of liquor, went into a house and fired several shots which terrified the woman living there.

P. C. Newhall and Meagher were called down and arrested the young man.

The magistrate explained the seriousness of the charge to him and allowed him to go with a small fine.

A young man was committed to gaol where he will be examined by doctor as to whether he is insane or not..

The Board Of Trade Will Discuss The Question

A special meeting of the Board of Trade that should prove of the greatest interest will be held to-morrow night in the City Council chamber when the Canadian General Electri Company's proposition and the building and equipping of a power house at the water works dam. The matter is one that is of the greatest importance to the citizens of Peterborugh and there should be a record attendance of members of the Board in order to hear and take part in the discussion. The citizens generally are invited to be present.

His Worship allowed them to go on suspended sentence but they had to pay for the syrup and also the costs of the court, amounting in all to thirty-three dollars and sixty-six cents.

UP TO THE MINUTE MILLINERY

WHAT detracts from the smart appearance of a woman more than an unbecoming hat or a hat not right up to the minute? In our large Millinery Parlours we not only have the most stylish creations and the neatest styles shown anywhere, but our salesladies are thoroughly versed on the subject of "proper styles, shapes and colours for each individual face and physique." The whole secret lies in the proper selecting of the hat. We make this a specialty and have received many comments on this feature of our department. The exhibit of millinery in our parlours this Spring far excels anything we have before attempted, yet our prices are not out of the ordinary moderate class and are even low in proportion to the amount of style and beauty shown in each creation. Those who have not already seen our exhibit will be well repaid for their trouble if they come and spend an hour with our salesladies and have many of the most becoming styles demonstrated.

A LINDSAY MAN

Writer of "Waiting" a Song That Will be Featured Tonight.

The music of the song "Waiting" was written by Leslie Douglas, of Lindsay, who is a nephew of Mr. Wm. Henry, this city. Mr. Douglas has been an invalid for a number of years and devoted his time wholly to music. He is very clever, and has written some very pretty music. He has exceptional ability, and, considering his age, and the fact that he is an invalid, he has made remarkable advancement. His song will be sung at the Opera House this evening at the opening performance of the Partello Stock Co.

ICE OUT OF LAKE

Third Time in 28 Years That Chemong Lake Has Been Free in March.

Bridgenorth, April 1.—Spring has appeared once more and earlier than usual.

There is quite a hustle on in the village, quite a few are changing their place of residence.

Mr. Nathan Taylor has taken his departure from the village, and has moved to the city. Mr. Taylor will be missed. He was a good neighbour and has been the road master of the village for a number of years.

The British Empire Bank is doing a good business under the management of Mr. J. O'Brien. The Bank is a great convenience for the community and the people appreciate it.

The ice disappeared off the Lake yesterday, March 31. In the year 1903 the ice cleared off on March 28. And in the year 1898 the lake was clear of ice on March 28. This year is the third time in 28 years that the lake was clear of ice in March, and in the year 1885 the ice did not go out until the 2nd of May.

The weather was favourable this spring, it being warm and very little wind, the ice becoming so thin that it all broke up with the wind and did not do any damage to the boat houses or the bridge.

The hum of the sawmill will soon be heard again.

THE MYSTERIOUS NERVES

The secret of keeping the marvellous nervous system in health and vigour is found in the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, the great blood builder and nerve restorative.

"The Climax"

"The Climax," a play in three acts, by Edward Locke, with music by Jos. Carl Breil, will be seen here for the first time at the Grand Opera House, next Thursday evening, April 7th. "The Climax" comes as a final argument to the much-discussed question "Should the stage instruct as well as entertain?"

It is told in the simplest language of the people it is supposed to depict, and while that language is expressive and in many cases almost epigrammatical, it is the simplest conversation of real people.

The story is of a young woman, Adelina von Hagen, who comes to New York from the middle West to study music and to develop her voice, as a singer. She resides in the household of her instructor, Luigi Golfanti, and is beloved by his son Pietro. She is also beloved by John Raymond, a young physician from her home town. A minor operation becomes necessary to relieve her throat. It is performed by a specialist, after which Adelina is left in care of Doctor Raymond. Previously, however, the girl has rejected both suitors in order to follow the delightful will-o-the-wisp "A stage career." Dr. Raymond employs mental suggestion to destroy the girl's ability to sing.

The situations are intense, although natural and unlaboured. There is an unusual comedy relief, the two together forming what has been pronounced the best play in years.

Grand Opera House, Thursday, April 7th. Seat sale opens Tuesday morning, April 5th, at Box Office.

WEDDING BELLS

HARRISON—MILBURN.

A very pretty wedding took place on Wednesday, March 30, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. T. T. Milburn, Smith, when their daughter, Abbie, was united in marriage to Mr. Ross Harrison. The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. Bedford, of Lakefield. Miss Tryphena Chasty, of Peterborough, assisted the bride, while Mr. Noble Milburn, brother of the bride, supported the groom. The bride was the recipient of a large number of beautiful and costly presents.

PRESENTED WITH PAST MASTER'S CHAIR

Alpha Masonic Lodge Visits Peterboro—An Interesting Evening.

A very interesting meeting of Peterborough Lodge, A.F. and A.M., was that which was held on Friday evening last. The occasion was marked by the presence of a delegation of visitors from Alpha Lodge, No. 384, of Toronto. Alpha lodge is one of the largest and most important of the Toronto lodges and has a membership of over four hundred. During the evening the local lodge was presented with a very handsome and valuable Past Master's chain of solid silver, beautifully made and having the working tools of the office pendant. The gift was wholly unexpected by the Peterborough brethren, and most gracefully received and acknowledged.

The visitors reached the city by the evening C. P. R. train, and came direct to the lodge room, where they were greeted heartily. The work on the First Degree was taken on by the visitors and proved an interesting exemplification of the ceremony. The following officers of Alpha Lodge filled the chairs:

W. Bro., Raymond Walker, jr., W.M.
Rt. W Bro Geo. Tait, I.P.M.
W. Bro., R. R. Ledger, S.W.
Bro. R. H. McKerrihen, J.W.
W. Bro. R. E. Porter, Chap.
V. W. Bro. E. J. Voss, Secy
W. Bro. O. L. Jackson, Treas.
Bro. Geo. Gander, S.D.
Bro. Dr Ashton Fletcher, J.D.
Bro. H. Greet, I.G.
Bro. W. Hamm, S.S.
Bro. W. Scholes, J.S.
Bro. Dr. Stewart, Asst., J.S.

At the conclusion of the work supper was served in the refreshment hall, and the brethren from Toronto gave a most entertaining programme. Some excellent musical numbers were interspersed with speeches by prominent members of both lodges.

Rt. W. Bro. Dr. S. P. Ford, of Norwood, D.D.G.M., of Otonabee District, No. 20, was present, and spoke briefly, referring to the Lodge of Instruction to be held here this month.

Bro. Mantell who occupies the unique position of being 101 years of age, was present and received much attention, deservedly given to one so aged and to his interesting personality. He gave a brief and humorous address, which was much enjoyed.

PETITION FOR INJUNCTION DISMISSED

Montreal, April 4.—In the Practice Court on Saturday Mr. Justice Demers dismissed the petition for injunction presented by the Bovril Company against George D. Gittus & Co., proprietors of the refreshment booth connected with the N. A. A. Skating Rink.

On the 4th of January a member of the Thiel Detective service had called at the booth and asked for two cups of Bovril. He had been served with cups of another preparation, after, according to defendants' contention, having been fully warned that there was no such thing as Bovril in the premises, but that the establishment sold mainly Oxo, having also a small quantity of other fluid beefs.

In dismissing the petition, Mr. Justice Demers said: "It is not proved that the defendant was in the habit of passing off Vigoral or any other product for Bovril. The petitioner alleges one single offence, the proof of which is contradictory. Injunctions cannot be granted when one solitary offence has been committed. Big companies cannot attack all hotel or restaurant keepers in the city in this way. Unless they prove a fraudulent system the remedy is much worse than the evil. I feel obliged to blame the conduct of the Company petitioner for having taken proceedings on the report of one single offence, made by a detective who was paid for it. It is with pleasure that I dismiss with costs, the petition for injunction.

WEIGHED 807 POUNDS

Heaviest Man Known Passes Away in Paris.

Paris, April 2.—Acording to the statements of a contemporary, a magistrate who has recently died in this city, was the fattest and heaviest man in the world. He claims the magistrate weighed 807 pounds; and he was so stout that he could neither walk nor get into a carriage and that he proceeded to and from his office in a two-wheeled car, which was lowered with the shafts in the air, so as to enable him to place his back on the floor and be raised after desperate exertion. A strong horse was then harnessed to the car and so the magistrate made the little journey in a recumbent position. It is added that a window had to be demolished to get the coffin out of the house for the funeral, and that, as no hearse could have met the emergency, a huge and very solid cart had to be used to take it to the church and the cemetery.

PEOPLE ARE GETTING TIRED

Wise-Ones In London Declare That the Election In May Will Still Leave the Nationalists In Control of Parliament, and the Premier Will Have to Go Back to the Country Again In July.

London, April 4.—(New York Tribune Cable.)—The impending political crisis is approached with apathy by men of all parties. Even the astounding deficit of over £31,000,000 fails to make a deep impression, and the calculation that over £201,000,000 must be provided in the two budgets this year does not appear to frighten anybody.

It is not because the partisans are bent on fastening the responsibility for the financial disturbance on the other party, nor because the Radical pot is calling the Tory kettle black. It is because the result of the general election, when it comes, is expected to be indecisive and because a third appeal to the country is regarded as a foregone conclusion.

Well informed politicians of all parties assume that an election in May will be followed by another one in July or August, since the relations between the two main parties are not likely to be altered and the Nationalists will hold the balance of power and block the necessary financial legislation.

The prospects of having three elections in a single year, without a definite assurance of authority for levying an income tax tends to create a disgust for politics of every color, when the expenses are heavy and the result are uncertain. The candidates are tired and are disposed to abandon public life for the superior excitement of the rubber market or the Rhodesian boom. The warning that an election is close at hand, and every week candidates are falling out. Meanwhile, stock speculation is rampant and turfmen are forecasting heavy plunging on the horses as a consequence of the suspension of the income taxes.

One important change likely to be effected by the elections is in the relations of the Irish factions to each other and to the two main parties. Wm. O'Brien's action in founding the All-for-Ireland League points to a coalition with the Conservatives and the Protestants. Starting originally with opposition to the whisky and land taxes imposed with the budget, and with a denunciation of the ring management of the Nationalist party, he has already taken an advanced position in favor of reconciliation with the Unionist Lords and the Protestant minority.

An expansion of Mr. O'Brien's movement seems almost inevitable. It is not dependent on overseas contributions, but on subscriptions from the Conservative Lords and the good will of the Protestants in the districts which have been uncontested for many years. Land reform has revolutionized Ireland by the creation of a large body of small owners with a conservative bias. Mr. O'Brien appeals to them, and endeavors to dispel the disturst of the Protestants by assuring them that their property rights and religious liberties will be same under home rule. He welcomes assistance from Lord Castletown, Lord Rossmore and Lord Dunraven, and denounces Messrs. Redmond, Dillon and O'Connor for setting up a system of Roman Catholic organism more detestable than Protestant Orangeism.

If Mr. O'Brien largely increases the number of his supporters in Parliament at the next election there may be a faction strong enough to keep the Unionist Ministry in power. The Nationalists, in that even, will be divided into two groups, one with Conservatives and the other with Liberal sympathies, and each intensely hostile to the other.

The strangest anomaly in all this topsy-turvydom is that the less tolerant and more embittered Roman Catholic faction is in alliance with British Liberalism and Nonconformity, and at the same time is holding up the budget and exercising a dictatorship over a ministry committed to Gladstonian home rule.

Meanwhile, the Government has introduced the mechanism for carrying the first veto resolution this coming week and the remaining two by the end of a fortnight, and for forcing the budget by rapid stages into committee, where it will be hung up until John Redmond makes up his mind whether to let it pass or not. The Lords will employ the interval in discussing the definite reform proposals submitted by Lord Rosebery.

"Salvation Army" Entitled to Name.

New York, April 4.—Justice Payton in the Supreme Court Saturday ruled that the Salvation Army, founded by General Booth, with headquarters in England, is entitled to an injunction restraining the American Salvation Army from using the name or any title so nearly similar as to be confounded with the English organization.

BALLOON TRAGEDY

While Making Ascent Notable Party Aboard Has an Accident at Start and Wounded Aeronauts in Basket Are Unable to Bring Gas-Bag Down—Falls Into Water and Two Men Are Drowned.

Stettin, Germany, April 4.—The German balloon Pommern, which made an ascension here yesterday afternoon, met with a series of accidents which ended in a disaster under most tragic circumstances in the Baltic Sea. Three men lost their lives, including the Radical member of the Reichstag, Werner Hugo Delbrueck. Herr Delbrueck and another member of the party were drowned, a third occupant of the car was picked up unconscious and died from his injuries, while the fourth was rescued in a serious condition.

The Pommern carrying Delbrueck, who was acting as pilot, a banker, Herr Semmelhardt; an architect, Herr Benduhn, and a man named Hein, ascended yesterday afternoon at the gasworks. The wind was blowing a hurricane, and the Pommern broke away before she had been completely ballasted.

A chapter of accidents began immediately. The balloon collided with telegraph wires, which broke, almost overturning the basket. It then dashed into the roof of a neighboring factory, destroying the smokestack. With the basket swaying wildly, and half of its ropes cut, the balloon soared to a great altitude, and disappeared in the clouds at a terrific speed.

Thousands of onlookers, including a detachment of military, which had assisted in the ascent, ran along the roads, expecting the basket to break away. The balloon, however, was not seen again until it reached Swinemunde, 36 miles northwest of Stettin, over which it passed, at a height of 6,000 feet, in the direction of the sea.

Tugs followed in its tracks and one of them had outdistanced the others, which was almost directly under it, when suddenly the balloon fell into the sea. The tug steamed to the spot quickly, but the work of rescue was difficult. Already Delbrueck and Benduhn had disappeared, but Semmelhardt and Hein were clinging to the ropes, and they were dragged aboard the vessel.

Describing their terrible experiences, Herr Semmelhardt when he had been somewhat revived, said: "Our collision with the telegraph lines and the factory roof had the most horrible consequences. Delbrueck sustained a broken leg and a severe injury to the head. Benduhn had an arm and leg fractured. Hein received bad contusions of the head. I was knocked senseless, but recovered in a moment to find that I had a crushed knee and chest.

"Delbrueck in spite of his awful condition, vainly endeavored to open the valve, which had become entangled. We knew not what to do, but merely awaited our fate.

"In the meantime, we passed over Swinemunde at a great altitude, and soon found ourselves above the sea. We thought possibly that we might land in Sweden, but the balloon was caught in a rain cloud which drove us down, until we were within 150 feet of the water.

"Delbrueck was suffering agony, but he succeeded in pulling the rip cord, and we fell into the water like a log. All managed to get clear of the basket, I with Hein swam and caught hold of the network, but Delbrueck and Benduhn sank. I remembered no more until I found myself in the boat which rescued us."

Hein died soon after being taken on the tug and Delbrueck's body was washed ashore last evening.

IN THE WORLD OF SPORT

The Referee of Big Battle Will Be Western Man

New York, April 2.—That the referee for the coming battle between Jeffries and Johnson will be a western man is almost an assured fact. While the names of eastern men have been mentioned, there is not one of them enthusiastic about his chances. Charlie White says it is a sure thing that a Californian will referee, and he is thoroughly in accord with such a conclusion. He says it would be casting reflections on the ability of the western men if an eastern man was chosen to fill the position. "I know," said White, "that if the fight were taking place in the east I should not like to see a western man brought on to referee it. There are just as good men out there as there are here, and as the promoters are western men, Jeffries a Californian and Johnson from Texas, why should an eastern man be brought into the matter? As I said before, it is a sure thing that the referee wil be a Californian."

From all accounts there are three men in line for the job of "splitter" in the coming big fight—Charles Eyton, who has refereed many fights in Los Angeles—in fact, all the prominent contests of late; "Jack" Welsh, of San Francisco, who has done duty on many occasions in his native town, and "Ed" Smith, who overlooked the recent contest between Wolgast and Nelson. It is almost an understood thing that the referee will be a native son of California. Jeffries is said to be in favour of Eyton and Johnson believes in the ability of Welsh, while Smith will have many friends of the two fighters recommending him. That is a rather weak argument, as three heads are sometimes better than one in such cases, especially in deciding fouls and roughing tactics, as a foul will frequently occur and not be seen by the referee, while the judges may have seen it.

At that the three men question will not be seriously considered unless there is agitation by the press and public, and, as one man has generally decided all glove contests, it is hardly likely a change will be made in the case of Jeffries and Johnson.

Wagers $200 to $1000 That The Fight Will Not Take Place

New York, April 3.—Corse Payton, of whom nearly everybody in Brooklyn has heard, has become a fine little speculator, not only in his line of business, but in other ways. He is now doing a little stunt in the speculating line on the Jeffries-Johnson glove fussing.

For some reason best known to himself he has concluded that the fuss will not take place either on July 4th or 5th, and has backed up his opinion with cash, or at least checks. During arguments on the fight recently he bet "Bob" Murphy, who should know all about the fight, that the mill would not take place either on July 4th or 5th, wagering $200 against $1,000 of Murphy's money, and what is more, he claims to have five more checks made out and certified for $200 each, that he will wager the same way. These checks are said to be in the hands of "Joe" Deasey.

What Mr. Payton knows about the fight and the date on which it will take place, if ever, is his own secret. Probably, having some knowledge of the California climate during July, he is willing to make 5 to 1 that there will be a fog blanket thrown over the Oakland race track that day and the day following which would interrupt the picture-taking business, which in his opinion, as well as that of many others, is the foundation for a fortune for the principals.

He has other chances, such as accident to either one of the principals, or even death, for there is no telling when "Jack" Johnson is going to be dragged out from beneath his automobile, much mussed up, or when the axe with which Jeffries chops his kindling wood will fly off the handle and chip off an ear or give him a clean shave. While the probabilities are against Mr. Payton being correct in his judgment it is not a bad betting proposition as he has the proverbial one chance of winning.

What is probably as much in the mind of Mr. Payton as anything else is to get himself some extraordinary wager, to let his friends know that he is still on earth and willing to be heard. If he makes the five wagers, which will amount to $1,000 against $5,000 in the aggregate, he will easily get $1,000 worth of free advertising if he loses.

At that he must still be given credit for taking a flying chance to win what he considers a fair wager. He is not doing a bad stroke of business, in any event, for should he happen to win he is $5,000 to the good, with a stack of good notices to boot. It is said that Mr. Payton does some extraordinary things at times, but there is one thing for which he must be given credit. He turns a whole lot of his ideas into money.

LJUNGSTROM WINS

New York, April 2.—Gustaf Ljungstrom, of Sweden, proved to-day that he is the best long distance runner on this side of the Atlantic by winning the second professional Marathon Derby at the Polo Grounds. He won with a breezy rush by a third of a mile from James Crowley, the Irish Marathon racer, in 2.34.08 2-5. This beats the record made by the Frenchman, St. Yves, over the same course a year ago, by six minutes 45 1-5 seconds.

Thure Johansen, another Swede, was third, five hundred yards behind Crowley, with Ted Cook, an American, fourth. The other two survivors, Fred Meadows and Johnny Hayes, of this city, who won the amateur Marathon in London two years ago, were badly distanced.

Ljungstrom, on the form that he has shown in recent long distance races was the choice of the ten contestants, but Hans Holmer was looked upon as being a dangerous rival. Holmer cut out the pace from the start, and before he had gone many miles he led by three hundred yards. This advantage he held up to the eighteenth mile, breaking the local track records of St. Yves and Shrubb up to that distance. Then Ljungstrong passed him after a wonderful sprint. Holmer kept on running, but his running shoes proved his undoing, and he had to quit after the twenty-one mile mark. His feet were bleeding when he stopped, and he had to be assisted off the field.

During the last five miles of the race Ljungstrom simply loped ahead of the others and made a brilliant spurt at the finish, and seemed strong enough to go twice the distance.

Mat Maloney, who was trailing from the start, retired after going fifteen miles, and Umberto Blaiso, of Italy, was carried to his dressing room after negotiating eighteen miles. He had fallen twice fro mexhaustion and his trainers obre him protesting off the field.

Percy Sellen, of Toronto, who was a prominent factor for twelve miles, dropped out after Holmer retired, and this reduced the field to six.

Crowley ran a game plodding race, and both he and Johanson finished under the time made by St. Yves last year. Cook and Meadows got fourth and fifth shares of the prize money. Hayes finished sixth, many laps behind. His time was not taken, as there were only 5 cash prizes.

The track measured six laps to the mile and was in fine condition. About 16,000 persons saw the contest. The weather was splendid.

Following is the order of the finish of the first five men, with the official time: Gustaf Ljungstrom, Sweden, 2.34.08 2-5; Jim Crowley, Ireland, 2.37.06; Thure Johansen, Sweden, 2.38.58 4-5; Ted Cook, United States, 2.47.34; Fred Meadows, Canada, 2.49.12 2-5.

Everyone Thought She Was Going Into Consumption.

Gained Ten Pounds in Two Weeks by the Use of Burdock Blood Bitters.

Mrs. Fred. Biggs, Kingston, Ont., writes:—"I was completely run down, my blood was out of order, and I used to get so weak I would be compelled to stay in bed for weeks at a time. I could not eat, was pale and thin; every one thought I was going into consumption. I tried everything and different doctors until a friend advised me to use Burdock Blood Bitters. I did not have one bottle used when my appetite began to improve. I used six bottles. I gained ten pounds in two weeks. When I began to take it I only weighed ninety-three pounds. It just seemed to pull me from the grave as I never expected to be strong again. I will tell every sufferer of your wonderful medicine."

The blood reaches every portion of the body to distribute nutriment and remove effete matter and waste products. Clearly then, any influence, good or bad, affecting the blood, must necessarily affect the entire system for good or evil as the case may be.

Get pure blood and keep it pure by removing every trace of impure morbid matter from the system by using Burdock Blood Bitters. It exerts a curative influence unapproached by any other remedy.

LACROSSE.

A number of local gentlemen interested in lacrosse, are commening a rusade with a view to interesting the youngsters of the ity in the Canadian national game, which, sad to relate, has died away to nothing in Peterborough. There was a time when every youngster carried a lacrosse stick, but nowadays a boy with a gutted stick is a decidedly scarce article. Baseball has, by leaps and bounds, advanced in popularity until every "kid" in these days plays ball, and lacrosse has dropped out of sight. There is no reason why this should be. Lacrosse is a grand game, a pastime that is exciting in the extreme, both to player and spectator, and a sport that should appeal to every boy. If there has been any reason why the boys have not taken to the game it has, perhaps, been on account of the cost of sticks. Very few youngsters could afford to spend $2.50 or $3.00 for a stick, and it was impossible to secure equipment that was of any use.

This difficulty is being overcome and arrangements have been made to supply high-priced sticks to young players at 50c each, the price of a hockey stick, in order to induce the kids to learn the grand old game.

It is to be hoped that the efforts of the local enthusiasts will be realized and that the scheme will be successful.

Y. M. C. A. NOTES

The second annual banquet of the Boys' Department will be held in the games room on Thursday evening of this week.

A good programme is being arranged and those in charge are looking forward to having one of the best banquets that has been held in the Junior Department. Watch the papers for further particulars.

Basketball.

On Friday evening of this week a game of basketball will be played in the local gym.

The Employed Boys will line up against the school boys. As this will be about the last game of the season there should be a good attendance. The proceeds will go towards the baseball club of the Junior Department.

CONCERT TO-NIGHT

The event of the season, viewed solely from a musical point will be the concert in the Conservatory of Music Hall to-night, in which the Conservatory Madrigal Club will give a great part of the programme. As this will be the only opportunity of hearing the organization, which is to represent the city in the Earl Grey competition in Toronto on Thursday of this week there will undoubtedly be a very large attendance. The programme will be one of unusual merit. For those who enjoy singing unaccompanied the work of the Madrigal Club will be a revelation. The club will give the numbers that it will have to sing in Toronto. In addition the Conservatory Orchestra will render several selections, and Miss McGill, who is entered in the piano contests, and Miss Choate, who, with Miss Wallis, represents the Conservatory in the violin contest, are both down for numbers. The programme is one of the most meritorious that has ever been offered by local talent, and no doubt the enterprise of Mr. Gliddon will be rewarded by a bumper house.

DECISION ON THE VETO

He Refuses to Say What He Intends to Do Regarding the Budget or Whether He Intends to Modify it to Suit the Irish—All He Will Say is "Wait and See"—Redmond Distrusts the Cabinet.

London, April 5.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—The official opposition amendment to the resolution of the Premier on the veto power of the House of Lords, moved in the House of Commons by Sir Robert Bannatyne Finlay, declaring in favor of a strong and efficient second chamber and expressing willingness to consider proposals for the reform of the Upper House, but declining to proceed with the Government proposals was defeated in the Commons last night by a majority of 106, the House dividing, 357 to 251.

"Wait and see," was Premier Asquith's answer to the inconvenient curiosity of several opposition members, who endeavored to obtain enlightenment regarding the Government's program and of possible alterations in the budget.

Replying to Austen Chamberlain, however, the Premier said he had not authorized Churchill's statement that the budget would be passed without alteration. This is taken as indicating that some of the objections of Irishmen will be met.

A new phase of the situation is the recognition by irritated Liberals that Redmond's desire to keep a grip on the budget is inspired, not merely by hostility to the Lords, but by his distrust of the Government, but for what will finally happen the country must wait and see.

The debate on the Premier's motion to go to a committee to consider his proposals on disabling the Lords was concluded last night. Right Hon. M. Lyttelton, who opened, warmly protested against Churchill's statement last week that the Lords, having used to the veto to "affront the prerogative of the crown," and invade the rights of the Commons, it had become necessary for the "crown and Commons" to act together and restore the balance of constitution, he described it as "ungenerous and unseemly."

May Halt Grafting.

Pittsburg, Pa., April 5.—William J. Brennan, an attorney representing several councilmen whose cases were called for trial yesterday, set up a legal obstacle in the path of the graft searchers which may halt proceedings.

Brennan moved that the 91 indictments be quashed, on the ground that the foreman of the grand jury, Harrison Nesbit, president of the Bank of Pittsburg, N.A., is not an elector of Allegheny County, and therefore not eligible to serve as foreman of the indicting jury.

Brennan also submitted a number of newspapers to substantiate his contention that it was impossible to obtain a fair trial here. He asked for a change of venue. Both points were held up until to-day for decision.

WOMAN WAS SUFFOCATED

Mrs. A. Barker, a Rag Sorter In Pullan's Establishment, Failed to Get Out With the Others and Must Have Wandered Around In the Dense Smoke Until She Fell Down Shute and Smothered.

Toronto, April 5.—Lying lifeless between two paper presses in a corner of the burning rag shop of E. Pullan at West Adelaide and Maude streets, the body of Mrs. A. Barker, 177 West Richmond street, a paper sorter, was found where she had succumbed to suffocation yesterday afternoon. She was taken to the morgue.

When the first alarm of fire was given, Mrs. Barker, Miss Irwin and Mrs. Miller were working in the rear of the shop, directly above the place where the fire is supposed to have started. They hurried to the stairs, as did twenty men, who were also working on the same floor. Just as the two women ran down Mrs. Barker exclaimed she had left her coat and some clothes behind. She turned to go back for them and was never again seen alive.

It is thought that she became confused by the dense smoke, which quickly filled the building, for, although the stairs were within a few feet of where she was working, she apparently ran to the front of the factory, over a hundred feet, in an attempt to break open the window there. In doing this she forgot the hole in the floor used to feed the paper presses and fell through on to the press in the next storey.

From there the unfortunate woman rolled to the floor, and lay between two presses until discovered some fifteen minutes later. The firemen did not receive any word of there being any one in the place until they had been working at the fire for about six or seven minutes. When it was reported that she was missing, two firemen with great difficulty entered and after a long, trying search brought out her lifeless body.

Dog Scare In Eastern Ontario.

Brockville, April 5.—There is a prevailing feeling here that rabies has spread to this eastern section of Ontario. Nearly a score of people have been bitten in Brockville recently. Mrs. David Donald, an elderly woman, was attacked, and her arm fearfully lacerated. The owner of the dog shot it. The council has materially increased dog licenses.

Brockville's taxation this year will be 26 mills, a jump of two mills.

Last Friday William Hall, married, 50 years of age, left Madrid, N.Y., and the same day Miss Hattie Wilson, aged 30, also vanished. They met at Ogdensburg, N.Y., Friday night, and crossing the river Saturday came to Brockville, registering as George Stone and wife of Utica, N.Y. Provincial Constable Stone of Prescott and an Ogdensburg lawyer named Jamieson were not long in getting sufficient evidence to start a divorce suit.

Halley's Comet Itinerary.

Ottawa, April 5.—John S. Plaskett, chief observer at the Dominion Observatory, Ottawa, and a graduate of the University of Toronto, says, regarding the comet:

"Halley's Comet is now west of the sun, and may be seen probably with a field glass before sunrise. I have no doubt that in a week or so it should be visible to the naked eye in the east before sunrise, but will probably not be very conspicuous until about May 20, when it will be in the evening sky after sunset."

U. S. Settlers Coming In.

Montreal, April 5.—According to a despatch to the Grank Trunk offices here, 33 cars of settlers' effects arrived at Scott, Sask., yesterday from points in the United States, and a second train of 32 cars will arrive today.

Chapter XV

SHIRLEY LEARNS A SECRET.

SHIRLEY CLAIBORNE was dressed for a ride, and while waiting for her horse she reread her brother's letter, and the postscript which follows she read twice:

I shall never live down my acquaintance with the delectable Armitage. My brother officers insist on rubbing it in. I even hear, ma cherie, that you have gone into retreat by reason of the exposure. I'll admit for your consolation that he really took me in, and, further, I really wonder who the devil he is or was! Our last interview at the club after Chauvenet told his story lingers with me disagreeably. I was naturally pretty hot to find him playing the darkly mysterious, which never did go with me, after eating my bird and drinking my bottle. As a precaution I have looked up Chauvenet to the best of my ability. At the Austro-Hungarian embassy they speak well of him. He's over here to collect the price of a few cruisers or some such rubbish from one of our sister republics below the gulf. But bad luck to all foreigners! Me for 'merica every time!

"Dear old Dick!" And she dropped the letter into a drawer and went out into the sunshine, mounted her horse and turned toward the hills.

Shirley Claiborne was dressed for a ride.

She had spent the intermediate seasons of the year at Storm Springs ever since she could remember and had climbed the surrounding hills and dipped into the valleys with a boy's zest and freedom. The Virginia mountains were linked in her mind to the dreams of her youth, to her earliest hopes and aspirations and to the books she had read, and she galloped happily out of the valley to the tune of an old ballad. She rode as a woman should, astride her horse and not madly clinging to it in the preposterous ancient fashion. She had known horses from early years, in which she had tumbled from her pony's back in the stable yard, and she knew how to train a horse to a gait and how to master a beast's fear, and even some of the tricks of the troopers in the Fort Myer drill she had surreptitiously practiced in the meadow back of the Claiborne stable.

It was on Tuesday that John Armitage had appeared before her in the pergola. It was now Thursday afternoon, and Chauvenet had been to see her twice since, and she had met him the night before at a dance at one of the cottages.

Once free of the settlement she rode far and fast until she was quite beyond the usual routes of the Springs excursionists; then in mountain byways she enjoyed the luxury of leisure and dismounted now and then to delight in the green of the laurel and question the rhododendrons.

Jules Chauvenet had scoured the hills all day and explored many mountain paths and inquired cautiously of the natives. The telegraph operator at the Storm Springs inn was a woman, and the dispatch and receipt by Jules Chauvenet of long messages, many of them in cipher, piqued her curiosity. No member of the Washington diplomatic circle who came to the Springs, not even the shrewd and secretive Russian ambassador, received longer or more cryptic cables. With the social diversions of the Springs and the necessity for making a show of having some legitimate business in America, Jules Chauvenet was pretty well occupied, and now the presence of John Armitage in Virginia added to his burdens.

He was tired and perplexed, and it was with unaffected pleasure that he rode out of an obscure hill path into a bit of open wood overhanging a curious defile and came upon Shirley Claiborne.

The soil was soft, and his horse carried him quite near before she heard him. A broad sheet of water flashed down the farther side of the narrow pass, sending up a pretty spurt of spray wherever it struck the jutting rock. As Shirley turned toward him he urged his horse over the springy turf.

"A pity to disturb the picture, Miss Claiborne! A thousand pardons! But I really wished to see whether the figure could come out of the canvas. Now that I have dared to make the test, pray do not send me away."

"Steady, Fanny! Don't come near her, please"— this last to Chauvenet, who had leaped down and put out his hand to her horse's bridle. She had the true horsewoman's pride in caring for herself, and her eyes flashed angrily for a moment at Chauvenet's proffered aid. A man might open a door for her or pick up her handkerchief, but to touch her horse was an altogether different business. The pretty, graceful mare was calm in a moment and arched her neck contentedly under the stroke of Shirley's hand.

"Beautiful! The picture is even more perfect, mademoiselle!"

"Fanny is best in action and splendid when she runs away. She hasn't run away today, but I think she is likely to before I get home."

She was thinking of the long ride which she had no intention of taking in Chauvenet's company. He stood uncovered beside her, holding his horse.

"But the danger, mademoiselle! You should not hazard your life with a runaway horse on these roads. It is not fair to your friends."

"You are a conservative, monsieur. I should be ashamed to have a runaway in a city park, but what does one come to the country for?"

"What, indeed, but for excitement? You are not of those tame young women across the sea who come out into the world from a convent, frightened at all they see and whisper 'Yes, sister,' 'No, sister,' to everything they hear."

"Yes; we Americans are deficient in shyness and humility. I have often heard it remarked, M. Chauvenet."

"No, no! You misunderstand! Those deficiencies, as you term them, are delightful. They are what give the charm to the American woman. I hope you would not believe me capable of speaking in disparagement, mademoiselle. You must know"—

The water tumbled down the rock into the vale; the soft air was sweet with the scent of pines. An eagle cruised high against the blue overhead. Shirley's hand tightened on the rein, and Fanny lifted her head expectantly.

Chauvenet went on rapidly in French: "You must know why I am here—why I have crossed the sea to seek you in your own home. I have loved you, mademoiselle, from the moment I first saw you in Florence. Here, with only the mountains, the sky, the wood, I must speak. You must hear, you must believe, that I love you! I offer you my life, my poor attainments."

"Monsieur, you do me a great honor, but I cannot listen. What you ask is impossible, quite impossible. But, monsieur"—

Her eyes had fallen upon a thicket behind him where something had stirred. She thought at first that it was an animal of some sort, but she saw now quite distinctly a man's shabby felt hat that rose slowly until the bearded face of its wearer was disclosed.

"Monsieur," cried Shirley in a low tone, "look behind you and be careful what you say or do. Leave the man to me."

Chauvenet turned and faced a scowling mountaineer who held a rifle and drew it to his shoulder as Chauvenet threw out his arms, dropped them to his thighs and laughed carelessly.

"What is it, my dear fellow—my watch, my purse, my horse?" he said in English.

"He wants none of those things," said Shirley, urging her horse a few steps toward the man. "The mountain people are not robbers. What can we do for you?" she asked pleasantly.

"You cain't do nothin' for me," drawled the man. "Go on away, miss. I want to see this little fella'. I got a little business with him."

"He is a foreigner—he knows little of our language. You will do best to let me stay," said Shirley.

She had not the remotest idea of what the man wanted, but she had known the mountain folk from childhood and well understood that familiarity with their ways and tact were necessary in dealing with them.

"Miss, I have seen you befo', and I reckon we ain't got no cause for trouble with you, but this little fella' ain't no business up by'eh. Them hotel people has their own places to ride and drive, and it's all right for you, miss, but what's yo' frien' ridin' the hills for at night? He's lookin' for some un, and I reckon as how that some un air me!"

He spoke drawlingly, with a lazy good humor in his tones, and Shirley's wits took advantage of his deliberation to consider the situation from several points of view. Chauvenet stood looking from Shirley to the man and back again. He was by no means a coward, and he did not in the least relish the thought of owing his safety to a woman. But the confidence with which Shirley addressed the man and her apparent familiarity with the peculiarities of the mountaineers impressed him. He spoke to her rapidly in French.

"Assure the man that I never heard of him before in my life—that the idea of seeking him never occurred to me."

The rifle, a repeater of the newest type, went to the man's shoulder in a flash and the blue barrel pointed at Chauvenet's head.

"None o' that! I reckon the American language air good enough for these 'ere negotiations."

Chauvenet shrugged his shoulders, but he gazed into the muzzle of the rifle unflinchingly.

"The gentleman was merely explaining that you are mistaken, that he does not know you and never heard of you before, and that he has not been looking for you in the mountains or anywhere else."

As Shirley spoke these words very slowly and distinctly she questioned for the first time Chauvenet's position. Perhaps, after all, the mountaineer had a real cause of grievance. It seemed wholly unlikely, but while she listened to the man's reply she weighed the matter judicially. They were in an unfrequented part of the mountains, which cottagers and hotel guests rarely explored. The mountaineer was saying:

"Mountain folks air slow, and we don't know much, but a stranger don't ride through these hills more than once for the scenery. The second time he's got to tell why, and the third time—well, miss, you kin tell the little fella' that there ain't no third time."

Chauvenet flushed, and he ejaculated hotly:

"I have never been here before in my life."

The man dropped the rifle into his arm without taking his eyes from Chauvenet. He said succinctly, but still with his drawl:

"You air a liar, seh!"

Chauvenet took a step forward, looked again into the rifle barrel and stopped short. Fanny, bored by the prolonged interview, bent her neck and nibbled at a weed.

"This gentleman has been in America only a few weeks. You are certainly mistaken, friend," said Shirley boldly. Then the color flushed into her face as an explanation of the mountaineer's interest in a stranger riding the hills occurred to her.

"My friend," she said, "I am Miss Claiborne. You may know my father's house down in the valley. We have been coming here as far back as I can remember."

The mountaineer listened to her gravely, and at her last words he unconsciously nodded his head. Shirley, seeing that he was interested, seized her advantage.

Hands Crack In Winter

WATER AND COLD CAUSE SUFFERING—SPLENDID RESULTS FROM USING

DR. CHASE'S OINTMENT

Most women know what it is to have sore, cracked hands during the cold weather, and oftentimes eczema and salt rheum has its beginning under these circumstances.

There is nothing so bad for eczema as cold water or going into the cold after having the hands wet. By avoiding these conditions as much as possible and applying Dr. Chase's Ointment frequently you can keep the skin soft, smooth and velvety and prevent the serious forms of skin trouble.

Mr. J. H. Anderson, Chapman, Westmoreland Co., N.B., writes: "For ten years I was troubled in the winters with my hands. The skin used to dry up and break open in cracks round the ends of the fingers, the joints and lines of the hands. These cracks would break into the flesh and bleed and were very painful. No treatment seemed to be of any benefit.

"At last I heard of Dr. Chase's Ointment and obtained relief almost immediately. It took out the soreness softened the skin and with persistent use made a complete cure. It is six years since I used the Ointment and there is no recurrence of the trouble."

There is no treatment obtainable that is so delightfully soothing and healing to inflamed, itching skin as Dr. Chase's Ointment and no preparation which heals so quickly and leaves the skin so soft and velvety. 60 cents a box, all dealers; or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto. A PRINCE FOR CANADA.

C. Frederick Hamilton Argues For the Affirmative.

"A British nobleman is selected as Governor-General by the Cabinet of the United Kingdom; presumably he is a political friend of the party in power. He assuredly has been a party man at home, and his whole training up to the moment of his appointment has been as a partisan. He suddenly is charged with a monarch's duties; he becomes our local King, minus the affectionate loyalty, which is properly reserved for the King in London. But monarchy is a trade in itself,—from the power of recollecting names and faces which is said to be a royal quality, to that poise of the mind which regards no political parties with undue favor or resentment; it is a life training. It is a trade which is difficult enough with the aid of all the advantages which are denied to our Governor-General. It is only fair to expect our Governor-General to take some months at least to get into the necessary frame of mind to which royalty is trained from infancy. As soon as he has learned his trade, as soon as he has forgotten that he ever was a partisan as soon as he has begun to accumulate the experience which is a monarch's special personal qualification, we wink him off; we erect an unwritten law forbidding him again to set foot upon our shores; and we send him back to the Parliamentary arena of Great Britain, there possibly to be a partisan once more.

"I regard two things as valuable in a working resident Kingship; training, and the mental attitude which it brings; and experience. The logical results of this contention are royalty and permanence. Let us have a royal prince as Governor-General, and let it be a life appointment.

"We Canadians have pretty definitely made up our minds about our national business. We intend to make this North America of ours, at present a One-Power continent, at some time in the future a Two-Power continent. It is unlikely that we can hope to equal the United States in sheer bulk of citizenship, and it consequently is necessary to search for some countervailing advantage. The advantage which lies to our hand is the power which we possess of making ours infinitely the more interesting citizenship.

We are part of the British Empire; we have a world-wide citizenship; we have interests in Europe, in Africa, in Australasia, in Asia, and Canadians without sacrifice of allegiance, with a strengthening instead of a wrench of loyalty, can play their part in the affairs of any continent of the world. Our American cousins are in a continental ring-fence; we are free of the world and of world-politics. This advantage, already perceptible, will grow as Imperial organization marches forward, and as Canada takes an increasingly active part in the affairs of the Empire. Now, of this subtle difference in the two North American citizenships, the presence of royalty at Ottawa would be an outward and visible sign. It would impart to the texture of our national business that warm and gracious personal note which makes a monarchy an attractive method of Government, the absence of which makes a republic a cold, bare, and uninteresting method.

"Certain of our private and confidential bits of business should be expedited by the presence of royalty at our capital. Here one is dealing with matters which are jealously guarded for a couple of generations at least; but it seems within the bounds of probability to hold that a certain proportion of our public affairs, never large, always appreciable, and sometimes important, depends upon personal considerations. The subject does not lend itself to full or explicit discussion, but at least it may be said that it should be no disadvantage to Canada to have as her medium of communication with the United Kingdom a royal personage whom every British statesman would regard with thorough respect, who would be the near relative of our King and Emperor, and who would be the blood relation of nearly every European monarch. We could count upon our royal prince being more Canadian than the Canadians; his whole interest would be bound up in the growth, prosperity, dignity and glory of his principality; and as our part upon the great stage increases it should prove increasingly useful to have devoted to our service a personage of real European influence. Our views would be sure of getting to headquarters; a proportion of our frets are due to the suspicion that our representations do not reach headquarters, but are smothered on the way.

"Of ways, means and persons I have little to say. The daily press is busy now with the discussion of one august name; I am content to argue for the general principle. The question of ways and means is simplicity itself. Let a royal prince be nominated as Governor-General. On the expiry of the six-year term, if all has gone well, reappoint him. Continue the process until it seems convenient to change to a life tenure. As for title, it will be easy to leave it as it is."—C. Frederick Hamilton.

TRADE WITH JAPAN.

It Has Great Possibilities Says W. T. R. Preston.

The return to Canada of Mr. W. T. R. Preston, Commissioner of Trade to Japan and China, has given an impetus to the desire for an expansion of trade with the Far East. No western country stands in such favorable geographical relation to Japan as the Dominion of Canada. Our western ports are nearer by hundreds of miles than those of any other country. The requirements of Japan are simply incalculable. The entire area of the empire of the Mikado is less than that of the Province of Ontario, and less than one-fifth is available for successful agriculture. Within such limits there is a population of fifty millions, increasing at the rate of half a million annually.

The market this country will afford to the world in a comparatively short period, opens up a most profitable channel for very many Canadian products. The opportunities that will be offered for an expansion of the trade of the Dominion should not be neglected. In many ways Japan is going to be a competitor of the West in the markets of Asia, and perhaps eventually in the western world as well. The empire must develop on some line, and as the limit of expansion has about been reached in its agricultural life, the only avenue likely available for expansion is along industrial lines. But the great changes that will be brought about in the life and habits of the people by such expansion, must necessarily create a demand for western commodities.

Japan's necessity, therefore, is going to prove Canada's opportunity. Japan will require very many of our natural products and raw materials. But the demand will not by any means be confined to the usually accepted list, such as wheat, flour, pulp, paper and lumber. Iron and steel products from our great eastern industries will certainly find a market, not only in Japan, but in Korea and China, also. As in all these countries vast railway construction is already certain, the Canadian Government will do well to put forth its best efforts to cultivate and develop our trade with these eastern markets. It is evident that our neighbors to the south thoroughly appreciate the possibilities of the far eastern trade. This is evident from the fact that an influential imperial business commission is at present touring the United States for three months as the guests of the chambers of commerce of the western coast. A few members of this commission were persuaded to make a brief visit to Canada, and they were deeply impressed with the resources of the country and the possibilities for an expansion of trade with this country. The subject is most important. The Government at Ottawa, in co-operation with the commercial interests of the Dominion, should leave nothing undone to foster and protect Canadian interests in the Far East.

Hugo and the Barber.

When Victor Hugo lived in Paris in the Place Royale he used to be shaved by a barber named Brassier. A friend of the poet asked the barber one day if he was busy. "I hardly know which way to turn," was the reply. "We have to dress the hair of thirty ladies for soirees and balls." And M. Brassier showed the list to his friend. A few days after the friend returned and inquired about the thirty ladies. "Ah, monsieur," said the barber sadly, "I was not able to attend half the number, and I have lost many good customers through M. Victor Hugo." It appears that the poet when about to be shaved was suddenly inspired and seized the first piece of paper he could find to write a poem. Hugo hastily left the shop with his unfinished verses, on the back of which were the names and addresses of the thirty ladies, many of whom waited in vain for their coiffeur.

Hindu Must Go Back.

Because Nathan Rema, Hindu, did not travel from Calcutta to Vancouver on the ticket he bought in the former place, he is denied admittance to Canada and must return to start anew.

This curious point was decided the other day by the British Columbia Appeal Court, to which the Hindu applied for an order compelling the Government officials to admit him.

He admitted that at Hong Kong he changed his third-class ticket for a second-class by payment of $50. Because he did not travel continuously on one ticket he is barred.

BANKS, for protection, now keep informed as to the business and social habits of depositors. And herein is told a story of daring social pretence.

BY J. B. LIVINGSTONE.

NEW YORK, Saturday.

EVERY morning a lot of persons get out of bed wondering how they can beat a bank, and every morning the conscientious and careful banker wonders, as he munches his breakfast roll, what novel job of rascality will be brought to his knowledge before three P. M. It is as true now as it was twenty-five years ago that eternal vigilance is the price of safety in the management of all institutions of the banking character.

Enemies of banks have not become fewer. They merely have been redistributed as to class. The old order changeth, giving place to the new, and crime renews itself in different ways. Undoubtedly the percentage of victimized monetary institutions is much smaller than formerly, but this is due to the greater efficiency of the precautions of bankers rather than to any lessening of the numbers of evil minded persons.

At a meeting of alienists in New York city the other day a celebrated American expert told of an interview he had with Cesare Lombroso last summer in Turin and repeated a remark made by the late Italian criminologist as to factors making for insanity in the United States.

"You may expect," said Lombroso, "that with the rapid multiplication of banks in America there will be an aggravation of certain obscure mental disorders. The spectacle of large sums of gold, silver and paper currency lying exposed to view in a bank, and apparently belonging to no one in particular, develops a latent insanity regarding possession. Employers should be careful not to permit any employe not of obviously well balanced faculties to have the duty of regularly depositing money for them in a bank, for the exhibits at the teller's window may uncover an unsuspected mania."

Right or wrong, Lombroso's opinion throws some light upon the increasing disposition of punctilious bankers to adopt precautions against a class of injuries that until comparatively recent times gave them almost no anxiety at all. They, too, may have theories as to the effect of rapid banking expansion upon certain mental disorders of the "obscure" type.

So far as open, notorious, flagitious criminality confronts them they have carried precautions in the twentieth century to a point where the grosser forms of felony will have less scope each year. Occasionally the "holdup man" operates successfully in a Far Western bank, but the percentage of first and second degree bank burglary is falling steadily and fast. New York is a long distance from the period of feats of "wilful and violent entry," like the robbing of the Manhattan Savings Institution by "Jimmy" and "Johnny" Hope—the days when William F. Howe and Charles W. Brooke used to take large retainers on the principle that the devil himself had rights guaranteed under the constitution.

Embezzling bank officials and employes form the second smallest percentage. But their number also is diminishing under the pressure of heavy sentences, though, according to the president of a big Manhattan bank, every time the newspapers record the arrest of a discovered bank embezzler half a dozen undiscovered scoundrels mutter beneath their breath, "Wonder if I'll be the next."

Thanks to the energy with which the American Bankers' Association follows up the forger of drafts, notes, checks and certifications, the criminal of this group finds that his trade suffers severely from the high cost of living.

An Eye Is Needed.

In the broader field of offending against the general banking law considerable activity continues; but substantial terms of imprisonment for a few notable offenders and indictments for others bid fair to improve the position materially in such particulars as excessive loans, overcertification and the unwarranted extension of credit facilities.

Of late, however, with the multiplication of banks and the competition for new accounts, conservative bankers are finding that it pays them to keep a more watchful eye upon the depositor than once was thought necessary or even expedient. In several instances in Manhattan banks have organized "information departments" through which in a confidential way they are able to keep track of a depositor as to whose social or business habits any ground for criticism might be alleged or suspected.

Impertinence, do you say? Not exactly. Meddling in matters that do not concern them? Not exclusively. Banks in the United States, like those in France, Germany and England, are becoming something more than mercantile conveniences. They have a definite part in the social system; and it is altogether distinct from that of the ordinary trade establishment, to which one person's patronage is as welcome as another's. They have come to be considered more or less as sponsors for their depositors; and the latter are more and more inclined to name their banks first in their credentials of social eligibility. Everybody knows how it works.

Upon the banks it imposes an obligation of carefulness in vouching for depositors, and an adequate voucher demands caution in accepting depositors and some espionage of acts and utterances outside the banking house and the strictly financial relations.

Espionage of depositors through information departments is becoming a recognized feature of banks in many large cities, especially among those rich enough to pick and choose freely. The tendency is to concede that the practice of keeping a uniformly good balance is not the sole test of fitness in a depositor. He or she may be desirable or undesirable quite apart from such consideration.

In New York are several large banks—we are not dealing, of course, with savings banks, but with institutions carrying check accounts—where women constitute a majority of the patrons. They are conducted with as much circumspection as to choice of depositors as could be exercised by a club of the highest tone in the selection of members. Espionage in these circumstances means infinite tact and judgment. A similar system is applied elsewhere much oftener than is suspected by the average depositor, when it is found that a customer keeps a personal account in more than one bank, or a number of accounts of a fiduciary nature in as many institutions—possibly in districts widely separated—and has a habit of interchecking between them and into a local personal account. Nor is the espionage limited to depositors in the categories indicated.

At a bank north of Twenty-third street the cashier makes it a point, so far as is practicable, to know the antecedents, social relationships and private business of all his depositors. It seems a strong statement, but without the least annoyance to those with nothing to hide he contrives to get hold of a mass of useful information regarding persons who are earmarked by the malady Lombroso defined to the American alienist.

The Dragon Rug.

Here is an illustration. It involves a New Jersey man. The cashier commutes to one of the Oranges in the summer. One morning a newspaper, describing a social function held between Newark and Trenton, mentioned among other incidents of interest that the guests danced an old fashioned minuet on a dragon carpet, which, according to the host, had been in his family for more than half a century, having been purchased by an ancestor from an Englishman who got it from a Turk during the Crimean war.

The Spectacle of Large Sums of Gold, Silver and Paper Currency . . . Develops a Latent Insanity Regarding Possession.

That afternoon the cashier was talking at the bank with the head of a New York carpet house, and the conversation turned to carpets.

"Old carpets seem to be as much of a curiosity as old paintings," he said. "I saw in a Jersey newspaper as I rode in this morning that one of our depositors had been entertaining his friends with a dance on a dragon carpet dating back to the Crimea."

"How's that? I sent a dragon carpet yesterday on approval to a Jerseyman. I forget the name; but, come to think of it, I believe he gave your bank as his reference."

"Funny," mused the banker, reaching for the cashier's telephone, the carpet man called his office and was informed that the dragon carpet had been "returned because too large for the room." Name of proposed purchaser? Same as the depositor's.

Within forty-eight hours the cashier had learned that the gown worn by the depositor's wife at the function—it had been described in the newspapers as "a beautiful confection, bought last month in Paris"—had been sent on approval by a Thirty-fourth street dressmaker and returned the day after the dance as "not quite what my husband thinks I should wear—not recherché enough." The lady had told the dressmaker that her husband "keeps his account with the So-and-So bank."

But it was the last time either husband or wife had the privilege of this valuable reference. The account was closed out after the circumstances leading to the step had been detailed to the depositor and had been explained by him in one of those curious sophistries that explain nothing but the folly of the sophist.

Companionships of the "giddy and gaudy" sort are rarely a recommendation on general principles in the case of a bank depositor. The cashier referred to numbered among his patrons a well known man about town, a "first nighter," athlete, sportsman. On an evening train for Washington he met the depositor, who was chatting with a beautiful woman of twenty-five—"my favorite niece," remarked the cosmopolite when the introduction took place. Some weeks later at a Plaza musical tea the cashier's wife met the depositor's wife—their first interview.

"Oh, my husband was so much charmed by your niece," chortled the former, "so much taken with her beauty and conversational powers. They met, as you know, when your husband and she were on their way to Washington to join you for Christmas."

As a result of the impressions received by the cashier's wife from the changing countenance of the depositor's wife, a good actress and a discreet woman, the bank's information department covered the depositor for a week or two, and then it was decided that the checks to the niece were becoming too frequent and that it would be wise to close the account. The depositor raged and declared he would not submit to humiliation, but the cashier was blandly firm, and the niece gets her checks to-day through other banking connections.

Stopping a Check.

"You perceive the difficulty," observed the cashier naively, when recalling the episode. "Checks often are used in domestic litigation to show embarrassing outside relationships, and it would be decedly unpleasant for our bank to be mixed up in a thing of that sort."

Another suggestive case. One Monday morning the cashier found in his mail a letter from a young millionnaire directing that payment be stopped on a check for a large amount dated the previous Friday. A few minutes afterward the depositor telephoned. He said that on Friday night he had been playing at a gambling house "protected" by the police, had taken a "few drinks," had become confused over his losses, and to the best of his recollection had drawn a check to pay them, but had drawn intentionally in excess of the loss in order to get cash for immediate use.

"I want the check stopped until I can figure out how I stand," he added. "And, anyhow my lawyer tells me that the debt is not collectible and the proper thing to do is to return the cash advanced to me."

"Very well, Mr. Jones," responded the cashier. "The check will not be paid by us. But if you will oblige me by sending down your bank book by special messenger at our expense we will be ready to close out your account in about an hour."

A case of a sort different from any outlined. On the first business day of 1910 a plausible person proposed to open an account with the bank of the cashier in question and offered a certified check for $2,000 as a beginner. The official explained that it was a rule of the bank to consult personally with the references of the applicant.

The Guests Danced an Old Fashioned Minuet on a Dragon Carpet.

A Beautiful Confection Bought Last Month in Paris.

"Merely a matter of routine when the application is so obviously eligible as yours," he murmured as he filled in the blank with the data communicated by his caller; "but we must go through it if only for the sake of form."

Nothing could have been more satisfying than the superficial outcome of the investigation into the man's references; but the cashier, an old hand at ferreting out banking humbugs, could not throw off the feeling that there was something in the background worth knowing. He turned the information department loose on the trail, and ere the next moon the report was before him. This showed that about six months back, and while the new depositor was carrying a check account in a Brooklyn bank, he was carrying another in a Boston institution. Everything went with perfect smoothness in Brooklyn. The depositor had built up an excellent reputation there.

In Boston a situation like the following developed. The account had been opened with a certified check for $2,000. In the course of a few weeks all but $15 had been withdrawn and the depositor left his book to be balanced. Next day he wrote to the Boston bankers that one of the checks in the bunch had not been made out by him—a check for $250 drawn to bearer, indorsed by "Ellen Smith," beneath which indorsement was the name of the drawer and the word "Correct." He asserted that in both cases his name had been forged by his stenographer, who had disappeared. The Boston bank stood the "loss," but closed the account.

As the New York cashier had noticed a clever looking young woman making deposits for his new depositor he invited the teller of the Boston bank to inspect her. "Ellen Smith or her twin!" ejaculated the Bostonian at first glance. The rest may easily be imagined.

The Spreading Out.

Last October a deputation of four tradesmen called at an uptown bank and asked for an interview with the president. He received them. "We are here," said the spokesman, a retail butcher in a large way, "to make a complaint. Two of us have accounts with you. It has come to our knowledge that the agent of the Bonzabee apartments has let one to a Mrs. Brown on the strength of a reference she gave to this bank, where, as we have learned, she has an account."

"Yes, that's about right," replied the official. "Any thing improper in that?"

"We think there is. Mrs. Brown's husband owes us and every other tradesman of much account in the neighborhood, and it is impossible to collect a cent. He's a fraud; we wouldn't give him or any member of his family credit for a dollar's worth. But with an apartment in a big apartment house they can fool somebody somewhere, and with that and your recommendations they are fixing it to suit themselves."

"And what do you suggest?"

"Well, our idea is that you can help relieve the situation by closing out Mrs. Brown's account. That's the least you can do to offset the damage caused by this bank in giving the Browns a testimonial that helps them palm themselves off on the neighborhood."

"But, gentlemen, I don't exactly see how"——

"Sorry you don't, sir," said the spokesman, rising, and a little surprised. "But as you can't see with us, Tompkins here and I think we had better close out our accounts."

Mr. President reconsidered; the bank has an information department now, and the Browns moved in January.

In yet another direction banks are keeping a sharper eye upon the depositor than they did say a decade ago. Considerable perplexity has arisen as to the handling of checks drawn by a person in his fiduciary or quasi-fiduciary character to his own personal order, indorsed by him personally and offered by him for deposit to personal account. What is the liability of the bank in case there has been a conversion or perversion of the fiduciary or trust fund? Must the bank make good the loss to the fiduciary or trust interest? Can it be held responsible to the extent of having to reimburse the money misappropriated even when the misappropriation was the result of an error and free of criminal intent?

For instance, Mr. Bullet Bull has a personal account with the Bison National Bank of New York City. He is president of the Buffalo Hoof and Horns Company of West Virginia, which acquired a controlling interest in the stock of the Consolidated Cats and Dogs Corporation of New Jersey, an organization formed to segregate the treasury holdings of the Jumping Jack Rabbit Company, the Blind Mice Company and the Whole Hog or None Company, all of Nevada.

These details are important as showing the area over which Mr. Bull operates and as emphasizing the desirability of his account from the banking viewpoint. In addition he is head of the firm of Bull & Ox, an officer in a dozen corporations, a director in twenty, and is special partner in a bond house. His son is treasurer of the Buffalo Hoof and Horns Company. The two men have a large financial acquaintance. Perhaps you have met them.

Women Constitute a Majority of the Patrons.

The End of Mr. Bull.

But Mr. Bull's connections ramify further. He has been made the trustee of several estates, the executor without bond of several wills disposing of handsome amounts, the treasurer of a number of charitable institutions with substantial funds lying under his hand. In each of these representative capacities he keeps a banking account—nearly a dozen all told. He draws the checks for the firm of Bull & Ox, the latter partner being the minor son of Ox, deceased, who left his entire fortune in the firm's business and made Bull guardian of the lad.

Is there anything more obvious than that Mr. Bull is a solid man? He has two motor cars, goes to the opera, spends part of each summer in Europe. His wife dresses elaborately, gives pink luncheons on Riverside Drive. His daughter is preparing for matrimony at Swellesley College. Mr. Bull's pew in Old Thirteenth Church is in the direct line of vision of the clergyman as he reads impressive passages of Holy Writ about being diligent in business and serving the Lord.

Unquestionably Mr. Bull is a solid man—to look at. When he enters the Bison National Bank the herd of clerks lifts heads and wonders. Nor is the feeling of admiration diminished until the newspapers announce the failure of the firm of Bull & Ox "with certain features not altogether reassuring in the light of Mr. Bull's large responsibility for fiduciary and corporate interests."

Legal investigation discovers the fact that Mr. Bull has withdrawn a very large total from numerous fiduciary accounts, has deposited it to personal account in the Bison, has checked from the latter to Mrs. Bull, who has been a heavy loser in the slump of stocks.

Note the moral. In not a single case of conversion of funds by Mr. Bull did the fiduciary interest he represented lose a dollar. The banks in which he kept the fiduciary accounts reimbursed the amounts he had drawn on these accounts to his individual order, their counsel having advised them that, in the absence of specific authority from the fiduciary interests to honor such checks they honored them at their own risk and peril.

Although there is some uncertainty in legal and banking circles as to the limits of bank liability under conditions of this character, banks in New York are more and more inclined to give themselves the benefit of the doubt; and the course many of them adopt is simply a variation of the rule of increasing espionage of depositors. Officers and tellers are warned of the risks involved in handling checks drawn to personal order by a corporation official, executor, trustee, treasurer or member of a firm; and they are informed that the slightest infraction of the rule will be punished. Before such a check will be paid the drawer must show his right to draw it.

One institution, the Lincoln National Bank, has published a pamphlet, prepared by its vice president, Mr. Charles Elliot Warren, going into details as to the authorization desirable.

In the February circular of the National City Bank of New York it was stated on the authority of the Controller of the Currency that out of the seven thousand national banks in this country there was practically not one on the "black list." Such a condition is due not solely to government supervision. It arises in part from an intelligent application of the system of espionage of depositors.

Butchers.

Prime picked lots of choice finished butchers' cattle are worth nearly as much as exporters: loads of good, $6.25 to $6.50; medium, $5.50 to $5.75; common, $5 to $5.40; cows, $3.50 to $5.25.

Montreal Live Stock.

MONTREAL, April 4.—(Special)—At the west end market receipts last week were 2275 cattle, 175 sheep and lambs, 1550 hogs and 1375 calves, while the supply this morning consisted of 1025 cattle, 125 sheep and lambs, 1150 hogs and 550 calves. Prices show an advance of 15c to 25c, butchers being generally well cleaned out of their surplus stock of beef. The average quality was of a useful sort, not too heavy, and several carloads were bought for Quebec and Ottawa. Cable advices from Liverpool on Canadian cattle noted an advance of ½c, and in London ½c to 1c per lb., and there was a demand from local exporters. A few extra choice, heavy steers sold at 6¾c; choice at 6½c; good at 6c to 6¼c; fairly good at 5½c to 5¾c; fair at 5c to 5¼c; medium at 4½c to 4¾c, and common at 3¾c to 4¼c per lb. Heavy bulls sold at 6c; medium weights at 5½c to 5¾c per lb. Hog prices declined 25c to 35c, due to increased receipts and small demand from packers, as consumption has fallen off, due to high prices. There were some deliveries on contracts at $10.75, but sales of selected lots were at $10.40 to $10.50. Supplies of calves are plentiful, and prices have declined considerably. Sales of good to choice stock were made at $4 to $6, and common at $1.50 to $3 each. The market for spring lambs is quiet, at $4 to $8 each. A few small lots of old sheep sold at 5½c to 6c per lb.

WHEEZER OR SNEEZER?

Have You Heard of Hyomei for Catarrh, Asthma and Hay Fever.

If you wheeze or sneeze, hawk or spit, snuffle or blow, something is the matter with the membrane of your respiratory tract, and you need Hyomei.

And you need Hyomei because it will cure you of any catarrhal or inflammatory condition that exists.

It isn't a stomach medicine, or spray, or douche, but a very pleasant healing, antiseptic balsam, from the eucalyptus forests of Australia. You breathe this balsamic air through a small, hard rubber inhaler, and it reaches every nook and corner and crevice of the membrane, and promptly kills the catarrhal germs.

Wm. Madill will sell you a complete Hyomei (pronounced High-o-me) outfit for $1.00, on the money back plan.

"I have been a victim of catarrh for many months, the glands around my eyes and nose being sore and swollen. My head felt dull and stuffy. Pains in the front and back of my head, also across my eyes were frequent and I had trouble in breathing, especially at night when trying to rest. I had doctored but got no relief until after using Hyomei. This relieved me in the first twenty-four hours and in less than two weeks I was practically cured. I cannot give too much praise to Hyomei." Mrs. Mary Philips, 153 McNab St., Hamilton, Ont.

Burr's Self Control.

Aaron Burr was by nature and training a man of extraordinary self control. He allowed no circumstances to throw him off his balance. An anecdote told by Rufus Choate to Richard H. Dana, recorded in Mr. Dana's "Diary," illustrates the callousness which aided Burr so greatly in controlling himself. Several years after the death of Hamilton, killed by Burr in a duel, Burr visited Boston, and Mr. Devereux of Salem paid him some attentions. The visitor was taken to the Boston Atheneum, where, while the two men were walking through the gallery of sculpture, Mr. Devereux happened to catch sight of a bust of Hamilton. The thought flashed across his mind that Burr might not care to be confronted with the sight of the features of the man he had slain. But no. Burr was undisturbed. He also espied the bust, and, although Mr. Devereux had instinctively turned away, he walked up to it and said in a loud tone: "Ah! Here is Hamilton!" Then, passing his fingers along certain lines of the face, he added, "There was the poetry!" Hamilton's contemporaries gave him credit for possessing a poetic mind.

When Beau Nash and Wesley Met.

Beau Nash, though but an indifferent churchgoer, not only went to hear Whitefield preach, but attended a service at Bath held by John Wesley. The incident is related in Southey's "Life of Wesley:"

"While he was preaching this remarkable personage entered the room, came close to the preacher and demanded of him by what authority he was acting. Wesley made answer, 'By that of Jesus Christ, conveyed to me by the present archbishop of Canterbury, when he laid his hands upon me and said, "Take thou authority to preach the gospel."' Nash then affirmed that he was acting contrary to the laws. 'Besides,' said he, 'your preaching frightens people out of their wits.' 'Sir,' replied Wesley, 'did you ever hear me preach?' 'No,' said the master of ceremonies. 'How, then, can you judge of what you never heard?' Nash made answer, 'By common report.' 'Sir,' said Wesley, 'is not your name Nash? I dare not judge of you by common report. I think it not enough to judge by.'"

To Save You Time.

Have you ever noticed that when reading you waste a certain amount of time in turning from the end of one line to the beginning of the next? Long ago, when the world was not so busy as now, columns were of a much greater width. Since then they have been narrowed more and more.

Of course in an hour's reading little time is lost, but in a lifetime it is likely to be considerable. Realizing this, some one has suggested that type should be arranged as follows. You read to the end of the line, drop the eyes and read backward:

What a luxury

The Power of Napoleon.

The desperate struggle to do something worth while is the very thing which draws out our reserve forces and develops latent power, says Orison Swett Marden in Success Magazine. Without this struggle many people would never have discovered their real selves. Napoleon was never so resourceful, never so level headed, never had that vigorous mental grasp, was never able to make such powerful combinations, as when he was driven to desperation. It was when all bridges were burned behind him and there was no possibility of retreat that the possible Napoleon came to the rescue. Napoleon said of his great general Messena that he never showed his mettle until he saw the wounded and dead falling all around him in battle. Then the lion in him was aroused, and he fought like a demon.

Enlightenment.

"Father," remarked Johnny after deep thought, "suppose I should knock this jug off the table and catch it, then I wouldn't catch it, would I?"

"N-no, I suppose not," his father slowly said.

"But," continued Johnny, still toying with the jug, "if I should knock it off and not catch it, then I would catch it, wouldn't I?"

"Yes, you would!" his father grimly returned, this time with quick decision.

HUNTING THE WALRUS.

Daring of the Eskimos and Their Work With the Harpoon.

With the harpoon as a weapon the hunters left the solid ice to spring lightly from one small piece to another until a pan large enough to hold them was reached far out in the open lake. The pieces over which the passage was made were often so small that they would have sunk under a man's weight had he faltered or hesitated upon them for a moment. It seemed to me that the Eskimos were absolutely reckless in this passage over the broken pieces and took no account of the manner in which they should return. Certainly only a fearless man with a clear eye and nerves of iron could accomplish it.

A large, safe pan once attained well in the midst of the blowing walrus, a stand was taken near its edge, where, with harpoon poised, the hunter waited until a walrus came within striking distance. Then like lightning the weapon was sunk deep into the animal's body, and quick as a flash a harpoon shaft provided with a heavy point of iron was driven firmly into the ice and several turns of line taken around it and held taut by the Eskimo.

This strong line held the walrus in spite of its struggles to free itself, and not an inch was surrendered to it by the Eskimo. As the walrus gradually tired the line was tightened little by little until finally the great animal was well alongside the pan, when it was quickly dispatched with a lance.—Harry Whitney in Outing.

WAITING FOR A WIFE.

One Man Who Thought Twenty Years Was Just a Starter.

"There's romance for you," said little Bluks, putting aside his morning paper. "This paper has a story of a college professor who met a beautiful girl twenty years ago, fell in love with her at first sight and then lost sight of her altogether. Now, after waiting for twenty years, he is rewarded by leading her to the altar as his bride. Just think of it, waiting twenty years for a wife!"

"What of it?" asked the genial philosopher. "There's nothing extraordinary about that. I've waited thirty-five years for mine."

"You? Waited thirty-five years? Why, I thought you'd been married that long!" said little Bluks.

"I have," said the genial philosopher. "That's how I know how long I've waited. I've waited for her to get her gloves on about three years. I've waited for her to change her hat about four years. I've waited while she said just one last word to the cook for at least five years. I've waited upstairs, I've waited downstairs. I've waited at church, I've waited at the theater, and I have waited in cabs, omnibuses, taxies, motorcars and the Lord knows what else besides. Fact is, Binksy, I've waited so long, so often and so regularly that between you and me that little college professor of yours, with only one wait of twenty years, strikes me as a miserable little piker."

The Word "Woebegone."

The word "woebegone" is an interesting survival of the far past. "Begone" here represents the past participle of the Anglo-Saxon verb "began," to go around about, a word which has otherwise entirely disappeared from our vocabulary, but which has its analogies in such verbs as "beset" and "begird," in which the prefix "be" represents the modern preposition "by." A woebegon countenance is thus that of a man compassed about with woe, though perhaps it is most generally used in a somewhat slighting manner to imply that the appearance of grief is greater than the circumstances warrant. Thus it has partially undergone the same process of degeneration which has made "maudlin tears"—original tears of penitence from Mary Magdalene—bear a contemptuous meaning.—London Standard.

HE OPPOSES SAULT DAM

Conservative Members Showed a Tendency, During Discussion of St. Lawrence Power Transmission Co. Bill, to Block Again—Mr. Borden's Amendment Is Accepted —Will Not Impede the Flow.

Ottawa, April 5.—Notwithstanding an amendment making it absolutely clear that there was no intention to dam the St. Lawrence, the reappearance in committee of the House of Commons last night of the bill to incorporate the St. Lawrence Power Transmission Co. found the Opposition in as obstructive a mood as on the last occasion that the bill came up, when an all-night session resulted. Any fear that the legislation proposed contemplated the damming of the St. Lawrence was dispelled by Sir Wilfrid Laurier, who made an emphatic declaration, first, that the Government had no interest in the bill, and, secondly, that they would, as at present advised, be strongly opposed to any scheme which would have the effect of impeding the flow of the St. Lawrence or of destroying its beauty. After several of his followers had shown signs of pursuing obstructive tactics, Mr. Borden suggested an amendment to the effect that no plans for the construction of works on the St. Lawrence should be approved without the consent of Parliament, and to this Sir Wilfrid Laurier said he had no objection.

Major Sharpe (North Ontario) had pointed out that no Board of Trade or public body of any weight had supported the bill—rather were they opposed to it. Besides, the lines of transmission which it was proposed to charter would duplicate the Ontario Government's Hydro-Electric line.

Thereupon, Sir Wilfrid Laurier, in a two-minute speech, declared that the cat was out of the bag. He had been wondering, with others, the real reason for the determined opposition to the bill, and Major Sharpe had revealed it. It was simply that the members did not want any competition with the Hydro Electric. The Hydro Electric was built to compete with the other line, but the opposition did not want this line, that competed with other lines, to have competition.

"I am glad that people now know the real reason for this opposition," he concluded.

When the Deputy Speaker read over the first clause of the bill last evening, Col. Sam Hughes asked that the bill stand over for a week, to allow further study. F. F. Pardee, chief Liberal whip, and sponsor for the bill, said he saw no need of delay, but Col. Hughes insisted that there were developments since the notice had been given by Mr. Pardee of an amendment to the effect that the company can only transmit power already developed.

Richard Blain of Peel asked the Premier if there had been any correspondence with the Ontario Government on this bill.

The Premier answered that there was not, so far as he knew. He denied that the Government had any connection with the bill, and was quite indifferent as to its fate. For his part, he quite shared the apprehension which was entertained, though he did not see that it came into this bill, that in some way or other the object of the promoters was to take a step forward in the legislation which was adopted years ago in regard to the damming of the St. Lawrence. He had no hesitation in saying that, for his part, he would not agree to such a scheme at present. When the present bill was introduced there were perhaps features which might have led the public to conclude that there was something onerous behind it. However, he thought that it had been shorn of all possible mischief, and that it might safely pass the House.

Dr. Reed of Grenville saw no great rush for the bill now. The only thing the promoters could want it through for was to supply Prescott and Brockville.

Hon. George P. Graham supported the bill. If it had anything to do with a dam, he would hesitate in supporting it, he said, but the bill had nothing directly or indirectly to do with damming the St. Lawrence.

Dr. Sproule Did they ever ask for power from the Hydro-Electric Commission?

Mr. Graham: Yes. They asked for bread and got a stone.

J. G. Turriff (Assiniboia) said he was not still sure there was not a nigger in the fence.

R. L. Borden moved the following amendment: "That the governor-in-council shall not give his approval to the constructions of any further canals, watercourses, raceways, dams, wing dams, sluices, conduits, or other works on the River St. Lawrence to the St. Lawrence Power Co., Ltd., until the plans thereof shall have been first submitted and approved by Parliament.

W. B. Northrup asked why the St. Lawrence Power Co. should not transmit its own electricity. He pointed out that in 1901, when the auditor-general objected to payments in connection with that bill, and took legal advice, Mr. Aylesworth supported him.

W. S. Middlebro (North Grey) condemned the bill as nothing more than a measure of supplement of powers of the bill of 1901.

Hon. Mr. Emmerson thought the objections to the original bill were pretty well removed by the amendment.

The bill will be taken up again this evening for an hour.

The House met at 11 o'clock yesterday morning and proceeded without delay to take up private bills. The Restigouche Boom Co.'s bill, the New Brunswick enterprise, was put through after some discussion, as were the Northern Empire Railway Co. bill, and the Ottawa, Brockville and St. Lawrence Railway Co. bill.

In the House yesterday Hon. W. S. Fielding's resolution was passed, declaring "That the standard for gold coins of the currency of Canada be such that of one-thousand parts by weight, nine hundred shall be of fine gold and one hundred of alloy; and the standard for silver coin shall be such that of one thousand parts by weight, nine hundred and twenty-five shall be of fine silver and seventy-five of alloy; that the standard weight of gold coin of the denomination of 50 cents be 180 grains and for other gold coins and silver coins proportionate weights respectively."

Hon. Wm. Pugsley's bill to amend the Navigable Waters Protection Act was considered in committee yesterday. The object is to prevent the erection of dams, bridges, etc., across navigable waters until the plans are approved by the governor-in-council.

Mr. Borden suggested that the clause should read, "to prevent the erection of dams, bridges, etc., across navigable waters so as to interfere with navigation." This would do away with the expense of preparing plans, when only a small wharf is to be built.

James Arthurs, Parry Sound, wanted an exception made in the case of small wharves at summer resorts owing to the expense of plans. Mr. Pugsley will consider.

Shot in Self-Defence.

Rochester, N.Y., April 5.—A special from Hornell says: That Mrs. Dell Allen did not shoot her husband and little son in cold blood or in an insane passion on Sunday is evident. Coroner Williamson yesterday said that the woman acted in self-defence. One shot went wild and struck her little boy, Lloyd.

Mrs. Allen says that her husband deserted her last September, and that since then he had been trying to get the children away from her. On Saturday another child was born to her, and Saturday afternoon her husband came to the house and started to take the older children away. Mrs. Allen declares that her husband attacked her with a razor and that she drew the revolver from under her pillow, and fired.

She is only 36 years of age, but has given birth to twelve children since her marriage to Allen some eighteen years ago. Ten of whom are still living. The family was well-to-do and prominent in society.

MERRY DEL VAL EXPLAINS.

He Tells His Side of the Roosevelt-Vatican Controversy.

Rome, April 5.—Now that Roosevelt has made public documents which the Vatican considered confidential, Cardinal Merry del Val, papal secretary of state, wishes the entire history of the negotiations for the audience which the former President sought of Pope Pius X. to be known.

Following the exchanges between Mgr. Kennedy and American Ambassador Leishman and Roosevelt's decision not to be received under the terms imposed, John Callen O'Loughlin, who was assistant secretary of state in 1909, and a personal friend of Roosevelt, called upon the cardinal, bearing an introduction from Mgr. Falconio, apostolic delegate in the United States.

O'Loughlin said: "I do not come in the name of Mr. Roosevelt, but on my own account, as an American Catholic." The cardinal said: "Then what are we here for? It is useless to discuss the matter. If you do not represent Mr. Roosevelt, you cannot make any arrangements or speak for him."

Mr. O'Loughlin replied: "That I consider important is to tell your eminence that if the two despatches sent by Mgr. Kennedy are retracted, I can assure you that Mr. Roosevelt will accept an audience."

Cardinal Merry del Val said: "I will not discuss Mr. Roosevelt's rights, but give me confidential assurance that, de facto, Mr. Roosevelt will not go to the Methodists and the audience will occur.

"Mr. Roosevelt is free to go to the Methodists and do whatever he chooses, but the pontiff is certainly free not to receive a man who would claim the right to insult him on the day after having been received by him, or perhaps on the same day as, according to your statement, he may leave Rome on the same day of the papal audience, thus having only between noon and evening Tuesday in which to see the Methodists."

Roosevelt Helps Secularists.

Paris, April 5.—Nowhere in Europe has the failure of the Pope to grant an audience to Mr. Roosevelt created greater interest than in France on account of the long separation fight, and it is expected to prove a strong card for the Government in the coming elections, as supporting the contention of M. Briand, the Premier, that the recent agitation of the French episcopate was inspired by the present intransigeant and intolerant attitude of the Vatican.

Canal a Necessity Soon.

Ottawa, April 5.—"Sooner or later," declared Louis Coste of the International Waterways Commission, before a sub-committee on the Conmee bill yesterday, "Canada will demand the construction of a canal from Lake Superior right through to Edmonton. If such a canal is not built in the course of time, I believe Canada will lose the grain-carrying trade of the country."

Mr. Coste was giving evidence on the bill to incorporate a company to build a canal from Lake Superior to Lake Winnipeg. It would be possible, he said, to build a canal along the proposed route forty feet wide and containing seven feet of water.

Graham Bell to Tour World.

Baddeck, N.S., April 5.—The ice at Baddeck Bay has disappeared and aviation experiments have been somewhat retarded. A large engine has arrived at Baddeck, which will be installed in the Oionos. This new model airship will be fitted with floats inflated with air or gas, and attempts will be made to rise into the air from the surface of the water.

The laboratory has been closed for the present, as Dr. and Mrs. Graham Bell will sail from Vancouver for Australia and New Zealand on May 20. From thence they will proceed to China and India.

The trip will occupy a year.

George Tate Blackstock Ill.

North Bay, Ont., April 5.—George Tate Blackstock, K.C., the eminent Toronto lawyer, who was assigned as crown prosecutor at North Bay Assizes, opening yesterday, was taken suddenly ill yesterday morning and is confined to his room in the Pacific Hotel. He will not be able to act, and the Department has appointed his partner, H. E. Rose, K.C., to act.

Mr. Blackstock's illness is of a nervous nature, from overwork, and it is expected he will be all right in a few days. There are three murder or manslaughter cases on the list.

Millions of Matches Burn.

St. Louis, Mo., April 5.—More than 2,000,000 packages of matches went up in smoke Sunday night during a spectacular fire that destroyed two adjoining factories of the Diamond Match Co., with a total loss of $175,000.

Was Weak and Nervous.

Heart Would Stop Beating.

Mr. Paul Poull, Cascapedia, Que., writes:—"About five years ago I gave up all hope of getting better of heart trouble. I would nearly choke, and then my heart would stop beating. I could not lie on my left side, and became so nervous and weak I could not work. A friend told me to try Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills and before the first box was taken I was almost well, and the second box completed the cure. I have advised many others to try them, and they have all been cured of the same trouble. I have offered to pay for a box for anybody they do not cure."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are a specific for all diseases or disorders arising from the heart or nerve system. They make the weak heart strong and the shaky nerves firm by imparting a strengthening and restorative influence to every organ and tissue of the body and curing palpitation of the heart, dizziness, sleeplessness, anæmia, twitching of the muscles, sensation of "pins and needles," general debility, lack of vitality, etc.

Price, 50 cents per box or 3 boxes for $1.25 at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

DOG BY-LAW WAS PASSED BY CITY COUNCIL CANINES NOT ALLOWED TO RUN AT LARGE

Ald. Turner's Measure Went Through Last Night After Considerable Discussion by the City Fathers---Dogs Must be Controlled by a Leash or Chain When They are in Public Places---Penalty Provided is a Fine of Not More Than $50.

THE COUNCIL MAY HAVE TO APPOINT A DOG CATCHER NOW

The unhappy fate which has befallen dogs in different parts of Ontario fell with a dull thud upon the neck of Peterborough canines last night when the city council at its regular meeting passed Ald. Turner's dog by-law. The new measure comes into force May 1st, and after that date dogs will not be permitted to run at large on the streets. The by-law provides that when in public places they must be in control of a proper person and tied to a leash so that in a short time the spectacle of dogs running around at their own sweet will, will be at an end. Provision is being made for the carrying out of the by-law, and the measure provides for the capture of any dogs found running at large and their sale or death at the end of forty-eight hours if not redeemed by the owner, who has to prove his ownership by exhibiting a tag and further more pay $1.00 to meet the expenses of the capture of the canine. Ald. Turner's measure also called for an increase in the cost of licenses, but this was voted down, the aldermen considering that it would not be just to increase the fee if the dogs were to be tied up and only allowed out on a leash.

There was considerable discussion over some portions of the by-law, and the city fathers(as well as the few spectators present managed to extract considerable amusement out of the proceedings.

Ald. Morgan, in particular, was opposed to the clause providing for having the dogs under control of a leash, but the section was carried.

The by-law was introduced by Ald. Duffus, Chairman of the Legal Committee, and was taken up clause by clause.

The first point of discussion arose over the question of what license should be charged. Ald. Turner moved that the fee be $2 for dogs and $5 for bitches, and the motion was seconded by Ald. Bradburn. In making the motion Ald. Turner remarked that there were a lot of dogs running around who were neither ornamental nor useful. He believed that increasing the fee would reduce the number. A man that had a good dog would pay the sum asked, while others, who did not consider their dog worth the price, would probably not do so.

Ald. Bradburn agreed with Ald. Turner that something should be done to put a stop to the nuisance.

Ald. Buller did not favour the higher prices and moved, seconded by Ald. Batten, that the fee should be $1 for dogs and $2 for bitches. The amendment was, however, defeated by a vote of 7 to 5.

Ald. Hicks came along with a compromise motion of $3 for bitches, and this was carried, only to be rescinded later.

The next clause that provided a discussion was in regard to compelling owners to have a collar placed on their dogs, upon which should be their name and a tag.

Ald. Bradburn did not think that this additional expense should be put on dog-owners and suggested that they be allowed to put on the tag anyway they wished.

A motion by Ald. Bradburn, seconded by Ald. Duncan, that it should not be necessary to have a name on the collar was carried.

The next clause, the most important in the by-law, was the section compelling dog owners to control their pets by means of a leash whenever they were on the streets or in public places.

When this clause was read Ald. Phelan, moved, seconded by Ald. Morgan, that this section be dropped.

"I have two dogs of my own," remarked Ald. Morgan. "I would look ridiculous leading them down street on a string, wouldn't I?"

"If you are going to tie up the dogs why compel owners to pay licenses?" asked Mayor Morrow.

Ald. Buller suggested that the whole by-law be thrown out.

"I generally have kept a dog and will probably do so again," said Ald. Hicks. "but we have to figure out what the people who do not own dogs have to suffer sometimes from our pets. This clause is the most important in the by-law as it is the only one that gives any protection.

"Go back to the old fee and I'll support this clause," said Ald. Bradburn. "We must make them keep the dogs under control and we will not be bothered as we have been in the past."

Mr. John Sawers, who was in the audience, at this stage asked permission to say a few words. His remarks were brief and to the point, and contained little that was eulogistic of the dog.

Ald. Hicks moved, seconded by Ald. Duffus, that the clause be carried if the old fees are restored.—Carried.

There was some discussion over the next clause, which provided for the police catching all dogs running at large and putting them in pound for two days, at the end of which time, if not redeemed by the owner, they were to be sold or put to death. Ald. Hicks suggested that the Council might wish to appoint some one to look after the work of catching the stray canines. He moved, seconded by Ald. Duffus, that owners who wished to redeem dogs from the pound should pay $2 for dogs and $3 for bitches.

Ald. Graham and Metheral moved in amendement, that the fee for both be $2.00.

Ald. Buller remarked that the city would have to set aside about five acres of land for the pound, and provide a slaughter house, etc.

Finally a motion that the dog owners should be compelled to show their licenses and pay a fee of $1.00 in addition in redeeming a dog, was carried.

The question of a pound came up and it was moved by Ald. Turner, seconded by Ald. Hicks, that the Chairman of the Reception and Legal Committee be instructed to look into the matter and make the necessary arrangements.

"Get cold along," suggested Ald. Graham, amid laughter from his colleagues.

"This should be a Property Committee matter," suggested Ald. Duffus. "I can't see much reception in this."

He moved that the matter be left with the Property Committee, but could get no seconder, and the original motion carried.

Young Scotchman Commits Suicide in Dreadful Fashion by Throwing Himself in Path of C. P. R. Express.

INSTANTLY KILLED

Special to The Examiner.

Smiths Falls, Ont., April 5. — A dreadful suicide is reported from Glen Roy, a small place on the C.P.R. between Smith's Falls and Montreal. William A. Nicol, a Scotchman, 24 years old, threw himself in front of an express train and was struck and instantly killed before the engineer could stop the train. It is believed that the man was despondent through being out of work, he having been recently discharged from the Angus Shops at Montreal.

HAPPY RESULTS OBTAINED.

By the Use of the New Scalp Antiseptic.

It wouldn't take long to number the hairs in the heads of some people, the reason being they haven't many to number. In most instances however, the fault is their own. A germ at the root soon plays havoc and causes it to fade and fall out. A remedy for this has recently been discovered, called Newbro's Herpicide, that acts by destroying the germ that does the damage, besides removing all impurities from the scalp. In addition it permits new life and vigour to enter the scalp and happy results are sure to be obtained from its use. Try it. Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich.

Sold by McDermid & Jury, druggists; also Payne's drug store. One Dollar bottles guaranteed.

RECEPTION TO LIEUT.-GOVERNOR

Hon. Col. J. M. Gibson, Lieutenant Governor of the Province, will be tendered a civic reception when he visits Peterborough on April 16th, for the purpose of laying the corner stone of the new Knox Presbyterian church.

The matter was decided last night when Rev. H. J. Keith, pastor of Knox church waited upon the Council at its regular meeting to call the attention of the city fathers to the fact that the Lieutenant Governor was to visit the city, and to suggest that he be recognized by the civic authorities. Hon. Col. Gibson would arrive on the 11.26, and the time from then until 1 o'clock would be available for purposes of civic entertainment.

It was moved by Ald. Bradburn, seconded by Ald. Duncan, that the matter be left in the hands of the Reception committee to arrange with Rev. Mr. Keith for an appropriate reception to the Lieutenant Governor.

NOTHING NEW IN THE C. G. E. PROPOSITION

The Water Commissioners are Waiting for a Report From Their Engineer Before Going Into the Matter With the City Council.

NO MEETING TO-DAY

There is nothing new in the Canadian General Electric Company's negotiations to-day.

It was expected that the matter would be taken up at last night's meeting of the Council, but owing to the face that the Water Commissioners were not in a position to make a report to the Council, that body could not deal with the question last night.

"Will there be a meeting of the Water Commissioners to-day to take up the Canadian General Electric Company's proposition?" the Examiner asked of Mr. T. F. Matthews, chairman of the Water Commissioners, this morning.

"We are waiting for a report from our engineer in Montreal," was the reply. "I wired him this morning and expect to hear from him to-morrow morning, so that we can hold a meeting then. We are not delaying this matter at all," added the Water Commission chairman, "On the contrary we are hurrying it as much as possible, but there is certain information that we want so that we can give an intelligent report to the Council."

Mayor Morrow will call a special meeting of the Council as soon as the Water Commissioners have met. The session will likely take place to-morrow night.

The Board of Trade will discuss the question at a special meeting to-night. It is hoped that there will be a large attendance.

HOTEL A FAILURE

Orillia Hostelry Closes Down Through Lack of Business.

(Orillia News-Letter.)

After an eighteen months' trial of running the Daly House under local option its doors are to be closed to-night. The Couchiching Hotel Co., composed of the business men of the town, will lose between six and seven thousand dollars in the venture. This seems a large amount, but half of it went into permanent improvements from which the lessees of the hotel will get no return. Two causes are to pay its way—its location being a always given for a hotel's failure little too far from the business centre for the commercial men, and the lack of an experienced hotel man to conduct its affairs, and this is no reflection on Mr. N. S. Tarr, who did the best under the circumstances. Mr. John Coulson, the owner of the hotel is expected from Sudbury, and it is expected that he will make some provisions for continuing the business in some shape. Should it be closed permanently the town's accommodation will be reduced to two hotels, the Orillia House and the Grand Central.

THE M. H. O'S SALARY IS TO BE $200 MORE

Clause in Regard to Providing Medicine Was Productive of Much Discussion at Meeting of City Council Last Night.

BY-LAW WAS PASSED

The by-law increasing the salary and adding to the duties of Dr. McPherson, Medical Health Officer and City Physician, was the subject of considerable discussion at last night's meeting of the City Council.

The chief argument was over the clause that called for the city physician to provide medicine in the case of persons whom he attended on behalf of the city, while expensive medicines were to be bought by the city on an order from the Mayor.

Ald. Buller took exception to this clause. He thought the Council should pay Dr. MacPherson enough so that he could provide all medicines necessary. Ald. Buller did not want to see a loop-hole left for a big medicine bill.

Ald. Duncan, chairman of the Property Committee, who introduced the by-law, pointed out that $600 was little enough to pay for such duties, as Dr. MacPherson was called upon to perform under the by-law. Any medicine that the city would buy would be under order from the Mayor.

"What does the Mayor know about medicine?" asked Ald. Buller.

Ald. Bradburn could see no fault in the clause. It meant that the Doctor would provide ordinary medicine, and that in a case where antitoxin or other expensive supplies were needed, the city would pay for them. He did not think the clause could be made any clearer.

Ald. Duncan said that Dr. MacPherson had asked for $800 for the position, but as the appropriations had been struck the committee could not give him that sum, although they regarded it as reasonable.

"You were willing enough last year, when the smallpox scare was raging to give him an extra $800," remarked Ald. Duncan, "and now you are complaining about an increase of $200. He might run into the same thing this year."

Ald. Metheral thought the by-law was all right. "If you haven't got confidence in your Mayor or in your doctor, you should get a new doctor," he remarked.

Ald. Phelan thought that the queston of examining suspected insane people be added to the duties of the Medical Health officer, and moved to that effect.

Ald. Duncan seconded the motion, although, he remarked, that he did not think Dr. MacPherson would accept this addition to his duties.

It was decided that the Chairman should call Dr. MacPherson up on the 'phone and ask him about the matter.

Ald. Duncan returned with the information that the Doctor declined to have anything to do with the examination of insane people, and accordingly the clause was dropped.

The other sections of the bylaw were passed without any amendments.

Dr. MacPherson's duties are varied and many under the measure, and among other things is the inspection of milk.

SHOULD NOT BE ALLOWED TO HANDLE FIREARMS

Coroner Gray Thinks Law Should be Passed Preventing Inexperienced Persons From Using Them---Jury Finds That Ernest Gilbert Came to His Death as a Result of Accidental Shooting---Inquest Into Young Man's Death Was Resumed and Evidence Heard.

JURY BUT A FEW MINUTES IN REACHING VERDICT

That Ernest Gilbert came to his death as a result of accidental shooting, was the finding of the jury at the inquest into the death of the young man, who passed away in Nicholls Hospital on Thursday last, following the shooting affair of which he was the victim, in the woods on Easter Sunday.

The following composed the jury who reached the verdict:

J. A. C. Snyder, foreman; A. Campbell, F. Clarke, W. Gray, T. W. Meredith, W. Taylor, L. Hall, R. Denne, T. Hooper, J. Fitzsimmons, R. Munroe, W. Armstrong, H. Hanwell and J. Picard.

The Evidence.

Chas. Gilbert said that four young men, including the deceased and witness, went out to the woods on Easter Sunday. They were in Spillsbury's woods. They saw a squirrel and they chased it. Two of them were on one side of the fence, and two on the other. Young Spilsbury tripped and fell. He was carrying the rifle and it exploded, entering my brother. He was brought to the hospital. The deceased thought he was going to get better, and asked witness to keep his job for him.

Fred Board, the next witness, told of going to the woods on Sunday, and how that in chasing a squirrel young Spillsbury tripped and fell and the rifle exploded, the charge entering young Gilbert. They had arranged this little excursion on Good Friday.

"Were you aware that you were breaking the law to shoot on Sunday?" the Coroner asked.

"I never thought of that," witness replied. He said that he did not think he would try it again on Sunday.

Orine Spillsbury, next called, said that they started out to the woods on Easter Sunday, namely, Charles and Ernest Gilbert, Fred Board and witness. Board and witness had guns. In the woods he was chasing a squirrel, when he tripped and fell. The gun exploded and he saw Gilbert ahead of him throw up his arms and yell. The shot had entered his side. Spillsbury said that he had been using rifles ten or eleven years. He was only 18 years old.

"It is a wonder there haven't been more shot," the Coroner remarked.

Coroner Gray said that there should be a law passed to prohibit persons who did not understand firearms, using them.

Dr. C. H. Amys, called, stated that he, with Dr. McPherson, made the post mortem examination. The cause of the death was the damaged condition of the kidney nd bowel, and the resulting complications, namely, obstruction of bowel, peritonitis and hemorrhage.

Dr. Amys said that it was impossible to make a good examination, owing to the fact that the body had been embalmed.

Crown Attorney Wood thought that the jury should urge the prevention of undertakers embalming bodies so soon after death, especially where the cause was accidental.

Dr. McPherson corroborated Dr. Amys' statements.

The jury was but a few minutes in reaching the verdict.

THE BOARD OF TRADE TO DISCUSS C. G. E. PROBLEM

The meeting of the Board of Trade to-night for the purpose of discussing the Canadian General Electric Company's proposition is of great importance and there is every reason to expect a record attendance of members of the Board and of citizens generally. Rarely has a public question came to the front in Peterbzorough that has attracted so much attention as the present negotiations with the C. G. E.. "What did the Council do about the Canadian General?" was a question that has been fired at Examiner reporters on the street and over the 'phone all day to-day, and the inquiries indicate that the citizens regard the matter as of the most vital importance to the welfare of the city. An intelligent discussion of the question, therefore, from every point of view, by speakers who are well qualified by business training and experience, to discuss large issues should therefore prove timely and interesting, and the accommodation of the city council chamber, should be taxed to its utmost to-night. Te meeting is called for 8 o'clock.

Dr. Gray Advocates A Much Cheaper Hospital

Dr. Gray was on hand at the meeting of the City Council last night with a set of plans he had prepared for the building of an isolation hospital. A structure that would answer the purpose much better than a much higher priced one, the doctor remarked, could be build for $1,000. Dr. Gray suggested that a building such as he proposed would be easily fumigated, much more conveniently and cheaply than could an expensive building. Dr. Gray also remarked that it would be foolish to erect an isolation hospital away out of the city. It would answer the purpose much better, he thought, if it were placed about three hundred yards away from Nicholls or St. Joseph's Hospital.

Ald. Buller moved, seconded by Ald. Bradburn, that the chairman of the Property committee go into the matter with Dr. Gray.

ILLINOIS IN THROES OF HOT PROHIBITION STRUGGLE

Special to The Examiner:

Chicago, Ill., April 15.—The saloon has a host of mighty foes to-day in its battle for existence in 240 cities and towns of the State as a result of the determination of women throughout the State to attend devotional exercises and ask for divine intervention to end the existence of the saloon, rather than rely upon the ability of the ballot to bring about the desired result. The entire State practically is torn by the "Wet" and "Dry" issue wherever election is being held. This city is without any issue.

Improvements Made In Brock Street Roller Rink

Mr. T. Jecks of the Parkdale Roller Rink, Toronto, has returned to Peterborough with his surfacing machine to resurface the Brock Street Rink floor. The rink management are doing everything possible to make the Brock Street Rink one of the foremost rinks in Canada.

The floor, when finished, will undoubtedly be the finest skating surface outside of the larger cities.

Dustless anti-slip, a liquid preparation, is being used, which precludes any possibility of dust.

With the carefully conducted and up-to-date management this rink is a credit to the city.

WORK COMMENCES ON THE NEW QUAKER OATS CO. WAREHOUSE

Work will commence this week on the new warehouse to be built by the Quaker Oats Co. on the property just to the west of the present buildings. The company intends expending about $80,000 in the addition to their mills.

A four storey, with basement warehouse is to be biult. Mr. W. H. Denham, the local superintendent of the company, informed the Examiner to-day that the work of excavation would commence in a day or so. To-day men are cleaning up the property and getting it ready. The Canadian Leonard Construction Co., Ltd. has the contract for the erection of the new building. The houses on the Dawson property on the opposite side of the street, which was recently purchased by the Quaker Oats Co., are offered for sale as the company is desirous of having them removed, in order that they can commence filling in the land to prepare for the construction of new railway sidings.

This great expenditure in the enlarging of the company's plant will mean better labour conditions in this city and on the completion of the new warehouse additional hands will of necessity have to be employed.

TUESDAY, APRIL 5, 1910

THE OPPOSITION PREDICAMENT.

Ottawa, April 4.—The Conservative party in the House of Commons is sick unto death and grievously in need of a physician.

If a sceptic wishes to be convinced let him go into one of the visitors' galleries and look—and when he gets through looking—listen.

He will see the remnant of a great party scattered thinly about in a few seats, with Liberal members banked solidly in front and on their flank.

The burden of criticism—for that is the sole apparent function remaining to the party—falls upon the shoulders of a few in the right end of the first two rows of seats. Occasionally a back-bencher gets up and makes a few general remarks, but he usually ends without enthusiasm and subsides in discouragement even when he has something to say, which is infrequent enough to cause comment. The disintegrating tendency is so strong that the party seems like a lump of mercury. Tap it, and it divides into a dozen balls, which speedily roll into "splendid isolation." It is a divided camp, in which there is no master hand, held together by the instinct of self-preservation, but lacking unity and strength to plan an attack and drive it home. The Opposition put forward a dozen conflicting naval policies this session and ended by playing into the hands of the Government. Their criticism on the tariff settlement ended on the floor of the House with a quarrel among themselves, which had to be settled by the Speaker.

If there is talent in the ranks of the party to-day it is not conspicuous; it is buried beyond the range of the casual eye.

The question confronting Conservative party reformers narrows down to this: Is Mr. Borden a leader surrounded by dead wood which excludes from his council the brains of the party; or is he a man destitute of the attributes of leadership, justly settled amid his kind?

Borden Not Picturesque.

Mr. Borden's great handicap is that he is not a picturesque figure. That he is honest, clever, and affable is generally admitted. It is well known that if he retired into the private practice of law he would be assured of a large income. But if he were a real leader would anyone doubt it or even whisper of deposing him? Who ever spoke of supplanting Sir Wilfrid Laurier or Sir John A. Macdonald? Great leaders fall into three classes, geniuses, or Machiavellian politicians, or combinations of the two. Mr. Borden is in none of them.

What would Sir John A. Macdonald have done in the situation which now exists in the House? He would have carefully scrutinized his closer following in search of deadwood. When he discovered it he would have removed it with an epigram or a cheerful jest. Then he would have gone exploring within the ranks of his own party in search of raw material. When he found it, perhaps in the back benches, he would have hailed it with gladness and brought it up to his right and left hand. If the soil at home proved barren he would have crossed the invisible boundary line to the Government benches and continued his search. And when he found his man he would have greeted him and asked him how he did, and how his wife and children did, and how his great-grandfather's cousin did, and led him home, a loyal captive for evermore. But Sir John A. Macdonald was a picturesque figure with brains. Mr. Borden is simply a decent man with brains, and there is a difference where leadership is concerned.

Foster is Missed.

Where is another Sir John going to rise and weld together the shattered Conservative party into a formidable engine of Opposition? He is not yet in sight and consequently, the energies of the friends of the party are concentrated to find a lieutenant to fill the place of the Hon. Geo. E. Foster. What a gap was made in the Opposition ranks when Foster fell on his own spear, and left vacant the position of shield bearer to the king. He had ability without personality; and he was was the ablest man who faced the Government. His seat is vacant day after day, and his keen rasping voice is heard no more. Foster is missed by more than his friends. He has been a public figure so long that papers seem strange without his emaciated cartoons. Visitors in the galleries look for him in vain to point him out to their friends. The Government misses him most of all, because he had a thirst for information and powers of critical analysis which wearied their hearts within them.

The Ottawa air is full of suggestions as to his successor. Rumour "painted full of tongues" flies everywhere with a new name at every utterance.

Something About Doherty.

C. J. Doherty, St. Anne's, Montreal, who has been advocated for the last few days by a section of the party, has precedence, for he sits on the right hand of Borden, in the front row, and Parliamentary red tape will not allow his claim to be disregarded. He has the judicial mind, having been on the bench, and is given to digging among tomes in the library. A sort of intellectual prowler, is this man with a fondness for prefacing his Parliamentary speeches with snatches out of his after-dinner repertoire. He disagreed with Borden on the naval question, if that is any recommendation for the position. But then, about twelve other sections did the same, so his offence is a minor one. Mr. Doherty is under one handicap which is liable to assume formidable proportions. As an Irish Roman Catholic how is he to command the loyal allegiance of the Orange Order, which figures so strongly in the Conservative party?

Hon. John Haggart (S. Lanark), is another front bencher. He is a power when the House goes into committee on supply, as a specialist on estimates. But he is an old man and his voice trembles and his hands shake when he rises to speak. His shoulders would hardly support the burden of a lieutenancy.

Lennox Wouldn't Object.

Haughton Lennox, K.C. (S. Simcoe), would not object to being hurled into prominence. As an annoying influence he has been valuable to his party in committees, especially in that detailed to probe the Lumsden charges. His chief strength is his ability to irritate Cabinet Ministers. He rasps at them until they go out or lose their tempers. The other day he quoted poetry to them with horrible results. After each line he stopped, explained, and applied it to the simmering members of the Government. He was particularly zealous in dissecting humorous passages and in exhibiting the mangled jest attached to a homely lesson, before a shuddering audience. In a country lawyer way he is clever, a sort of second-rate Foster, in methods and mental equipment.

C. A. Magrath (Medicine Hat) is a possibility. He has been a surveyor in the West for years, and it is curious to see how the country has left its marks on him. A quiet man, accustomed to solitudes, and vast expanses of prairie and lake, he is yet a novice in Parliamentary politics. As a man of comfortable means, he would escape the suspicion of being a political adventurer. Perhaps he would learn the diplomacy of the trade with great celerity. Considerable political press agent capital might be made out of his height, which is over six feet, his shrewd eyes, his genial democracy, and his intimacy with the West. Is he broad-minded enough? Has he sufficient political knowledge? Could he tactfully master the science of his adopted profession?

The indications are that in the reorganization of the Conservative party the columns which will support the new structure will be brought in from Provincial quarries. A political "Halley's Comet," which will emerge from nowhere and blaze through the Parliamentary firmament, striking terror into the hearts of the Government, is sadly needed by the Opposition.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Hon. Geo. E. Foster says that he will not retire from public life "unless the Lord takes him." The Conservative party will have to carry the burden for the present.

Quebec is showing that it is running Ontario a close second in temperance sentiment. Four hundred temperance advocates will march to the City Hall at Hull and demand that the saloons and liquor stores close at seven each week night instead of nine, and at ten on Saturdays, instead of eleven. This is the first time there has been such an occurrence in Quebec Province.

Another insane man dead in the Toronto Jail. The present Government seem unable to cope with the conditions, notwithstanding that the expenditure has increased from four to eight millions per annum. The man had been in jail for eight months.

COULD NOT KEEP THIS SECRET

"Six months ago I was cured of piles by the use of Dr. Chase's Ointment," writes Mrs. G. A. Swayze, Copenhagen, Elgin Co. Ont. "I had been afflicted for over thirty years and tried all sorts of treatments in vain, so I was surprised and delighted to be cured. I don't care for publicity but would like to tell every one suffering from piles about Dr. Chase's Ointment."

BARN DESTROYED

Mr. John Haggart's Property Damaged by an Early Morning Blaze.

Mr. John Haggart's barn on Lansdowne St. was destroyed by fire early this morning. A telephone message and an alarm from Box 14 were sent simultaneously at 4.41 this morning to the fire hall. When the brigade reached the conflagration it was almost impossible to save anything, as the blaze had reached too great a hold on the old structure. Water was soon playing on the flames and after an hour's hard work the firemen succeeded in extinguishing the blaze.

The damages amount to two hundred dollars.

HE GOT RELIEF RIGHT AWAY

Dodd's Kidney Pills Cure Kidney Disease of Eight Years Standing.

That's What they did for William O. Cain, and now he says: "Dodd's Kidney Pills are a great medicine."

Mapleton, Alberta Co., N.B., April 4.—(Special).—"When I began taking Dodd's Kidney Pills I got relief right away. I have found Dodd's Kidney Pills a great medicine." So says William O. Cain, well known and highly respected in this neighbourhood. And Mr. Cain has a very good reason for making so emphatic a statement. For eight years he was a sufferer from Kidney Disease, and did not seem to be able to get relief.

"Why, I was so bad," Mr. Cain goes on to state, "and my kidneys bothered me so that if I would go to pick anything off the ground I would fall." But Dodd's Kidney Pills cured him just as they have cured thousands of other sufferers all over Canada. They never fail to cure Kidney Disease of any kind. Not once, but scores of times, they have vanquished Bright's Disease, the most deadly of all kidney troubles, while every day brings stories of cures of Rheumatism, Lumbago, Dropsy and Heart Disease from various parts of the Dominion. Other kidney medicines may cure. Dodd's Kidney Pills always cure.

CITY COUNCIL HOLDS ITS REGULAR MONTHLY SESSION

City Fathers Had a Rather Uneventful Gathering Last Night—Dog By-law Provided the Only Excitement.

REPORTS PRESENTED

The regular monthly meeting of the City Council was held last night, with Mayor Morrow presiding and all the members present. With the exception of the dog by-law a report of which will be found in another column, there was little outside of the routine business. Expecting that the Canadian General Electric Company's proposition would come up there was a large attendance of citizens, but the gallery was disappointed as it was impossible to discuss the matter, because the Water Commissioners, owing to the absence of Chairman Matthews, had not an opportunity of being present.

A number of communications were received and sent to the proper committees to be dealt with. Among them were applications from several men for the position of caretaker of the new public library.

Mr. Hickey, of Bethune St., north of Smith St., was present and told the Council that nothing had been done on that street, although the matter had been referred to the Board of Works every year for the past three years. It was time that some steps were taken to improve the conditions there. Mr. Hickey also complained of cess pools that had been put on the street. He advised closing them up and building sewers instead.

Mr. Hickey was assured by the Mayor that the chairman of the Board of Works would look into the matter of grading the street, while he was advised to call the attention of the Board of Health to the other matter.

Ald. Buller, after hearing the report of the Board of Works, asked if anything was to be done about repairing Bolivar St. and King St., and also about making repairs to the street at the corner of Townsend and Stewart St.

Ald Hicks explained that these matters were being attended to.

Ald. Turner remarked that he had called the attention of the City Engineer's Department to a defective sidewalk on Euclid Avenue and it was being attended to. There were also a bad piece of pavement on Monro Avenue that should be attended to.

Mr. Cecil Williamson waited upon the Council in regard to a sewer on King St., from Aylmer St. east to the creek. He asked that it be advertised, but was informed that this had already been done.

Finance Committee.

The Finance committee reported as follows:

1. We received a request from W. H. Gould for a refund of the proportion of the billiard table license fee paid by him from April 1st inst. We recommend that if the tables are taken down and the acting chief constable so certifies, and the license is returned he be given a refund of $140.

2. We received a letter from the Peterborough Radial Railway Co. regarding unpaid taxes on part of their property and we recommend that the Company be informed that the Council cannot see its way to take any action in the matter now, and that the taxes must be paid, but that if the Court decides that the property is not assessable the taxes will be refunded.

3. We recommend that the Collector of taxes be instructed to return the Collector's roll by April 15th inst.

Legal Committee.

The Legal committee reported that they sent a deputation to Toronto to invite the Ontario Retail Hardware and Stove Dealers' Association to hold their next convention in Peterborough in February and that the invitation was accepted.—Carried.

The by-laws carried, were Ald. Turner's dog measure, a by-law increasing the salary of the Medical Health Officer, and City Physician, a by-law authorizing a contract with John A. Williams for a refuse ground and by-laws providing for funds for the building of sewers.

Council adjourned at 10.30.

IN THE WORLD OF SPORT

Peterborough Association Football Team Formed

An important step in the forward movement to promote the interests of the game of association football was taken last night at the Y. M. C. A. by the formation of a new club. A number of the veterans assembled to consider the prospects for this season and to devise plans to give this good old game the popularity it properly deserves. This city is the headquarters of the Midland Football League, and as such it should boom the game more vigorously than has been done in the past few years.

The result of this meeting was the foundation of the Peterborough Football Club, with the following officers:

Patrons and patronesses—Mr. and Mrs. T. F. Matthews, Dr. and Mrs. J. A. Morgan, Mr. and Mrs. W. McIlroy, Dr. and Mrs. W. H. Wightman

Hon. Pres.—Dr. Geo. Burnham.
President—J. E. Sullivan.
Vice-Pres.—C. E. Sisson.
Sec.-Treas.—W. J. O'Brien.

Executive committee—P. D. Fitzgerald, J. Doris, S. Canniff.

The manager and captain will be chosen after the team has turned out to practice. It was decided to affiliate with the Midland League and P. Fitzgerald was selected to act as representative on Saturday, to draw up the schedule.

The next meeting of the club will be for general business and will be held during next week and notice of it will appear in due time so that any who are interested may attend.

The present outlook for football in the city this year is very bright as there are at least four teams anxious to get into action. Whether these shall form a district in the Midland League or become a City League will be decided on later, but there is sure to be something doing any way. Word has just been received from Lindsay that they have a Bankers' football team and wish to get a match on at an early date with a local club.

INTERESTING SPORT GOSSIP FROM THE OLD COUNTRY

When an athletic meeting has been held forty-seven times, one expects the officials to show some up-to-date methods. The gentlemen who ran the latest Oxford vs. Cambridge sports at Queen's Club, London, last Saturday, can hardly be said to have distinguished themselves, for in some particulars the management was very lax. It is a big ground, and the spectators in many parts of it, could have known little about the progress of some of the field events, until the result was announced on the board. This is not the way to popularize field events, and it is a pity the possibilities of a good announcer and a megaphone are not more recognized. The idea of only counting "firsts" is also detrimental to keen competition, many of the athletes ceasing to try when their prospects of winning outright appeared to be hopeless.

The track was in fair condition, but the cold wind was all against fast performances. In spite of this, two exceptional wins were recorded, and in J. T. Baker, of Cambridge, and A. E. Cator, of Oxford, England possesses two splendid runners. The former had no one to extend him in the half mile, and yet he reached the winning post in 1 min. 57 3-5 secs. Judged on this running, he ought to be capable of doing it in 1 min. 55 secs. on a favourable day. Cator's three miles was even better, for he had to make his own pace after passing the two-mile post, and yet he got home full of running in 14 mins. 44 4-5 secs. He is a nice-striding athlete, and will trouble the best in the four miles' championship if he cares to train for that extent.

Over-Seas Winners.

The number of over-seas athletes, who distinguished themselves, again draws attention to the international character the sports have assumed. Four firsts were secured by visitors, and had L. C. Hull been able to compete, there is little doubt the Rhodes scholar from Michigan would have duplicated his wins of last year, and taken both the 100 and 440 yards. Putnam and MacDonald are both Americans, whilst Murray hails from Australia and Ludinsyky from Hungary.

Professional Marathon Race.

The first indoor professional Marathon derby, promoted by the syndicate, formed for the purpose of fostering professional running, led to a very fine performance. Representatives of France, England, Wales, Ireland and Scotland, toed the mark, and the honours went to a crack from across the English Channel, H. Siret, and H. St. Yves have already proved what splendid stayers they are and now L. Bouchard has added his name on the scroll of fame, by winning another Marathon for France in wonderful time. To hark back a little, the race under notice was decided in the Auricultural Hall, Islington, the track being ten laps to the mile. A. Haddon, of Scotland, led for a little over 11 miles, but then stopped, after which L. Bouchard of France, carried on the running, and eventually won easily. The pace was always fast, ten miles occupying 54 mins., 17 secs.; 25 miles, 2 hours, 28 mins, 17 2-5 secs.; and hte full journey of 26 miles, 385 yards, 2 hours, 36 mins., 18 secs. Thus the Frenchman averaged better than ten miles an hour, all the way, and had he been pushed, he might have got inside the 2 hours, 35 mins., 28 3-5, accomplished by T. Johansen, of Sweden, in the recent Marathon race at New York. Bouchard thus holds the Belt, which was originally put up for the ten miles championship, and won by some remarkable runners over 25 years ago. It may be added that the times from 21 miles to the end constitute best on record for this country. A. Aldridge, who met Bouchard in a 15-mile race a year ago, was second, in 2 hours, 48 mins., 58 secs; Swan of Wales and Fegan of Ireland, came next, whilst Gardiner, the conqueror of Dorando, gave up at 17½ miles.

The Future.

The race is bound to give an impetus to foot racing, as the winner has challenged the world at the Marathon distance, whilst Haddon and J. Price, of Birmingham, are already trying to come to terms with the Frenchman. As C. Hefferon, of South Africa, is also expected here shortly, matters look likely to be lively.

Rowing.

Few sporting events in England attract greater attention than the boat race between Oxford and Cambridge crews, and the 67th annual struggle over the Putney-Mortlake course, of 4¼ miles, on Wednesday, drew the usual thousands. How Oxford won easily by 3½ lengths in 20 mins., 14 secs., is, of course, known wherever the cable goes, and it only remains to give a few extra details. It was an International race in that M. B. Higgins, of Melbourne, assisted Oxford to win, whilst C. P. Cooke from Geelong, Australia, and C. A. Skinner, of Durban, South Africa, were in the losing boat. Skinner being the cox. The Dark Blue crew was the heaviest ever known, the average weight being 176½ lbs., height 6 feet, and age, 21; whilst the Cantabs averaged 172 lbs., 6 ft. ½ in. and 20¾ years. The victory of Oxford makes the 26th success, as against the 30 by Cambridge, the 1877 race ending in a dead heat. The record time for the race is 18 mins. 47 secs, held jointly by Oxford (1892) and Cambridge (1890).

Boxing.

Most people had given up all hope of a match between Fred Welsh and Packy McFarland, when these lightweights met this week and signed articles to box at the National Sporting Club on May 30th. The Club is offering a purse of £1,500 ($7,500 dollars) and the principals will also put a side bet of £200. The attitude of Welsh did not at all please sportsmen, and everyone is glad he has come to his senses and agreed to give the visitor a fair match, the outcome of which will be awaited with great interest.

Rather a curious situation has been created through Young Joseph's meeting J. Goldswain ofr the welter-weight championship of England at the National Sporting Club. The winner has twice been defeated by Fred Welsh (the light weight champion), which is a queer state of things. The manner in which Billy Papke defeated his countryman Willie Lewis, at Paris, a few days since, induces one to hope the American will return to London soon and try to fix up a match with Tom Thomas, of Wales, for the middle-weight championship. The latter appears to have regained his usual health and should he and Papke enter the ring as principals, something like a real fight will be seen.

Football.

England has had to wait eighteen years for the turn of the tide, but now that the rugby championship has once again been won, it is hoped the carrying code will show continued improvement in England. The selectors are always handicapped through having to please so many districts, and better results would be obtained if the field of selection were narrower. By beating Scotland 14 points to 5 at Edinburgh on Saturday, England also won the Calcutta Cup, in addition to the International championship. The Scotch forwards were the better in the loose, but the English pack were superior in the light and got the ball more often, so that the English "threes" had many chances. Scotland scored first and had the better of matters at the start, but the visitors improved, and towards the end were much superior. The result leaves the final championship table as under:

	W	L	D	Pts
England	2	0	1	5
Wales	1	1	0	4
Scotland	1	2	0	2
Ireland	0	2	1	1

Association.

Ireland gained a welcome win over Scotland in the "soccer" International at Belfast on Saturday, which attracted over 30,000 spectators. As this only makes the second victory of Ireland, as against 23 by Scotland, the losers can hardly begrudge the Irishmen their success. It was a match in which there was little to choose between the rivals during the opening half, but after the interval the home side were often dangerous and the Scots were lucky not to go down by a bigger margin.

League Championship.

Aston Villa drew at Bristol on Saturday, but Notts County failed at Preston, consequently the leaders are in a better position than before, and it will be strange if they fail to win the First League honours. At the moment "Villa" claim 42 points for 29 engagements, as against 38 points for 31 matches by Notts County, while Liverpool, with 36 for 29, ranks next.

Derby County and Manchester City are having a close struggle for Second League honours, the former having earned 44 points for 29 games, and the latter 40 for 28. Matters are also exciting in Scottish League circles, as Celtic with 44 points for 27 games, only leads Falkirk by a brace of points.

The Turf.

After the hurry and bustle of Lincoln and Liverpool, race goers have settled down for the season. Just a word on the "National" may not be out of place. It is extraordinary that the three best jumpers, Judas, The Lurcher and Shady Girl, should have fallen at the very first fence, though of course, this was due to the big field, and not to bad jumping by the animals named. Shady Girl, it may be added, had never previously fallen in a race, though she has taken part in over thirty. Many people expected that Judas would be brought out for the champion steeplechase on the final day of the Liverpool meeting, but this course was not adopted. The distance of just under three miles was expected to suit Holy War,, but the public went down badly again, the favourite coming to grief at the very first jump.

American Winners.

Several American bred animals have "caught the judge's eye" recently, three doing so at Nottingham on Wednesday. This was quite an International day's racing, the Newark Plate, which figured as the chief event, going to Mr. Spencer Gollan's Duddun, by Collar-Freda. The owner named is one of the best known all-round sportsman in the world, and many readers will remember that his New Zealand steeplechaser Moifan, won the Grand National in 1904. Norman III was highly fancied in the Newark Plate, particularly after Mr. Belmont's colours had been seen in the van for the opening race, but the American colt had to rest content with second place.

DAVE HARTLEY WANTS TO HIT THE PIKE AGAIN

David Hartley, the veteran Peterborough ped has the walking fever, and last night he authorized the Examiner to state that he was willing to attempt the feat of walking from Port Hope to Toronto and back to Port Hope in two hours less time than on the other occasion upon which he performed the stunt. He is willing to make a side bet that he can do what he says or else he will bet that he can walk from Port Hope to Toronto and return without stopping on the way at all. The latter would be a very difficult test of endurance, but the veteran says he is capable of doing the task and is quite willing to undertake it.

BLACKLISTER CHARGED WITH BEING DRUNK

G. Elliott appeared before Magistrate Dumble this morning at the Police Court on a charge of breaking the "Indian list."

Elliott pleaded not guilty and evidence was taken in the case.

Mr. J. Stewart, License Inspector, testified that he served Elliott with the "black list" papers, and that on Saturday he found out that Elliott was drinking.

John Dunsford said that Elliott came to the barn where he was working, and he didn't think Elliott was drunk.

"You're a good judge of drunks?" remarked the Magistrate.

"I should be," replied Jack in an "rotund" tone.

Mr. R. Deane gave evidence to the effect that Elliott was drunk at his barn, and that he ordered him away.

For the defence R. S. Trew and Geo. Hutchison gave evidence, testifying that they met Elliott at different times on Saturday and he was sober

Elliott gave his own version of Saturday's supposed "time."

He stated that he never broke the law but once, and that was in Lindsay.

"Well, we cannot expect laws to be kept in Lindsay," remarked his Worship.

Elliott's testimony closed the evidence for the case.

THE PARTELLO STOCK COMPANY.

The Partello Stock Company opened an engagement at the Grand Opera House last night before a large audience, choosing as their opening vehicle "The College Girl," a breezy comedy drama woven around incidents in college life. The favourites, Miss Alice Kennedy as Gail Hadleigh, and Mr. Jack Westerman, as Billy Bullock, the slanky football coach, were given a warm welcome back to Peterborough and made new friends for themselves by their clever work. The supporting company was excellent and the whole entertainment away above the average, some splendid specialties being given. To-night the company will present "A Human Slave."

The council did not take any action in the matter.

CANADA HAS LARGE CRUISERS IN NAVY
COMPARES FAVOURABLY WITH OTHER NAVIES

A Comparison Shows That Vessels of the Proposed Canadian Navy are of Heavier Tonnage and Larger Ships Than Same Type in Other Navies---Honorable Career Offered to Young Men---Should be Proud to Join Canadian Navy---Conservatives Misrepresent the Size of the Vessels Maliciously---Much Larger Than Many Cruisers of the Navies of the World.

TARIFF SETTLEMENT WITH THE UNITED STATES

Canada Will Get Minimum Rate—Hon. Mr. Fielding Scores a Diplomatic Triumph at Washington—Some Trivial Concessions Made That Will Scarcely Affect the Revenue—Disastrous Tariff War Averted by Wise Action.

MR. BORDEN SWALLOWS HIMSELF AT HALIFAX

FOR YOUTH OF CANADA.

Remember that the Canadian Navy presents an opportunity to enter upon an honorable career under the most favourable conditions.

Don't forget that the cruisers of the Canadian Navy are among the largest of any navy in the world—two training ships are provided.

Wise action by the Laurier Government averts tariff war with the United States. Canada gets minimum tariff.

Misapprehension Exists.

There is a great deal of misapprehension as to the size of the vessels which it is proposed shall form the nucleus of a Canadian navy. Conservatives have made it appear that the entire scheme is upon such a trivial plan that no future is presented for the youth of Canada to enter upon the naval profession.

First Doubt.

Doubt has been presented in two forms. First that the proposed navy was of the "tin pot" variety, so insignificant that no career was presented to young Canadians to join it, because it offered no attractions.

Second Doubt.

Second—Because the navy contemplated did not meet with the approbation of the British Admiralty.

These two suggestions are without any foundation in fact. It may be said first, that the vessels are of great size, tonnage and strength; and, secondly, that they are the very type selected by the British admiralty.

The Canadian Navy.

To make the subject more intelligible the proposed vessels are as follows:

Niobe, armoured cruiser, 11,000 tons displacement; 435 feet long, 69 feet beam, 26 feet draught; 16,500 indicated horse-power; speed 20 knots; cost originally $2,741,415; coal capacity, 1,000 tons; complement, 600 men; 16 6 in. guns, 14 12-pounders, 5 3-pounders, 2 machine guns, two torpedo tubes.

This vessel is to be purchased from the British Government, and will be first stationed on the Atlantic side, and be used as a training ship. It is part of the scheme to train Canadians for a naval career, pending the construction of the permanent vessels of the fleet. This will meet the aspirations of a great many young men who have already signalized their intention of entering the navy.

RAINBOW, armoured cruiser. This is a vessel of 3,600 tons purchased from the British Government to do service on the Pacific as a training ship, in the same way as the "Niobe" will on the Atlantic.

FOUR BRISTOLS, armoured cruisers, each 4,800 tons displacement; 430 feet long, 47 feet beam, 15 1-4 feet draught, 22,000 indicated horse power; speed, 25 knots; complement each 20 officers and 371 men.

These are the latest type of fast cruiser being constructed by the British Admiralty. So recent are they that the latest particulars with regard to them have not been given out. The particulars of construction and armament will not be divulged.

SIX DESTROYERS of the latest improved river class. The very latest type adopted by the British Admiralty. They will be about 225 feet long. 23 1-2 feet beam, 9 ft. 6 in. draught; twin screw; 600 tons displacement; 7,500 indicated horse power, over 25 knots speed. Complement, 30 officers. 646 men.

Substantial Fighting Force.

The navy will thus consist of twelve vessels, about 65 officers and 2,500 men. As to the armament it cannot be mentioned now with any certainty, as details of this description are not given publicly, but the fleet will be a formidable fighting unit, and of the greatest service to the Empire in case of emergency. As coast and commerce protectors they are the very same class of vessels used for a similar purpose by Great Britain and are recommended to Canada as the most useful type for the purposes required.

Approximately this navy will cost $11,500,000 to build and about $3,000,000 a year to maintain.

Admiralty Suggested It.

The entire scheme was based upon the specific recommendations of the British Admiralty. The object sought was to relieve the British fleet of the task of defending commercial routes in time of war. The cruisers, it was pointed out, would by reason of their great speed, be enabled to know the whereabouts of an enemy and give timely warning to the heavier battleships. At the same time their own armament will be of such strength that they can take care of themselves in an emergency.

Compare With United States.

These are the vessels described by Conservatives as a "tin pot" navy. For purposes of comparison it may be stated that the Niobe is 3,000 tons larger than the two largest of the United States cruisers, and 8,000 tons larger than most of the others.

Compare Bristols.

The Bristols will be exceeded in size by only three United States cruisers—(two being those referred to above, which are themselves 3,000 tons smaller that the Niobe). The Bristols will be larger by several thousand tons, than thirty cruisers of the United States navy, and be only exceeded in size by three United States cruisers.

If the Canadian navy is "tin pot" what of the United States navy?

Compare With Other Navies.

Another point of comparison is that the Canadian cruisers are larger than any cruiser in the navies of the Argentine Republic, Brazil, Chili, China, Denmark, Netherlands, Norway, Portugal, Sweden, Turkey.

Canada's Cruisers are larger than 32 out of 37 French cruisers.

Canada's cruisers are larger than 45 out of 51 German cruisers.

Canada's cruisers are larger than 27 out of 30 Japanese cruisers.

Canada's cruisers are larger than 9 out of 10 Spanish cruisers.

Navy to be Proud of.

It is evident that the Canadian navy bears comparison well with the cruisers of any other marine power in the world. Cruisers are a very important part of a navy, and, as Canada followed the suggestions from the British admiralty with regard to the type of vessels which would be of the greatest assistance to the empire in case of hostilities, it stands to reason that Canada has the nucleus of a navy of which any country would be proud..

How About Destroyers.

As to the destroyers, those for the Canadian navy are larger than any similar type in the navies of the Argentine Republic, Austria-Hungary, Chili, China, Denmark, Greece, Italy, Japan, Netherlands, Portugal, Norway Sweden and Turkey.

France, Germany, and the United States have some destroyers larger than those of Canada, but the Canadian ones are vastly superior to many of those belonging to either of the countries mentioned in tonnage, indicated horsepower and speed.

Career for Young Men.

The few particulars given here, which may be found by reference to official sources, indicate that Canada will have a navy of the most-up-to-date character. It is true there will be no Dreadnought yet, but all the other vessels are the best modern science has evolved.

Different From Canada.

Much has been said about Australia and New Zealand giving Dreadnoughts to the British navy. It should be remembered that while Australia provides an unit, Great Britain contributes $1,250,000 a year towards the expense of it. As to New Zealand, it was arranged that the Dreadnought provided by her should be stationed on the China station, and only the smaller vessels of the unit be maintained in New Zealand waters.

Austria the Same.

There is another point about which much misunderstanding exists. Criticism has been directed against the Canadian Government because the Canadian fleet does not pass automatically under British control in case of war. It appears that Australia has a similar provision in the law to that of Canada. To set the matter at rest, Admiral Kingsmill cabled the Australian government as follows:

Parliament Must Consent.

"Please inform me by telgram, as soon as possible, whether, in the event of war, vessels of Australia's navy pass automatically without any action, under control of Admirality."

To the above cable the following reply was received by Admiral Kingsmill:

"With reference to your telegram, transfer control to the Admirality is not to be automatic, but subject to approval of Commonwealth Government on declaration of war."

The objections urged in this regard to the control of Canadian parliament have no force.

Young Men Will Join Navy.

It is confidently anticipated that many applications will be made by young Canadians ambitious to make a career in the Canadian navy. To them it may be said, that not only is the ambition laudable, but in the Canadian navy they will have the same opportunity as would be available in any first-class navy in the world.

It is true that Canada at this time cannot offer positions upon Dreadnoughts, but this is not a serious drawback. Cruisers form the largest part of every navy; they are more mobile, and on board of them the recruit sees more service than he would upon a mere fighting machine.

Honourable Career Offered.

The Canadian navy offers an honourable career to young men who seek the profession of the sea. The vessels of the Canadian navy are the very best and latest of their type, and experience upon one of them will count in any navy in the world.

It is a crime to discourage ambitious young men from joining the navy upon the ground that the boats are small and insignificant. This is not the case. The Canadian cruisers are the equal of any afloat of their type, and superior to most cruisers of any other recognized fleet in the world to-day. This can readily be seen by reference to any naval annual.

No Tariff War.

There will be no tariff war with the United States. The able diplomacy of the Canadian ministers has averted what promised at one time to be a very serious condition.

To comprehend the situation it must be understood that unless Canada were included in the President's proclamation issued on Thursday last, there would be 25 per cent. ad valorem added to the existing duties against Canada.

President's Difficulty.

As the matter stood during the negotiations, as a matter of law the President could not interpret the Aldrich-Payne bill so as to include Canada in those countries enjoying the minimum tariff of the United States.

Slight Concessions Only.

It became necessary then to make some slight concessions so as to pave the way for the proclamation. These concessions are thirteen in number, and do not materially affect the situation from a tariff standpoint, but the fact that they have been given makes it possible for the President to interpret the law in favour of Canada and give to us the benefit of the United States minimum tariff.

Future Reciprocal Arrangements.

In addition to this the way has been prepared for certain negotiations in the future having in view a broader scheme of reciprocal trade. This is a condition greatly to be desired, and the fact that a tariff war, with its baneful consequences has been averted, should be the subject for mutual congratulation on the part of the Government involved.

The opinion is prevalent that even if Canada "stood pat" she would be included in the proclamation in any event, without making any concessions This may be true, at the same time between nations it is much better to proceed upon the lines of compromise so long as the course of national honour may not be deviated upon.

Settlement Was on Wise Lines.

Mr. Fielding probably realized that in future negotiations with the United States, a pleasant termination of the present difficulty would have an important bearing. In this view he will be sustained by the thinking people of Canada, after the first feeling of disappointment has passed away.

United States Friendly.

The hope expressed by the United States of future reciprocal trade arrangements with Canada is an encouraging sign. Heretofore Canada has gone to the United States, but Canada has grown since then and now the United States comes to Canada.

What Tories will Claim.

Conservatives will, of course, claim that there has been a surrender. In fact that prejudiced and untrustworthy publication, the Toronto Mail and Empire has already made the claim. Substantial business men, irrespective of politics, will see in an amicable settlement another evidence of the statesmanship of Sir Wilfrid Laurier. There is no doubt his was the hand that guided the entire negotiation and to his astuteness, and broad minded policy, the satisfactory results achieved may be attributed.

No Conservative Leadership.

Conservatives are falling into a worse and worse condition each day. In the house there is no leader but several would be leaders. Every man speaks as he likes without regard to his party or his party's policy.

News Fights Its Party.

The Conservative paper, the Toronto News, is employed just now in lambasting Mr. Monk. First, Mr. Monk is credited with views looking to the dethronement of Mr. Borden as leader of the Conservative party. Following this Mr. Monk is castigated by the News, and held up as a person of no consequence, no political weight, no political force in the party. Mr. Monk is ridiculed as a man of mediocre political intelligence, with no initiative, no ideas of the slightest use to the party.

Bigger Than His Traducers.

It wil occur to most people that Mr. Monk would measure up favourably with the writer of the News article, under almost any conditions. In the meantime Mr. Borden speaks in Halifax and expresses views the very contrary of those entertained at the time the Naval policy was decided upon.

THE CONSERVATORY CONCERT WAS A MUSICAL GEM

Beautiful Choral Singing by the Members of the Madrigal Club Featured a Magnificent Programme Which Delighted Large Audience at the Conservatory of Music Hall Last Night.

The splendid musical entertainment presented last night in the Conservatory of Music hall was announced on the programme as a "benefit" concert. It was certainly true to name—it was a benefit to the large and enthusiagtically delighted audience, and by virtue of the large attendance a financial benefit to the Madrigal Club and a very positive credit to Mr. Gliddon, the capable and painstaking conductor, to the chorus and to all the other elements that contributed to one of the most artistically satisfactory programmes ever presented by local musical talent in Peterborough. This statement is no mere compliment of courtesy, but every word meant and merited. The sceptic who doubts that Peterborough is a musical city would have been converted if he had been present last night, and had listened in the most capably critical mood. The musical talent of Peterborough is like the parts of a grand organ, each pipe perfect in pitch and tone, but mere waste wood and metal till assembled by the skill of the master builder and brought into accord and readiness for operation. If the scattered and individual musical talent of Peterborough could be got together and subjected to some such excellent training, as Mr. Gliddon has bestowed with such success upon the Madrigal Club, and to which the members have so splendidly responded, we should be able to have on a ten-fold larger scale, numerically, the great choral success achieved last night at Conservatory Hall.

When one reflects that the chorus of fifty voices, which sang so magnificently, has been together less than three months, one is surprised at the approach to perfection that has been accomplished.

The composition which this chorus, and its rival competitor, will sing at the Earl Grey competition, is Dudley Buck's grand "Ode to Music." It is unnecessary to speak of the singing of this in critical detail, but it must be said that the choir that sings it better than the Peterborough chorus did last night will richly earn the trophy. The balance of parts of the local chorus is excellent, each one complementary to the other, and all blending into one harmonious whole. In the singing of "The Ode to Music" the attack was splendidly smart, the intonation excellent, the shading exquisite, the crescendo leading to the climaxes beautifully and evenly progressive; the pianissimo passages were delicately given, the forte passages were melodiously forcible without being forced, and altogether the production of the number was a triumph achieved by musicianly methods and artistic execution. Similar comment and compliments are called for by the performance of Gounod's motetto (for double choir)—"By Babylon's Wave." This composition is rendered difficult by its changing keys and pit-fall accidentals, but the chorus, and especially in the closing bars of the finale tropped in perfect tune and time upon the treacherous accidentals with surprisingly delightful effect. The chorus did itself credit in its presentation of the old-time madrigal, "Who Stole My Love," singing it with the vim and go its sprightly character demanded, though longer practice would doubtless have brought betterment in the more delicate passages. In a word, the chorus achieved an excellent record, and reflected credit not only upon themselves, but upon their conductor, Mr. Gliddon, to whose patient diplomacy and skill in leading such a record is largely due. Mr. Gliddon, through the work of the Madrigal Club, has demonstrated the existence in Peterborough of abundance of musical talent, capable of excellent choral work, given organization co-ordination of aim and effort, and intelligent and skilled training. The work of the chorus, as well as the excellent Conservatory orchestra, and individual musical talent of Peterborough, and the soloists—pupils of the Conservatory—gives the Peterborough Conservatory a claim to be regarded as an important centre of musical culture.

The orchestra is an excellent organization, furnishing a large volume of excellent tone, considering the extent of its orchestration. The soloists were successful in giving the balance and variety necessary to the constitution of a delightful programme. Miss Edna Pringle sang the "Sands o'Dee" so greatly to the satisfaction of the audience that she was compelled to respond to an encore. Miss Lulu McGill, in her brilliant delivery of Liszt's Hungarian Rhapsody, No. 11, and Chopin's Polonaise in A flat, displayed admirable technique and fine expression. Miss Julia Choate played Vieuxtemp's "Reverie" with artistic skill and sympathetic grasp of the spirit of this beautiful composition. She brings to her work a graceful executive skill, joined to a full, round, pure tone, faultlessly true. Miss Sisson's accompaniments were played with unobtrusive judgment and sympathy.

At the conclusion of the concert Mr. Gliddon thanked the large audience for their attendance and evidences of appreciation and announced that the concert would be repeated on Wednesday night at popular prices—25 cents to all parts of the hall, and those who were not present last night and wish to hear a thoroughly first-class concert are advised not to miss the opportunity.

PREVENTION IS WORTH WHILE.

When you consider the risk to life, the expense, the anxiety which is involved in an attack of appendicitis and a surgical operation, it is certainly worth while to avoid it by keeping the liver and bowels regular by using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver opinion that appendicitis comes from a neglect to keep the liver and bowels in a Pills. Doctors are now unanimously of the healthful condition.

MUSICAL PEOPLE DELIGHTED with the Concert last night of the Madrigal Club. The programme will be repeated tomorrow (Wednesday) evening, Conservatory Hall, 8:15 o'clock. The Earl Grey Competition programme will be sung. Prices 25 cts. all over the Hall. 1d76

Miss Deannard Honoured by the Employees of Quaker Oats Package Department.

On Saturday evening last Miss L. Deannard was made the recipient of a pearl pendant, presented to her by the young ladies of the Quaker Oats Company's package department. The token and following address were sent to Miss Dennard's home, Donegal street:

Miss L. Deannard, Peterborough.

Dear Friend,—It was with the deepest feelings of regret that we, the employees of the package department learned of your decision to retire from your valuable services in our midst. Your untiring efforts to duty, in a conscientious and pleasant manner have always been highly appreciated, and the results of your good work will be long remembered. We wish you every success in your field of labour. We cannot let the opportunity pass without expressing to you in some tangible manner the high esteem in which we hold you, and ask you to accept this token, which we hope will always serve as a remembrance of the pleasant and profitable times we have spent together.

Signed on behalf of the employees of the Package Department of the Quaker Oats Company.

Peterborough, April 2, 1910.

CARPENTER BECOMES A VERY RICH MAN

Paris, April 2.—An adventure which has often happened in novels, but seldom in real life, has just befallen a young carpenter of 21. He was a foundling. He was brought up partly by public charity and partly by a postman's wife, to whose care the child was entrusted by the hospital. His foster parents treated him as their own son and when he grew up they apprenticed him to a carpenter. The boy was at his lathe one day when a well-dressed man came in and asked for him.

"I am your half-brother," said the stranger. "I will take you to your real mother. Be on such a day at such a railway station," naming a small place near where the boy worked, in the south of France."

The boy kept the appointment and found his half-brother waiting with a carriage. They drove to a chateau in the neighbourhood and there the young man met his mother whom he had never seen. The chateau is his. A fortune amply sufficient to keep it count belongs also to the carpenter up is his also. Finally, the title of lad. His father, Count de M., died two months ago, having legitimized his son. The young carpenter-count has just been called upon to serve his term in the army.

NEW FAIR GROUNDS

The Association Seeks the Co-operation of the Board of Trade in Waiting Upon the City Council in Matter.

At last night's meeting of the Board of Trade a deputation representing the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition waited upon the members to ask that the Board co-operate with the Association in urging upon the Council the advisability of purchasing permanent exhibition grounds.

Mr. J. H. Garbutt, speaking for the directors, suggested that the Board of Trade co-operate with the Association in waiting on the City Council, with a view to urging them to secure grounds upon which an exhibition could be held. The present grounds were admirable for the purpose, but were only under lease, and the Association might find itself without any grounds at short notice. The present buildings and stands had out-lived their usefulness, but if permanent grounds were secured the directors of the Association would feel it a duty incumbent upon them to erect suitable buildings.

He suggested a committee be formed by the Board of Trade to take the matter up with the Council.

Mr. Dawson Kennedy, another member of the deputation, also advocated the forming of a committee to go into the matter with the Association. Mr. Kennedy said that the directors had not decided upon any particular grounds, but they wanted to have property that would be theirs, in order that they might expend money in erecting buildings that would be suitable for the purpose.

Mr. O'Connell moved, seconded by Mr. McWilliams, that the request of the deputation be complied with, and the President be asked to appoint a committee to take up the matter with the Fair directors.—Carried.

SCENE FROM "THE CLIMAX," ACT II, "THE LOST VOICE."

Taking the initiative in a field that has never been touched heretofore by other playwrights, Joseph M. Weber's comedy drama "The Climax," by Edward Locke, is said to arouse an atmospheric influence that makes it delightfully enjoyable. It is declared that the play in depth of conception, originality, intensity and wholesome humour, goes as far beyond anything procured by other playwrights. "The Climax" is highly endorsed by the New York critics who were unanimous in proclaiming it the best thing of the season. The piece will be seen for the first time at the Grand Opera House Thursday night, April 7th, with the original New York caste. Tickets on sale at box office.

Board Of Trade Members Discuss Canadian General Co's Proposition

Interesting and Profitable Meeting Last Night at Which C. G. E. Proposal and Power By-law Were Thoroughly Threshed Out.

ATTENDANCE WAS LARGE

The special meeting of the Board of Trade called last night to discuss the Canadian General Electric Company's proposition and the by-law providing for the building of a power house at the water works dam, was productive of an interesting discussion on these important questions, and while it was not deemed advisable for the Board to pass any resolutions in regard of the problems, while they are in the unsettled condition they are at present, a considerable amount of valuable information and suggestion was elicited, and the meeting was important on that account. Ald. Gillespie, Chairman of the Board, was in the chair, and there was a good attendance of members, while the visitors' benches were well filled with a large delegation, the number in attendance indicating the interest that is being taken by the citizens in this important problem.

Ald. Gillespie, in introducing the subject for discussion, said that he thought it better to get the opinions of those outside the Water Commissioners and the City Council, which two bodies had to deal with the matter, and neither of which had come to any definite conclusion, in regard to the question under discussion.

Mr. A. P. Poussette thought that the Board should have the exact proposal of the Canadian General Electric Company, in writing, before they could intelligently discuss the proposition. It was impossible to come to an opinion before all the facts were clearly known.

President Gillespie thereupon read Mr. Nicholls' proposition to the Board.

Mr. Poussette remarked that it might be well to have the Water Commissioners state just what policy they intended to pursue in connection with the surplus power. Was it to be used for lighting the city or to help in other utilities.

"What is the proposed policy of the Water Commissioners?" asked the speaker. "A great deal hinges upon that. We should get something from them."

Mr. W. H. Moore, water commissioner, replied that the Water Commissioners had arrived at nothing definite. Before the Canadian General Electric Company proposition came up, the Council and the Water Commissioners had come to the conclusion that it would be the better way to submit a by-law for $70,000, for the development of the water power at the new dam. The Commissioners had hoped for one of two or three things, either to use the power for street lighting, to expend the profits of its sale in a filtration plant in order to give the city pure water, or to use the net income for the reduction of water rates. A filtration plant of the slow sand method would cost about $75,000, and would require an interest and sinking fund of $5,000, or $6,000 a year. The Commissioners hoped to have the benefit of that much or by devoting the profits to the reduction of water rates, to cut down the cost to the consumer, about ten or fifteen per cent.

Mr. Poussette remarked that there were two things to be considered: first, whether it was advisable, at the expense of the ratepayers, to develop power at a cost of $70,000, or whether instead of that expenditure, the surplus power should be sold to the Canadian General Electric Company at $2,000 per annum. One objectionable feature to the first proposition, he thought, was that the power house and plant would be in the hands of the Water Commissioners. He considered that that body should have nothing to do with power, or lighting, but should confine their attention to the water. The Water Commissioners were a close corporation, and the speaker considered that it would be very foolish for the ratepayers to vote for the by-law as it stood. There was nothing that gave the City Council any control over the power house that was to be built.

President Gillespie remarked that the city had special legislation, by which the Water Commissioners might become power commissioners as well.

"I say that's pretty objectionable legislation," returned Mr. Poussette.

He went on to take up the Canadian General Electric Company's proposition, which, he said, commended itself to the favourable consideration of the public. The Canadian General Company undertook to build and equip a power house, and at the end of twenty years hand it over to the city. They would pay $2,000 per year for power, and this, invested at four per cent. would amount to $65,000 at the end of the twenty years. Thus, argued Mr. Poussette, the city would be $65,000 to the good, and have a power house free of charge, and as good as the one provided for in the Water Commissioners by-law. In consideration of this arrangement the Company would erect at once additional buildings at their local plant at a cost of $250,000. The number of hands employed would be increased perhaps double the present force. The speaker remarked that he would like to know how many years it would take the Industrial Commissioner to secure such a benefit for Peterborough.

"This proposition is a most important one," remarked Mr. D. W. Dumble, the next speaker. "It is a business proposition, made by business men to—I was going to say to business men—but to the Council of the city. There is no sentiment in it. Sentiment won't pay dividends. It is a question of whether it would be judicious in the interests of the city to accept the proposition of the Company. The previous speaker has spoken of reserving the rental paid by the Company for twenty years. There is not the slightest chance of nursing that $2,000 per year. It will drop in a hole in the streets or something. The same thing has happened in Kingston.

Mr. Nicholls comes to us with a propositon and a big stick. They say that they are contemplating whether they will build in Peterborough, or not. Let me say that before they were connected with the Toronto business their stock was raised higher and they paid better dividends than they do now. When they were free from Toronto they were happy, and if they want to be happy now they had better stay here.

Mr. Dumble, however, remarked that the Canadian General was a first-class establishment, of which the city was proud, and he thought that they should be treated considerately, and given a pretty soft snap. He did not consider, however, that they should be given all they had asked for.

Mr. Dumble remarked that he did not consider the proposition one that capable business men should take. He thought the city should be willing to help the Canadian General Electric Company, but not to give them all they asked for.

The Water Commissioners, he thought, were the best men to be had in the city and they handled the city's business with the confidence of the people. Legally they were perhaps the servants of the city, simply agents, and as such responsible to the corporation. He would like to see the matter dealt with by three competent men like the Water Commissioners.

"It is childish to be afraid," remarked the speaker, "that the company will take their buildings away to Toronto. It seems to me that they are scarcely crediting us with intelligence."

R. F. McWilliams.

Mr. R. F. McWilliams, the next speaker, pointed out that the Board

THE NORWOOD MEETING.

Those interested are again reminded of the public meeting to be addressed by eminent members of Parliament in the Town Hall, Norwood, on Friday evening, April 15th. The chair will be taken at 8 o'clock, and the addresses upon live political and public topics, will be given by Mr. F. B. Carvell, K.C., M.P., of Woodstock, New Brunswick, and Mr. Fred T. Congdon, M.P., Yukon. These two gentlemen are among the most prominent members and most effective speakers, and their addresses upon topics of the hour will be heard with the interest their deliverances will deserve. It is of interest to note, as showing the immense expanse of Canada, that these two gentlemen, appearing at the same time, on the same platform, represent constituencies at the extreme limits of the Dominion, the north west and the south east, separated by a land distance of between 4,000 and 5,000 miles. Other addresses will be given by Mr. R. R. Hall, ex-M.P., and Mr. D. O'Connell, Peterborough.

DISRUPTIONISTS.

The Conservative party, or at least a controlling element of it, is becoming or continuing to be the disruptional factor in Canadian nationality. They have played the game so long that it has become a sort of party second nature. The game of setting up racial and religious antagonisms, has long been an adaptation of the old Roman policy—"divide et impera"—divide and rule—both in Ontario and federal politics. The campaign of disruption has been practically continuous. Every general election brought its appeal to person and prejudice. In provincial politics we had, among other things, the "Green Eye Opener," "Facts for Irish Electors," etc. In 1900 we had the "Bogus Globe," an appeal to sectionalism. In 1904 Tarte was made the target of the sectarian artillery; in 1908 we had 'The Duty of the Hour," and now, according to an article republished elsewhere from the Ottawa Free Press, the story of another disruption and disunion manifesto. For years we have had the Toronto News, the Hamilton Spectator, and the Mail and Empire sowing the dragon's teeth of discord with might and main. These journals, the News especially, has the habit so ingrained that fomenting ill feeling between the French Canadians and English-speaking sections of our common citizenship does not satisfy its ambition in this direction; it has 'carried the war into Africa," has fallen fiercely upon its own friends, and is fostering the disruption of the Conservative party. True to its race and creed programme it has cast Mr. Monk and the Quebec Conservatives into outer darkness; it has cashiered Mr. Foster, and slashed right and left, a la Donnybrook, among the rank and file of the Conservative party—"Mr. Borden is surrounded by men who are, for the most part, remnants of the old unsuccessful Conservative party." When the leading organ of the Conservative party sows the seeds of disunion and incites to sedition in the ranks of the party it speaks for, it is no surprise, judging by the propaganda of national disintegration carried on by the Conservative party in the past, if the saying in regard to chickens coming home to roost is suggested. And it is no surprise that a journal, which has pursued a policy tending to antagonize, sour and segregate a large part of our population should find congenial occupation in widening the rift in the already discordant and jarring party lute. It is true that this little unpleasantness is a family affair; but when the soiled linen of the family is publicly pinned on the line and flaunted in the four winds of heaven, in the face of everybody, it is natural and excusable that it should form a subject of public discussion. The situation is the natural outcome of a long-time policy of disruption, and the disruptionists are getting a bitter taste of their own medicine.

STILL THE DOUBLE-FACED GAME

The average man would have thought that the experience of the Conservative party with the famous "Duty of the Hour" pamphlet in the last election campaign would have convinced them by this time of the folly of playing with political fire. But, apparently, such has not been the case.

There are being sent out, under Parliamentary franks, at this moment, thousands of copies of a circular headed: "The Two Parties and the Empire: The Conservatives for Separation."

The circular goes on to say:

"In his naval policy, as in everything else, Sir Wilfrid is constantly looking away from the Empire, and to the day of separation, which he has said must come, to the day of independence, which he has promised his fellow-countrymen, to the day when Canada will be 'rid of the services of British diplomacy,' at which riddance he declared all Canadians will 'rejoice.'

"Such is Sir Wilfrid's declared attitude, such his aim; in that direction all his efforts tend, and it is high time that all Canadians should awaken to a realization of their real tendency and true character."

So the argument goes on, to the extent of a couple of thousand words, or so, and then comes the climax in these words:

"Things are getting to a pretty pass in Canada under Sir Wilfrid.

"Already he has spoken of the King as a foreigner, whom he, as the leader of a subservient majority in parliament, could vote out of possession of Canada in an hour's time.

"And now in introducing his Canadian naval policy he gives notice that the bonds of allegiance are of no force, and that whether Canada will ever help the Motherland will all depend upon the will of himself or his like-minded successor.

"Isn't it about time for the Canadian people to take note of what is going on?"

What can be done in reply to such arguments as these, but to see that they are circulated where they will do the most good? And in this respect Le Canada has done a public service in translating these words for the benefit of the French-speaking electors of the country.

It is the old double-faced game over again: Laurier is "too British" in Quebec, and he is "a traitor" in the English-speaking provinces.

But just as the "Duty of the Hour" failed in its mission, that of appeal to sectionalism and bigotry, so will this last appeal fail.

It must, because the thinking people of Canada, be they French or English, know that Laurier has, in practical effect, done more for the true cause of Imperial unity than any other man in Canada's history.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Australia is entering into strong competition with Canada to secure British emigrants; but she is injuring her cause by having served notice that it prefers emigrants without children. Canada welcomes everybody, of whatever age, who is "sound of wind and limb," and—morals. The child is father to the man or woman, and once landed in Canada will in a few years become a farmer, and a head of a family, and constitute an important element in providing Canada's chief need—population. Good immigrants are welcome in a land where families are going out of fashion; and unless the supply is helped by importation of children we incur the danger of becoming a nation of old men and women.

PRESENTATION MADE

Miss Ethel Goodenough Given Beautiful Pearl Ring.

The pupils of Mrs. W. A. Greenslade gathered at her home on King-St. last evening to say good-bye to Miss Ethel Goodenough, one of Mrs. Greenslade's cleverest pupils, who leaves in a few days for Regina. The following address was read by Miss Ruby Carr and the presentation of a beautiful pearl ring was made by Miss Alberta Rehill.

Miss Ethel Goodenough, City—

Dear Ethel.—It was with the deepest feelings of regret that we, the pupils of Mrs. Greenslade's pianoforte classes, learned of your decision to leave the city. We feel that we cannot let the opportunity pass without letting you know our appreciation of your pleasant and agreeable disposition, and your willingness to help at all times the other pupils. We hope you will soon make as many friends in your new home in the west as you are leaving beind you.

We ask you to accept this pearl ring, which we trust wil lalways serve to remind you of your many well-wishing friends in Peterborough, who join in wishing you every success.

Signed on behalf of the pupils.

Alberta Rehill,

PEOPLE use ML Floorglaze for the hulls of sailboats and motor-boats, and are satisfied with the way it looks and lasts.

That proves M L Floorglaze is water-proof. A good all-purpose finish, therefore.

PEOPLE use ML Floorglaze on vehicles, too, and find it looks better and lasts longer than any kind of varnish or paint.

That proves M L Floorglaze is fade-proof and weather-proof. The perfect protector for all woodwork, therefore.

PEOPLE find that ML Floorglaze helps housewives keep floors dust-free because the surface stays glass-hard and glossy.

M L Floorglaze doesn't mind wet, sun, scuff of feet nor dragging of furniture across it.

ML FLOORGLAZE is the best thing you can get to help renovate the whole house. Fine for all woodwork, indoors and out. Makes old furniture look new again. Goes farthest, too—gallon covers 500 square feet.

Choose among 17 pretty colors in solid enamel—seven Lacs to imitate hardwoods—and Transparent for natural finish. Comes in little and big tins. Easy to put it on right. Ask at your dealer's or write us for news of the hundred uses you could make of M L Floorglaze. The Imperial Varnish & Color Co., Limited, Toronto

PETERBORO' PEOPLE PROUD OF "GEISHA"

Peterborough Examiner, Peterborough, Ont.—Toronto critics unanimous in favourable criticism of production of "Geisha." Peterborough people here to-day have received many congratulations on the success of the company, and are proud of them. They even surprised their friends by the finish and excellence of their work. Prospects for trophy considered bright."

Easily Tired Exhausted

DOES THIS DESCRIBE YOUR CASE? — THEN READ THIS LETTER ABOUT

DR. CHASE'S NERVE FOOD

The accompanying letter describes so well the condition of a person whose nerves are weak and exhausted that little need be added.

The danger of such a state of health is sometimes overlooked by persons who do not realize that the next step is some form of paralysis which leaves one helpless in mind and body.

Mrs. Edward Schwartz, Ladysmith, Que., writes: "It is a pleasure to let you know how I was benefitted by Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. I was run down and weak, unable to do any housework, was easily tired and exhausted, lacked energy and ambition, was very nervous, easily irritated, could not concentrate the thoughts, hands and feet were cold, I could not sleep, had frequent headaches and dizzy spells and palpitation of the heart.

"Nervous prostration was my trouble, but Dr. Chase's Nerve Food cured it all and I cannot find words to express my thankfulness for this wonderful medicine."

The results achieved by Dr. Chase's Nerve Food are often more wonderful than words can tell. In cases such as this patient persistent treatment is necessary, but you are encouraged by steady and natural improvement until the cure is thorough and complete.

There is a satisfaction in knowing that each and every dose is bound to be of at least some benefit in rebuilding the wasted nervous system.

Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Food, 50 cents a box, 6 for $2.50, all dealers; or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto. Write for a free copy of Dr. Chase's Recipes.

The Port of Missing Men.

By Meredith Nicholson,

"I have no reason for misleading you. This gentleman is not a revenue man. He probably never heard of a—still, do you call it?—in his life." And she smiled upon him sweetly. "But if you will let him go I promise to satisfy you entirely in the matter."

Chauvenet started to speak, but Shirley arrested him with a gesture and spoke again to the mountaineer in her most engaging tone:

"We are both mountaineers, you and I, and we don't want any of our people to be carried off to jail. Isn't that so? Now let this gentleman ride away, and I shall stay here until I have quite assured you that you are mistaken about him."

She signaled Chauvenet to mount, holding the mystified and reluctant mountaineer with her eyes. Her heart was thumping fast, and her hand shook a little as she tightened her grasp on the rein. She addressed Chauvenet in English as a mark of good faith to their captor.

"Ride on, monsieur. Do not wait for me."

"But it is growing dark. I cannot leave you alone, mademoiselle. You have rendered me a great service, when it is I who should have extricated you"—

"Pray do not mention it! It is a mere chance that I am able to help. I shall be perfectly safe with this gentleman."

The mountaineer took off his hat.

"Thank ye, miss," he said, and then to Chauvenet, "Get out!"

"Don't trouble about me in the least, M. Chauvenet," and Shirley affirmed the last word with a nod as Chauvenet jumped into his saddle and rode off. When the swift gallop of his horse had carried him out of sight and sound down the road, Shirley faced the mountaineer.

"What is your name?"

"Tom Selfridge."

"Whom did you take that man to be, Mr. Selfridge?" asked Shirley, and in her eagerness she bent down above the mountaineer's bared tangle of tow.

"The name you called him ain't it. It's a queer name I never heered tell on befo'—it's—it's like the a'my"—

"Is it Armitage?" asked Shirley quickly.

"That's it, miss! The postmaster over at Lamar told me to look out fer 'im. He's moved up hy'eh, and it ain't fer no good. The word's out that a city man's looking for something or somebody in these hills. And the man's stayin' "—

"Where?"

"At the huntin' club where folks don't go no more. I ain't seen him, but th' word's passed. He's a city man and a stranger and got a little fella' that's been a soldier into th' army stayin' with 'im. I thought yo' furriner was him, miss, honest to God I did."

The incident amused Shirley, and she laughed aloud. She had undoubtedly gained information that Chauvenet had gone forth to seek; she had—and the thing was funny—served Chauvenet well in explaining away his presence in the mountains and getting him out of the clutches of the mountaineer, while at the same time she was learning for herself the fact of Armitage's whereabouts and keeping it from Chauvenet. It was a curious adventure, and she gave her hand smilingly to the mystified and still doubting mountaineer.

"I give you my word of honor that neither man is a government officer and neither one has the slightest interest in you. Will you believe me?"

"I reckon I got to, Miss."

"Good, and now, Mr. Selfridge, it is growing dark, and I want you to walk down this trail with me until we come to the Storm Springs road."

"I'll do it gladly, Miss."

"Thank you. Now let us be off."

She made him turn back when they reached a point from which they could look upon the electric lights of the Springs colony and where the big hotel and its piazzas shone like a steamship at night. A moment later Chauvenet, who had waited impatiently, joined her, and they rode down together. She referred at once to the affair with the mountaineer in her most frivolous key.

"They are an odd and suspicious people, but they're as loyal as the stars. And please let us never mention the matter again—not to any one, if you please, monsieur."

Chapter XVI

NARROW MARGINS.

THE judge and Mrs. Claiborne were dining with some old friends in the valley, and Shirley, left alone, carried to the table several letters that had come in the late mail. The events of the afternoon filled her mind, and she was not sorry to be alone. It occurred to her that she was building up a formidable tower of strange secrets, and she wondered whether, having begun by keeping her own counsel as to the attempts she had witnessed against John Armitage's life, she ought now to unfold all she knew to her father or to Dick. In the twentieth century homicide was not a common practice among men she knew or was likely to know, and the feeling of culpability for her silence crossed lances with a deepening sympathy for Armitage. She had learned where he was hiding, and smiled at the recollection of the trifling bit of strategy she had practiced upon Chauvenet.

DIAMOND HALL AN ATTRACTIVE PLACE

A reporter dropped into Diamond Hall, the new home of Warne Bros., jewellers, this morning, and was more than impressed with the beauty and attractiveness of the place. It is one glittering spectacle of grandeur, and everything that is pleasing to the eye of man and woman in the above line, is here shown. New and up-to-date are two adjectives that might be applied to this jewellery store. Warne Bros. moved into their present premises about two weeks ago, and previous to that men were busily engaged in renovating and completely converting them into handsome quarters. More floor space is now at the disposal of the owners, there being ten feet additional in the front of the store and fifteen in the rear room. The store has also been artistically decorated, the wall paper showing a pretty design in green. Several new wall cases have been placed on the north side. These are finishd in quarter-cut oak and display the goods to advantage. The south wall is lined with mirrors, which further tend to brighten the place. At the entrance, Prism lights are hung and the show window is one that is bound to attract attention from the passerby. Several of the most up-to-date showcases have been put in. The store is lighted with Tungsten lamps. The stock is most complete, every possible line of jewellery being carried. Warne Bros. have the exclusive sale of an all-rose pattern in elite Limoges china. A visit to the store will reveal some exceedingly pretty designs. A specialty of diamonds will be made and diamonds of quality and reliability are carried. Full lines of cut glass and silverware is in stock. A new line of goods that is shown is that in brass, known as Colonial and hammered brass. In this ware jardinieres, candle sticks, and trays are in stock. An archway separates the jewellery and drug stores.

POST CARD COLUMN.

This called forth a most remarkable accusation from Dr. Reid, of Grenville. After saying that the Federal Government brought the Doukhobors out to this country, but that they were "shunting the expense of looking after them on the local governments." Dr. Reid went on to state: "Is it that the Government want to keep close to the immigrants coming into this country, that the immigrants have no politics, and the Government want them to start out right? Young men from the eastern provinces have their politics fixed before they go there. I suppose that when the Government want votes they take these Doukhobors out of the asylum as they did in my county, when they wanted a few votes, they brought out the lunatics, and voted them. Just in the same way they can bring these fellows out, and vote them, and it pays the Government to keep them in these asylums for that purpose."—The Standard, Montreal, April 2.

Sir,—I don't suppose there is any truth in it, but the above throws light upon what the lunacy business really is. A doctor ought to know; and one wonders whether all the inmates of the asylums, who are not "in the swim" would be allowed to vote if well enough.

Yours, etc.,
W. A. BAILEY.

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Dear Sir,—I notice by the papers last night that an entertainment is to be given on April 11th, in the Collegiate Institute assembly hall, and that the prices of reserved seats are 35 cents, and the general admission is 25 cents. Now, Mr. Editor, I was not aware that this institute was built to run shows in, and to compete against the picture shows and the theatre, and who have to pay a license and taxes. I think it is time the matter was looked into, and stopped, or else make them pay taxes and a license fee, the same as others, if they want to compete for the show business. Our police department should attend to this matter at once, and see that all parties that put on concerts or shows of any kind pay taxes and take out a license, and also see that they have the necessary fire exits. Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for your valuable space, I remain,

Yours truly,
FAIR PLAY.

"I have no reason for misleading you. This gentleman is not a revenue man. He probably never heard of a—still, do you call it?—in his life." And she smiled upon him sweetly. "But if you will let him go I promise to satisfy you entirely in the matter."

Chauvenet started to speak, but Shirley arrested him with a gesture and spoke again to the mountaineer in her most engaging tone:

"We are both mountaineers, you and I, and we don't want any of our people to be carried off to jail. Isn't that so? Now let this gentleman ride away, and I shall stay here until I have quite assured you that you are mistaken about him."

She signaled Chauvenet to mount, holding the mystified and reluctant mountaineer with her eyes. Her heart was thumping fast, and her hand shook a little as she tightened her grasp on the rein. She addressed Chauvenet in English as a mark of good faith to their captor.

"But it is growing dark. I cannot leave you alone, mademoiselle. You have rendered me a great service, when it is I who should have extricated you"—

"Pray do not mention it! It is a mere chance that I am able to help. I shall be perfectly safe with this gentleman."

The mountaineer took off his hat.

"Thank ye, miss," he said, and then to Chauvenet, "Get out!"

"Don't trouble about me in the least, M. Chauvenet," and Shirley affirmed the last word with a nod as Chauvenet jumped into his saddle and rode off. When the swift gallop of his horse had carried him out of sight and sound down the road, Shirley faced the mountaineer.

"What is your name?"

"Tom Selfridge."

"Whom did you take that man to be, Mr. Selfridge?" asked Shirley, and in her eagerness she bent down above the mountaineer's bared tangle of tow.

"The name you called him ain't it. It's a queer name I never heered tell on befo'—it's—it's like the a'my"—

"Is it Armitage?" asked Shirley quickly.

"That's it, miss! The postmaster over at Lamar told me to look out fer 'im. He's moved up hy'eh, and it ain't fer no good. The word's out that a city man's looking for something or somebody in these hills. And the man's stayin'"—

"Where?"

"At the huntin' club where folks don't go no more. I ain't seen him, but th' word's passed. He's a city man and a stranger and got a little fella' that's been a soldier into th' army stayin' with 'im. I thought yo' furriner was him, miss, honest to God I did."

The incident amused Shirley, and she laughed aloud. She had undoubtedly gained information that Chauvenet had gone forth to seek; she had—and the thing was funny—served Chauvenet well in explaining away his presence in the mountains and getting him out of the clutches of the mountaineer, while at the same time she was learning for herself the fact of Armitage's whereabouts and keeping it from Chauvenet. It was a curious adventure, and she gave her hand smilingly to the mystified and still doubting mountaineer.

"I give you my word of honor that neither man is a government officer and neither one has the slightest interest in you. Will you believe me?"

"I reckon I got to, Miss."

"Good, and now, Mr. Selfridge, it is growing dark, and I want you to walk down this trail with me until we come to the Storm Springs road."

"I'll do it gladly, Miss."

"Thank you. Now let us be off."

She made him turn back when they reached a point from which they could look upon the electric lights of the Springs colony and where the big hotel and its piazzas shone like a steamship at night. A moment later Chauvenet, who had waited impatiently, joined her, and they rode down together. She referred at once to the affair with the mountaineer in her most frivolous key.

"They are an odd and suspicious people, but they're as loyal as the stars. And please let us never mention the matter again—not to any one, if you please, monsieur."

Chapter XVI

NARROW MARGINS.

THE judge and Mrs. Claiborne were dining with some old friends in the valley, and Shirley, left alone, carried to the table several letters that had come in the late mail. The events of the afternoon filled her mind, and she was not sorry to be alone. It occurred to her that she was building up a formidable tower of strange secrets, and she wondered whether, having begun by keeping her own counsel as to the attempts she had witnessed against John Armitage's life, she ought now to unfold all she knew to her father or to Dick. In the twentieth century homicide was not a common practice among men she knew or was likely to know, and the feeling of culpability for her silence crossed lances with a deepening sympathy for Armitage. She had learned where he was hiding, and smiled at the recollection of the trifling bit of strategy she had practiced upon Chauvenet.

DIAMOND HALL AN ATTRACTIVE PLACE

A reporter dropped into Diamond Hall, the new home of Warne Bros., jewellers, this morning, and was more than impressed with the beauty and attractiveness of the place. It is one glittering spectacle of grandeur, and everything that is pleasing to the eye of man and woman in the above line, is here shown. New and up-to-date are two adjectives that might be applied to this jewellery store. Warne Bros. moved into their present premises about two weeks ago, and previous to that men were busily engaged in renovating and completely converting them into handsome quarters. More floor space is now at the disposal of the owners, there being ten feet additional in the front of the store and fifteen in the rear room. The store has also been artistically decorated, the wall paper showing a pretty design in green. Several new wall cases have been placed on the north side. These are finishd in quartercut oak and display the goods to advantage. The south wall is lined with mirrors, which further tend to brighten the place. At the entrance, Priam lights are hung and the show window is one that is bound to attract attention from the passerby. Several of the most up-to-date showcases have been put in. The store is lighted with Tungsten lamps. The stock is most complete, every possible line of jewellery being carried. Warne Bros. have the exclusive sale of an all-rose pattern in elite Limoges china. A visit to the store will reveal some exceedingly pretty designs. A specialty of diamonds will be made and diamonds of quality and reliability are carried. Full lines of cut glass and silverware is in stock. A new line of goods that is shown is that in brass, known as Colonial and hammered brass. In this ware jardinieres, candle sticks, and trays are in stock. An archway separates the jewellery and drug stores.

POST CARD COLUMN.

This called forth a most remarkable accusation from Dr. Reid, of Grenville. After saying that the Federal Government brought the Doukhobors out to this country, but that they were "shunting the expense of looking after them on the local governments." Dr. Reid went on to state: "Is it that the Government want to keep close to the immigrants coming into this country, that the immigrants have no politics, and the Government want them to start out right? Young men from the eastern provinces have their politics fixed before they go there. I suppose that when the Government want votes they take these Doukhobors out of the asylum as they did in my county, when they wanted a few votes, they brought out the lunatics, and voted them. Just in the same way they can bring these fellows out, and vote them, and it pays the Government to keep them in these asylums for that purpose."—The Standard, Montreal, April 2.

Sir,—I don't suppose there is any truth in it, but the above throws light upon what the lunacy business really is. A doctor ought to know; and one wonders whether all the inmates of the asylums, who are not "in the swim" would be allowed to vote if well enough.

Yours, etc.,
W. A. BAILEY.

Is Your Breakfast, Madam, Just a "Gulp-and-Git?"

"Things aint what they uster be".

No, Madam, "they never was".

Breakfast, for instance. Once a full meal with a dessert—now, alas, degenerated into a mere "gulp-and-git".

Ah, Mistress Housewife, spare your folks their morning spread, the meal which breaks the longest fast of all the four-and-twenty.

Let not our stomach think it is well-fed when it is only well-filled.

Banish the predigested provender, the shredded doormats, the gripe nuts, perforated peanuts, the food fads all.

Give 'em something sustaining, substantial to answer to our insides' cry for help.

For instance:

Oldstyle griddle cakes browned on a hot disc in the whiff of blue smoke from the sizzling ham rind, covered dripping with trickling syrup from corn or maple.

Hot, flaky, dainty rolls of the scrumptious kind, thickly buttered, toothteasing, sweet, nutritious.

Slices of satin-textured breadstuffs, golden-topped, creamy crumb all covered with apple butter, maybe, brown and spicy: or even cow butter, or wholesome cheese?

* * * *

Such breakfast revelations, Madam, will that FIVE ROSES flour afford you.

Rolls, pies, popovers, pancakes and griddle, crullers or fritters, you know.

Or just crisp, crinkly toast, the most easily digested food on earth, bread at its best.

That's the way to break the overnight fast, Mistress Housewife, topping it off maybe with a wedge of your "own-made" pie.

So that at 10.30 o'clock of a man's busy day there is no aching void but can carry him on till noon without the stomach kissing the spine.

What! Is your mouth watering too?

* * * *

Nourishing breakfasts, Madam, sustaining, digestible breakfasts.

That display your cooking art to best advantage, raising you to the dignity of "artist".

While relieving your Cost of Living.

Since even the cheapest fad food besides being less healthful, digestible, nutritive, costs you 8 to 9 times more.

Besides being most wasteful and hard to keep fresh and sound.

Why not make breakfast the successful beginning of a good day's work, Madam?

Why not make the wait till dinner easier to bear?

Why not get FIVE ROSES soon?

BOARD OF TRADE HELD MEETING LAST NIGHT

of Trade had decided upon an aggressive policy in pursuing new industries and he presumed that the city would be prepared to support an active policy The matter, he thought, came down to a question of rate. If the proposition was made at such a rate as to yield a handsome profit to the Commissioners there would be no question as to the advisability of accepting the offer. Then came the question, should the Water Commissioners sell the power at what it costs them, or should they make a profit of it? The speaker did not think that any attempt should be made to make profit out of the water if it was desired to encourage industries. Under the original policy of the Water Commission the profit went to the city and was used for the reduction of taxes. This was the reason for Guelph's low tax rate, A similar policy was in force there.

Dr. M. A Morrison.

Dr M. A. Morrison, speaking of the power by-law, said that he was not satisfied that it was the policy the city should pursue for the reason that he believed the amount of power that could be developed did not warrant the expenditure of that much money. If a larger water power were secured it could be developed much cheaper and he was of the opinion that the proposition of the city's building a power house at the Water-works dam might prove more expensive than was being calculated.

The Canadian General Electric Company should be treated with all fairness, and the speaker was willing to leave the matter in the hands of the City Council and Water Commissioners. The Board did not know what offers had been made by the Council to the company. "I was in hopes," remarked the speaker in conclusion, that the C. G. E. would see their way clear to accept the first offer of the city to supply the power for $2500 per year for the first ten years and $5,000 for the next period of ten years.

Mr. J. H. Larmenth.

Mr. J. H. Larmonth gave it as his opinion that the proposition the C.G.E. had put up was the best they would give. It had come to a point where it either had to be a go or not. The price they were offering for power when figured out would be found to be not much cheaper than it was selling in Peterborough at the present time. The company's capital expenditure, interest and sinking fund and cost of bringing the power to the city would not allow them to take advantage of the power as cheaply as some people appeared to think. He thought the C. G. E. Company should be treated liberally. Liberal treatment would be accorded any new industry that guaranteed to expend $250,000 in the city and there should be no question of doing anything else in this case. The expenditure of that much by the company here would practically mean that they would make all their extensions in this city.

Mr. T. F. Matthews.

Mr. T. F. Matthews, chairman of the Water Commissioners remarked that he wished to correct some statements Mr Dumble had made. It was not possible for the Council to demand funds from the Water Commission, and there was no danger of the $2,000 per year mentioned dropping into a hole in the streets as Mr. Dumble had suggested. The conditions were not the same as in Kingston. In that city the Water-works Department was operated by a commission composed of members of the City Council and not by a separate body as here. Mr. Matthews did not regard the water works dam proposition as a satisfactory one from a city standpoint. The power available there was contingent upon many things. At the end of twenty years he hoped the city's population would be doubled and in such an event the Commissioners might need all the power available for the operation of the water plant. The company buying the power would have to take chances on this and upon the flow of the river. Mr. Matthews remarked that the City Council had always treated the Commissioners liberally and in the power question had not attempted to take the matter out of their hands, but had acted step by step with them.

Mr. R. N. Ruddy.

Mr. R. N. Ruddy, K.C., remarked that Peterborough was anxious to secure industries and had gone so far as to decide upon appointing an Industrial Commissioner. The Board had heard one proposition, but were in the dark as to what counter proposition had been made by the Council. They would be able to discuss the matter to greater advantage if they knew the particulars. The speaker thought that Mr. Poussette had made out a pretty strong case in favour of the Canadian General Electric Company's proposition. It was a good chance to secure an industry that the people had confidence in. Mr. Ruddy asked if a new company came along with a similar proposal would the Board hesitate at all in recommending it? In conclusion he remarked that the new Industrial Commissioner might be given the duty of looking after the power and water and thus he would have something to do.

Mr. B. F. Ackerman.

Mr. B. F Ackerman remarked that he was satisfied to leave the settling of the matter in such good hands as those of the City Council and Water Commissioners He advocated as little delay as possible.

Mr. Matthews explained that the Water Commissioners were anxious to avoid delay and were hurrying the matter as much as possible. They had wired their engineer for a report and could not act intelligently in the matter until the information they needed was available.

Mayor Morrow.

Mayor Morrow pointed out that there was no delay. Mr. Nicholls had not replied to the city's proposition until Thursday last and at once a meeting of the Council was called to take up the matter. Another meeting would be held as soon as the Water Commissioners had secured the information they were seeking. If the Canadian General proposition had not come forward the speaker believed that it would have been a good scheme to make use of the power by building a power house. Now, however, the city would be freed from issuing debentures for $70,000. "If we can rent the power at a fair price without making a capital expenditure, I think it would be a good business proposition," remarked the Mayor, who went on to show that in the near future debentures would have to be issued to cover extensions to the sewer system in the south end of the city, to provide for a septic tank and for other improvements that will be necessary.

Mr. E. G. Patterson, superintendent of the Canadian General Electric Company said that the company felt that no time was being lost in taking up the proposition and that they did not complain that the city's representatives were "marking time."

Mr. W. H. Meldrum.

Mr. W. H. Meldrum, the last speaker to discuss the subject, said that he agreed with Mr Larmonth that the C. G. E. Company would not be getting power as cheaply as some people seemed to imagine. He estimated that by the time the cost of building a plant, paying interest and sinking fund, of transmitting the power and their expenses were taken into consideration, it would be found that they would be paying very nearly as much as they could buy it for now. Speaking of the $70,000 by-law, Mr. Meldrum asked what that money was going to be spent in. It would not, in his opinion, cost that much to put a plant in there. If the cost of carrying the power to Peterborough was included it was a different proposition. The citizens should be taken into the confidence of the Water Commissioners on this point, or if not he was sure the proposition would be voted down if submitted to the people.

No resolution was passed by the Board as the negotiations are still under way and it was deemed inadvisable to take any action further than discuss the question.

INVIGORATING TONIC

FOR RUN-DOWN PEOPLE

Miss Ella Muriel Wood, of Brownsville, Ont., says: "Two years ago I was going into a decline. I could hardly drag myself across the floor, I could not sweep the carpet. If I went for a drive, I had to lie down when I came back; if I went for a mile on my wheel I was too weak to lift it through the gateway, and last time I came in from having a spin I dropped utterly helpless from fatigue. My father would give me no peace until I secured PSYCHINE, knowing it was excellent for decline or weakness. I must say the results are wonderful and people remarked my improvement. Instead of a little, pale, hollow-cheeked, listless, melancholy girl, I am to-day full of life, ready for a sleigh-ride, a skating match, or an evening party with anyone, and a few months ago I could not struggle to church, 40 rods from my home. I have never had the slightest cause to fear any return of the disease."

"GEISHA" COMPANY MAKE SPLENDID IMPRESSION

A happier party than the Peterborough Amateur Operatic Company made up yesterday would be difficult to find. Mr. McIlroy, the C. P. R. ticket agent, made splendid arrangements for the comfort of the party, both ways. On arriving at Toronto, Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Devey, with Mr. R. S. Sturgeon, stage manager, met the train, and whisked the party to most comfortable quarters at the Grand Union Hotel, near to the Royal Alexandra Theatre. A complete rehearsal at two o'clock, safely over, the Company dispersed to inspect the millinery stores on Yonge street, till dinner time, at six, after which Mr. Sutcliffe, the able business manager, hustled them over to the Royal Alexandra, to prepare for the performance. As to that, the Toronto papers will have something to say. Earl Grey came from the Royal Box to personally congratulate the company, but they had all hastily retired to their dressing rooms to be in time for the train. His Excellency sent Col. Denison, the Hon.-Secretary of the competition, to Mr. R. J. Devey to say that "the performance was one of the highest order, and he was more than pleased with it, the Colonel adding his own personal congratulations. Whatever may be the result of the musical competition, the Geisha Company furnished a complete surprise to last night's audience, for every number was encored, which the conductor was unable to allow, owing to time. A special train, leaving Toronto at 11 p.m., brought home a tired but happy party. Following are some of the press criticisms:

Toronto Globe.—The second night of the competitions at the Royal Alexandra Theatre for the Earl Grey musical and dramatic trophies afforded an instance of the unexpected happening. The surprise was the meritorious performance of the first act of "The Geisha" by the Peterborough Operatic Company. The outstanding features of the production were the singing of the chorus and of Miss Lavinia Hallihan, as Mimosa San. Miss Hallihan has a really beautiful voice, of fine and even texture, and with no suspicion of that babyish quality that seems to be a disease with the leading ladies of the average musical comedy presentations of the past two years. The chorus won general praise for their musical work, especially in the finale to the act, their ensemble being sweet and well-shaded. The Molly Seamore was Mrs. R. J. Devey, who has a pretty, if not brilliant, voice, and who carried out her part with attraction. The other principal roles were taken as follws: Marquis Imari, Nat Greenhalgh; Wun Hi, Mr. Maclaren; Lady Constance, Mrs. J. E. Firth; Reginald Fairfax, George Chandler; Captain Katana, Mr. Lee; Juliette Diamant, Miss Lillian Dean. As is usual with amateur companies, the men were more sel-conscious than the women, and showed less freedom both in singing and acting. Mr. Howard Brockway, the American composer, who is one of the musical judges, expressed the opinion to the writer that no United States town of the same population as Peterborough could equal the performance. The act given was handsomely staged and the costumes, with but few exceptions, were attractive.

What the Toronto World says: A large and appreciative audience greeted the presentation of "The Geisha" by the Peterborough Operatic Company at the Royal Alexandra last night. The story of 'The Geisha' is, of course, well known to Toronto theatre-goers, but it is a musical "tit-bit" which loses nothing in the representation. Last night all the familiar catchy refrains were appreciated to the full by the audience, who were exceedingly generous in their applause. The costumes were good and the scenery appropriate to the theme of the production.

Particularly well drilled—stagely—was the chorus, which was seen at its best in the opening scene. But undoubtedly the most popular number was that old favourite, "Jack's the boy for work," which went with a swing and rhythm which many a professional company might have envied.

The story, as told last night, presented the chief feature of the well-known Japanese musical play, and, while not staged entire, or divided in the full quota of acts, the interest of the audience was not allowed to flag. It might be said that several of the artists showed exceptional ability, though, as the contest is still sub judice, it would be unfair to particularize.

What the Toronto Mail and Empire says: The only operatic event scheduled for the week was included in last night's programme, in the shape of the Peterborough Operatic Company's rendition of the first act of "The Geisha," which proved as acceptable as was to be expected from a local organization attempting such an ambitious project, and thereby challenging reminiscent comparison with professional talent. Miss Lavina Halahan, in the title role, displayed a clear soprano which she used with good effect and her solos were well received. Miss Lillian Dean played Juliette with engaging candour and simplicity and Messrs. Chandler and John King were the chief male vocalists. The chorus did really creditable work in the finale. The piece would have been improved by dropping some of the unimportant songs, adapting enough of the second act to complete the story and including "The Jewel of Asia," one of the gems of the opera.

Still A Mystery

No Trace of the Assailant of Elizabeth Frank at London Has Yet Been Found.

MAY BE FATAL

Special to The Examiner.

London, Ont., April 6.—The shooting of Miss Elizabeth Frank by an unknown man yesterday afternoon, is still a mystery. So far no trace of her assailant has been discovered. It is now feared that her injuries will prove fatal. Employees of McClary's whose big factory is just on the edge of the city, yesterday saw a man bareheaded and with badly torn trousers, approach their building from the railroad tracks. Taking him for a tramp they shouted at him and he turned off toward the city. This is taken for an important clue ,as Miss Frank's assailant left his hat in the house, and must have torn clothing crashing through the window..

MURDER CHARGE

North Bay, Ont., April 6.—Walter Ross was placed on trial this morning for the murder of Percy Parkinson at Ramore, Dec. 9th last. Self defence will be the plea of the prisoner and the crown will allege murder ,as a result of robbery of the victim.

Conservatives Suspicious

Owners of Condemned Cattle Suffer Heavily From Destruction of Animals—J. E. Armstrong Wants Conservation Commission Act Amended to Prevent Officials From Using Information.

Ottawa, April 6.—The work of the commission for the conservation of national resources was discussed at length in the Commons last evening, when Hon. Sydney Fisher's bill to amend the act authorizing that body came up for consideration. The chief amendment was to provide that the annual meeting could be held elsewhere than in Ottawa, and that committee members should have their traveling expenses paid.

J. E. Armstrong (East Lambton) suggested prohibiting members from engaging in private speculation. Mr. Fisher said that would be impossible, preventing them from investing in mining or railway stocks.

Hon. Clifford Sifton argued that members of the commission were above suspicion. If they adopted Mr. Armstrong's suggestion Senator Edwards would be unable to purchase timber lands, and E. B. Osler, M.P., chairman of the public health committee, would have to sell out his shares in the Canadian Pacific Railway. He himself would not retain his office as chairman if there was suspicion that any members would use the special knowledge acquired for their personal benefit. An amendment might, however, be agreed upon to prevent any abuse.

W. F. Maclean (South York) urged that committees of the Commons should have the advantage of the data gathered by the commission. Mr. Sifton admitted that it would be useful, but did not see how it would be wholly workable at present.

Mr. Armstrong moved that no member or person employed by the commission shall purchase or acquire franchises, water powers, mines, lands or timber limits, or acquire any interest in such, or disclose information on matters before the commission, under penalty of $1,000 for each violation. Mr. Sifton still objected that the proposal was unworkable, but eventually Mr. Fisher accepted the amendment as applicable only to officials and employes. The bill stands for third reading.

The House yesterday morning went without incident into a discussion of Hon. Sydney Fisher's bill to amend the Meat and Canned Food Acts. The bill, which is designed to effect improvements in administration, proved to include the word "goats" in its interpretation clause, and David Henderson protested that people in Ontario, at least, have not come down to eating goats' flesh.

Mr. Fisher said that a certain quantity of goats' flesh is consumed in the United States and some of this may be imported; also flocks of goats now are kept for other purposes and some of these might be slaughtered.

In the agricultural and colonization committee C. J. Thornton suggested that a great publicity propoganda be started by the agricultural and colonization committee, which would tempt town dwellers to adopt rural life. Town people, he said, were suffering, while fortunes were being made out of five-acre plots by intensive farming.

Hon. Mr. Brodeur's bill respecting the water carriage of goods was endorsed in principle by the Marine and Fisheries committee of the Commons yesterday morning, but, owing to some difference of opinion between the representatives of the marine interests and the representatives of the shippers as to just how far the bill should go in preventing vessel-owners from contracting themselves out of liability for damage to goods in transit, the bill was held over for further consideration at the next meeting of the committee.

Major Currie said that the drovers of Ontario were considering the question of going out of business. They were held responsible for condemned animals, and last year they lost $400,000. There should be compensation for animals condemned.

Charles L. Owen (East Northumberland) declared that tuberculosis animals were being slaughtered every day and sold to the people as sound meat.

George H. Bradbury (Selkirk) declared that cold storage had increased the cost of living. Provisions were held in cold storage unreasonably long and market prices controlled. He advocated the framing of a Dominion law whereby goods, when they went into cold storage, should be dated, and ordered sold within a certain time.

Claude Macdonnel (Toronto) approved of compensation for the packers, who were the only men who lost money.

Eventually the bill passed through committee, and comes up for third reading.

The St. Lawrence Power Transmission Co. bill monopolized an hour in the House last night. Hon. Wm. Pugsley and Hon. George P. Graham warmly supported the measure, and the latter made a fierce attack on the Ontario Hydro-Electric Commission.

Richard Blain had requested that any correspondence between the Federal and Ontario Governments with reference to the bill be produced, but Mr. Pugsley said that so far as he knew, there was no such correspondence.

Regarding the charge made by Sir Wilfrid Laurier, that the Opposition were holding up the bill because they wanted the Hydro-Electric Commission to have a monopoly, Mr. Blain said he was in favor of such a monopoly of the people of Ontario against all-comers.

Mr. Pugsley said he was lost in amazement at the wonderful ingenuity of the Opposition in creating suspicions regarding the bill. It was simply a power transmission bill and nothing more. Unless they were bound hand and foot with the Hydro-Electric, they ought to vote for the bill.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier has given notice of a resolution upon which a bill will be based, creating a department of naval service.

It is provided that the department will be presided over by the Minister of Marine and Fisheries, with a deputy Minister drawing $5,000 per annum, and such other officers and clerks as are required.

DRY DOCKS TO BE BUILT

A Steel Shipbuilding Plant Will Be Located at St. John Along With the Dock and Repair Establishment—Three and a Half Per cent. Bonus is Responsible For the Action of the Financiers.

Ottawa, April 6.—Before the year ends the construction of two immense drydocks in Canada will be commenced. They will be not less than nine hundred feet long and a hundred feet wide, and will have a depth of thirty-five feet on the sill. One of these docks will be located at Levis and the other at St. John, N.B. Both docks will be supplemented by adequate facilities for the repairing of vessels of the largest size, and it is probable that in connection with the St. John dock there will be a first-class steel shipbuilding plant.

The Government bill providing a subsidy of three and a half per cent. for thirty-five years on drydocks of not less than nine hundred feet long and the growing demands of Canada's water-borne commerce are responsible for these two important undertakings. One of the leading men behind these drydock enterprises is Sir Robert Perks, who arrived in Ottawa yesterday and had a long conference with Hon. Mr. Pugsley, the Minister of Public Works, who will have the administration of the drydocks as soon as they can be constructed. "Sir Robert Perks and his associates," said Hon. Mr. Pugsley, "are very much in earnest and they are quite capable of carrying through the construction of these docks with all possible expedition.

Sir Robert Perks said: "A company is being registered at the State Department for the purpose of building the two drydocks. One will be located at Levis and the other at St. John. On this company Harland & Wolff will be represented by Lord Pirrie, the Canadian Pacific by Sir Thomas Shaughnessy, the Allan Steamship Co. by one of that firm, McArthur, Perks & Co by myself, and there will also be as incorporators Mr. Dobell of Quebec. Mr. Davies of Levis, and Mr. W. E. Foster of St. John. We regard the Canadian Government's bill for drydock aid as satisfactory, and we will be prepared to begin constructions work soon after the measure becomes law."

"What will be the size of the docks?"

"Well the bill provides bonuses of three and a half per cent. only for first-class drydocks having a length of at least nine hundred feet, and I do not think that it will be worth while to go in for anything less than first-class docks at these points."

"You will naturally provide the equipment necessary for undertaking the repairs for ships of a character in keeping with the size of the docks?"

"Yes, naturally," said Sir Robert, "as that is an essential complement to a drydock."

"Will the plant be sufficient for steel shipbuilding?"

"A shipbuilding plant will be established in connection with the St. John drydock," said Sir Robert. "The extent of this will depend upon several things, and these details will have to be decided after the company I have referred to has been organized."

"Have you fixed upon the site of the St. John dock yet?"

"Well, there are several sites available there, but the dock will probably be located at the head of Courtenay Bay, where there is an excellent site for both the dock and for the establishment of a shipyard."

Washington, April 6.—A joint resolution to provide for an international federation to bring ultimate world peace and the settlement of difficulties between nations by an international court, was introduced in the House yesterday by Mr. Bartholdt of Missouri. Strong Healthy Women

If a woman is strong and healthy in a womanly way, motherhood means to her but little suffering. The trouble lies in the fact that the many women suffer from weakness and disease of the distinctly feminine organism and are unfitted for motherhood. This can be remedied.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription

Cures the weaknesses and disorders of women. It acts directly on the delicate and important organs concerned in motherhood, making them healthy, strong, vigorous, virile and elastic.

"Favorite Prescription" banishes the indispositions of the period of expectancy and makes baby's advent easy and almost painless. It quickens and vitalizes the feminine organs, and insures a healthy and robust baby. Thousands of women have testified to its marvelous merits.

WOMAN IS ATTACKED

While Well-Off Woman of 65 Is Reading Paper a Man Enters Her House and Fires Four Shots, Three of Which Strike Her—Then He Escapes—No Motive Is Known—Walks Quarter of a Mile.

London, Ont., April 6.—An unknown man yesterday afternoon, after entering the home of Miss Elizabeth Franks, on the Wellington road, just at the city limit, deliberately, and for no apparent cause, shot at her four times, three times after she was prostrate.

Three bullets took effect, in the ear, nose and neck, but despite her age—she is 65—after the assailant had been scared away, she walked one-quarter of a mile to a corner grocery and asked that the police be telegraphed for. Then, although she was bleeding freely, she walked half a mile further to a sister's in Horton street, where she received medical aid. She declined to go to a hospital, and was later taken home.

Miss Franks, who is well-to-do, lives alone in a large house just at the outskirts of the city, the place being surrounded by a high brick wall.

About 4 o'clock she was in her sitting-room, reading a paper, when there came the sound of shattered glass, and she turned to face the man. She demanded his reason for coming there, and he made no answer, but fired point blank at her. She fled from the room, and he pursued.

At the door she stumbled, and as she lay prostrate, the man fired three more shots at her, and then struck her with the revolver.

Then, though the woman had not screamed, he seemed to grow suddenly afraid and jumping through a window made his escape.

The police seem doubtful as to whether robbery was his motive, as he passed by the woman's gold watch and money and did not take it.

The surrounding country is being scoured in pursuit.

He is described as well dressed, short of stature, with ruddy cheeks and black moustache. He was wearing black clothes and left a black Christy hat behind him, which, however serves little purpose towards identification.

The similarity of the crime to the Kinrade murder at Hamilton is being commented on. In both cases, according to evidence, there is an unknown man breaking into a house about the same time of day, and the insane shooting of the victim after being prostrated.

Your money back if Purity Flour does not prove entirely satisfactory in the baking.

DON'T simply buy flour from the dollar and cent side of it. Buy high-quality flour. That means PURITY FLOUR. The first little extra cost is more than made up by the extra number of loaves of bread it makes—by the superiority of the bread and pastry in sweetness of flavor and nourishing qualities. Buying Purity Flour is a safe investment. You get large returns, not only on account of Purity's ability to produce more, but because Purity contains the greater nutriment and the vim of a strong hard wheat flour. Food made from Purity Flour gives the consumer health, snap and force, which cannot be gained from the use of the weaker soft wheat flour.

Property Committee.

To the Chairman and Members of the Board of Education:—

Gentlemen,—Your Property committee beg leave to report as follows: Regarding the matter of providing a gymnasium for the Collegiate Institute as called for in Inspector Wetherall's report on his recent visit of inspection, and which was referred to this committee, we beg to report that before taking any steps to bring in a recommendation, your committee considered it advisable to have a deputation wait on the Minister of Education, with a view of getting his consent to continue the present arrangement with the Y.M.C.A. for a period of from three to five years without losing our statute, but exceedingly regret that the Board's request would not be acceptable to the Department.

Your committee, therefore, refer the matter back to the Board for further instructions.

The matter of the placing of fire escapes on the East City and West Ward schools, which was referred to your committee, is receiving their attention, and we hope to be able to report in the near future that the same have been satisfactorily erected.

Your committee ask that they be authorized to advertise for the fuel for the ensuing year, with power to award the contract for the same.

It was moved by Mr. Fair, seconded by Mr. Ackerman, that $800 be paid on the account of R. Wolstenholm for coal.—Carried.

Gave a Report.

Inspector Mowat read a report of the Ontario Teachers' and Trustees' Convention, held in Toronto on March 28th and 29th, which he attended. While some members of the board were anxious to have it published, the general consensus of opinion was that it was not of sufficient public interest, and it would be best not to have it appear in the papers. A vote of thanks was tendered Mr. Mowat, it being moved by Dr. Morrison, seconded by Mr. Fair. A resolution to the effect that a special committee consisting of Messrs. Dumble and Hill, should take and consider the report carefully and frame resolutions to be sent to the association, to show the board's feeling in certain matters, was adopted.

The board then adjourned.

We Recommend Ferrovin, the invigorating tonic, to elderly people, whose strength is beginning to wane, and who suffer frequently from attacks of sudden exhaustion, chilliness, weak heart action, etc. Ferrovin contains fresh lean beef, citrate of iron, and pure old Spanish Sherry wine. $1.00 per bottle at all druggists.

SCHEME TO CARE FOR CENTRAL PARK

Mr. R. F. McWilliams of the Peterboro Rangers, Waited Upon Board of Education.

Mr. R. F. McWilliams was one of a deputation from the 57th Regiment to suggest the advisability of the board, the city and the regiment each appointing three members to act jointly in keeping in good condition and beautifying Central Park. He offered that it would be in the city's interests generally that what ever scheme was adopted for the upkeep of this park should be operated as a whole and not separately.

Mr. Dumble thought that such a scheme would prove a wooden horse marching into Troy. The Institute has a nice lawn, while the armouries frontage is simply a mass of weeds, and the soil not made according to contract. He could not see what the military gentlemen wanted except the privilege of marching over everything.

Both Messrs. Hill and Miller supported Mr. McWilliams' suggestion, and their resolution that the chairman appoint three members to act jointly with three representatives from the regiment and four from either the City Council or Horticultural Society was carried.

HEAD MEETING LAST EVENING

The regular monthly meeting of the Royal Astronomical Society of Canada, Peterborough centre, was held last night and proved highly interesting and instructive. The attendance was good and the evening was one of thorough enjoyment.

Owing to the fact that the President was the lecturer of the evening and the vice-president, Mr. Fiske, was operating the slides, the secretary, Rev. Dr. Marsh, carried out the duties of chairman.

Mr. H. B. Collier, the president, gave a most interesting address, taking as his subject "Meteorites." He gave a very lucid explanation of the probable origin of the strange rocky bodies that find their way to earth from our own and other suns.

At the conclusion of the address a vote of thanks was passed to Chancellor Burwash, of Victoria University, for the use of the Victoria Meteorite which was on exhibition last night.

LIVED DR. JEKYL-HYDE LIFE

Special to The Examiner:

Springfield, Mass., April 6.—The arrest of Bertram D. Spencer for the killing of Miss Martha Blackstone, the Smith College graduate, last Thursday night, when Miss Blackstone and other women were held up in their home by a masked burglar, revealed to-day what the police declared to be the most amazing Jekyl-Hyde existence that has ever come to their notice. They declare evidence they have proves that for more than two years Spencer has led a double life, one of savage brutality as a masked burglar, and the other as a respected business man. Spencer, during all this time, kept his wife ignorant of his criminal career.

THE VICTORIA METEORITE

On Exhibition at Richard Hall & Son's Store—A 324 Pound "Bolt From the Blue."

The wonderful meteoric mass of metallic iron and other alloy, which fell to the earth from space at some distant period, and known as the "Victoria" meteorite, is on exhibition for a short time at the store of Richard Hall & Son, George street.

It is a remarkable phenomena of the material world, which strikes one as strange and unaccountable, coming according to Shakespeare, from

"The vaulty top of heaven
Figured quite o'er with burning meteors."

An opportunity has been afforded our citizens of viewing this wonderful curiosity, at Messrs. Hall & Son's, who have devoted a convenient section of their store on the ground floor to its exhibition, and all are invited to call and see it any hour during the day.

The weight of this ponderous meteorite is 342 pounds. An analysis of its constituents is given as follows: iron, 90 per cent.; nickel, 8 per cent; remainder cobalt, copper, sulphur, phosphorus and carbon. It is copper coloured and shows a pitted surface.

It is recorded that the Indians of the North West held this meteorite as one of their most sacred relics. It had come to them from the sky, and as such, seemed to them, to be a special essenger from the Gods. Consequently they worshipped it. It was an idol. The remarkable shape of the meteorite, showing in profile the face of a man, enhanced this idea.

The Rev. George McDougall, the famous Methodist Missionary, who laboured so faithfully among the Indians of our great West, finally induced the red men to part with their idol. They did so, however, with great fear and trepidation, as they thought surely the Gods would punish them for such treatment.

The iron mass was forwarded to Victoria University and deposited in the museum there, and has been loaned to the Royal Astronomical Society of Peterborough. It is stated that the sum of $5,000 cash has been offered for this meteorite.

WATER COMMISSIONERS AGREE TO SELL POWER AT $2000 PER YEAR

Certain Terms Decided Upon by Commissioners Under Which Agreement Will be Reached With the Canadian General—Reserve Right to Use Portion of Power for Waterworks Purposes.

COUNCIL'S RESOLUTION

The question of power that has been engaging the minds of the City Council for the past few weeks, and the matter of arranging with the Canadian General Electric Company, is left solely with the water Commissioners. At a special meeting of the Council last evening, at which all the members were present, also the three Water Commissioners, Mr. T. F. Matthews, chairman of the commission, presented a resolution, which had been passed by them at a meeting held earlier in the day. According to this resolution, the commissioners are willing to dispose of the surplus water power for a period of twenty years under certain terms. They reserve the right to use such quantity of power as they may require for waterworks purposes. The purchaser must pay $2000 a year and erect the power station and equip it, the same to become the property of the city at the end of the period. The agreement will also safeguard the interests of the city. A resolution was passed by the Council, leaving the matter in the hands of the Water Commissioners.

Mr. Matthews, in his remarks to the Council last evening, stated that they had been waiting on a report from their engineer to get certain information. They considered the power worth more than the Canadian General Electric Company offered. The engineer reported that 500 h. p. would not be required for waterworks purposes for some years. He pointed out that 1600 h.p. was available and 1400 could easily be developed.

Commissioners' Terms.

The following is the Commissioners' terms embodied in a resolution passed by them:

"That the Commissioners inform the City Council that they are willing to dispose of the surplus water power at the new dam for a period of twenty years on the following general terms: The Commissioners to reserve the right to use such quantity of power as they may require for waterworks purposes, and the purchaser to pay $2,000 a year and erect the building for the power station and furnish and instal the machinery to develop such surplus power, and in addition to the $2,000 a year the building and all the machinery and appliances erected or placed on the property to become the property of the city at the end of the period, the agreement to contain proper and sufficient provisions to safeguard the interests of the city as to the character of the building and machinery and their maintenance, the control of the dam, and in all other respects as advised, and also the provision that if the Commissioners use more than 50 horse power at other than times of fire and by so doing reduce the power available for the use of the purchase below 1,000 horse power the purchaser shall be made an allowance therefor. It is strongly recommended that as satisfactory arrangement be made for the public lighting of the city concurrent to an arrangement for the sale of the power."

The Council's Resolution.

Ald. Turner in moving the adoption of the folowing resolution, stated that he saw Mr. E. G. Patterson yesterday and in discussing the question of the lighting, he was told that the C. G. E. would undertake to light the waterworks plant, free gratis. This he believed was an important matter. The resolution which was seconded by Ald. Buller, is:

That it having been represented to this Council that the Canadian General Electric Company owing to its increasing business requires to erect additional buildings and plant, and to obtain more electric power for the efficient operation of same; and contemplates the expenditure of at least $250,000 for said buildings and equipments in the city, provided said additional power can be obtained; and as the new water works dam is capable of developing more power than will be required for water works purposes, it would be in the interest of the city that such surplus power should be utilized, and made revenue producing. But for this purpose it would be necessary to construct and equip a power house at the said dam at a large expense, and it is at present doubtful if the same were done that the power could be disposed of, and the said company has proposed to the council that if the said surplus power be garnted to it for a period of 20 years, that the company would pay for the same the sum of $2,000 per year and would construct the necessary power house, and put in the plant required, for the development and use of such power — which arrangement will ensure a steady and fair revenue to the city for the use of this power that otherwise might be unused.

This Council therefore requests the Peterborough Water Commissioners to enter into an agreement with the said company for the development and use by the company of the said surplus power on such terms as will protect the interests of the city and not interfere with the proper and sufficient supply of power necessary for the present purposes of the Water Commissioners and providing that the said power house and plant will at the end of said term of twenty years become the absolute property of the City of Peterborough without payment to the company of anything thereof.

The Lighting Problem.

Ald. Metheral asked what provision was being made with the Peterborough Light and Power Co. as regards the lighting contract.

Ald. Turner thought that there might be other companies at the end of four and a half years, with power for sale, and a better bargain could be made. He had been told that before the contract expired there would be plenty of power available. The Mayor believed that there would be competition in the power line.

SERIOUS BLAZE AT THE DRIVING PARK YESTERDAY

Grass Was on Fire and Brigade Had a Difficult Task in Saving the Grand Stand and Sheds---School Boys Assisted.

The fire department had a busy time yesterday when two alarms were sent in, the first by telephone, and the second by box alarm. The first call came at 11 a.m. and the second at 12.48 p.m., and both were from the Driving Park. The fire alarm was only an incipient blaze and was easily extinguished, but the second proved a difficult task and when the brigade arrived on the scene they found the entire west end of the Driving Park a mass of flames, the grass burning fiercely, fanned by the strong gale that was blowing from the west. Chief Howard divided his men into two companies, one under Deputy Chief Grange, asisted by Capt. McBrigade, taking charge of the north part of the fire, while the Chief, with the assistance of Lieut. Denno and the other party fought the fire in the south with the endeavour to stop the fire before it reached the grandstand and cattle sheds, in which case the results would have been serious as there are some valuable residences in the neighbourhood that would undoubtedly have been burned. There was no water available and the brigade had to fight the conflagration with chemicals and by tearing down the fences, etc. Chief Howard enlisted the services of the boys of the senior classes of the King Edward School, who remained away from school to help fight the fire. The principal of the school kindly gave his consent when notified by the Chief of his action. The boys were of valuable assistance. At 3.30 o'clock the fire was not entirely extinguished, but the chief danger of anything occurring was over, although some of the brigade remained on the scene until night. Nearly all the fencing in that portion of the ground was destroyed.

MESSRS. DICKSON AND CLARRY EXONERATED

Ottawa, April 5.—The report of Mr. H. W. Alward of the legal branch of the Railways and Canals Department who was commissioned by the Minister to investigate the charges made by Mr. Lennox in the House before the Easter recess with reference to alleged collusion between Mr. L. F. Clarry, acting for the Justice Department, and Mr. James Dickson, acting for the Railways and Canals Department, in improperly assessing damages for lands flooded by the Trent Canal works, was presented to Parliament to-night. Mr. Alward, after examining some seventeen witnesses, including land-owners, municipal assessors and other conversant with the conditions under which the claims for damages were adjudicated, finds that there was no collusion between Messrs. Dickson and Clarry, that there were no claims improperly paid, and that the interests of the Dominion were in every instance properly looked after. His report, based on the evidence of the parties in closest touch with the legal proceedings, exonerates both Messrs. Dickson and Clarry of any wrong-doing, and shows conclusively that both the Department of Justice and the Department of Railways and Canals have nothing to defend in connection with the case which Mr. Lennox tried to make out.

THE Y. W. C. A. BOARD WILL BURN THE MORTGAGE

A most pleasing event, which marks the conclusion of a long and strenuous effort on the part of certain members, and more especially of one member, of the Board of the Young Women's Christian Association of Peterborough, will take place on the evening of Tuesday, April 12th, in the public department of the Association building, when, with due ceremony anid proper rejoicing, the mortgage on the building will be burned. A fire has always a certain fascination for human things, even when the results are disastrous, but in this case the work of the "good servant, but poor master" will have a special interest, as it will remove a serious obstacle to the successful carrying on of the work of the Association.

An unusually interesting programme has been arranged and the public are cordially invited to be present. Mayor Morrow will occupy the chair.

Walked In Her Sleep Off High Balcony

Special to The Examiner:

Montreal, April 6.—Mrs. A. Bernstein, an inmate of the woman's hospital on Mountain street, rose in her sleep from her bed on the fourth storey and proceeded with great deliberation to open the window of her room and to step out on the roof of the balcony on the floor below.

Then she fell from the roof, which slopes at an angle of forty-five degrees, into the court, a distance of about forty feet, and got up apparently uninjured.

The incident, which occurred at half-past six o'clock in the morning, was seen by several railway men passing along the track, which overlooks the hospital yard, as they went to work.

Amongst them was Mr. Allan Walker, former station agent for the C.P.R. at Windsor street, who, seeing the lady fall and being unable to account for the occurrence, at once descended from the track, rang the bell and informed the nurse who was in charge of the institution at that hour of what he had seen. Mr. Walker assisted the nurse to conduct the lady, who was the victim of the fall, into the hospital, but she did not seem to require much help, and certainly had no limbs broken, although the escape from serious injury must seem miraculous.

Mrs. Bernstein, while in the institution, had been subject to hallucinations, although they had not before taken such a dangerous form as sleep-walking on the roof of the house.

FIND OF GOLD

Mad Rush is Being Made to The Mathieson District

Cobalt, April 7.—A remarkable find of gold, near Camelsback Lake, is causing a rush of prospectors to that district, which is about fifteen miles north of Matheson. The discoverers worked all last night getting together a camping outfit, and left for the North on a special train. The news has leaked out and an exodus of gold seekers followed. Assays of samples brought here a few days ago, show that the new find is tremendously richer than anything yet discovered in Porcupine district.

CANADA NOW AND AFTER.

To insist upon reference to the growth of Canada and the daily up-cropping of its natural resources in new forms or places, may betray a provincial and even parochial spirit; but, at the same time, it indicates a spirit of optimism and faith that are potent, if not, essential factors in the realization upon, and development of, the resources we are known to possess, which are every day receiving momentous additions by discovery. And this discovery is earned in the sense that it is due to the application of the enterprise that provides the means of transportation. In the days of unfaith or contented indifference, it was thought by those, whose abstract patriotism could not be impugned, that the exploration of the then unknown wilds of New Ontario, were not worth the cost; and, that, even when exploration revealed their potential richness, railway construction was not considered worth the cost of providing facilities to bring these resources within industrial and commercial touch. Yet, in the very construction of a pioneering railway, agricultural resources were tapped, which created thriving farmsteads, and mineral resources were unearthed, that have gained for Canada the credit of having the richest mining camp in the world; a camp that, even in its infant stages of development, represents an output of mineral wealth of ten millions a year. The building of the Transcontinental Railway, even before its completion and operation, has brought to light in middle Canada extensive deposits of coal, in regions where it was thought no coal was; and, in the far west, in the Yellow Head Pass, rich coal measures have been discovered on the line of the railway, as well as rich deposits of gold. But not to speak of the possible and probable discoveries on the route through the still unknown fastnesses of northern Quebec and Ontario, the Transcontinental has opened up the richest gold mine of all in the fat wheat lands it has brought under settlement and cultivation conditions. Despatches tell us of a company of United States farmers, going in to possess lands opened up by the Transcontinental, and their possessions in cash and settlers' effects averaged $10,000 each. This means that a thousand such settlers by their coming and even before a sod of soil had been broken, would add a round million to the wealth of the country, with a promise in a few years of adding a similar annual amount to the wealth of the country, in the form of golden grain. The indications are that this year fully 150,000 United States farmers will settle in the Canadian West; and when we note that from Europe a strong and steady stream of immigrants of a superior class is pouring in at a rate hitherto unknown in our history, we can see a truly roseate outlook for this country. It is expected that the total immigration into Canada this year will mean an addition of 300,000 in the population of Canada of productive citizens. And gratification exists in the fact that the new-comers are of superior character. A few years ago, when our lands were crying out for tillers, and our waste places for regeneration, we could not, as we are doing now, hand-pick our new citizens, but that day of indiscriminate immigration is passed, and only immigrants with means, small, or great, as the case may be, and in all cases robust of physique are welcomed. The bulk of these new-comers go to the West, but a larger proportion, than usual are caught in transit by the Maritime provinces, Quebec and Ontario. But, after all, a new settler domiciled in the West is "for the general advantage of Canada." He at once creates a demand for the manufactured products of the West, and multiply him by two hundred or three hundred thousand, and the impulse to improved national prosperity will be palpable.

MEAT INSPECTION AND COMPENSATION.

On the motion of Hon. Sidney Fisher, Minister of Agriculture, the House went into committee on Tuesday on the second reading of a bill to amend the Meat and Canned Foods Act. The amendment deals with the details of inspection and the destruction of meats shown to be diseased and unfit for food. There was expressed during the discussion pretty positive opinion in favour of compensation by the government, or otherwise, for the loss sustained by the destruction of condemned meats. Upon this aspect of the subject Hon. Mr. Stratton said:

I have listened to the discussion that has been going on for the last three hours upon this subject, and, with many other members I have come to the conclusion that the Government should do something to meet a condition that is unfavourable, not only to the packer, but to the farmer as well. There is no doubt in my mind that if a proper inspection were made of all the meats in the packing houses, and if the Government assumed a reasonable responsibility for the loss sustained by either the packer or the farmer they would be doing what the public expected them to do. I have no doubt that the Minister is endeavouring to do the best he can under very difficult conditions, and I have been hoping that something would be arrived at to meet the conditions complained of by some hon. members to-day. I have felt, whether my judgment in the matter is right or not, that if there were a system of inspection and compensation, the packer would be able to pay to the farmer a better price for hogs or cattle than he is paying at the present time, although there is not much reason to complain of present prices. I have been in packing houses where I have been surprised at the large number of diseased animals that have had to be destroyed, and the meat of which has not been disposed of to the public for consumption, either for export or domestic use; and I have endeavoured to see whether it would not be possible to have these animals ear-marked, so to speak, so that it might be known from what drover or from what locality they came. While that might be possible, it would be very difficult. I hope that the Minister of Agriculture, who usually works out these problems in a satisfactory manner, will be able to devise some method by which the packers shall be properly compensated for diseased animals, so that buyers would be able, as they would be, in case they bought without risk or loss by unfavourable inspection, to give farmers better prices, or furnish the finished product at lower prices to the consuming public.

Compromise In Racing Bill

J. B. McColl Introduces an Amendment Which Will Have the Effect of Reducing the Number of Racing Days—Hon. Mr. Sifton Declares That It Is Too Sweeping In Its Effect — Continued To-day.

Ottawa, April 7.—After a whole day devoted to the Miller bill to prevent race track betting, it begins to look as though a compromise will be reached. Several members who spoke declared their support for the bill as presented, but Hon. Clifford Sifton, although sympathizing with the objects desired, contended that it was going too far to imperil the large interests involved to the extent that would be done, and called for a compromise. J. B. McColl, one of the members of the investigating committee, who did not agree with the findings of the majority of the committee, late last night moved the adoption, an amended section 235, regarding betting. This W. F. Maclean pointed out, would reduce racing in Canada to less than 100 days in a year, whereas it has been twice that. He thought this offered a compromise substantial enough to be agreed upon by the House. The bill will be taken up again to-day.

When Mr. Miller launched his bill yesterday morning, he began quoting from the evidence taken before the special committee, and was interrupted by C. A. Wilson (Laval), who objected that evidence had not been printed in French, and that some of the members could not understand it. He asked for a ruling from the Speaker whether the evidence could be quoted.

Speaker Marcil said he had looked at authorities. There were none since Confederation, but before that time Speaker Turcotte had ruled on a similar question in relation to a bill that the point was well taken. However, on this evidence, he ruled against Mr. Wilson's point, on the ground of public policy. The ruling was challenged and on a vote the Speaker's decision was sustained by 99 to 95. Among the prominent English members that voted against sustaining the Speaker's ruling were: Harty, Russell, Meigs, Sealey, Allen, Porter, Lancaster, Barker, Doherty, Crosby, Macdonnel, Price, Wilcox, Worthington, Staples and Glen Campbell. Practically all of the French members voted against the Speaker. Sir Wilfrid and Mr. Borden voted in support of the ruling.

"We largely admit the statement that the thoroughbred is of advantage in the breeding of many kinds of horses," said Mr. Miller. "But the second statement that racing is necessary to maintain the thoroughbred we will not admit, although it is admitted that the race track is one of the means that is found useful in the development of the thoroughbred horses.

"The third statement that professional betting is necessary to maintain racing we absolutely deny and refuse to admit. To the fourth allegation that horse racing is the sport of kings and should not be prevented, we say it has never been the desire or intention of the promoters of this bill to interfere with horse racing, and we do not think that the bill, if carried into effect will do away with horse racing."

E. A. Lancaster (Lincoln) asked if he did not think it would be fairer to read as little as possible of the evidence or none at all, because only printed in one language, and Mr. Miller replied that there was not one member of the House who was unable to read it in the language in which it was printed.

Turning his attention to the thoroughbred horse, he quoted from the evidence of A. E. Dyment of Toronto, who said that as a result of the passing of the Hughes' anti-race track gambling law in New York State, the price of some race horses had dropped from $10,000 to $100. Mr. Miller considered this a strong argument that the race horse had no intrinsic value. It was of no use to the farmer.

J. B. McColl (Northumberland), one of the members of the special committee which dealt with the bill, presented the views of those who are opposed to the measure in its present form. No one was against the leading principles and features of the bill, but it was a drastic proposal to make it a crime to indulge in a certain course of conduct which is regarded by a large proportion of the people as being a harmless recreation. Horse racing had received the countenance of the rulers of Great Britain and of other great countries for centuries. Any legislation which would have the effect of abolishing it would be drastic and extreme. The bill would seriously affect the breeding of light horses as well as thoroughbreds, and would cause heavy losses to the jockey clubs and racing associations.

Oliver J. Wilcox (North Essex), a farmer who has bred some good horses, opposed the bill, which would militate against the holding of race meetings and would injure the business of horse breeding. The thoroughbred could only be made his best by racing him. This was his opinion, though he had never been on a race track in his life, and had never laid a bet with a bookmaker.

Had Given Up All Hope of Living.

Heart Trouble Cured by Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills.

Mrs. Andrew Savoy, Grattan's, N.B., writes:—"In the year 1905, I was taken sick and did not think I could live any length of time. My trouble was with my heart and people told me that nothing could be done for a case like mine. I consulted the very best doctors, but they could do me no good. For seven weeks I could hardly cross the floor. I had no pain, but was so weak nobody in the world can believe how I felt. I had given up all hopes of living and had given my little girl to my sister-in-law.

"One day a friend came to see me, and calling me by name, said, 'Lizzie, if I were you I would try a dose of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills as they are good for heart trouble.' My husband got me a box, but for two days I was not feeling any better, but on the fourth day my husband said, 'I believe those pills are doing you good.' I was able to say, 'Yes, I feel a good deal better this morning.' He said, 'Well, I will get you another box right away.' I took two boxes and three doses out of the third one, and I was perfectly well and have not been sick since then.

"I will never be without them in my home for God knows if it had not been for Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, I would not have been alive now."

Price, 50 cents per box, 3 boxes for $1.25, at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

WORTH MOUNTAINS OF GOLD

During Change of Life, says Mrs. Chas. Barclay

Graniteville, Vt. — "I was passing through the Change of Life and suffered from nervousness and other annoying symptoms, and I can truly say that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has proved worth mountains of gold to me, as it restored my health and strength. I never forget to tell my friends what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me during this trying period. Complete restoration to health means so much to me that for the sake of other suffering women I am willing to make my trouble public so you may publish this letter." — MRS. CHAS. BARCLAY, R.F.D., Graniteville, Vt.

No other medicine for woman's ills has received such wide-spread and unqualified endorsement. No other medicine we know of has such a record of cures of female ills as has Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

For more than 30 years it has been curing female complaints such as inflammation, ulceration, local weaknesses, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, indigestion and nervous prostration, and it is unequalled for carrying women safely through the period of change of life. It costs but little to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and, as Mrs. Barclay says, it is "worth mountains of gold" to suffering women.

The Port of Missing Men.

By Meredith Nicholson,

Author of "The House of a Thousand Candles."

Copyright, 1907, by the Bobbs-Merrill Company.

She had kept Dick's letter till the last. He wrote often and in the key of his talk. She dropped a lump of sugar into her coffee cup and read his hurried scrawl:

"What do you think has happened now? I have $14 worth of telegrams from Senator Sanderson wiring from some God forsaken hole in Montana that it's all rot about Armitage being that fake Baron von Kissel. The newspaper accounts of the expose at my supper party had just reached him, and he says Armitage was on his (Armitage's) ranch all that summer the noble baron was devastating our northern seacoast. Where, may I ask, does this leave me? And what cad gave that story to the papers? And where and who is John Armitage? Keep this mum for the present, even from the Governor. If Sanderson is right, Armitage will undoubtedly turn up again—he has a weakness for turning up in your neighborhood—and sooner or later he's bound to settle accounts with Chauvenet. Now that I think of it, who in the devil is he? And why didn't Armitage call him down there at the club? As I think over the whole business my mind grows addled, and I feel as though I had been kicked by a horse."

Shirley laughed softly, keeping the note open before her and referring to it musingly as she stirred her coffee. She could not answer any of Dick's questions, but her interest in the contest between Armitage and Chauvenet was intensified by this latest turn in the affair. She read for an hour in the library, but the air was close, and she threw aside her book, drew on a light coat and went out upon the veranda. A storm was stealing down from the hills, and the fitful wind tasted of rain. She walked the length of the veranda several times, then paused at the farther end of it, where steps led out into the pergola. There was still a mist of starlight, and she looked out upon the vague outlines of the garden with thoughts of its needs and the gardener's work for the morrow. Then she was aware of a light step far out in the pergola and listened carelessly to mark it, thinking it one of the house servants returning from a neighbor's, but the sound was furtive, and as she waited it ceased abruptly. She was about to turn into the house to summon help when she heard a stir in the shrubbery in quite another part of the garden, and in a moment the stooping figure of a man moved swiftly toward the pergola.

Shirley stood quite still, watching and listening. The sound of steps in the pergola reached her again, then the rush of flight, and out in the garden a flying figure darted in and out among the walks. For several minutes two dark figures played at vigorous hide and seek. Occasionally gravel crunched under foot and shrubbery snapped back with a sharp swish where it was caught and held for support at corners. Pursued and pursuer were alike silent. The scene was like a pantomime.

Then the tables seemed to be turned. The bulkier figure of the pursuer was now in flight, and Shirley lost both for a moment, but immediately a dark form rose at the wall. She heard the scratch of feet upon the brick surface as a man gained the top, turned and lifted his arm as though aiming a weapon.

A dark object struck him in the face.

Then a dark object, buried through the air, struck him squarely in the face, and he tumbled over the wall, and Shirley heard him crash through the hedge of the neighboring estate. Then all was quiet again.

The game of hide and seek in the garden and the scramble over the wall had consumed only two or three minutes, and Shirley now waited, her eyes bent upon the darkly outlined pergola, for some manifestation from the remaining intruder. A man now walked rapidly toward the veranda, carrying a cloak on his arm. She recognized Armitage instantly. He doffed his hat and bowed. The lights of the house lamps shone full upon him, and she saw that he was laughing a little breathlessly.

"This is really fortunate, Miss Claiborne. I owe your house an apology, and if you will grant me audience I will offer it to you."

He threw the cloak over his shoulder and fanned himself with his hat.

"You are a most informal person, Mr. Armitage," said Shirley coldly.

"I'm afraid I am. The most amazing ill luck follows me. I had dropped in to enjoy the quiet and charm of your garden, but the tranquil life is not for me. There was another gentleman equally bent on enjoying the pergola. We engaged in a pretty running match, and because I was fleeter of foot he grew ugly and tried to put me out of commission."

He was still laughing, but Shirley felt that he was again trying to make light of a serious situation, and a further tie of secrecy with Armitage was not to her liking. As he walked boldly to the veranda steps she stepped back from him.

"No, no! This is impossible. It will not do at all, Mr. Armitage. It is not kind of you to come here in this strange fashion."

"In this way forsooth! How could I send in my card when I was being chased all over the estate? I didn't mean to apologize for coming," and he laughed again with a sincere mirth that shook her resolution to deal harshly with him. "But," he went on, "it was the flower pot. He was mad because I beat him in the foot race and wanted to shoot me from the wall, and I tossed him a potted geranium—geraniums are splendid for the purpose—and it caught him square in the head. I have the knack of it. Once before I handed him a boiling pot."

"It must have hurt him," said Shirley. And he laughed at her tone that was meant to be severe.

"I certainly hope so. I most devoutly hope he felt it. He was most tenderly solicitous for my health, and if he had really shot me there in the garden it would have had an ugly look. Armitage, the false baron, would have been identified as a daring burglar, shot while trying to burglarize the Claiborne mansion. But I wouldn't take the Claiborne plate for anything, I assure you."

"I suppose you didn't think of us—all of us—and the unpleasant consequences to my father and brother if something disagreeable happened here."

Shirley flung the portieres together.

There was real anxiety in her tone, and he saw that he was going too far with his light treatment of the affair. His tone changed instantly.

"Please forgive me. I would not cause embarrassment or annoyance to any member of your family for kingdoms. I didn't know I was being followed. I had come here to see you. That is the truth of it."

"You mustn't try to see me. You mustn't come here at all unless you come with the knowledge of my father. And the very fact that your life is sought so persistently—at most unusual times and in impossible places—leaves very much to explain."

"I know that. I realize all that."

"Then you must not come. You must leave instantly."

She walked away toward the front door, but he followed, and at the door she turned to him again. They were in the full glare of the door lamps, and she saw that his face was very earnest, and as he began to speak he flinched and shifted the cloak awkwardly.

"You have been hurt. Why did you not tell me that?"

"It is nothing. The fellow had a knife, and he—but it's only a trifle in the shoulder. I must be off."

The lightning had several times leaped sharply out of the hills, the wind was thrashing the garden foliage, and now the rain reared on the tin roof of the veranda.

Billious Headache

COMES FROM LIVER DERANGEMENTS WHICH ARE THOROUGHLY OVERCOME BY

DR. CHASE'S KIDNEY-LIVER PILLS

Headache is said to be the most useful pain in the world. It is a sort of fire alarm that warns you of something wrong with some organ of the body.

Most frequently the trouble is indigestion and torpid liver and the pain arises from the poisoned blood passing through the arteries of the brain and head.

There is no cure for bilious headache, torpid liver and indigestion that can be compared to Dr. Chase's Kidney and Liver Pills for prompt and certain results. This has been proven by so many thousands of letters published from time to time that everybody should know it by this time.

Mr. Fred Hins, Bradhagen, Perth Co., Ont., writes: "I don't like to have my name in the papers, but feel out of justice to suffering humanity I should tell others of the good I obtained from Dr. Chase's Kidney and Liver Pills and Ointment.

"For years I was troubled a great deal with sick headaches and was often so bad that I could not work. Being advised to try Dr. Chase's Kidney and Liver Pills I did so and can say they have brought about a complete cure. From the first I found that one pill cured my headache quickly every time. I was also a victim of itching piles and found Dr. Chase's Ointment the most satisfactory treatment I ever used. It brought relief almost instantly."

You won't be satisfied with mere temporary relief when you know your headache can be completely cured by using Dr. Chase's Kidney and Liver Pills. One pill a dose, 25 cts. a box, all dealers; or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

SIGNALS OF DISTRESS

Peterboro' People Should Know How to Read and Heed Them.

Sick kidneys give many signals of distress.

The secretions are dark, contain a sediment.

Passages are frequent, scanty, painful.

Backache is constant day and night.

Headaches and dizzy spells are frequent.

The weakened kidneys need quick help.

Don't delay! Use a special kidney remedy.

Mrs. George Hawes of 857 Water St., Peterborough, Ont., says:

"I suffered for some time with many painful and annoying symptoms of kidney trouble and although I had tried many remedies and doctors I found little or no relief. My back was weak and a dull bearing down pain had settled across the small of it and extended into my shoulders, and around my sides. I was weak and languid and the least exertion would tire me out. Dizzy spells were frequent and often I would awake with a severe headache. I tried Booth's Kidney Pills through an advertisement at Wm. Madill's Pharmacy and soon found them to benefit me. I continued their use and in a comparatively short time I was as well and strong as ever without a symptom of the painful and long standing disease."

POST CARD COLUMN

To the Editor Post Card column.

Dear Sir,—I would like to ask if the City Council has made any provision to ensure itself against a hold-up in connection with its street lighting, when the present contract with the Peterborough Light and Power Company expires four years from now? Is there any provision by which the City will be able to protect itself, or will we be at the mercy of the Company in four years from now. This is something the Council should consider in connection with the C. G. E. negotiations, and the disposal of the surplus power at the water works dam.

"IN THE DARK."

Dear Sir,—It's all very well for the aldermen to go to work and pass an ordinance in regard to keeping dogs in leash, but how long do they suppose such an outrageous enactment will work? Does Alderman Turner expect any man who is the possessor of four or five dogs to do a circus act every time his dogs go for an airing, and drive a four or five-in-hand along the sidewalk? How would Mr. Turner, himself, like it were he to be seen striving frantically to hold the St. Bernard in leash, if that sagacious animal took it into his head to chase a cat down an alleyway? There are hundreds of dog owners in Peterborough, (I own one myself) and I ask by what right do Alderman Turner and his willing co-partners in the passing of this unnecessary measure transform men into attendants upon dogs, when, in reality, dogs should be attendants upon men? Ald. Turner's resolution hurls man from his high estate as lord of creation, and places him on the same level as a girl wheeling a perambulator. There will be gay doings in Peterborough if the law comes into force. There is not much of the Mother Shipton element in me, but if babies are not sent flying out of perambulators, men and women sent head over heels into the gutters, and more bad language and blasphemy evoked than one cares to think of, caused by the introduction of this appalling regulation, I shall be a very much surprised individual It spells ruin,—physical, moral and mental. Cracks in the sidewalks, caused by full-bodied citizens tripping over leashes, skulls of babies smashed by the overturning of carriages, women sent to the insane asylum through fright, and men to a House of Correction by the Moral Reform League. These are only minor evils; above and beyond them all stands the question of cost to the city. If the aldermen want to get straight with the public they had better leave the C. G. E. proposition in abeyance, and concentrate all the wisdom that they possess towards framing a law more in conformity with the dictates of reason and ordinary judgment.

DOGGONER.

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Sir,—Permit me to draw public attention to the lecture on Joan of Arc by Dr. Llwyd as advertised in your columns. Dr. Llwyd is a scholar, an orator and an enthusiast and this is his favourite study. This should be a literary event and I hope that a large audience may greet the distinguished lecturer.—Yours, etc.,

J. C. DAVIDSON.

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Dear Sir,—Now that the City Council has passed a dog by-law a new position will have to be created, that of dog catcher. In this connection, let me respectfully suggest that Ald. J. J. Turner, Jr., might be able to satisfactorily carry out the duties in connection with this important position. If Ald. Turner could be induced to accept the position it would help the by-law some.—Yours,

"DOGGIE."

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Sir,—The exhibition of moving pictures and vaudeville performances in a certain amusement place in this city has given rise to much adverse comment. The tendency of these five cent shows is a deterioration of the character of those, particularly the young, who attend them. I would suggest to the Council that instead of wasting their time in discussing matters of minor importance such as dog by-laws, etc., they set to work and clear the city of places of amusement where the morals of the people are not advanced. Why not follow other cities such as Brantford, where the license fee of these shows is $300 or $700 per year. The proprietors of these places are doing a great business and the city apparently helps them in making as much money as possible by placing upon them a license fee which is ridiculously small, when the earnings are considered. It seems to me that the Council might do well to enrich the financial resources of the city by placing upon these five cent shows a fee that would not only be remunerative to the income of the city, but prohibitive as well with regard to those who will not consider the chief importance of the morals of the people as superior to their desire for gain. The Council ought at a very early date to consider this question and set itself to work to pass such laws as would enable the city to become a fair participant of business revenues of place of this kind. Yours truly,

"PRO BONO PUBLICO."

SINGLE TAX

Subject of Interesting Address by Mr. B. B. Cowan.

A very interesting meeting was held at the Zion Farmers' Club, March 31, when Mr. Cowan, of the Farm and Dairy, was present and gave an excellent address on single tax. He said that what the people of Canada needed was to look into these great questions of the day more fully and see where they could better the conditions of the age. Mr. Cowan also stated that the people were unconsciously letting vast fortunes slip from them into the hands of large combines and trusts which rightly belong to the people not interested in such concerns. He also advocates the taxation of land values.

After a short discussion upon the subject a vote of thanks to Mr. Cowan for the kindness he had shown to the club, was moved by T. T. Miller, seconded by J. J. Garbutt, the meeting was closed.

RED ROSE TEA DINNER

Toronto Staff Have House-Warming in New Quarters.

The Toronto staff of Red Rose Tea on Saturday night celebrated the removal of the Ontario branch into one of the largest warehouses in the city at 7 Front St. East. Every member of the staff was present and most of their wives, and at 6.30 forty sat down in the board room to a very enjoyable banquet, laid by Coles. The toast list, after "Our King and Country," included "Mr. Estabrooks," "The Tea Itself," "The Travellers," "The House Staff," and "The Ladies." The manager, Mr. George H. Campbell, presided, and the proceedings were very spirited and jolly. Mr. T. Estabrooks, proprietor of Red Rose Tea, was unable to come up from headquarters in St. John, N.B., and sent a telegram complimenting the staff upon increased business for March and wishing them a thoroughly enjoyable evening.

About 10 o'clock the company adjourned to the spacious offices and a programme of games and musical and literary numbers made a fitting and very entertaining conclusion to the evening's enjoyment. The hit of the evening was a Red Rose Tea song composed by Mr. N. W. Williams, one of the Toronto travellers, which he sang to the tune, "The Golden Wedding Day." It described the remarkably rapid growth of Red Rose Tea in Ontario in a very few years from a newcomer to a leader in the package tea business.

The menu and programme was designed as a souvenir. The front cover was a decorative design of a tea plant and on the back cover was a picture in colours of the St. John warehouse and was followed by an excellent picture of Mr. Estabrooks, facing the motto "A heart to resolve, a head to contrive and a hand to execute." The menu was followed by a humorous sketch from "Pickwick Papers," that suited admirably, and the toast list was enlivened with quotations descriptive of those taking part. After the programme, and to conclude, came a couple of pages of "Tea Talk," bits of tea trade history.

Miss Estabrooks, who is in the city, was to have been present, but was indisposed, and a very pretty engraved bar pin prepared for her as a memento, was sent to her.

The evening altogether was one of bright augury for the Red Rose Tea business in Ontario.

BRIDGE CLOSED

London St. Bridge Will No Longer be Open For Traffic.

The people of this city will be interested to learn that the London St. bridge, which has been in a dangerous condition for some years, is now closed to traffic. The Quaker Oats Co. offered this bridge several years ago to the town on condition that it would be kept in repair. The city fathers did not think it worth while, and consequently the bridge is now closed.

THE "GEISHA" WAS A REAL TRIUMPH, SAYS THE NEWS

Toronto Critics Pronounce Presentation by the Peterboro Amateur Operatic Company as One of the Best Amateur Performances Ever Given in Toronto---Warm Praise for Those Taking Part.

The Toronto News says: There is a tradition in stage land that when a performance goes well the first night, something is sure to happen on the second. The Earl Grey competitions, however, entirely reversed this pessimistic saw for on the second evening the dramatic performance was immeasurably more palatable, and the musical section far better adapted to the appetite of a theatre audience. His Excellency arrived in time for the main section of the programme, and apparently highly enjoyed the work of the evening. The Lieutenant-Governor and Mrs. Gibson with a party occupied the lower left boxes and the attendance through the body of the house was very similar in personnel and in numbers to that of Monday night.

In the two chief attractions, the Peterborough Operatic Company in one act of "The Geisha," and the Dickens Fellowship Company of Players in "The Cricket on The Hearth," given in three acts, there was presented a very high average of non-professional artistic work. "The Geisha" was indeed so developed in the fashion of real stage craft that quite often one was completely engrossed in the reality and charm of the story. Generally amateurs experience difficulty in expelling from the minds of auditors a sense of patronizing and critical generosity. So many beings are present to point out the disparagement between Coquelin and the Ontario town comedian, which is most unfair to Coquelin, but through this prickly gamut the junior actor and singer must forever pass. Against every odds, therefore, which can surround an entertainment (except a Missouri sentiment in the hearts of the audience), the Peterborough Company won its way to a real triumph. As an amateur operatic performance it ranks among the best ever given in Toronto, and points to some experienced and clever directorship, and talent plus determination on the part of the company's members. Good voices alone do not make an opera go, and dramatic actors minus musical ability are equally incongruous. The Peterborough Operatic Company has a pleasing combination in this respect, so convincing indeed, taken as a whole, that they were given about as much applause as a big professional organization. The voice of Miss Lavina Hallihan is of beautiful texture, artistically utilized, and quite charming in the songs of Mimosa San. Miss Lillian Dean likewise exhibited good ability in the effective speaking part of Juliette Diament. One of the brightest bits was done by Mr. Maclaren, as "Wun Hi," even though his Chinese-English was a suey mixture of Bretagne French, Irish, Scotch, Canadian and Burmese. His co-partner in the destinies of the showplot, The Marquis Imari, otherwise Mr. Nat Greenhalgh was very tall in stature, probably the tallest man in Peterborough, had a comedy voice that was immense, and waved his fan whether mad or glad. Then men of the company generally must accord first place to the "inferior sex." Neither in speech nor silence were the males able to maintain the pose, grace, or confident manner of their opposites. A feature of the performance worthy of detailed mention was the accompaniments of the company's own orchestra, consisting only of five pieces, but maintaining the volume and melodious smoothness of the average ten In make-up the excellences were general and the faults neither numerous nor important. Costuming was carefully carried out, too, and for the scenic aids the ingenuity of the theatre's stage-manager is to be complimented.

SHIPBUILDING COMPANY TO BUILD CANADA'S NAVY

Dominion Dry Dock Dompany, With Plants at Levis, Que., and St. John, N.B., Incorporated Yesterday---Harland and Wolff, Great Belfast Shipbuilders, are Behind the Proposition.

Ottawa, April 6.—The big Belfast shipbuilding firm of Harland and Wolff are behind the incorporation yesterday at the state department of the Dominion Dry Dock Company. It is proposed to establish plants at Levis and St. John. The incorporators are Baron Pirrie, chairman of Harland and Wolff, Sir Robert Perks, Sir Thomas Shaughnessy, Mr. Andrew Allan, Mr. W. Dobell and Mr. W. E. Foster, of St. John. The nominal capitalization is placed at one million dollars, but this will be increased. It is probable that at least some of the ships of the Canadian navy will be built in these yards.

Sir Robert Perks, who arrived in the city yesterday afternoon had a lengthy conference with Hon. William Pugsley, minister of public works, and it may be stated authoritatively that the company is likely to be the first to avail itself of the substantial assistance to graving dock schemes which is provided for in the resolution of which Hon. W. S. Fielding has given notice.

As is indicated by the list of incorporators the Harland and Wolff firm is back of the project. It will be recalled that in October last a deputation representing the same interests urged upon the Government, the subsidizing of the company to the extent of four per cent. on six and a half million dollars investment for a period of fifty years. This offer the Government was not in a position to entertain.

The whole question has since been under consideration of the Government and the result is the proposed general act which will be open to any company to avail itself of. The docks are by it divided into three classes, and the concern just incorporated by letters patent proposes to qualify under the first class.

By the provisions of this the Government undertakes to pay an annual subsidy of 3 1-2 per cent. for 35 years on an outlay not exceeding four million dollars on each plant.

It is proposed to locate the docks at Levis and St. John, and it is intimated in official circles that after the legislation embodying the new policy in regard to subsidies passes, a contract is likely to be concluded very shortly. It is probable that in addition to the graving docks shipbuilding plants will be established and construction of at least a part of the Canadian navy. The general details of plans have not as yet, it is stated, been concluded.

Three firms have made proposals to the department of public works—the Harland and Wolff interests, Vickers Son and Maxim, and Swan and Hunter. While the negotiations with respect to the first have taken perhaps a more definite form, the entering into a contract with it will not shut out the others save at the points indicated. There is provision in the act for assistance in the enlargement of existing docks and this, it is said, will be done at Halifax.

The company just incorporated represents many millions of capital as it is obvious from the list of directors that is behind it, beside Harland and Wolff are the Canadian Pacific railway, Allan and White Star-Dominion lines of steamships.

RADIANT HAIR

New York Society Women's Hair Matched Only by Parisians.

While much attention is given to choicest gowns by New York society women, the turbulent fad just now is the care of the hair.

For many years the clever women of Paris have been famed for the magnificent beauty of their hair.

"Glorious hair," a Virginian calls it; "so radiant and luxuriant that it not only attracts but fascinates and compels unstinted admiration."

But now that the elite of New York, ever anxious to improve their beauty, have learned that Parisian Sage, a remarkable and almost marvellous hair nourisher and beautifier, is almost entirely responsible for the charming hair of the ladies of France the demand for it has become enormous.

Parisian Sage is now sold all over Canada and in Peterborough by Mr. Madill, who is glad to guarantee it to eradicate dandruff, stop falling hair and itching scalp in two weeks or money back. Large bottle, 50c.

Legality Of New Dog By-law Is In Doubt But Will Be Unchanged

The new dog by-law got a sudden jolt last evening when the city solicitor announced to the Council that he wasn't sure whether the clause regarding having the dogs attached to the leash was legal. He did not think the Council was going to pass it so quickly. He thought it would have been thrashed out in committee first, and he would have had time to look into the legality of the leash clause.

"Cut that caluse out altogether," said Ald. Morgan, and his statement was endorsed by Ald. Buller. They contended that both a leash and a fee clause would make the by-law illegal.

Ald. Turner explained that he had had no desire to rush matters, but the people were coming in for the tags and he was under the impression that the by-law was ready to go ahead with.

It was decided to take a chance on the by-law being legal and it was allowed to stand.

SEVEN DAYS' SALE OF WOMEN'S SUITS
Commences Thursday Morning

NOT often at the beginning of a season do we "cut prices" on Strictly New Goods, but this season is an exception.

Just after placing our Spring Order for Suits, a strike amongst the Garment Workers caused a condition that was hard to grapple with—"To get Suits and Coats for immediate selling," we were forced to search the Canadian and American markets and get them wherever we could pick them up.

Then as we got our Stocks in shape, the strike was broken and our original orders were filled, thus giving us practically Two Season's Suits to dispose of in one. There's just one way to do it—cut the prices so low that buying will be intensified. This is what we are doing. The prices quoted here, samples of what we are doing with over 100 Suits for the next seven days. Compelling Prices on Stunning Garments and all Strictly New.

WATER MUST BE LOWERED FIVE FEET IF THE WORK IS TO PROCEED

Water Too High at Smith Street Bridge to Allow Contractor Conroy to go Ahead With the Construction—Power Co. Refused to Reduce It.

AN AGREEMENT REACHED

The question of lowering the water at the new Smith street bridge in order that the work of the new structure may proceed, came up for a good deal of discussion at the special meeting of the council last evening. The Council referred the letter to the Power committee, which met immediately after the Council had adjourned.

Mr. J. H. Larmonth, manager of the Hydraulic Power Co., on the condition that the work would be done in two weeks, agreed to lower the water four or five feet. In doing this it would greatly impair the lighting during that time. The matter was left to the chairman of the committee, Ald. Turner, to arrange with Contractor Conroy, to have the work completed in two weeks.

A letter was read from Mr. Ed. Conroy, the contractor for the new bridge. It stated that he was prevented from proceeding with the work owing to the raising of the water by the Quaker Oats Co. and the Peterborough Hydraulic Power Co. He insisted on the water being kept at touch level. Mr. W. H. Moore was present and stated that Mr. Conroy and he had endeavoured to arrange with Mr. Larmonth for the lowering of the water, but without success. It was impossible for the construction to proceed with the water at its present level. It was higher now, he said, than the law allowed. The contract provided that the water could be temporarily reduced five feet. The contractor should not be expected to lower this water at his own expense, as it would amount nearly to the value of his contract.

The City Solicitor thought that the matter might be arranged amicably. The Hydraulic Power Co. has no order compelling them to lower the water.

Mr. Larmonth explained that the present level was due to abnormally high water. "If we lower the level now, some factories will have to shut down. I told Mr. Conroy to figure on the present level, as we could not guarantee to lower the water at this season of the year. We are right down to our high water limit. Then our power level has increased enormously. The Quaker Oats people are using 500 h.p. more than last year, and the requirements of several other concerns have also increased. A reduction of five feet of water, which Mr. Conroy is asking for, would take off 700 h.p. We lowered one foot, and that's all we can do with our present load. The order of the court allows us 50 feet at our dam, not at Smith street, and we are only carrying 49. Lowering the water five feet at present would mean a loss of several thousand dollars; it would only cost Mr. Conroy $1,000 to work under present conditions. It was merely a coincidence that we raised the water the day Mr. Conroy started to work.

A lengthy discussion on the situation elicited the fact that the water in the back lakes is two or three feet lower than usual. Raising the water there would relieve the situation considerably.

Mr. Conroy's complaint was referred to the Power Committee, which met immediately after adjournment of Council. Mr. Larmonth was present at this meeting, and, under standing that if given five feet lower water for two weeks Mr. Conroy could have his work sufficiently advanced to permit of the water being raised again without affecting his proceedings, Mr. Larmonth agreed to relieve the city from an embarrassing position by arranging for a reduction of the water for two weeks. This, of course, it must be understood, will affect the lights somewhat, so citizens must not complain. This matter will be attended to at once.

This is a statement which was proven to a young lady employed in the Quaker Oats Company's works, last evening. The young lady was walking along with a friend, as she thought, when suddenly her supposed friend relieved the young lady of her cheque and made good her escape.

The thief's conscience troubled her and soon she was back to the spot and restored the money.

KILLED BY A FRIEND

Believes Stenographer Was Murdered by Friend Who Had Access to His Rooms.

New York, April 6.—"The murder was committed by a man with whom I had a business understanding, and who had me act as his secretary in getting girls for the school of stenography we were to establish. I am innocent of the crime."

This statement, made by Albert W. Wolter, the youth accused of the murder of Ruth Wheeler, outlines in substance the defence he will offer.

In reply to a direct question whether he knew who killed the young stenographer, the prisoner said that while he could not be positive, as he was not in the house at the time, he felt that he knew the man. This friend, he asserted, had access to his apartment.

Wolter to-day produced a letter which he said he had received the evening after his arrest. It was written in German and was signed "The man who ought to be in prison in your place." One paragraph from this letter said: "In the event you are convicted I shall then come forward, make a full confession of my guilt and save you from the electric chair."

The police don't place much faith in Wolter's statements nor in the letter.

Is On Trial For Murder

Crown May Try to Prove That Shooting Took Place a Day Before Ross Says It Did—The Prisoner Declares That Parkinson Was About to Kill Him With an Axe—Fired In Self-Defence.

North Bay, April 7.- Walter Ross was placed on trial yesterday morning for the murder of Percy Parkington at Ranmore, Dec. 9 last. The prisoner being without funds, T. W. McGarry, assisted by G. L. T. Bull, was assigned to defend him. The case is not yet concluded.

Many tilts between the counsel, Messrs. Blackstock and McGarry, gave the case added interest yesterday, as the defence is fighting every inch of the way. A. T. Rowell, provincial constable at Matheson told the story of the tragedy, as related to him by Ross, who gave himself up on the night of Dec. 9 last. The constable was acquainted with both Ross and Parkinson, the latter being a quiet inoffensive man of slight physique. Both were living in a shack near Ranmore, a flag station on the T. & N. O. Ry., 195 miles north of North Bay, engaged prospecting.

Ross' story was that the men had words that morning over mining claims in which both were interested, culminating in an altercation, when Parkinson advanced toward him with uplifted axe, and saying "Damn you, I will fix you."

Parkinson advanced, despite Ross' demand for him to stop, and, having his rifle in his hand, he shot him. According to Ross, the shooting occurred between nine and ten, on the morning of the ninth of December last.

Constable Rowell visited the shack, making careful examination and measurements, and his evidence tended to show that Ross' story was peculiar. The seat of an overturned chair, near the entrance door, was covered with blood, a bullet was found embedded in the wall at a height of only two feet and nine inches from the floor; and a bullet had entered Parkinson's head, behind the right ear, taking an upward course and emerging from the left eye, tearing part of the face off.

Nine days before the shooting, Parkinson received $75, and had spent very little of this. The last heard of Parkinson alive was on the morning of Dec. 8, and that day Ross went to the house of Mr. and Mrs. Richards nearby, in the absence of Richards, and despite the protests of Mrs. Richards, stayed all day and all night. Previous to this, Ross had trouble with the Richards, and had been fined $25 and bound over the keep the peace and stay away. Ross paid an old board bill of $30 to Mrs. Richards, and gave the children a present of two dollars. The woman was afraid of him, as he carried his rifle, and begged him to leave, but he persisted in remaining, saying that Parkinson was away, and that there was no wood in the shack.

Evidence will be introduced by the crown tending to show that the shooting took place the day before Ross said it did. No money was found on Parkinson's body, and the constable swears that one pocket was turned inside out.

Shoots Wife And Himself

Albert Adams, After Several Days of Ill-Temper as a Result of Liquor, Shoots Wife in the Breast and Then Kills Himself—Adams Was Well Off—Could Get No Liquor, But Drank Cider.

Guelph, April 7.—Albert Adams, a well-known and well-to-do blacksmith at Weissenburg, a hamlet eight miles from Guelph, shot his wife yesterday afternoon, and a moment later turned the revolver upon himself.

The tragedy occurred about 4 o'clock in Adams' comfortable brick residence beside his shop. The only eye-witness was Louisa Hauck, a girl who had been hired for a few days to help with the house-cleaning, although in the yard, just outside the door, the three children, Mina, aged 10; Hughie, aged 7; and Harold, aged 5, continued playing, quite unconscious of the grim occurrence.

Adams, who had been quarrelling with his wife a good deal all week, and particularly yesterday morning, having been on one of his occasional sprees, left for Guelph at 11 o'clock yesterday morning, and bought a new 32-calibre five-chamber revolver. Upon his return he found his wife and Miss Hauck in the kitchen, busy wall papering. He sat in the corner a short time without saying anything. The women paid no heed to him.

"Have you nothing to say to me?" he asked his wife. Whereat the girl replied they were too busy to talk.

"Well, it's now or never," said Adams, and walking between the two women, he drew the revolver from his coat pocket and, pressing it against his wife's chest, fired.

The bullet entered a little too high to reach the heart, but punctured the large artery. Turning from him, the wounded woman ran from the house, through the front gate and along the road a distance of over 100 feet to the C.P.R. crossing, screaming that she was shot, and calling for help. At the crossing she turned, but the internal bleeding weakened her so that she fell to the ground, some 15 yards from the gate.

Louisa Hauck, after the shot was fired, and fearing that Adams might turn upon her, ran out the back door to Roth's Hotel, calling for help. Hearing Mrs. Adams' cries, she ran to where she was, and, wetting her apron, bathed the dying woman's head until she died, with the words, "He has shot me; I am dying; call the priest."

Just as Miss Hauck was rushing from the house she heard another shot, probably the one with which Adams took his own life, though he may have fired again at his wife, as she was running up the road.

Dr. P. J. Kirby of New Germany, and Rev. Father Foester of the same place, arrived soon afterwards. They found Mrs. Adams dead under the hedge, and in the kitchen the prostrate body of Adams, with a wound in his chest, in almost exactly the same spot as that which killed his wife.

In the revolver on the floor, a few feet from his hand, was three exploded cartridges, and two still unfired. The children by this time were crying and running back and forth between the prostrate bodies.

Major H. D. Merewether, high constable of Wellington County, and Constable Young, made an examination of the premises and sent for Coroner McLean of Guelph.

The house and shop were owned by Adams, and all paid for. He had some money in the bank, and was comfortably situated. He was a good mechanic. His failings were a weakness for drink, and when drunk a bad temper. At other times he was a good husband.

Father Foester said that the hotelkeeper in Weissenburg had refused for the past year or so to give Adams whisky, but that he had made a practice of keeping plenty of hard cider in his cellar, and it had almost the same effect upon him.

Albert Adams was about 38 years of age, and was a son of the late Ignatius Adams of New Germany. He is survived by two brothers, Joseph Adams of Toronto and Ignatius Adams, who lives on the old homestead. There are five sisters, Mrs. M. Brohman of Winterburne, Mrs. Adam Starr of Preston, Mrs. Wm. Ott and Mrs. Charles Smith, both of Berlin.

Mrs. Adams was Mary, the eldest daughter of the late Henry Reinhart of New Germany, and she was also very well connected in this district. Mrs. Haenel of Guelph is a sister.

Montreal Live Stock.

MONTREAL, April 6.—(Special.)—At the Canadian Pacific Live Stock Market this morning, offerings were 750 cattle, 125 sheep and lambs, 825 hogs and 2100 calves. Cattle—Prices were firmly maintained, but drovers in some cases complained that they had paid more money for their stock in the country. The gathering of buyers was large and demand good. Choice steers sold at 6½c; good, at 6c to 6¼c; fairly good, at 5½c to 5¾c; fair, at 5c to 5¼c; medium, at 4½c to 4¾c; cows, at 3½c to 5¼c, and bulls, at 3½c to 4½c per lb.

There was an active trade in calves, but as offerings were the largest of the season prices ruled lower at from $3 to $8 each. Hog prices scored a further decline of 10c to 40c per cwt., owing to liberal supplies and somewhat limited demand. Sales of selected lots were made at $10 to $10.40, weighed off cars. The trade in sheep was quiet at 4c per lb. A few spring lambs sold at $4 to $7 each.

Banker Indicted.

Pittsburg, Pa., April 7.—The graft investigating grand jury late yesterday returned a presentment ordering the indictment of Frank N. Hoffstot, prominent steel manufacturer and banker, on two charges of conspiracy and bribery. Mr. Hoffstot now makes his home in New York.

He is ordered indicted upon charges of having, in 1908, paid $53,500 to Charles Stewart, at that time member of select councils, for the purpose of securing the selection of the Farmers' Deposit, Second National and German National Banks, as city depositories.

Foreigner Goes to Prison.

Philadelphia, Pa., April 7.—Pleading guilty to the charge of placing explosives on the tracks of the Philadelphia Rapid Transit Co., Frank Godda, a strike sympathiser, was yesterday sentenced to five years in penitentiary.

Godda, who is an Austrian and has been in America only two months, said he found a dynamite cap on a railroad near his home in the suburbs and was told by boys to place it on the car tracks.

Poet's Descendants Dine.

London, April 7—An unique banquet was held in London Tuesday night, at which Lord Coleridge presided, the gathering being composed of 200 descendants of British poets. The occasion was the anniversary of the birth of Algernon Charles Swinburne, and the diners included the Duke of Norfolk, Lord Lytton, Lady Lyndsay, Lady Shelley and Helen Mathers (Mrs. Henry Reeves).

"Bronchitis"

is generally the result of a cold caused by exposure to wet and inclement weather and may be recognised by a tightness across the chest, sharp pains and a difficulty in breathing, a secretion of thick phlegm, at first white, but later of a greenish or yellowish color coming from the bronchial tubes when coughing, especially the first thing in the morning. Cure the first symptoms of bronchitis by the use of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup.

Bronchitis Cured.

Miss Martha Bourget, Little Pabos, Que., writes: "Last spring I was very poorly, had a bad cough, sick headache, could not sleep, and was tired all the time. I consulted two doctors, and both told me I had bronchitis, and advised me to give up teaching. I tried almost everything but none of the medicines gave me any relief. One of my friends advised me to try Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. I had scarcely taken the first bottle when I began to get better and when I had taken the fourth bottle I felt as well as ever, my cough had left me and I could sleep well."

"Dr. Wood's" is the original Norway Pine Syrup. It is put up in a yellow wrapper, three pine trees the trade mark and the price 25 cents. Manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

IN THE WORLD OF SPORT

Cy Young, Grand Old Man Of Baseball, Has 43rd Birthday

On April 14th He Begins Twentieth Year of Service in Fast Set---Owes His Longevity in Game to Careful Living, He Says.

Youngsters, feeble tenants of an hour, appear and vanish, wars or politics may change the baseball map almost every season, but Cy Young goes on forever.

Young, one of the greatest characters ever associated with an ashen bat and horsehide sphere, celebrated his forty-third birthday March 29. On April 14th he will begin his twentieth year of continuous service in the fast set.

Long after the allotted lot of a baseball player, Young to-day is still one of the strongest pitchers in the country. Neither sentiment nor charity has kept him in the game this long. He is drawing a fortnightly check from a big league club on sheer merit alone.

Down South, the pitcher who won't wear out is preparing for another campaign with Cleveland, the city where he first bloomed as a baseball figure.

Young was born in Gilmore, Ohio, March 29, 1867. A plowboy of wonderful physique, he took naturally to pitching. In 1890 he played his first professional engagement with Canton, Ohio. One of his earliest exploits was the pitching of a no-hit game for Canton against McKeesport, in the course of which he struck out eighteen men.

This accomplishment reached the ears of the Cleveland management, and before he finished the year at Canton he was graduated to the major league. He made good from the start, and has been a fast-set star ever since.

Young pitched winning ball for Cleveland eight years, and when the National League dropped Cleveland, Louisville, Washington and Baltimore from its circuit, Robison and Tebeau of Cleveland, took Young off to St. Louis, along with Burkett, Heidrick, Powell, Criger and other stars. Three years later when the American League took up the cudgels with the National, Young jumped to the Boston team of the new circuit. He stayed there eight years, in which time he helped the Bostons win two pennants and a world's championship.

Last year he was sold to Cleveland, the city where he made his big league start twenty years ago.

Young's pitching feats have been many. Probably his greatest achievement was in 1904, when he blanked the hard-hitting Athletics without a hit, not a Mack man reaching first. In 1908 he almost duplicated this feat when he shut out New York without a hit or run. The only man to reach first base was Niles, the first batter up, who received a base on balls, and was quickly stopped stealing.

In the nineteen seasons he pitched in the big league Young has won 497 games, and lost 297, for an average of .626. This record may not soon be equalled.

Young owes his baseball longevity to careful living, says the Philadelphia North American. He has a farm in Ohio and stays there during the off-season. Down South, Young says that his arm is as strong as ever, and he expects to make his twentieth season one of his most successful in baseball.

Estimates Strength Of National League

New York Expert Thinks It'll Be Difficult to Beat Pittsburg To Pennant.

John B. Foster, the noted New York baseball expert and editor of the Official Baseball Guide, has issued his spring review of the strength of the National League clubs as the pennant contenders shape up before his eyes. Chicago and Pittsburg are given due praise, while Foster considers that the Giants are being underrated. Here's what he says:

Boston.

Without much doubt the weakest team in the National League. Favoured by a change in management, but unfortunately the new manager has been unable to obtain the services of players who might strengthen the organization in its weakest point—batting. It is possible that within six weeks after the beginning of the season Boston may be able to obtain some young players who shall be superior to those with whom the team starts. Batteries are not bad, and second base and right field are fairly well taken care of, but in other ways the organization does not look like a winning factor.

Brooklyn.

Changes in managers should be of assistance to the team. Last season there was practically no management. Outfield seems to be a bit better, but the infield is not over strong. Pitchers are average and better. Catchers are very good. If Dahlen is able to instil any team work into the club and get it away from the stereotyped baseball, which it has played for the last three years, the players are likely to be a fighting factor all the season, even though they do not win a championship or finish in the first division. The team should progress toward better results another summer.

Chicago.

There is little doubt that the Cubs will take the field with practically the same men with whom they played last year. In 1909 some of them showed indication, even if slight, of becoming rusty. Collectively, they are not so fast as they were three and two years ago, which is to be expected. Will make a good fight for the pennant, whether they win or not. Chance has signed a young first baseman, to be better equipped in case he is unable to play part of this season. No great surprise will be felt if there are changes in the general playing line-up before the season is more than half over.

Cincinnati.

Occasionally referred to as the coming club of the league. Prediction is based on last year's showing of young players. Team looks like an improvement over many which have played for the Queen City, but it is hardly stable enough to be considered as a positive championship factor. Its pitchers would have to show tremendous improvement to warrant looking forward to it as a steady and conservative winner. Pretty fair infield, good outfield, strong behind the bat, not strong on the rubber, and a run-getting team when the game breaks its way. Will continue to play more intelligently with the bat while Griffith handles it.

New York.

A team which is more likely to be underrated than overrated. Gave indications in 1909 of winning possibilities. Dangerous in any game in which it takes part. If the outfield batting strength is increased, or even maintained at the standard of last year, and McCormick's hitting ability is equalled and his running surpassed by that of another player, the team will be respected from the start. Very fast infield, surpassed collectively by none; average outfield, unless left field is strengthened; partly strong in the box and partly experimental, and a powerful machine for scoring as a rule.

Philadelphia.

Change in management may be of assistance to the Philadelphia organization. The players seem to be no better than they were last year, but they may play with more unity. Poor judgment too often used in situations which call for quick thinking. Good batters. Infield very fast in handling the ball, but careless in playing for batters and willing to trust much to luck. Outfield not good base runners. Pitching corps contains some good men, and the best catcher is Dooin, who is too fond of snapping the ball around the bases to try to catch runners.

Pittsburg.

With this team it is merely a matter of human endurance. If the players begin the season as good as they were at the beginning of the season of 1909, and if they play ball throughout the summer at about the same speed as they played in 1909, it will be a very hard task to beat them for the pennant. It is not probable they will play any better than they did last year, for they seem to have been up to the top of their speed for the last three years. Batting more than anything predominates in the general ability of the players, barring the fact that they have in Wagner the most wonderful ground coverer in the league at short.

St. Louis.

Changes which have been made in this team indicate that it will play lively, energetic baseball at the beginning of the year, and probably up to the first of August. About that time the pace will begin to tell, and while St. Louis will continue to do its best there is not much hope that so many young players will be able to last long enough to be in the championship race. It would be quite the first instance of that kind in the history of baseball if it were to happen. It is a team which is well balanced everywhere and apt to attract attention more for its speed and persistence than its strength.

Jack Johnson Appears In Belleville To-night

Toronto, April 6.—If Pat Jennings, of Belleville doesn't round up "playing in the fields with the daffodils" it will be because a man cannot go crazy from pure joy.

When the P. T. Powers of the Bay of Quinte berg arrived in town today and clapped his cerulean blue lamps upon Jack Johnson he tried to heave his lid through the nearest window of the Grand Central Hotel, and took a run and jump at the ebony-hued scrapper. Johnson grabbed the little fat Irish cornet and showed every ivory in his head.

"By gosh, you're a sunburned Irishman," shouted Jennings. "I knew you would keep your promise. I staked all I owned on you, and now I've got those croakers where I want 'em. Hurroo!"

Still Johnson smiled.

"I told you I'd be here, and now I'm making good," he remarked, as he was introduced to Lee Kitcheson, the Belleville horseman, who accompanied Jenings.

Johnson, Mrs. Johnson, Jack Cutler, his sparring partner, arrived from Chicago this morning, and they leave for Belleville to-morrow afternoon on the 1.50 train.

A Big Time.

There will be doings in Belleville on Thursday. The city band will escort the big fellow down town, and rumour has it that Mayor Marsh will box him four rounds, run him a foot race, or extend to him the freedom of the town, or do something else to make the big fellow feel at home. At night the champion will box and skip the rope and do other stunts at the Opera House. Pat says he has billed the neighbourhood for miles around, and that all the nearby towns will run in excursions. He says the "opery house" won't begin to hold them. Johnson's action in keeping faith with Jennings will win him thousands of friends around Ontario.

Johnson looks fine and fit. He strolled around town shaking hands with his Toronto friends.

"I just came on here to keep my word with Jennings because he is a good fellow," said Johnson. "I don't expect to get much more than my expenses."

"Where do you go next?"

"Back to Chicago and do some light training."

"Then where?"

He Won't Be Sure.

"In two weeks I start for Ocean Beach, near San Francisco, to train for the big fight."

"Does that $1,000 wager that the fight will not take place still go?"

"Well," hesitated Johnson. "I don't look so good now, but just the same I will not be happy until I step into the ring and shake hands with Mr. Jeffries. Then I'll know it's a go."

"How about Pinder?"

"Oh, he won't turn up," hesaid. "He knows he can't make a case, and he vamoosed. He made a bad break and when I started for him he ran and fell over some chairs and hurt himself. I didn't hit him."

"So long—and say, kid — have the price of your summer vacation down on me July 4. You'll win it, sure!"

Jim Jeffries Arrives Safely At His Camp

Rowardennan, April 5.—Big Jim Jeffries is at last in his training quarters at Rowardennan, Santa Cruz Mountains, and is more than pleased with his surroundings. Jeffries arrived here at noon to-day. With him Mrs. Jeffries, his two nephews, Ted Boyer and Russell Kesler, Manager Sam Berger, Dick Adams and Farmer Burns.

Dick Adams, Jeffries' chum of many years, was responsible for the one act that enlivened the trip from San Francisco, Dick is a natural-born court jester. At one of the little stations in the mountains he yelled, "Change here for Santa Cruz," and emptied the train temporarily of its passengers and many grips. Later he sided with those who complained about the work of "Some fresh guy," and said, "whoever did it deserves calling down."

There were small crowds at the various stopping places to get a glimpse of Jeff. Nearing Rowardennan an angler presented the big fellow a nice mess of freshly caught trout, which Jeff and party had cooked for lunch.

Just as soon as he registered Jeff was shown his cottage; one of those sloping-roofed affairs with spacious porches and climbing rose bushes. He pronounced it good, and then, under Manager Berger's guidance, the big fellow visited the spots of interest.

The river with its swimming holes and its stretches of water for rowing appealed strongly to him and he nodded approvingly when his attention was drawn to the new handball court. The large ballroom had been converted into a gymnasium for Jeff and at one end a combined bath room and massage department had been fixed up.

Jeffries viewed these things with the eye of a connoisseur and the further he explored the more pleased he seemed. He noted the patches of down where there was plenty of room for ball tossing and remarked of the camp generally, "Could not be better Let's go to lunch!"

It was a cloudy day at Rowardennan with threats of rain, but the camera men were out in force just the same. It is doubtful indeed if Jeffries was ever photographed to a similar extent before. They caught him talking with Berger and lolling on the verandah after Tiffin. They snapped him gazing up at the river. Whenever he stood still for a fraction of a second the clicks of a dozen shutters were heard and he was resignation itself.

So far as camera men at least are concerned, Big Jeff is a much more tractable subject than he was in the old days. Having satisfied himself that the rain would hold off until evening Jeff donned a knockabout suit consisting of a sweater, khaki pants a disreputable looking canvas cap and rough shoes. This is his baseball costume.

He played ball with his nephews for an hour or more and then tried out the handball court, having Farmer Burns for an opponent. Jim also had a chance to display his skill as an axeman.

H. F. Anderson, who is Snaton's partner in the Rowardennan resort, happened to mention to Jeff that they contemplated putting in a new bath to the club house from the country road.

"Will it go through that grove of trees?" asked Jeff. On being told that it would, he said: "Let us start up at once then."

An axe was provided for the man from Burbank and he made the chips fly in good shape. Rowardennan is certainly the ideal place for Jeff and this much was shown before he was here an hour. He is in the kind of environment he loves and the chances are he could work himself into suitable condition for the ring if there was never a punching bag or particle of gymnasium equipment about the place.

"APRIL SHOWERS BRING MAY FLOWERS."

This is the time when Hanging Baskets, Vases and Window Boxes should be refilled. Call up the West End Greenhouses, Phone 21, and leave your order to have them called for and filled, according to your instructions. 3d78

Mr. Joe Maynard, formerly of The Examiner mechanical department, was in the city to-day on his way from Ottawa to Winnipeg, where he will reside in future. The Ottawa Journal says:

Ottawa will lose one of her best ball players in the person of Joe Maynard, the clever Pastime infielder, who leaves next week for Winnipeg. Mr. Maynard, who is an employee of The Journal mechanical staff, is a member of the Pastime Club, indoor champions of the Capital, and he is a former resident of Peterborough. He is a finished ball player and ought to more than make good in the Western Hub.

Sometimes Help the Hair to Go.

In any changeable climate the hair is apt to become brittle and to break off stubby here and there. This makes a hair-dressing almost a necessity, especially to ladies. In using a hair dressing why not get the best, one that combines with it the efficiency in killing the dandruff germ, the germ that eats the hair off at the roots, causing what is called falling hair, and in time baldness. Newbro's "Herpicide" is that kind of a hair dressing. You have no idea how delightful your scalp will feel, and how stylish your hair will appear, after an application or two of Herpicide. It is certainly a wonderful innovation as a scalp antiseptic and hair-dressing. Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich.

CANOE COMPANIES ARE HARD AT WORK

Launches and Canoes are Being Shipped All Over the Country—Some for South Africa.

ALL ARE BUSY

A large number of launches and steam boats have been shipped from the Peterborough Canoe Company's works in the past month.

Several days ago a large steamboat was shipped to Edmonton for the Government Exploration work, which is being carried on in the northern part of Alberta. Accompanying this boat was a sixty-foot pleasure launch, which is to be used on Lake Winnipeg, Man. This boat will be sent in a "knock-down" condition, and when it reaches its destination it will be put together and launched for the summer. A carload of open launches from 20 to 30 feet in length, were sent to Winnipeg a week ago.

A twenty-six foot cabin cruiser was shipped to Quebec, where it will be used on the Gatineau River.

Besides the many launches manufactured within the past month, numerous canoes are being shipped every day to all parts of Canada.

The English Canoe Company has received an order for a large number of canoes, which are to be used in the Nipigon district. They have also sent several crates, each containing five canoes, to South America and South Africa.

Large shipments of canoes are being received by the Company from firms throughout the province.

WEDDING BELLS

CUMMISKEY—GRANDY.

The home of Mr. Wm. Grandy, Fleetwood, was the scene of a very happy event Wednesday, March 30th, when his daughter, Elsie Jane, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Mr. J. C. Cummiskey, formerly of Westwood.

The ceremony was performed at three o'clock in the presence of about twenty-five guests, nearest relatives, the Rev. Mr. Jones, of Victoria Road, officiating. The bride, who was charmingly adorned in a most beautiful gown of white silk, with yoke of silk embroidered net, entered the parlour on the arm of her father and carrying a handsome spray of carnations, roses and maiden hair ferns. She also wore a wreath of orange blossoms in her hair. Miss Ruth Grandy, cousin to the bride, bore the ring, buried in a tray of lilies of the valley. She was prettily attired in a dress of point d'esprit, made over a slip of white silk. Miss Florence Hart ably rendered the strains of the wedding march.

After the ceremony and congratulations the guests sang "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow." Then all repaired to the dining hall, where a sumptuous repast was enjoyed.

The bride was the recipient of a number of beautiful and costly gifts. The groom's present was a gold bracelet, while to the ring bearer he gave a gold ring, set with pearls and rubies.

The bride's travelling suit was blue Amazon cloth and point d'esprit waist, with black picture hat.

After luncheon the young couple, in a heavy shower of rice and good wishes, entered a cab, which conveyed them to Lindsay. They will visit Toronto, Peterborough, and other points. They will reside near Fleetwood. Mr. Cummiskey is manager of the Fleetwood cheese factory.

THE VICTORIA METEORITE

On Exhibition at Richard Hall & Son's Store—A 324 Pound "Bolt From the Blue."

The wonderful meteoric mass of metallic iron and other alloy, which fell to the earth from space at some distant period, and known as the "Victoria" meteorite, is on exhibition for a short time at the store of Richard Hall & Son, George street.

It is a remarkable phenomenon of the material world, which strikes one as strange and unaccountable, coming according to Shakespeare, from

"The vaulty top of heaven
Figured quite o'er with burning meteors."

An opportunity has been afforded our citizens of viewing this wonderful curiosity, at Messrs. Hall & Son's, who have devoted a convenient section of their store on the ground floor to its exhibition, and all are invited to call and see it any hour during the day.

The weight of this ponderous meteorite is 324 pounds. An analysis of its constituents is given as follows: iron, 90 per cent.; nickel, 8 per cent.; remainder cobalt, copper, sulphur, phosphorus and carbon. It is copper coloured and shows a pitted surface.

It is recorded that the Indians of the North West held this meteorite as one of their most sacred relics. It had come to them from the sky, and as such, seemed to them, to be a special messenger from the gods. Consequently they worshipped it. It was an idol. The remarkable shape of the meteorite, showing in profile the face of a man, enhanced this idea.

The Rev. George McDougall, the famous Methodist Missionary, who laboured so faithfully among the Indians of our great West, finally induced the red men to part with their idol. They did so, however, with great fear and trepidation, as they thought surely the gods would punish them for such treatment.

The iron mass was forwarded to Victoria University and deposited in the museum there, and has been loaned to the Royal Astronomical Society of Peterborough. It is stated that the sum of $5,000 cash has been offered for this meteorite.

SUSPECT CAPTURED.

London Police Arrest Jack Prodgers In Frank Case.

London, April 7.—Jack Prodgers was yesterday afternoon arrested in connection with the attack Tuesday on Miss Frank at her home on the Wellington road.

The clue which cast suspicion on Prodgers was furnished by Robert Bremner of 122 Adelaide street, to whose door Prodgers came on Tuesday night, bareheaded, and asked for a hat. Bremner gave him the choice of two, and he took one. The man who attacked Miss Frank fled without his hat, which was found on the grass at the door, where the struggle took place.

Prodgers is a well-known character about the city. He was formerly a bartender. He has a known police record, dating back to 1898, when he was brought up in connection with the brutal treatment of an old man. A colored man, John Harris, was also a defendant in this case. In 1905 Prodgers was convicted of stealing in this city. He has also been in court several times for being drunk.

He is about 35 years old, and has been living at 17 Albion Block. He is a dark-complexioned man, about five feet six inches in height.

Bremner identified Prodgers as the man to whom he had given a hat. The charge against him to-day is "shooting with intent to kill."

The prisoner has not been taken to Miss Frank for possible identification, as the police state she is too ill for such an ordeal. Her physician states that she is suffering greatly from shock, two of her wounds may lead to blood-poisoning, and her condition is generally critical.

Prodgers first denied that he was the man to whom Bremner gave the hat.

One of the car ferry's life belts was attached to the body.

Brothers Charged With Murder.

Valleyfield, Que., April 7.—Although the detectives are looking particularly wise, and mysterious and sensational statements are expressed daily in the trial of the Houle brothers for the murder of their brother-in-law, Pelletier, no important evidence was adduced yesterday.

Michael Denis, a farmer, said he had heard shots the morning of the alleged murder, and later on saw two men, whom he took for hunters, coming away from the Pelletier farm, but the distance was too great for identification.

Harry Stafford Dead.

Montreal, April 7.—As the newspapermen were returning from Mount Royal Cemetery, where they had attended the funeral of their confrere, Robinson of The Gazette, they heard the news of Harry Stafford's death.

Stafford was one of the seniors of the Montreal press. He was on The Gazette, known as Tom, while he was known in the Ottawa gallery fifteen years ago and for a time edited The Morrisburg Courier. He was 51 years old.

Amending the Annuities Act.

Ottawa, April 7.—The Annuities Act will be amended so as to permit the purchase of an annuity for another person, and to cheapen the rates to those above 80 years of age, and to allow a wife to convert part of her annuity to the benefit of her husband.

The number of annuities outstanding is 644, of which 374 are males and 270 females. The purchase money received to date is $483,358.44 The amount of the annuities represented by this payment is $160,500.

Monorail Elevated.

Dover, Del., April 7.—A charter has just been issued here to the International Elevated Railroad Co. of Washington, a monorail concern, with a capital of $50,000,000. At the same time the Universal Motor Co. of Washington, D.C., is also incorporated with a capital of $5,000,000. The latter concern will build the equipment. The International Company, it is stated, will build its first line in Brooklyn, N.Y.

G.T.R. Telegraphers Refuse Schedule.

Montreal, April 7.—The dispute between the G.T.R. telegraphers and the Grand Trunk Railway is still unsettled. Although the board of arbitration granted the telegraphers Sunday overtime, with a 6 per cent. increase, the company has issued a schedule granting the telegraphers an increase of $2. The telegraphers have voted on this schedule, and 95 per cent. are against accepting it.

Galt, April 7.—Galt Collegiate Institute board have set their foot down on dancing as a recognized amusement for students. The Glee Club asked the board for the use of the assembly hall for a concert and "hop." It was granted for a concert, with explicit instructions to cut out the dancing.
